He expressed fear that trying it was "for the benefit of Senator McCarthy, Goebbels and Hitler." He said the Socialist movement had begun its meetings for generations ahead with the Conservatives.

"We don't propose to stop for Senator McCarthy," he declared.

Bevan said it was "childish" to think that, after the destruction of Germany, Russia's leaders were preparing for another general attack.

Bevan said he had resigned-as did Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in April, 1851, "largely because I considered that the policies of Senator McCarthy were going to be closely upon the U. S. A."

"It seemed to me then and it seems to me now," he added, "that the analysis which leading American statesmen made at the end of war in the world was shallow and superficial and that it was quite correct to say that revolutionary upheavals which have harassed for our lifetime and certainly place the end of the last war are a direct consequence of the unjust and pitiful ripping of the Kremlin."

Other Letter Known

Gottwald's letter also criticized U. S. foreign policy and took passing potshots at McCarthy.

John Foster Dulles, U.S. secretary of state, explained the decision to release Oatis when Ambassador Belle Oatis observed:

"I'm so deeply grateful."

Moscow's announcement was broadcast in foreign news page of Pravda. It said:

"The Czechoslovak news agency is informed that the chairman of the Czechoslovak republic William Siroky has granted a petition by Oatis, a citizen of the United States and a former correspondent of The Associated Press in Prague. William Oatis on July 4, 1851, was exposed by the state court in Prague for espionage and other anti-state activities and was sentenced to deprival of freedom for 10 years.

"In November, 1952, the wife of William Oatis appealed to him through the Czechoslovak embassy in Washington, and a letter to the president of the Czechoslovak republic with a request for pardoning. On the basis of this letter the chairman of the Czechoslovak news agency for the president of the republic has granted pardon."

Mental Patient Attacks, Kills Hospital Guard

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A veteran guard at the Ontario Hospital for Mercy Christian Forrest, 47, died of multiple skull fractures Friday night after he was hit over the head with a metal tea pitcher. Police said the attack after supper time in the diet kitchen of the 1,500-patient hospital.

Dr. A. McCausland, superintendent of the hospital, said the attacker was a patient who for the past year he had his back turned by a 47-year-old man. Forrest had been in the institution for six years and had never shown any previous violence, Dr. McCausland said.

The patient had been under treatment for mental illness, Dr. McCausland said, and was termed "a sudden impulse" by Dr. McCausland. He said the attack was unprovoked and unfortunate."

A report is being forwarded by hospital authorities to the Ontario department of health, Dr. Emerson L. Hodgins, coroner in the case, said there would be an inquest, but no date has been set.

EIGHT MEMBERS OF RCAF KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Mitchell Plunges Into Water-Filled Field

By PETER BUCKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Eight members of the RCAF lost their lives Friday night when their Mitchell medium bomber crashed in a water-filled field near suburban Valois.

Bodies and parts of the twin-engine B-25 were strewn over a wide area in the farming area at Trenton, Ont., was on its way back from Chatham, N.B., when the crash occurred in poor weather.

Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of next-of-kin.

One of the bodies was draped over a stone fence, a leg severed. The man was clutching a tuft of grass in a clenched fist. A decapitated body was found 100 yards from where the plane crashed. Another had most of the clothes torned away.

So violent was the impact of the crash that the tail assembly was found 300 yards away. Small trees were cut down as the plane slid on.

The crash occurred a mile north of Lakeside Heights, about 15 miles west of Montreal.

One of the first RCAF officials on the scene was Wing Cmdr. W. Lupton, commanding officer of the 426 transport squadron. He later said a board of inquiry has been set up to look into the crash.

Residents of the district said they heard a plane overhead shortly before the crash. It seemed to be in trouble. Some said there was an explosion following the crash.

A spokesman for the RCAF said the plane called the control tower at Dorval airport several times and made a number of passes at the field before disappearing.

The spokesman said poor visibility at the time could have caused the crash. Another possibility was the poor radio reception as the pilot reported to have lost his sense of direction.

Four From Trenton

TRENTON, Ont. (CP) — The RCAF today announced the names of four of eight men killed in the crash of a Mitchell bomber at Valois, Que.

They are: Flt. Lt. L. H. Ferguson, 29; Flt. Lt. K. E. Turner, Cpl. M. L. Barnes and F/O. D. R. Hamilton, 23. All were based at the RCAF air base here.

An air force spokesman said the other four men on the plane were believed to have been stationed at an RCAF base at Chatham, N. B.

Uproar in Naples At Sinatra Show

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—A disappointed audience broke up an open-air recital Friday night during a performance by Frank Sinatra because the singer's beautiful actress wife, Ava Gardner, failed to show.

Sinatra waited on the stage in a huff amid tumultuous shouting, whistling and booing. The show went on again only after Police Chief Fausto Salvatore personally took charge of the situation.

The trouble started at a matinee, the first of Sinatra's two-a-day scheduled performances in which he was billed to appear with his wife. Miss Sinatra said, but that was all. At the end the audience booked and whistled. Police forcibly cleared the theatre.

Hundreds on Knees Cry 'Sacrilege' When 'Vision Hill' Is Demolished

HERCLODEACH, Germany (Reuter)—Believers cried "sacrilege" Friday as demolition teams went to work on "Vision Hill," where young children last year claimed they saw the Virgin Mary.

Hundreds of dismayed men and women fell to their knees in prayer as workmen started dismantling chapels, altars and hawkers' booths on the hill.

Police detachments guarded the hill against possible attacks by fanatics.

The Roman Catholic Church has refused to recognize the "miracle" and has excommunicated 20 persons concerned in promoting the affair. One of the excommunicated, an unfrocked priest, watched the shrines being torn down.

Despite the church's warning, thousands of pilgrims last year trudged up the hill to worship, hoping to see the vision. Five opera-air altars, a number of chapels and a illuminated statue of the Virgin were built.

Last February, after many citizens had complained, the local council demanded that all structures be pulled down.

McCarthy Cries Allies Bear To Little of Costs

Senator's Latest Blast Dims Calls for Unity

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Joseph McCarthy fired another blast at United States allies today with a pronouncement aimed at making them take over more of the costs of the Korean war.

The Wisconsin Republican said he has instructed his staff to draft an amendment, to the pending state department appropriations bill, designed to cut the proposed $30,000,000 US share of operating United Nations agencies.

As explained by McCarthy, who is engaged in a transatlantic word war with British Laborite, the amendment would:

1. Reduce the US contributions for UN operating expenses to the percentage level of other countries participating in those activities, and

2. Thereby induce other countries who are not—in McCarthy's view—contributing enough to the Korean war effort, to step up their support of regular UN activities as a sort of offset.

"We have been contributing 65 per cent of the money and men for the Korean war," McCarthy said in an interview "If we cut our UN contributions to 25 per cent and the other nations have been putting up in Korea, we'll have 100 cents from where the plane crashed. Another had most of the clothes from where the plane crashed. An-

Two Children Burned to Death, Mother Injured

HEARST (CP)—Two young children were burned to death late Friday and their 21-year-old mother suffered severe burns in trying to rescue them from a fire that destroyed their frame home at Coppell, a tiny settlement about 30 miles south of here on the Algoma Central Railway.

The mother, Mrs. Alfred Bois, was unconscious in hospital here early today. Her condition was described as critical.

Provincial police in this community 300 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie identified the children as Charles, aged 2, and Denise, six months.

They were the only children of Mr. and Mrs. Bois. The father was at work as a member of an ACR section gang when the fire roared through the four-room frame home. Police said they did not know what caused the blaze.

QUIT TORCH COMMANDO

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — The Torch Commando—active opponent of Prime Minister Daniel Malan—appears to be coming apart at the seams. Several of its key leaders resigned.

Among those who quit the veteran's movement, dedicated to battle the policies of Malan's Nationalist regime, were Nicholas de Wet, former chief justice of South Africa, and Maj.-Gen. George Brink, commander of Union forces in North Africa during the Second World War.

Suggestion Made to Factory Salesmen Cream be Sold For Manufacture of Butter

A suggestion that Belleville district cheese factories operate petsons' milk and sell the cream to creameries for the manufacture of butter was made to cheese factory salesmen attending Friday night's meeting of the Belleville Cheese Exchange. Only cheese were offered on the open market without price support."

The only bid offered by buyers was 25 cents per lb and this offer was refused by salesmen offering over 1,200 of the 4,113 large cheese boarded.

Noting that the federal government was supporting the price of butter but not that of cheese, W. R. McCreary, Belleville cheese buyer, suggested that directing patrons' milk to the creamery through the cheese factory would serve to eliminate any cheese surplus and at the same time help the farm price. By directing the milk through the factory the dairy plants would be maintained and ready at any time to switch back to cheese.

This brought an objection from several of the salesmen who claimed that if cheesemaking had been hired and very likely would not pay for their only responsibility was to separate the milk.

Problem Discussed

The price which farmers could expect for their milk with cheese selling at 25 cents as compared to the present price for milk for butter fat for cream, was discussed.

Grant Anderson, of Campbellford, said a price of about $1.50 per cwt. after expenses was all farmers could expect with cheese at 25c per lb.

Compared to this price, Don McKevitt, Belleville cheese operator, said 3.5 per cent milk, creamed and made into butter, would return the farmer between $2 and $2.10 per cwt. at today's price of 62c. A drop of two cents per lb. butterfat was possible.

Mr. Anderson, Campbellford, said that buyers hardly knew which way to turn. He said he was prepared to offer 25c but being offered that price at this price there may be a surplus of cheese. Also, April cheese could not be depended upon for its keeping qualities.

Frank Gallagher, of the U.E.L. factory, directed a question at Charles N. Heath, secretary of the Ontario Cheese Producers, asking when last year's hold-back for cheese was to be paid to farmers. "Patrons are asking this question every day," he said, "but we have not even had a statement from the producers' association."

In reply Mr. Heath claimed there had been no promise by the producers' association as to when the hold-back would be paid. However, the reason it had not been paid was that over five million pounds of last year's cheese still remained unsold. "When we sell the cheese, factories will get their rebate," he said.

Would Not Work

Hector Arnold, of Campbellford, vice-president of the producers' association, reviewed the attempts made by the marketing board to secure a floor price at Ottawa only to be met with the offer of co-operative selling on the same basis as last year. The last year, he said, everyone had come to the conclusion that this would not work.

"The only thing I can suggest is for you to go to the next labour federal member and put on the pressure asking for a floor price for cheese," he said.

"Farmers are too easy," he went on. "If this was a big organization we would be in Ottawa tomorrow."

Mr. Arnold went on to point out there was every expectation of a surplus of millions pounds of cheese being made this year. Without a floor price the extra surplus could be ruinous.

"By leaving up Ottawa with their hands tied it was extremely regrettable that the price offered for cheese today was about ten cents less than was received by farmers two years ago. The only government offer for the continuation of last year's cooperative selling, but this was not too good as farmers wanted all their money at the same time.

Difficult to See

He said it was difficult to see what might take place in the way of cheese production. Canning plants were beginning to divert milk from the cheese factories and patron confidence could not be foreseen. He said there was a possibility cheese would not be as much cheese as was expected.

He did not know what was going to take place with cheese being sold on the open market. However, in view of production costs and the ability of the consumer to pay, he felt 25c per lb. was too low a price.

Earl Whiteman, of Shannonville, called for unified support of the cheese producers' association. "Our organization is not any stronger than we make it," he said. "Too many, right in this building, are ready to criticize it."

This brought a round of applause from factory salesmen.

Following boarding of the cheese, the exchange was adjourned until Tuesday, May 20.

Large Offering Of Transplanting Stock on Market

The local farmers' market was turned into a greenhouse salesroom today as close to one half of the vendors offered transplanting stock of some nature for sale.

Pansies in flower were offered in profusion at 35c per box while almost every other kind of potted plants and flowers were offered. Tulips sold at 30c per dozen.

Tomato, cabbage and celery plants were 35c per box with large flats of tomatoes bringing $1.50. Columbia raspberries were a dime each or $8 per 100, while strawberry plants sold at $2 per 100.

Fresh asparagus was 20c per half-pound bunch with rhubarb and onions a dime per bunch or three for 25c.

The offering of apples is rapidly falling off with top grade Delicious fetching $1 per six-quart basket and Spys 90c. Salesmen were 60c per basket.

Eggs held at last week's quotation of 27c per dozen for first with 25c being asked for mediums. Spring broilers ranged from 35c to 60c per lb. while mature fowl sold from 30c to 35c.

The price of maidens dropped a nickel per pound to 30c with four lbs being offered for $1.

Young pigs were in good demand with farmers asking $15 each for eight weeks old pigtets.

GIANTS SELL SPENCER

CINCINNATI (AP)—New York Giants announced Friday they have sold pitcher George Spencer to Minneapolis of the American Association.

Cheese Exchange

With 21 cents per pound offered only about three-fifths of the white and colored cheese offered on the Belleville Cheese Exchange Friday night were sold by factory salesmen.

All factories had the opportunity of disposing of their cheese at the above figure but salesmen for over 1,200 cheese declined to accept. There were 3,364 colored, 753 white and 781 special cheese offered.

Origin of Several Hastings County Names Closely Associated With British History

By Lavonia Stockelbach

The Name of Tyendinaga

Of the men who have made Canada, no one had a more dramatic life than the Mohawk chief, Tyendinaga. Indeed, our history in all its aspects is full of breathtaking adventure that, for the most part, remains either untold or badly told.

For that, a deep knowledge of the facts combined with a novelist's sense of drama are needed as the warp and woof of woven cloth. Gather the facts, place them aside on the brain for a time — long or short — then re-collect them and present them in the light of day. Time and care are very good partners. Of the making of books there is no end and of the making of books on Canadian history there is scarcely a beginning. Our French compatriots have done better.

The amount of this historian depends on the capacity of the many to judge, and to enjoy.

The readers of this page probably know of Tyendinaga, Brant and the Loyalist Mohawks, and of the thousand 'pages of Stone's life of him than I do so I shall confine myself to the visits made by him to Europe in the reign of George III, and of his grandfather in the reign of Queen Anne.

But first a passing glimpse at one of their churches in Ontario, one, that, despite the beauty of Christ's Church makes a delightful bit of modern architectural sketching with its lancet windows and world-wide charm. It is perhaps not so much spectacled or attended as it could be. After looking at the type of crow, one reads the plaque on the south side of the tower beginning, "Fear God and honor the Queen." Above the doorway is a wolf's head.

Outside, the view is quiet and peaceful, a typical Ontario scene. Sumachs edge the bay shore, there we find hickory, white oak, basswood, and a beautiful dark green red cedar. Here are two maples by the grave of Oron-hyatekha. There are the sweet scented Canada violet, columbine, and wild ginger. There is also the jewel-weed which is supposed to be a cure for poison ivy.

Like so many of our grave yards, Christ's for example, it betrays a careless neglect and it should be a beauty spot.

The attempt by Rector Savary the last time I was there was on, "I owe a debt to the Greek and the Barbarian," and we also owe a debt to those buried there. It is comforting to sit in church with some beauty around, and the stained glass window depicting our Lord with lambs and sheep is a joy with its halo, or nimbus, of the royalist of royal blues offset by crimson.

The people despoiled of their lands have had no historians. Their story has been told by the despoilers. One may hope that among the Indians will yet arise a writer capable of telling, their side and that side cannot always be one sided, cruel and barbaric.

If we admit that heredity affects a man's character more than does his environment, his surroundings or material way of life, there are certain ancient qualities one has a right to expect of them. In the most part, wherever the Europeans landed in America, they were at first given a favorable reception. In their eagerness to get wealth quickly, the pale-faces took every means, fair or foul, to get hold of the gold and silver they imagined was to be found.

Now all we can give them to counteract the misery of our ancestors is patience, patience to help them regain their ancient virtues, their ancient skills, which those who were settled in the lovely Mohawk valley in the New England colony of New York had in great measure.

In Europe the ambition of Louis XIV of France, the tyrant of his time, had made his country the most powerful of the world. He had a number of Protestant alliances but again a French sovereign attacked his own people, the Protestant Huguenots as they had been attacked a hundred years before. Again they were forced to escape from their homes, to the great advantages of the countries that received them.

Our own William III fought him heart and soul from the Battle of the Boyne until the day of his death. Ireland had ever been plagued by her faith in France.

It was another age of displaced persons. In 1709 Queen Anne, that lady of sorrows, was on the throne of England. She was touched by the woeful condition of the Germans of a section called the Palitinate. Some of them she helped come to England, some to Ireland where I came across their descendants down in Adare, Limerick; others came to the Mohawk Valley. She had churches built and one for the Mohawk Indians.

It was the sort of thing the Queen enjoyed doing. In fact she had an act passed for building three new churches. She took part in the art and literature of the day but she was deeply religious. She was the "good Queen Anne." And she did love gardens.

Five chiefs from the Mohawk Valley visited London in 1710. French and English were making bids for the friendship of the red men, the French of Canada and the English of New England. The seven-centuries-old war between French and English was continued on this side of the Atlantic and these chiefs were persuaded by Peter Schuyler from Navigation in those days was very much a matter of chance, but their fame had preceded them and were willing to take such chances, down to our own days of Kin-Tiki.

What feats did they sail on! How long were the voyages! With what courage or what fervor did they go to the wide atlantic? Everything arouses our curiosity and nothing surprises it until the quest is satisfied.

On their arrival in England Indian chiefs were conducted in two coaches by Sir Charles Cotterel and presented by the Duke of Shrewsbury, then Lord Chamberlain. How were they impressed by the handsome queen, with her thick golden hair, blue eyes and black eyelashes? She was still mourning for the death of her beloved husband Prince Georges of Denmark. And she was suffering from the terrible dropsy from which she died a few years later.

And how were the English impressed by the Indians? Then as now they had a keen appreciation of novelty, and we can believe they enjoyed this sensation. The chiefs' speech to the Queen has been preserved by Oldmixon, the historian of the time, so I shall have the pleasure of finding that for her beloved Public Library in the Mohawk Valley.

Whatever it was, it had the effect, among other gifts, of getting the Queen to order a Communion service made for her by one of the Garthorne Brothers for the church that had been built in the Mohawk Valley.

It was not too difficult to trace those silversmiths. A happy combination of unfailing luck and unfailing kindness always seems to bring results. All silver articles can be traced by the hall-marks, of origin, and maker's name engraved on each piece of sterling, the hall-marks. Naturally, not the hall names as there would not be room, but a distinguishing mark that can be traced. By chance there was an exhibition of antiques in My London hotel, and by the kindness and patience of one of the exhibitors, Mr. Biggs of Maidenhead, the whole story of the Deseronto piece was traced to the Garthorne brothers Arthorne. In addition, Mr. Spendlove, Curator at the Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto, was also a remarkably clear enlargement of the hall-mark on a piece of the Hamilton Communion service.

It is just as when you come across a child. You are meeting it constantly. So it was with this silver of the time of Queen Anne, this work of regal beauty. Still more beautiful is the inscription engraved on one of the pieces . . . "The gift of Her Majesty, Anne, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland and of Her Plantations in North America, Queen, to Her Indian Chapel of the Mohawks."

By chance again, the last Sunday of July, when I went to Christ Church Cathedral in Dublin I heard a history of it by the Dean, Lewis-Crosby. I had gone there chiefly to visit the tomb of Strongbow and found in the little church William II had presented the church with the most beautiful set of candlesticks, flagons, chalice and a large paten, in commemoration of his success at the Battle of the Boyne. The silver was on his way back to England.

It existed 1698 and made by Francis Garthorne, one of the brothers who had made the Deseronto silver. Explaining my interest in it to the verger, he found the Dean — a kind and eighty-four years young — and after a little talk it was arranged that I should come to the church the next day, Monday at 11.15 and all of it would be brought to the vestry where I could examine it again to my heart's content.

There, in a large comfortable room, stood a huge table, the silver was displayed. Everyone was extremely interested to hear about the companion pieces beyond the seas, of the burying of them beneath the earth by the American soldiers in the Revolutionary War, and of the years' rest in the ground wrapped in the clear cloth, and the rescue of this treasure and of its present quarters . . . an epic poem that deserves to be told in language fitting.

It was indeed grateful to my friends in Deseronto whose kindness in permitting me to see their Communion silver had given me this happy morning in Dublin.

It was with emotion that the Dean preached a very fine sermon. May he live forever!

Among many people who have the praiseworthy habit of keeping friends, Wesley, Fleyre, Boswell, etc. the last named is the greatest delight. His chief love was Dr. Samuel Johnson, and he almost made him ours. This summer I was given a book about the "Tour of the Hebrides." It was again to the pleasant village of Moira, Ulster.

When I came across Boswell's "jaunt to Ireland in 1769" I read it. "Belfast, the town, is beautifully situated, and is quite very pretty itself . . . Between Belfast and Lisburn (the following edition) there is the finest country I ever saw, naturally rich, finely diversified, and improved to the utmost. I never saw such a vegetation of such a quantity of grass and daisies upon the ground . . . The people have in general good houses all inhabited by substantial farmers, and good bone by all Bangor and Carrickfergus . . . I have thought and raved so much about it to represent the life of my Irish ideas. I sang a song of which Belfast was the was quite the hawk." Back in London he writes . . . "I heard a high Mass in the Chapel of the Neapolitan Ambassador, and antiques in My London hotel, and by the kindness and patience of one of the exhibitors, Mr. Biggs of Maidenhead, the whole story of the Deseronto piece was traced to the Garthorne brothers Arthorne. In addition, Mr. Spendlove, Curator at the Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto, was also a remarkably clear enlargement of the hall-mark on a piece of the Hamilton Communion service.

This is the Boswell whom Tyendinaga met on his visit to London in 1776.

Thanks to the kindness of Dr. Frederick a Pottle, in whose hands have been the tremendous administration of the Boswell Papers, I was able to get from Yale University Library a photograph of the actual diary page referring to the visit. Boswell's transcribe here the part referring to Brant . . . "I dined here with the chief of the Mohawks Theandenegen, grandson of Him who visited England in the time of Queen Anne. . . . I was told that an officer whom I saw here, had conducted the—Chief to England. He did not understand much, but he & found him very affable. He told me his name was Tice and he did what should always be done when a name is mentioned for the first time — he spelt it . . . TICE.

The ear almost never catches a new name exactly so it should be noted that Tyendinaga, He was of English extraction, but had never been in Britain before. He had served in the last war & during the present troubles in America, had been at Fort St. John with my cousin Major Charles Preston, having left it his Mohawk chief & a good many Indians. But he was left in September. He spoke with high esteem of Preston . . . I took occasion to pay him a visit he said he would be glad to see any of my family. I went to see with the chief & him at the Swan with two necks in Haldane. They had put up at that Inn, on their arrival in town, and the chief finding the people as civil, that he would not leave the house to go to lodgings. I dined a little with the chief tonight. He spoke English quite well. But I shall not put down any particulars concerning him here, as I am to draw up some account of him for the London Magazine. Came home with Dempster. Late at night time."

It only Brant had kept a daily record of these meetings.

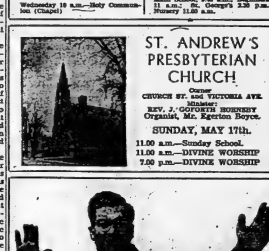
I found the magazine with the article and Boswell's description of his . . . "His manners are gentle and quiet; and to those who study human nature, he affords a very convincing proof of the excellency of our religion that produce upon the wildest race. He is a man of letters in the English language that he is engaged in a translation of the New Testament into the Mohawk tongue." . . . "He was struck with the appearance of the English in general; but he said he chiefly admired the ladies and the horses."



A number of portraits were made of him at the time, but I like best the one made by Romney which is in the Tate Gallery and got a photograph of it. This Romney was painted chiefly for his many enchanting portraits of Lady Hamilton. At that time there were two noted portrait painters in London, Reynolds and Romney. Thurlow, commenting on them said, "There are two factions in Art, and I am the Romney faction." It is pleasant for me to be in agreement with Thurlow.

In regard to the curious name of the inn where the chief stayed in London. It is no longer there but was probably in Cornhill an St. pot far from St. Paul's Cathedral. We are quite used to two-headed birds, specially if you are a stamp collector but just how one could have two necks was a puzzle. It seems that the owners of the inn were obliged to put a distinguishing mark on them just as cattle are branded and sheep marked.

In the case of the swan the mark appears in the yellow beak with a sharp knife. It is still done in August and is known as swan-upping when the young swans are taken up and marked. We are told that straight lines were not so painful as wavy lines so these are now more of the former. The Vintners' Company had no such "nicks" which word became corrupted to "necks" and quite naturally the name of the inn, another of those delightful puns since England.

Another interesting photograph, of a drawing dated 1786 about the time of Brant's second visit to England shows George III, and the Queen, each on chairs raised on a dais in a chapel with bishops on either side of them and another in the pulpit with the Dean of the occasion on one side. They are presenting Bibles to a group of Indians and it is a pleasure to be reminder of what we are too prone to forget about the Indians. We heard of his unhappy obituary, forgetting that other side of philanthropy and kindness of heart of himself and his wife.

We recall his noble speech to John Adams, . . . I was the last to consent to the separation: but the separation having been made and having become inevitable, I have always said, as I say now, that I would be the first to meet

United Church Boosts Fund Objective

Toronto—The United Church of Canada will seek to raise more than $4,000,000 next year for its nationally operated projects in Canada and overseas, Dr. Victor T. Mooney, treasurer, told a general council executive meeting this week.

He announced there has been a "constant increase" in givings to the church's many agencies contributed for all local and national church purposes, an all-time high of $30,823,850, an increase of $3,742,000 over the previous year.

The Church's Missionary and Maintenance Fund objective for 1953 is $3,850,000. Dr. Mooney said. More than $1,000,000 will go for home missionary work in Canada and $640,000 for overseas missionary work. The balance will be for schools and colleges, Christian education, evangelism and publicity, medical missionary education, deaconess work, pensions and several special projects. The Missionary and Maintenance Department is the fundiest United Church agency. Dr. Mooney reported. The church's capital position continues to improve. Various church boards hold invested assets of $9,500,000.

The average contribution per member by regular envelopes is 28 cents a week.

A REFUGE FOR McCARTHY

One encouraging aspect of the unfortunate strain that has been placed upon Anglo-American friendship this week is to be found in a single paragraph of a New York Times dispatch from Washington. It read:

"The debate was shunned by every Democrat and by all Senators in both parties who have any direct responsibilities for foreign policy."

This attitude reflects that adopted by President Eisenhower. In what the Associated Press describes as a "rebuff" to Clement Attlee's comments on United States peace aims, the president contented himself with the remark: "It was most fitting in America who does not want peace." He discounted talk of any serious differences with Britain.

However, the headlines went to Senator McCarthy and there the damage has been done in rousing Anglophobe elements among the American people. It was a sad mistake that Mr. Attlee made when he referred to the Wisconsin senator by name. It was one of those touches in political debate which could have been left unsaid without detracting one whit from the theme of his criticism.

There have been few times in American political history when so contemptible a figure as McCarthy has arisen in prominence. In the eyes of clear-thinking Americans he has been fully appraised as a master of distortion and slander and a demagogue who has thrown curves at the American people since the days of the late Senator Huey Long of Louisiana. He has, nevertheless, the solid support of all isolationist elements in the nation and, as well, a new following in many sections of the country among those who have been alarmed at the undoubted extent to which Communists had infiltrated important positions in the Government during the Roosevelt and Truman administrations.

What Mr. Attlee probably did not know is that his remarks provided McCarthy with new ammunition, at a time when his anti-McCarthy forces through several recent events had drawn him into the open and more exposed than he had been at any other time. The most recent of these was the flagrant attempt at intimidation of the press when Joseph Wechsler, editor of the New York Evening Post, was summoned before McCarthy's investigation committee. The precise moment when Wechsler was summoned was his connection with the Young Communist League as a Columbia University student 18 years ago. Wechsler has since become known as one of the most effective anti-Communist writers and workers in the United States.

This sin in the eyes of McCarthy, however, is that he has been quite as vigorously and effectively anti-McCarthy. Wechsler had been questioned for five hours at closed hearings of the committee and apparently that time only five minutes had been devoted to the early writings upon which he had been summoned. When the record of the hearing was made public the influential American journal published a denunciation of McCarthy's tactics as outright intimidation and accused him of preparing an indictment by denunciation and innuendo, rather than searching for facts."

The import of this is that McCarthy is under investigation by the American Society of Newspaper Editors which proposes to find out how far he has gone in directions which are distinctly un-American objectives. The case will be heard before now he had attacked a Drew Pearson sponsor because that commentator was a McCarthy critic. Time magazine has reported that eleven of the national advertisers had received letters from the senator asking them to withdraw their advertising because of an article which exposed his record.

As recently as last week the anti-McCarthy forces had believed that they had him on the run. And then came this inadvertent remark of Attlee's across the Atlantic to provide Republican, and not on a subject which diverts attention from the exposure which was threatening to be fatal to his demagogic posturings and slanderous accusations in the name of patriotism. That was worth so many for so long. Nothing else could have served McCarthy in better stead.

And only last week the anti-McCarthy forces had believed that they had him on the run. And then came this inadvertent remark of Attlee's across the Atlantic to provide Republican, and not on a subject which diverts attention from the exposure which was threatening to be fatal to his demagogic posturings and slanderous accusations in the name of patriotism. Long ago it was well said that patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel.

ARE WE FOOLING OURSELVES?

Canadians hear a great deal about the increasing stature of our country among the influential nations of the world. Perhaps we should come to feel that some of it is beginning to be "some pumpkins" in world affairs it is only because our public figures have done a good deal to encourage the notion.

Never the Ottawa Journal is not a newspaper which might be said to be "always belittling", but it notes with some interest that we could be footing ourselves a little. A week ago Prime Minister St. Laurent was in Washington for two days conferring with the President and State Secretary Dulles. Canadians believed this to be a vastly important conference concerning the St. Lawrence seaway and with trade between two countries "which have greater two-way trade than any two other countries on earth."

"But," notes the Journal, "on Sunday's print of the New York Times, greatest of American newspapers, there was not a single line about Mr. St. Laurent's mission, not a word about it in Parliament. The Times' weekly review section (it recently won the Pulitzer Award for complete international coverage) dealt with Korea, Indo-China, Germany, de Gaulle, a conference of state governors, politics in Britain and Germany, troubles in Kenya, other things, other places. It carried not one line about Mr. St. Laurent in Washington . . . .

. . . . If the greatest of American newspapers does not consider an important mission to Washington by the Prime Minister of Canada worthy of mention in its weekly review of international events, then how are we to bring home to 'the American Congress and people' the importance of the St. Lawrence seaway and of freer trade between the U.S. and Canada?"

Farmers picked their orchard from Baldern. As is the custom the farmers in the district posted themselves over the week-end in their flowering fruit orchards near the highways in an attempt to guard them from the animal invasion of "nature lovers," who each year callously strip the bloom-laden branches, causing hundreds of dollars damage. In many cases the farmers were powerless to stem the tide, evidence of which was in the shape of broken and bare trees, robbed of their branches stand an many farms near the stand on many farms near the highways. On one farm west of the city, a gunner fired his collect with shotgun in hand. On another farm a car, which was left on the highway near the fence, while the party-owner at the chard. Upon the return of the owners of the farm-er made them pay for the damage before he allowed them to leave. Examination of the car and proceed on their way. Those in the party of motorists were in Prince Edward County.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A couple of weeks ago, before the leaves had formed their first veil of green, I was sitting still in a canoe on a small river and heard a partridge drumming not a dozen paces from me. I left. My eye happened to catch sight of a movement and less than 30 feet overhead. It was not an accipiter such as are supposed to prey on game birds, but either a redtailed or a broad-wing hawk, the woodland hawks that feed on snakes, insects.

With a few fast flaps, the buteo turned and then set its wings half closed, its shoulders hunched, and planed to the heron-hawk posture for the dood, above the steeply towards the still-drumming partridge. A few minutes later, I found the partridge feathers and tracks indicated one little wild rooster had strutted his last love-call.

The veil of green is now over the forest. Yesterday, in another part of the woods, I encountered a fox carrying a partridge. It too was a cock bird, doubtless interrupted in the valiant act of drumming. The valiant are the first victims. It is the lage which now screens the drummer from the eye of the hawk out of the ground as well as forming overhead, and so served as protection for the slightly smaller fax or other predator that will spend two or three hours stalking a drumming bird, advancing while he drums, hiding while he rests.

It is tough being a partridge and in love.

The wonder is that the race of partridge was not exterminated ages ago. Nature seems to have been very ill-advised, making so many of her creatures so splendid and vulnerable. In the vain glory of the breeding season, so many species, the deer, the moose, pheasant, partridge, give themselves away to their enemies.

Yet the stupid survive and multiply. It is true amongst us humans too. Maybe stupidity is the ideal towards which nature strives.

GOLDEN WEDDING

Golden Wedding! Few there are
Arm in arm to walk so far,
Share together smiles and tears,
All the cares of fifty years,
All life holds of good and ill
And have eyes that, twinkle still

Plain it is that loves relies
On that twinkle in the eyes
And the humor good to bear
Gracefully life's wear and tear.
Yes and no. Could none agree,
Golden Weddings wouldn't be.

Horse Retains Regal Place

(Ottawa Citizen)

The horse of the Royal Navy admirals who are practising equitation in London's Hyde Park, as also the horses of their place without loss of dignity in the ceremonial proceedings, directs attention to a phase of the occasion that is received with creasing notice. Foremost from many parts of the Commonwealth will be prominent in the parade from Canada, both the Army and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police will be represented. The horse-horse section of the proceedings has created great interest, for the horse has retained a place in public affection denied to mechanical contrivances. Yet it seems unfair that the military, which for two generations has been employing so much ingenuity in making the horse obsolescent, should have all the fun of riding in the parade.

On the whole, civilian support has been fundamental to the survival of horses and horsemanship. In the British Army riding is generally viewed as an esoteric, irrational art, are kept alive in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, because a prudent War Office feels that the automobile isn't here to stay after all and will have something to fall back on. In Canada, the horse is in decline to time have horses, but, not for riding.

It seems a pity that civilian dignitaries could not form the equestrian part of the pageant, as representatives of that part of the Commonwealth that has prevented the horse from becoming all-motor. Governors-general, premiers, aldermen, and air marshals might be given their just deserts by being compelled to ride on steeps with unmuslioned seats. And perhaps this element in the edition must be served. The military will yet have the brief privilege of the saddle before it returns to its electronic devices and remote-control fumes, and to cavalry regiments where for years the only "Get mounted!" has involved climbing into a 30-ton tank.

Official Uncorker

(Winnipeg Free Press)

A special interest has always attached to bottle-borne messages either picked up at sea or washed ashore.

Perhaps this is because of the hazards involved. The chances of a bottle being picked up, are far more remote than that it would be shattered by an oncoming vessel, or by striking a rock, a floating or other debris or becomes uncorked and sink. Likewise, the chances of a bottle being flashed on a sandy beach rather than among the rocks are quite incalculably small.

Thus when a few days ago, a message was found in a bottle floating on the west coast, it was an item of more than the usual interest. The message, it is said, was cast into the sea by a British Antarctic expedition. For half a century it has been known about and during the last year or so on the coast of New Zealand.

The incident has recalled the history of bottle-floating in England. The Public Guardian records that this means of communication was deemed so important by the British traitor that in the time of Elizabeth I a statute was made to punish crime to neglect to deliver bottles to him. He has been appointed in relation of the reign of George III.

Censorship,

(Winnipeg Tribune)

The top brass in Ottawa is not at all pleased with some of the publicity it has been getting lately. There is more than a little danger that if a military censorship had been in force, the public would much learned mighty little about the doings of the army works service. Any move to hand censorship powers over to the military in the event of war should be nipped.

He Had His Clothes Back

(Fort William Times-Journal)

On hearing the name of a Fort William man mentioned, another resident of the city asked what this man looked like. He was told. Whereupon, he looked up his telephone number and called it.

When his party came on the line, the caller started out by asking a question.

"Did you ever get your clothes back?" he queried.

There was a moment or two of silence at the other end. Then:

"Say, you're not ——— ?"

"I sure am."

"What are you doing in Fort William?"

"I live here. For several years I've lived here."

Later came the explanation of the odd conversation. Neither of the two men had seen the other for 30 years—since the day when they were kids and the former used to run away from their homes. They had been caught, and the father of the other lad had taken away his clothes for a day or so in full order for adventure cooled out.

Then this week the Senator from Oregon added to the Record 31 more pages of telegrams he had received commenting on the speech. That added 62,604 more, running the total cost of the longwinded effort to more than $10,000.

Terrible Goddess

(Hamilton Spectator)

On a clear morning in the Darjeeling hills in north-eastern India there is a brief and unforgettable glimpse of a terrible and majestic mountain. From a point of distance there hangs suspended in the sky a silver arrowhead, the peak of Kanchenjunga, all awe-inspiring. It is the Goddess Mother of the snows, but she is not disclosed for many miles away.

Those who believe that Everest is a goddess. Until the early years of this century, they jealously guarded their mountain fortress from trespassing Europeans. Then the Himalayan Club was formed and some of the lower slopes were made.

For more than 30 years this goddess lured men to brave endeavour and to death and has been unconquered. Not a single man has ever reached the summit of Kanchenjunga. Several attempts have been made, all by British and Swiss expeditions and all, including that last year, have failed.

Now a British expedition is to try again. It is to climb the 28,003-foot peak. It was last reported as having reached the 20,000 foot mark, establishing camps up to 26,000 feet.

Perched at a distance, Everest remains Nature's most rugged challenge. It is a hell of cruel, piercing upper slopes are a treacherous wilderness of icy rock, a swept by hurricane winds. Its summit hangs hovers around 30 degrees below zero and only the bravest of men can only breathe in short gasps.

Yet there remains in the nature of man the urge to conquer the unknown. It is the spirit of the spirit. If, as the Tibetans believe, Everest is the highest mountain, may acknowledge courage and daring and allow the greatest of mortals to ascend to the gods of so many others have failed. Only Everest, the unconquered, beautiful, can make the decision.

China Not So Sure

(Newsweek Magazine)

A reason why the Chinese Reds, according to intelligence sources, are more than willing to talk peace is that they are not looking for a truce: they are as of now far from sure that Russia, faced by serious internal problems, would, if put to the test, be willing to live up to the terms of the Sino-Russian alliance. When Chinese Communist strategists felt much confident of this.

Personal Health Article

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Dr. Brady

According to a newspaper clipping from Birmingham, Alabama, the health officer said that the people were not co-operating with the health department in the control of the current rabies epidemic. "The current epidemic," said Dr. George A. Grant, "is the worst I've ever seen, and I've been here since 1921."

More than 100 cases of rabies have been detected in the county so far this year, the newspaper account said.

Of course, many children are being bitten by rabid dogs, but the good doctor makes this plea:

"I wonlg like to see every one to be wary of dogs, even your own dog if it's allowed to run loose. And I would advise all dog owners to keep their dog penned up until the epidemic is over."

The amazing Dr. Dennison-au Alabama newspaper tells me the Doctor doesn't like me very well, the reason why I never tell—asked about dog owners to get their dogs inoculated against rabies as soon as possible.

I find all this most interesting. I'm indicine and wondering if any change from the belief and attitude Dr. Dennison shared, with the late Dr. J. D. Dowling, then health officer of Jefferson County (Birmingham, Ala.) in 1930, when they established an official report on Rabies in Birmingham in the Journal of the American Medical Association, and their conclusions from years of experience in the community which they said has been called the rabies capital of North America. Here are the conclusions quoted verbatim:

"Rabies is primarily a veterinary problem. Regardless of its prevalence among dogs, it will probably never cause sufficient morbidity or mortality among human beings in this region to allow its classification as a public health problem of importance.

"If rabies were as easily contracted by man as is commonly supposed, it would in Alabama become one of the leading causes of death. Instead, it continues to be a very rare disease."

A chap who knows politics tells me that the U. S. Public Health Service boys don't like Dr. Dennison's attitude at all, and the federal boys have a good deal to say about the distribution of federal health funds to the states.

Last casual reading that I think I know more about rabies than doctors in general. So, I disagree with Dr. Dennison's edge. I merely contend that occurrence of rabies in man has been scientifically proved, at least not to my own satisfaction, but to the satisfaction of many and that inoculation of human beings with anti-rabies virus to prevent development of rabies is attended with serious results. Therefore I would not take Pasteur treatment in any circumstance, but I cannot advise anyone to take it or not to take it—that is a question for your own physician to answer.

TODAY'S TALK

IN QUEST OF A FRIEND

There is no venturous quest so filled with hope as that one in search of a friend. I remember a lot of years and a multitude of speculating experiences, in many lands, before we think the quest is over, and to and behold, the friend is gone from one side of contact! We discover that we have missed out, unable to define just why.

And so the quest goes on. It is a life experience, and we are lucky if we have time to live as a result of our pains and prayers. Wanderers, as one time, found a great part of Europe at his feet. He made and unmade friends with Princes. He counted himself as Emperor. But he was finally banished to a bleak island, and there died alone. And in his will he mentioned not one friend—his faithful valet.

Friends are earned, not made or bought. If we prove worthy to be a friend, we have found a friend. That is the whole story.

The ownership of great acres of land or large wealth in material things cannot for a moment be compared to the glory and satisfaction of having found a companion, one true and loyal friend. A friend who is a friend above all other gain.

Wendell Phillips once met Mowry Perry, the poetess, upon a Boston street car. She was in tears and was going. "To meet a friend," was the reply. "You take me with you," said Phillips. "I want to meet one." We often have to live a long time before we discover a genuine friend. But, when discovered, that choicest spaces in our hearts is none too good for such a one! We live in a selected world with a friend or two.

We never quite know when we have found the friend of our quest, but at that rare moment we are in close rapport with the angels in Heaven over the find. A new world is then discovered—a world of understanding and spiritual triumph.

THEY ARE EASILY SPOILED

It is amazing how often great men spoil their children. The Biblical character Samuel had unworthy sons. Eli, the high priest whom Samuel succeeded, had to rule because of the evil of his children. Even Solomon's wisdom is marred to found himself at last driven from home by his ingrate sons.

Benjamin Franklin spent his life giving people wise counsel on all subjects. He had one son, and he allowed him to become an insufferable brat who finally repaid the kind his father, betrayed his native country, and died hated by his fellow men.

Why, oh why, are people such fools? We can understand this dire state of affairs when we see people who have no intelligence spoiling their children and making them as much and

Oratorical Competition Highlights School's Program

As oratorical competition, filled with colorful traditions of Queen Elizabeth II and the Coronation, highlighted Air Marshal Breadner School's Empire Day program Friday.

Each classroom conducted its own program which included discussions and descriptions of the composition of the Union Jack and talks on the meaning of the Coronation and a review of the location and membership of the British Commonwealth of Nations. The school celebration of Empire Day by individual classes enabled teachers to present the meaning of the holiday in a language familiar to each grade level.

Sharing honors in Empire Day festivities were Donna Mackworthy and Roly Tinline, who were selected to represent Air Marshal Breadner School in the oratorical contest among Trenton school students. The twelve-year old students spoke on two timely subjects. Donna Mackworthy, daughter of S.L. and Mrs. D. A. MacMurchy, spoke on "Our Queen," and Roly Tinline, son of F.O. and Mrs. W. D. Tinline, delivered a talk on "The Coronation."

After introducing the Queen by her long regal title, Donna launched into her five-minute speech with a vivid description: "The Queen is twenty-seven years old, is only five feet four inches, but she wears high heels to make her appear taller. She has thick, naturally curly, golden-brown hair which she wears in a short length. Her complexion is extremely beautiful with warm coloring. Her eyes are blue and her mouth and chin show she has determination."

Displays Vast Knowledge

Donna displayed a vast knowledge of her subject with her informative description of the life of the busiest women in the world, beginning with her rising from morning until midnight. Each period was dealt with in some hearty small. Her secretaries and her official advisers receive "Boxes and boxes of papers. Some of these duties are lessened on Sundays, but she still has to attend to the big scarlet leather dispatch boxes brought by special messengers which contain highly secret papers about the nation's affairs. Even government reports, some sent by prime ministers, are sent by diplomats. Each box is locked by the person who sends it and the Queen holds the gold master key that opens them all. No matter where it is these boxes must be attended to twice a day."

She told of how the Queen must attend to outside affairs, such as visiting, receiving official openings, investitures and continued: "From this we can see that any Queen would spend most of her time mingling with the other people, so as a child Elizabeth had to learn to associate with others. She had to be polished activities to which other boys and girls will for the future (Donna herself is a member of the 4th Trenton Girl Guide Company). Her interest, driving and swimming lessons all held her interest. She and her sister spend times gave radio broadcasts, too." Here, Donna cited an incident, remarking: "At the end of one of these occasions Margaret forgot to say good-bye, so Elizabeth pulled her arm and said, 'Come on Margaret, say goodnight at least.' Much of the Queen's life is in the public, so you can see how much this training means to her."

Reference Made

Reference was made by Donna to the care the Queen takes with her 'appearance and the manner in which she chooses her clothes.

She described the Queen's husband, The Duke of Edinburgh, as our Queen's handsome husband. She said he met his wife at the Queen and is well liked by all, and is very helpful and active in their children.

"The Queen Mother is of great help to Elizabeth and her sister, Princess Margaret Rose," she said, in speaking of the Queen's family life, "will often take over certain duties when the Queen is a happy family and very fond of one another."

Donna spoke of the cost of the royal estates and of how much the family was allotted for spending money.

Following a brief resume of the Royal homes and their functions, Donna concluded: "On June 2, the Queen is the head of the Empire and commonwealth, who has attended to all these duties, who controls this vast estate will be the principal figure in the most colorful ceremony ever held by England when she will be crowned. Her coronation is of interest to all the world and will interest people from all over the world. It will be heard on radio and viewed on television, so we will all join in saying 'God Bless our Queen'."

In June, Donna will complete her second year as a student of Air Marshal Breadner School, which began in Grade 8. Prior to attending the Middleton Park School, Donna was a student at Dufferin School, Trenton. She received her early schooling in Halifax.

A model aeroplane enthusiast, ardent ball fan, swimmer and reader, Roly Tinline, another Grade 8 Air Marshal Breadner School student, spoke on "The Coronation" without the aid of a prepared speech.

Well Thought-Out

Roly referred to the publicity on the Coronation as "Coronation Fever". The young speaker feels that the Coronation makes people realize the importance of the realm, but he is not in favor with all the publicity concerning the Queen's first visit and the minute facts concerned with her life, which leave the open breath out the date of the Coronation was announced.

The topic Roly chose were well thought out and the elaborations he made on it, as they "God Save Our Queen," the Queen herself, her smile, her coronation, her husband, her coronation, history, the realm, Coronation fever, the Queen, the service, the choir and the oil, spurs and the title, "Defender of the Faith," homage and the monument, dedicating the whole country, the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh.

The two orators are both residents of Middleton Park. Donna lives at 303B Lawrence Drive and Roly lives at 14 Johnson Street. Other students participating in the preliminary competition were Carol Dolan, Ann Cameron, Terry McRae, Glen Scott, John Dever, Madelaine Hall, Barry Sharp, and June McFaul.

Principal G. D. Dwyer judged student speaking delivery, voice, gestures, general deportment, diction, pronunciation and clearness. Students were limited in their talks to three minutes. The will be one of the following titles: The Coronation, Our Town, Our School Section, Our Queen."

Cheese Factory Salesmen Refuse To Sell at Price

STRATFORD (CP)—Cheese buyers expressed apprehension Friday over the possibility of a graded market and cheese factory salesmen refused to sell their cheese when bids went up to only 27 cents for April cheese and 28 cents for May.

It was the first session of the Western Ontario cheese exchange on the open market without a government-supported floor price for the product.

Cheese prices were previously supported at 30 cents. Salesmen had expected a 28-cent basis and there was an indication that a 28-cent floor price might be established a few weeks ago.

One buyer expressed the concern of all. He was afraid that the bottom would fall out of the cheese market if the producers' association marketing board "overped" 5,000,000 pounds of cheese during a new period in storage in 1952.

He said private companies had taken 20,000,000 or 25,000,000 pounds in storage across Canada.

Bidding which started at 24 cents today advanced in stages of a 16th of a cent to round up to 27 cents for cheese made during the last half of April.

When the 28-cent bid was offered exchange chairman Albin Pearson of Bright said: "You're trying to close up some more cheese factories."

Fourth Brigade Will be Formed At Wainwright

OTTAWA (CP)—The army will whip another brigade—the fourth—into shape for Korea at the big Wainwright, Alta., training base this summer.

Currently known as the 25th infantry brigade replacement group, it will undergo intensive training at Wainwright this summer and will be under Brig. Fred Clift, DSO, of Saskatoon.

The units are the 2nd Highland Battalion, 2nd Infantry Battalion and 2nd Rifle Battalion, originally formed for service in Germany under the Atlantic Pact. They are being switched to Korea because the original units that went to Korea—the 2nd and 25th—are going to Germany in their stead this fall.

Thurlow School Section Saves Construction Costs

By acting as its own general contractor and paying its share of the cost in one year, the Thurlow township school section in the College Hill area is saving close to $100,000 in the cost of constructing a classroom addition at the Prince of Wales school. Trustees, left to right, are Mrs. Orma Slack, school principal, are shown going over plans with the school addition in the background.

Enterprising School Board in Thurlow Twp. Saves $100,000 on Four-Room Addition

In these days of increasing educational costs, any school board which can save money and even reasonably happy is doing the unusual, but to build a four-room addition to a school and pay it all in one year is almost seemingly impossible.

But that is exactly what board members of the No. 5 Rural School Section in Thurlow township did.

What's more, by being their own general contractors they figure they are saving a big chunk of the taxpayers' money in actual construction costs.

Cost estimates for the new 4-room addition, had construction been done by a general contractor, ran close to $100,000, and at today's interest rates financing over a 20-year period would have run the cost to another $60,000. Big Saving

But by being their own general contractor and letting separate sub trades, they will get their school built for $82,500. On this amount they will get a capital grant from the department of education of 50 per cent and will pay the remaining 28 per cent off by a special 17-mill levy.

Already construction of the school addition in the College Hill district is under way and completion by fall for the pupils be completed in time for the reopening of classes in September.

The Department of Education is watching one case very closely, stated board chairman John R. Sproule, "and if everything is satisfactory as we expect it is quite possible that school construction costs across the province may be cut materially."

Plans for the new addition at the Prince of Wales School were started by the school board members only last January. Several ratepayers' meetings were held before plans were finalized and cost figures in, it was decided to put the school section's share of the cost in one year.

Board members knew that with the assessment because of the high department capital grant the school section share of the cost would be but $17,500.

The school section is large for a rural district, having well over 400 pupils and assessment of slightly over half a million. The school section finished 1952 with a balance of $2,000 and this was tossed into capital account, leaving only $15,500 to be raised for the new addition.

$17 per Taxpayer

They started to raise this in one year and a special 17-mill rate was agreed on by taxpayers. With an average assessment of about $1,000, this would cost at $17 per taxpayer.

"You wouldn't finance the cost of a $17 electric toaster," stated Mr. Sproule, "so that's the way the matter was put up to the taxpayers and they agreed unanimously to the one-year debenture plan.

The No. 5 Thurlow School Section has two schools—the Prince of Wales school, built in 1928 and another school in suburban Hillcrest, built in 1948 and on which is the section's only debenture debt.

But like many other school sections, it has had a problem of growing pains. Two of the 11 classrooms now operated are in a mission church and another is in a basement room at the parish hall of Wales school.

Yet another five years another addition will be necessary at the Hillcrest school.

Plans are being slighted in the four-roomed school addition now being built. It will be five storeys and of solid masonry construction faced with brick. The classrooms, planned by the teachers themselves, with the assistance of the school inspector R. H. Macklem, feature open type clothes closets; acoustic tile ceilings and black blackboards. Walls are a combination of plaster, wood and tile and floors are fully insulated.

First storey floors will be polished cement while those of the second storey will have linoleum finish.

Price of Boiler Included

Convector type radiators will heat the building, and here school board members point out that the $625,500 cost is not a true picture. Included in that cost is the price of a new boiler which will also be used to heat the present four-room school structure.

Wherever possible local labor is being used. The Ross Greenly Construction Company of Peterborough will do the actual building construction; heating will be by Cairn Supply and Van Dusen Bros. will do the plumbing. Double-glazed sash will be used, eliminating the need for storm sash doors. Cupboards will be all built in.

Covering as it does a large area the school section provides a bus service for pupils with long distances to walk. Schools have high attendance records and board members are proud of the teaching staff which is given every encouragement to use their own ideas in planning curriculum.

Mr. Sproule paid special tribute to Mrs. Orma Slack, school principal, who has taken a very personal interest in planning the new school addition.

So cramped has been school accommodation in the section that close to 100 pupils are now attending school on a relief basis. The section "buying" its education from the city. In addition to the city, the section has a very low per pupil cost per day. This cost is 30 cents.

"We'll have all our children home again," said Mr. Sproule says.

Although much spade work was done by school board members with respect to the new plan of methods of financing, Mr. Sproule says that full co-operation, was received from Thurlow township municipal council, as well as from the department of education and the Ontario Municipal Board, who are watching the Thurlow township experiment in hopes that the plan can be used by generally reduce school construction costs. Mr. Sproule added the department needed some convincing.

Possible Through Co-operation

"The whole thing boils down to co-operation," according to the school board chairman. "If we hadn't had co-operation all along the line, right from the taxpayers to the Municipal Board, we could not have done it."

Credit for going forward getting this co-operation within the school section is an active home and school association, together with a willingness on the part of board members to "take an interest in school affairs and to work."

Board members of No. 5 Thurlow School Section include Mr. Sproule as chairman, Peter W. Murray and George Miller with Harry Faulkner as secretary.

Minister Says Government Made No Profit on Sale

TORONTO (CP)—Highways Minister Doucett Friday said the Ontario government made no profit on the sale of 20 acres of land adjacent to de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Limited in suburban North York.

It was reported earlier this week that the province made $300,000 profit on the land, which the province bought in 1946 for $100,000 from the federal government and resold it to the federal party government for $400,000.

"After the land was purchased the province expended many times that amount in various improvements on the buildings," said Mr. Doucett in a statement. "In due it is true, the property was of resold as stated. But just as the land and buildings appreciated in value, so did the value when they were mixed with oxygen and the temperature of the mixture has been raised to a point at which it will burst into flame.

Three Stages of Fire

Three stages are essential to cause fire. There must be heat, the material to the point at which it will give off inflammable vapors and oxygen in the surrounding atmosphere. (3) The ignition of the inflammable vapor mixture. From those three reactions for fire, you may assume, to attain a continual burning or flame, a combination of fuel, oxygen and heat is required.

As there are three essentials for the propagation of fire, it follows that if any of them is sufficiently reduced, the fire must go out. In practice, it is seldom possible to reduce the amount of either the oxygen or the heat sufficiently to extinguish the fire; its intensity, however, can be greatly reduced by the above means. For extinction, the heat is reduced by cooling down with water. Water, as well as cooling also smothers.

Now, around Second incendiary agents. Probably the most effective incendiary bomb used in the last war was the small magnesium bomb dropped in extremely large numbers with the idea of saturating the target area and so overwhelm and tie up the fire service.

Many authorities claim there is little doubt that bombs of this nature will be the main incendiary weapon for some time to come. For this reason, it is believed methods of fighting this type of fire will remain the same as those practised in the past war.

Smaller Bombs More Useful

The medium and large incendiary bombs have the advantage in the fact they individually start fire which will need to be attacked from the beginning by the fire service with its light weight appliances; but, this advantage is outweighed by the fact that bombers can carry a comparatively small number of these bombs. Such bombs are only likely to be used against targets which are, on a large scale, fire raising attack on a built-up area.

It may be expected that unless some new and more efficient filling is discovered, possible in a bomb with a magnesium wall, is likely to hold its heat longer than larger missiles, it was found in most cases they were filled with a solution of petrol and/or oil as the main ingredient.

Hospitals, public party 'died of shrapnel wounds, another of shock and hysteria, are burned, sometimes the earth - shock brought about by the explosion of high explosive bombs, often start serious fires by scattering burning coals from fireplaces. Incendiary fires and the method of dealing with the type of incendiary bomb.

That brings us to the technical side of the question. How does a fire start? It is surprising to find how many things will actually burn. Only the vapors given off by them do when they are heated sufficiently high when they have been mixed with oxygen and the temperature of the mixture has been raised to a point at which it will burst into flame.

Young Liberals Hear President Of Senior Assoc.

TORONTO (CP) —Alvin P. Cadeau, president of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Party at the opening session of the annual Ontario Young Liberals' Association meeting there are protection-ist elements in the Progressive Conservative Party.

He said "protectionist elements" in the Conservative party are similar to those in the United States Republican party. He said both have influences which are "alarming" Canadians.

He said the Tory party has traditionally favored protection and high tariffs.

John Medcoff, chairman of the policy committee, criticized the practice of compelling immigrants to work for a period after coming to Canada in jobs for which they may not be suited. The Young Liberals approved a resolution calling for increased immigration after Mr. Medcoff said immigration this year is likely to be 20,000 less than last year.

The association rejected a resolution which favored keeping private television stations out of Toronto and certain other large Canadian cities until enough revenue is built up to support competitive stations. Only one delegate voted in favor of the resolution.

Farmers Meeting In Rome To Stabilize Trade

OTTAWA (CP)—Spokesmen for some 20,000,000 farmers in more than 30 countries, including Canada, meet in Rome next month to ponder ways of bringing stability to world agricultural trade.

High on the agenda of the sixth meeting of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers will be the question of international commodity agreements.

The federation has in the past supported the commodity agreements idea. The agreements would guarantee member-countries quantities and prices for various products, including primary products such as coarse grains, rubber, tea and other foodstuffs.

H. N. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said Friday the Canadian delegation will "press strongly for adoption by all governments" of a program of such agreements.

With Mr. Hannam, representing Canada, will be C. A. Milligan of Napanee, President of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, and W. Ball of Regina, president of the Saskatchewan federation.

Woman Found In Deserted House Died Violently

BOURGET, Ont. (CP)—A woman whose nude and partly-decomposed body was found in a deserted log house here died of a blow through the heart, Dr. W. D. Hay of Kingston, said Friday.

Dr. Hay made the statement after an autopsy. Police have been investigating the possibility of murder since the body was found Wednesday in the house surrounded by miles east of Ottawa.

The discovery was made by neighbors who noticed a strange odor from the frame and asphalt siding house. The two-storey building had been occupied by Anthony Lalande, 38, last seen in the district in 1942.

Police are searching for Lalande, beside the deserted house, police said they found signs of disorder and possibly a struggle in an upstairs room where the woman's body was lying on a cot.

Incendiary Attack

By JACK PRETT

It was early in 1944, when the Luftwaffe's appearances over London were becoming fewer, when the English fitter began more to the story of the hopefully, no longer with anxiety and when the smell of dead and carnage was being replaced by the aroma of peace and tranquility. Amid all this came the news that Goering's boys made one of their final appearances, this time bent on the destruction of London by phosphorous bombs, fire bombs. Here is the story of what happened to one neighborhood.

Shortly after dark on a spring evening, several squadrons of Nazi aircraft came over the city. Flying low, they made their way to the air-raid siren had hardly died away when the jerry fly-boys began unloading their phosphorous packages of death. Large wicker baskets holding up to 150 bombs fell on the quiet residential neighborhood. As confused, the bombardiers were dropping everything but the kitchen sink. They dropped phosphorous bombs, empty oil drums, oil containers, empty parachute wracks and phosphorous missiles singly and in groups.

Families Fight Fires

The families fought the liquid phosphorous with sand, with stirrup pumps (which pump a widely stream of water—and burning aires) and anything they could get their hands on to quench the flames.

A single bomb in one instance, penetrated the roof of a private dwelling and came to rest on the kitchen floor. The fire fighter moved to dispose of the missile, but before he could carry it away with liquid phosphorous, catching him in the full force. The home burned to the ground and the man died three days later in hospital. Hospital, public party 'died of shrapnel wounds, another of shock and hysteria, are burned, sometimes the earth - shock brought about by the explosion of high explosive bombs, often start serious fires by scattering burning coals from fireplaces. Bride of This Week Feted by Friends

On Monday evening about 40 guests gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Denike, Bloomfield, to honor Miss Barbara Grant, B.N., a bride of this week.

Mrs. Cecil Armstrong opened the evening's entertainment with a humorous reading, "Kingston, Barbara's first dinner guests", Mrs. Harold Cleave followed with a delightful piano solo entitled, "Ours." A second contest, "Name a poem or song with the name of a flower in it," caused much amusement as some of the answers seemed questionable, but Mrs. E. Wellbanks recited her poem or sang a stanza of her chosen song to prove her point and eventually was the poem winner.

Mrs. James Gough then sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told."

Barbara was then called forward. Mrs. Armstrong extended the best wishes of the guests and presented her with a tri-light floor lamp and a rose colored chenille bedspread; a vinylite table cloth in white, and a pale yellow shade was also presented from David and Helen Mainprize.

Barbara responded in her friendly and jovial manner, thanking all for their kind thoughts and good wishes, and invited all her friends to come and visit her and Garth in Belleville where they will reside.

Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed with friends who had come from Belleville, Picton, Wellington and Christian Street.

Thanks were expressed to Mr. and Mrs. Denike for the use of their home.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attractive in her bridal gown of white nylon net and lace over satin while chantilly lace and net formed the veil which was trimmed with pearls and rhinestones. The matching satin shirt was worn by a net over satin joined by a yoke to the bodice and accented by a back panel of matching chantilly lace. Her double floor length veil of nylon illusion was caught by a crown of pearls and rhinestones and she carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses centred with fern and lily-of-the-valley and with long satin streamers tied with lily-of-the-valley.

Miss Kay Williams, of Frankford, was bridesmaid and wore a green taffeta, lace and net with a strapless bodice and tucked and pleated skirt. The floor length skirt was of net over taffeta with tucked and pleated front. Her fingertip veil of green net was held to a circlet of roses and lily-of-the-valley. She carried bouquet of white and pink carnations and lily-of-the-valley.

When the Birds Come Home

There is Joy in my heart when the birds come home
As they wing their way 'neath the azure dome;
I love the glint of their shining wings
And my heart is atune with the songs they sing;
O'er field and fallow and furrowed loam
I watch their flight when the birds come home.

There is cheer in my heart when the birds come back
As they wend their way o'er the airy track,
For the songs they sing drive the gloom away
And the memory cheer of a winter's day,
And my spirit soars as on wings to roam
In that glad hour when the birds come home.

There is life in my soul when the birds return,
Their presence answers my spirits yearn;
And all nature's like the morning light
That dispels with ease the gloom of night;
I can trust His care, who e'er land and foam
Guides their weary flight when the birds come home.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He Cheated On His Wife — Is Surprised She Was Crushed"!

Dear colossal egotism, for incredible arrogance, for colossal nerve, for sheer stupidity and unmitigated gall, a letter I have just received from a man who signs himself "A worried Husband" tops anything in my experience.

At a time when this man says his wife "was tied down with three small children" and his income was not sufficient to hire help for her so she could go out with him, he "became bored" and began going out with his "office girl." This girl was also married, but he smugly says, was "from a different walk of life." While he does not specifically state that he had an affair with her, he doesn't say he didn't either, indeed, he seems to imply it by stating that "on many occasions," he "necked" her."

"I never loved her, and she knew it," he writes. "It was just something to do, and it all started when she gave me some advice and understanding. Although she was after me, she was not ugly. I was never with her that I didn't decide God I had married a lady!" "Curious, isn't it, how so many men feel that if they pick a mistress from a different walk of life" no reasonable wife should object!

Continuing, this husband goes on to say that when the girl began to "take too much for granted, pestering me to get a divorce and leaving seriously," he came to himself—as he puts it—and confessed the story to his wife.

I thought she would laugh it off," he says, "but she was crushed. She wanted to leave me, but because of the children, and my threat to have my wife has remained with me, but she is not herself. She is still a wonderful mother and an excellent housekeeper, but she seems to have no love or respect for me."

Awful Mistake!

Now, ever since what this gallant gentleman delicately calls a "horrid mistake," his wife has been tortured with telephone calls about the affair. Some of the calls have been anonymous; some from people claiming to be friends of the other girl; some purporting to be from the girl herself.

"Once my wife got so upset she called the girl's husband, and to avoid scandal, I had to meet and talk with him and pretend my wife wasn't well and so she got nervous and said things she didn't mean. This was told my wife on the next telephone call. I denied it but told the husband she was neurotic, but told her if she really believed she wouldn't let such a person annoy her. She immediately went to a psychiatrist, who told her that her reaction was normal and her lack of faith in me understandable. He wanted to talk to me, but I'm master of myself."

Now, his wife "feels she has been the goat long enough, and declares that when their oldest child goes to college this fall," she will take their other children and return to her parents' home.

"I have done everything I know to do," he concludes. "I've talked to the girl and she swears she has never called my home, and knows nothing of any of the telephone calls. I've had the telephone company check the calls and they come from all over town. I can't take the phone out, or have a private number, because of my profession. I can't leave town, because I'm too old to start over again and I have three children to educate and my parents to support. I can't put the notice on the case because of the scandal. I've pretended to my wife that I didn't believe her about calls coming in and I've begged her to hang up the phone and forget about them. But nothing works. She feels I should go to the husband and tell him the truth. I can't tell a man he is married to a cheat"—and he underlined the word "cheat."

"What can I do to prove to my wife that I've never loved anyone else? What can I do to get her to ignore these phone calls and love and trust me as she used to do?"

In the beginning, I said this man had a superiority complex. I said he was arrogant and selfish. I said he was stupid and possessed of unmitigated gall. To this, I add what he says in his letter shows him to be also a liar, a coward and a thorough-going hypocrite. As for his remark that "you can't tell a man he is married to a cheat," it leaves me speechless.

All he wants, on top of all this is for his wife to love him and trust him.

Personally, I can see not the slightest reason why his wife should want to go on living with such a character. If, however, she does stay with him, and if by some miracle he decides to make a sincere try to clean up this whole miserable mess—which I doubt—then I can only advise him to make an immediate appointment with that psychiatrist and see what plan might be worked out. He wouldn't go to the psychiatrist before, you remember, because, being "master of myself," he didn't need it. The only thing he is master of, is the great art of being a complete heel.

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

Question: . . . you mentioned wheat germ. I would like to know how to use it. I was invited to Florida and have put on some excess weight mostly on the waist-line. . . do you know an exercise that would help correct this. . . I am cutting down on food intake but cannot take as many fruits and vegetables as I would like as I have colitis. I do use Ayds. I do the exercises you recommended for round shoulders.

Mrs. J.D.McN.

Answer: Use wheat germ in all cooked cereals; in cookies calling for nuts and fruits; in whole wheat or graham bread or any recipes calling for whole wheat or graham flour. When making graham cracker crust for pies add ¼ cup wheat germ.

See letter below from 73-year-old correspondent. My favorite waist-line reducing exercise is to stretch arms far above the head and bend sideways as far as possible – both sides 25 times, at full stretch, twice quite tender.

Letter: Thank you so much for your kind letter and prize — regarding my exercises (requested by Enid Ennis). I have a very busy summer schedule. Winter: Hips: Lie on the floor first on the right side and swing the legs as far apart as possible for from 50 to 125 swings, then reverse. For the firming of abdominal muscles bend forward bringing hands as near floor as possible then reach up bringing the hands behind the neck and stretching back as much as possible so the pull on the tummy muscles can be felt. Owing to my age (73) I don't attempt anything too strenuous. My summer schedule is a bit doubtful as you a smile. It consists chiefly of hiking, gardening, swimming—all of which I am most proficient at performing. If you would like a lesson in any of these I would be pleased to oblige.

I have used a number of your recipes lately and found them very good. The cottage cheese salad and barbecued spareribs were delicious. — Mrs. W.G.G.

Answer: I owe a hundred times straight from the hips in obeisance to you, I only hope I can deserve as you are when I'm 73. Thank you.

Question: I read your column each day and have tried some of your recipes which have turned out well. I was especially interested in your column where you mentioned seeing heavily packed food baskets at the shops with the food value in them. I too have noticed this and wondered about it. . . you mention bags of wheat germ. Where can I buy it ? — Clarice H.

Answer: Please send stamped envelope for name of the large Canadian owned groceteria selling fresh wheat germ at 11 cents per pound. Remember to repeat your question.

Question: Please give recipes for dandelion wine and choke cherry wine (not vinegar), both by fermentation. Lorraine C.

Answer: I hope you have seen the recipes for dandelion wine which have appeared recently.

Choke Cherry Wine

Wash and stem 24 lbs. choke cherries. Bruise them with wire potato masher but leave stones whole. Let stand 24 hours. Strain through jelly bag and to each quart of juice add two cups sugar and let stand another 24 hours. Pour into clean wine cask and let stand until fermentation ceases, which will take 2 or 3 weeks, then bung it closely and let stand 6 months, at end of which time bottle it.

I am no wine expert but this recipe comes from one experienced home-made wine maker.

Question: I would like to know how to make sauteed carrot and apple slices. . . these were given on menu that we have to cater to . . Mrs. M.A.B.

Answer: Sauteed means fried. Carrots should be parboiled, sliced, until not quite tender, then well-drained and gently fried in butter until pale gold, then salted and peppered and, if desired, served with chopped parsley sprinkled over. Apples are cored but not pared, then sliced ¼-inch thick, lightly dusted with a ¼ and ¼ mixture flour and powdered sugar, and gently fried in butter until not quite tender. If you know how to become tender they will break when handled.

Fashion Flashes

Back interest marks many of the newer hats, such as a calotte of yellow straw from which two yellow roses dangle in back from beribboned stems gay with green silk leaves. The roses are dramatic in length.

Fine way to add distinction to a simple sheath of black or navy woolen is via a white polka dotted red surah gilet and a wide matching bandeau of plain red surah in a matching shade. A little white collar completes the picture.

The bucket brigade is with one bob terms its collection of bucket shaped handbags—the latest shape by the way, and out in supplies in popular box bag. Beige calfskin has a cracker bag with doubled, folded top and decorative stitching in red and black.

Beige shantung is the material of a sleeveless dress with its own covering jacket. The whole thing adds up to high fashion as expressed for this season and for months ahead. The jacket has slant-wise tucks in front and a mandarin, collar, cuffed sleeves and a pearl button closing.

Important Directions For the Groom's Parents

This very appealing letter has just arrived, from the mother of a prospective groom:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our son is to be married in June, to his college sweetheart, a lovely girl. It is to be a very large wedding, and I am simply terrified at having to take even a small part in such an important affair. We are just poor farmers, and the largest social activity in our community is the church supper. My husband and I will be most grateful if you will tell us what to do, so that we can enjoy this wonderful occasion and won't do anything that will embarrass our son and his lovely bride. The wedding is to be in the bride's church, at three p. m.; a reception immediately after in the church parlors; and then a buffet supper for the bridal party and the family in the bride's home.

1. I have already written a note to the bride's mother, right? It seemed so unfriendly not to, as we would like to see them.

2. What should I wear?

3. They live about 150 miles from us. Do we go to the bride's church? And just what do we do in the church?

4. Just how do we at the reception? And what does one say in the receiving-line to all those strangers? — The Groom's Mother and Father.

Well, bless your heart, I'm so happy to be of help to such a most wonderful occasion. Let's take the procedure step by step.

1. You did just the right and charming thing, to write the bride's mother, as the hostess, responsibility of the groom's mother, to take this first step toward establishing the friendly relationship between the families.

2. The bride's mother is the one to inform you about the type of dress to wear. . . Write her or telephone her about this, or ask the bride, or ask your son to find out for you. You are the guests of honor, and you wear the same type of dress that the bride's mother wears: either long, or street-length, as she decides, and of a color to harmonize with hers. A rich shade of blue, if becoming, might be a good choice. Your gloves, at the wedding and while you are in the receiving-line, should match your son as to the corsage you would like to have him give you (your corsage is his responsibility).

3. You and your husband go directly to the church unless the bride's family suggest other arrangements. You wait in the vestibule while the guests are being seated. The wedding procession will be forming in the vestibule about four or five minutes before the bride's mother is to be escorted up the aisle, the head usher will come to you after you have right arm to escort you up the aisle, your husband following, to the first pew on the right of the aisle. (The bride's mother is the last person to be seated before the processional starts.) After the recessional, you and your husband wait in the pew until the usher has taken the bride's mother and father down the aisle. . . as the usher takes you, your husband following, down the aisle. Then you go to the reception.

4. Receiving-line plans vary. . . the bride or her mother will tell you (or tell your son to tell you) the plan. She will probably say, the hostess, stands first; the bride's father may stand next to you and your husband. (Or the father may mingle with guests.) The bride's mother, or father, will introduce to you the wedding guests you don't know. You shake hands with each guest, say your most gracious "How do you do," and respond appreciatively to guests' pleasant comments about the wedding: "Yes, wasn't it beautiful wedding it was!" or "Yes, what a lovely bride Joan is. . . we're so proud of her!" or "We're so happy to meet one of Bob's friends."

BEAUTY

Get Your Beauty Sleep, Young Lady

Mothers of teen-age girls have one worry that their mothers never had: the keeping of late hours. When mama was in high school, she was not permitted to stay out after midnight. She will tell you that she had just as much fun. Her boy friend didn't bring her home in a motor car either; street cars were good enough.

Young people nowadays, ever on their toes, are not interested in subjects pertaining to health. It bores them to tears; old fuddy-duddy, talk. Girls don't want to

And just say your words with the warm and friendly feeling that so charmingly shows forth in your letter to them.

If there is a sit-down service at the reception or supper, you, the groom's mother (or as are the woman guest of honor), will be seated at the right of the bride's father, the host; and your husband, the groom's father, the man guest of honor, will be seated at the right of the bride's mother, the hostess. Heartiest wishes to you. You'll have a wonderful time, look and be as happy as I know you are, and as proud of your son and his bride as I know you are and will be.

Woman Says German People Like Canadians

SASKATOON (CP) — A former Saskatoon woman, now in Germany with her husband, a sergeant in the RCAF, says the German people like Canadians and are glad they are in Germany.

Mrs. R. M. Rowatt, now living at Zweibrucken, base of No. 3 fighter wing, the first Canadian NATO base in Germany, writes that 80 to 85 per cent of the town was destroyed in the last days of the war by Allied air raids.

However, she says she has yet to meet an unfriendly German. Everywhere you look, you see ruins, says Mrs. Rowatt. In the heart of the town lie the ruins of a duke's mansion. The townspeople have contributed towards its rebuilding.

Workmen are busy everywhere, sorting bricks from the rubble. The good brick is saved for construction and the other is ground down for cement.

Zweibrucken's main shopping district has been rebuilt. All new buildings are red and ugly in shape but the interiors are nicely finished.

Housing is still short in Zweibrucken. New suites are rented months before their completion.

Mrs. Rowatt says Canadians have no trouble obtaining accommodation, however, as they are in a position to pay higher rents. Double rent for a very large room costs about $20 a month.

Mrs. Rowatt writes that German currency is easy to understand and the German merchants are very scrupulous in their dealings. The big stumbling block is the language. However, Mrs. Rowatt says great things can be accomplished with few words and expressive gesticulating.

Niece of Duke Will be Guest At Palace

LONDON (Reuters)—Among the royal, titled and famous guests starting at Buckingham Palace for the Coronation at the special invitation of the Queen will be a pretty, fair-haired nurse not yet out of training.

She is Princess Margherita Von Baden, 21, daughter of a noble family in southern Germany and niece of the Duke of Edinburgh.

Dropping her titles, Margherita does a nine-hour day along with other training nurses at St. Thomas's hospital, a large state-run hospital in shabby, overcrowded Lambeth, Southeast London.

The princess, who seldom sees her uncle, puts away her starched uniform May 28 to go to a dance at the Palace. Her mother is the Duke's eldest sister. The Duke's two other sisters also married German noblemen and live in Bavaria.

Margherita will see the crowning ceremony inside Westminster Abbey June 2 from seats reserved for foreign royalty.

"I love nursing and enjoy every minute of my work," she says. "But I am looking forward especially to staying at Buckingham Palace with my uncle and the Queen. What an honor to be invited."

Margherita began nursing 2½ years ago after attending a finishing art school in Britain. She has moved out of the "probationary" stage of making beds and changing bandages but still has 18 months to go before she is fully qualified.

What will she do then? "One cannot plan ahead these days," she says. "In a way, it is more fun not to."

Women Politicians Bringing Color Back to Parliament

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters) — Women politicians are again bringing the British Parliament the kind of color it enjoyed when Virginia-born Nancy Astor as a Conservative in the House of Commons quipped and laughed her way into headlines.

The British public rarely builds up women politicians into national characters. But it is being forced to pay increasing attention to the 28 women—12 Socialists and seven Conservatives—who sit in the present House.

There is as yet no post-war counterpart of Nancy Astor, in 1919 the first woman to take her seat in the Commons. She was a member for 26 years when she retired in 1945.

But there are several women in the line may inherit her reputation.

Three good-looking redheads are in this up-and-coming class.

Youngest is Patricia Hornsby-Smith, 39, who entered Parliament as a Conservative in 1950.

Winston Churchill, impressed by her fighting performance as an election candidate, made her a junior minister as soon as he was returned to power in 1951.

As parliamentary secretary of the ministry of health, she has used her ready wit to handle awkward Opposition questions and speech is expected to win government front bench. She is one of only two women holding office in the government.

Strong Belt

Self-confidence is the strong suit also of Mrs. Barbara Castle, 41, one of the chief supporters of left-wing firebrand Aneurin Bevan.

Auburn haired Barbara Castle is a member of the Labor party national executive committee, and is already a parliamentary "old hand."

For eight years, as a fighting left-winger, she has been making her presence felt in the House.

The third redhead is Dr. Edith Summerskill, 52, tall, whimsical Socialist who was national insurance minister in the late Labor government. She is a doctor of medicine, the wife of a doctor, and has two children.

Dr. Summerskill, who supports the "right - wing" Socialist old guard headed by party leader Clement Attlee, sometimes clashes with militant leftist Bevan.

The men, who number 606, are impressed by the way the little band of women pulls its weight.

In her own way, a hefty housewife serving in Parliament probably has come closer than any of the other present women members in equalling Nancy Astor's reputation as a colorful personality.

Among Conservatives as well as Socialists, 224-pound Mrs. Bessie Braddock, of Liverpool, whom Socialists prize as a champion of the British housewife, is held in genuine affection.

More than any other woman member of Parliament, Mrs. Braddock, a smartly-tailored brunette with, is on the newspaper front pages.

Had Song Written

She has even achieved the distinction of a Coronation song about herself.

Bevan once caused political uproar by describing the Conservatives as "vermin," and the Coronation ditty has a couplet running:

"All Aneurin Bevan's vermin will be dressed up in their ermine; but what is Bessie Braddock going to wear?"

Another reference to Mrs. Braddock brought Parliament's newest women member, Conservative Mrs. Patricia Ford, 32, into the news within a week of entering the Commons.

A slim and attractive brunette, she said in a newspaper article that she found Mrs. Braddock assisting in a Commons women's room during an all-night sitting.

Mrs. Braddock denied ever having been in the room and raised the question of breach of "privilege," strict parliamentary rules which protect the dignity of members of Parliament. Later she accepted Mrs. Ford's apology for an erroneous statement.

Best Looker

Among Parliament's acknowledged "best - lookers," is Lady Tweedsmuir, whose father, the first baron, was novelist John Buchan and governor-General of Canada. Tall and fair, she is an active member of the Conservative rank and file.

The only woman minister of cabinet rank is Florence Horsbrugh, middle-aged education minister.

On the Opposition back-benches sits Jennie Lee, 48, wife of Bevan and one of his faithful parliamentary supporters.

The number of women in the House today falls short of the record of the 1945-50 Parliament when 24 took their seats. But only 74 women contested the 1951 election, compared with nearly twice that number in the 1950 contest, when 84 were elected.

Women enjoy no special parliamentary privileges apart from those dictated by the gallantry of the men on equal terms, taking their share in the cut and thrust of debate. Their sex does not spare them from political attack across the floor, nor does it excuse any inaptitude they may show if they reach the rank of minister.

Like the men they may take guests to dine with them, and they have their own rest room.

In the Commons itself, they face courtesy of the men.

Like the men they may be addressed by name, but as "honorable members."

Women's Institute

ELDORADO - BANNOCKBURN W.I.

ELDORADO — The Eldorado and Bannockburn branch of the Women's Institute held its May meeting at the home of Mrs. Wannamaker with 28 members and several visitors present. Mrs. Kenneth Bateman, president, opened the meeting.

Business was discussed and correspondence read. It was decided that Mrs. K. Bateman, Mrs. Clayton Blackburn, Mrs. Bert McCarey and Mrs. Hedley Shaw attend the convention as delegates which will be held at Ivanhoe on May 22.

Mrs. Clayton Blackburn took charge of the program. Mrs. Bert McCarey gave a reading "The Farmer's Ideal Wife." Motto by Mrs. Pigden, "Sewing Seeds of Kindness to Sewing Seeds of Strife." Mrs. James Bailey gave an interesting talk on her work as nurse among the Indians at Hudson Bay. She also sang, "Under His Wings," in the Indian language. The ladies were treated to a "bannock," which is common dish among the Indians. Mrs. F. Bouley gave a reading, "The perfect Husband."

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served by the hostess and assistants and a social half hour enjoyed.

Miss Betty Chidley has returned home after being a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Harold Pigden and Dewayne spent a few days with Mrs. Douglas Pigden.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrick Chidley of Peterborough and Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Frank, of Toronto, spent the week-end with Mrs. William Chidley.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. McCann spent the week-end with friends in Peterborough.

Mr. Donald Fox and Mr. Harry Delves, of Toronto, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. James Fox.

Mr. Ralph Chambers has returned home after being a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Bailey of Hazzards, also Mrs. James Fox of Eldorado, spent Tuesday with friends in Bancroft.

PLAINFIELD W.I.

The Plainfield Women's Institute held the May meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. C. Marshall.

Mrs. D. Harrison led in community singing.

Mrs. J. Salmon took charge of the program and gave an interesting paper on "The Hand That Rocks the Cradle Rules the World."

Readings were given by Mrs. A. Bertrand and Mrs. G. Denyes.

A piano solo was rendered by Mrs. C. Petty. The program closed with a contest on "May."

Refreshments were served by the hostess and committee and a social half hour was enjoyed.

DUEL PENALTY

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A 13-year-old boy was charged Friday with violating an 1872 California statute under which anybody engaging in a duel loses his right to vote. The youngster, Dennis Cook, was arrested for participating in a knife duel with Tony Sica, 13, who is in hospital with a stab wound near the heart. The law also carries a maximum of a year in prison.

Allergy Due To Wrong Kind Of Favors

TORONTO (CP)—A young woman here appealed to a specialist on allergies for help in an affair of the heart.

She said that every time a certain young man called on her she broke into hives. She favored him over a rival to whom she had no such allergy.

The doctor discovered that the first suitor had brought her chocolates, the second, flowers. Using this clue, the specialist demonstrated she was not allergic to her suitor, but to chocolates.

After her swain was tipped off and brought flowers, there were no more hives.

KILLED IN CAR CRASH

HAWKESBURY, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Antoine Savage of Hawkesbury was fatally injured Friday night when a car in which she was riding went out of control in a ditch and flipped over three times. Four other persons in the car were injured in the accident, about 15 miles south of here.

WORLD PAY PRISONERS

HAMILTON (CP)—Col. G. Hedley Basher, deputy minister of the Ontario department of reform institutions, Friday advocated daily wages to long-term prisoners for work done. He said at a meeting of the family service bureau the money could be turned over to the prisoners' wives and families.

People who appreciate fine cars are turning to Monarch

"It didn't take long to convince me..."

"Some of us were talking cars the other day and Doctor Harrison said he was sold on Monarch. I figured a doctor would be pretty particular about the car he drove—so much depended on it. Anyway, I took the test and arranged with our local dealer to take me out in a Monarch. It didn't take long to convince me—and there's a Monarch in our garage now. It's a beautiful looking car, no doubt about it. It's got more genuine style than any car I've ever driven—and that goes for the interior as well. You can tell by the way people look at it that it makes a good impression. You know what a stickler I am for engine performance—well, this Monarch has a 125-Hp. 'Homegrown' Plants For City Park

Plants for city parks will be homegrown this year according to parks board officials who last year erected a new greenhouse. Shown above is the parks board greenhouse erected at the rear of the residence of the parks superintendent near the fair grounds. Part of the 25,000 plants grown this year are shown under the expanse of glass, with parks board officials in the background.

Advantages of Owning Greenhouse Outlined by Parks Bd. Chairman

The economic advantage of the city parks board owning and operating its own greenhouse as compared with the former procedure of purchasing plants each spring, was pointed out today by Max Matthews, chairman of the Belleville Parks Board.

"In previous years the parks board has spent up to $500 in the purchase of plants for setting out in local parks each spring," Mr. Matthews said. "With the parks board owning its own greenhouse, we now have close to 25,000 plants of a much better quality than could be normally bought. Any we don't need will be sold."

Mr. Matthews noted the parks board had purchased their greenhouse last summer from the estate of a local market gardener. Cost of the greenhouse with installation of furnace was about $4,500.

Gordon Nicholson, parks board superintendent, also felt it was good business for the board to own its own greenhouse.

"This year we will be able to put on a $2,000 show through planting of flowers in local parks," he said. "That amount of flowers would have been impossible in other years."

Mr. Nicholson went on to note that this year there would be an elaborate flower design put in at Memorial Park. Parks board employees will commence setting out the flowers during the latter part of May.

Another feature of the parks board owning its own greenhouse, according to Mr. Nicholson was that plants of the current year can be dug up and saved for the next year. Previously plants were a total loss as there were no facilities for winter storage.

Woodcock Is Game Bird In Every Sense of Word

By JOHN VAN DUREN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The moon spotlighted a meadow at the foot of the nearby Gatineau hills as two bird-watchers hid behind a clump of bushes. One whispered: "I know he will be back. He was here last year."

The man had no sooner resumed their vigil than a small brown bird came strutting on the stage, pinpointed by the moon.

It was a woodcock, a small game bird, wiry and elusive.

The little brown ball of feathers—about as big as your hand extended—strutted back and forth like a concert orchestra leader loosening up.

Suddenly he bobbed his head up and down like a proud artist and began to emit a low, nasal song. He stomped back and forth filling the air with his "beep-beep." He then flew into the sky where he hovered over the grassy stage singing a more piercing "bheep-bheep."

Strange Ritual

A minute later he was back on the same spot where he had started his strange ritual. He repeated the performance for more than an hour before he flew away.

The ritual was one he performs every year—usually on the same spot. No one has been able to figure why. The singing is done while the hen is in the nest, so it isn't to attract girl friends. Some experts claim he is just establishing his territory and wiffling other woodcocks to stay away.

The bird repeats the performance every evening, from early April until the middle of May, usually beginning after sunset. He will return to the same spot every year, or if he doesn't another woodcock will take over.

Widely hunted in the United States and the Maritime provinces, the woodcock is a game bird in the true sense of the word. Hunting him is tricky business. You need a good dog to flush him out and a good eye to bag him as he shoots from the brush and wigwags through the sky. The woodcock never flies a straight course. He weaves and twists in the air.

The woodcock resembles a partridge, but is much smaller and it takes several to make a good meal. The meat is similar to chicken. The hunting season for woodcock is in the fall, usually in September or October, depending on the area.

Fur Production Down

The Bureau of statistics reports that raw fur production in Canada was valued at $34,920,000 in the 1951-52 season, a decrease of 22 per cent from the previous year. Ranch-raised pelts accounted for 43 per cent of the total.

Ontario produced $6,000,000 in fur to maintain its lead among the provinces. Alberta and Manitoba followed as the second biggest producers each with $4,500,000 worth of pelts. Other provinces in order of value were Quebec, $2,500,000; Saskatchewan $2,150,000; British Columbia $2,050,000; Northwest Territories, $1,400,000; Newfoundland and the Maritime provinces $1,100,000; and the Yukon Territory $173,000.

Mink brought in the most money —$12,500,000. Muskrat specialists made $4,700,000 with beaver coming in third with $3,300,000. Production value of the other principal Canadian furs was as follows: Squirrel, $1,300,000; ermine $543,000; silver fox, including mutations, $519,000; white fox $438,000; other $248,000; and marten $277,000.

The number of skins taken increased for trappers of mink, muskrat, beaver, squirrel and white fox. However, ermine, silver fox, otter and marten pickings were down. The number of silver fox pelts decreased about 13 per cent.

Outstanding Collection of Indian Relics Owned by M. C. Cummings Some Items Thousands of Years Old

For more than 12 years, M. C. Cummings, 20 Grove Street, has been going around picking up small pieces of stone in secret places and taking them to his home. Mr. Cummings, a collector of Indian relics and the district representative for the Ontario Archaeological Society, within the past decade has gathered an extensive collection of arrow heads, necklaces, spearheads, hammers, tomahawks, axes, and a variety of other Indian relics.

The collection, the result of a lection of his interest in Indian relics was sparked when he was in his teens, working for a lumber company some 75 miles north of Sudbury. At that time he was in charge of the Indian laborers also employed by the company. Mr. Cummings recalls at that particular period of his life, he had learned to speak Ojibway, as he said, "like a native."

At the present time he is employed as an accountant with Foley Foundry.

Takes Up Hobby

He found he was continually wearing out his boots, through the dampness of the swamps in the north. Finally hitting upon a scheme, he decided to go native. For the price of one dollar and a bar of soap, the chief's wife would make him a pair of moccasins, thus removing the problem of footwear. It was while with the Indians he became interested in their products of earlier years.

Estimating he has somewhere in the neighborhood of 1,000 relics which he has gathered through the years, Mr. Cummings, in his search, has turned up a number of interesting pieces which he is unable to explain either their workmanship, origin or use. These, the collector calls, "problematic." Considering the fact that a good many of his specimens date back to 3,000 B.C., it is understandable why they are not easily explained.

Mr. Cummings pointed out that most of his "specials" which he has gathered are from two prehistoric Indian camp sites. The actual locations of the sites are the collector's secret. However, he noted one of them is situated about 20 miles from this city, and the other, which he discovered himself some time ago, is situated a few miles north of Belleville.

Approximately a great deal concerning the ways of life, and attitudes, of early Indians may be learned from what is found at the sites. As Mr. Cummings explained, the relics found at the first site mentioned would seem to indicate the place was occupied by people of the Laurentian Culture and supposedly to have existed between 3,000-5,000 B.C. There were later indications, at this location, that members of the Algonquin and Iroquois tribes occupied the site.

Pre-Historic Culture

According to the collector, the Laurentian Culture people lived before the advent of the bow-and-arrow. The skeletons have revealed they were stocky of build with broad heads, faces and bones. It would seem they believed in the after-life. The dead were buried in shallow graves, sometimes with tools and weapons beside them.

Further evidence unearthed at the second camp site, (Mr. Cummings' site), seems to indicate this also was inhabited by people of the Laurentian Culture and later by members of the Point Peninsula Culture. Still later, Mr. Cummings believes, the place was occupied by members of the Algonquin tribe. He noted, some of the pottery fragments found there, definitely indicate the past presence of Point Peninsula Culture. These people are thought to have lived around 500 A.D. Also, they are believed to be ancestors of the Iroquois tribe.

Other specimens turned up by Mr. Cummings date back to about 800 A.D. The people to whom these last mentioned relics belonged, are believed to be ancestors of the Neutral-Ontario Lake tribe, the Attiwandaron. A great many of Mr. Cummings' findings are still under study by museum officials at Ottawa.

Mr. Cummings says that between Redmerrville and Massassaga Point, suggested Indian burial grounds may be traced along the bay shore. The mounds vary from a diameter of 30 to 50 feet at the base to a diameter of about 12 feet at the apex. No mound in this area is higher than five feet.

Skeletons Found

When a number of these mounds were opened in the last century, skeletons were found entombed in a sitting position. Several years ago, four other mounds were opened to reveal little of importance with the exception of the skeletons and pieces of pottery.

Some of the pieces in Mr. Cummings' collection are smooth enough and cleverly enough made so it is difficult to imagine they were manufactured by hand. The most attractive specimens, the most cleverly put together, seem to be quite conceivable use other than ceremonial. The collector and most of the findings were made from flint, quartz, chert, jasper and a substance called agate. It is believed the objects were pressure-shaped by striking them with stone hammers and polishing with wet sand.

Mr. Cummings stated that often farmers when plowing, will turn up relics and be unaware of what they have found. Being the representative of the Archaeological Society, he hopes anyone finding anything which resembles a Indian relic or any queer shaped stone, that they will advise him. He said, that pieces of great archaeological value are frequently discovered and discarded by persons who have no idea of their value.

Overnight Krilium will turn that problem clay soil into "friendly soil" — loose, crumbly, porous, easy to work. There will be no more hard-packing or crusting. Germinating seeds will form strong, healthy roots and emerge freely and plentifully. Cultivation will be easy with loose soil, weeding no task. Think of it — no more back-breaking labor, because ONE Krilium treatment lasts for years!

Apply Krilium NOW at this year's new low prices to make your gardening hours pleasant and profitable.

After conditioning your soil with Krilium use Folium balanced plant food as a fertilizer. Folium is in powder form. You make a solution by dissolving it in water. Then you apply with sprinkling can or hose with siphon attachment. Its outstanding advantage is that it is absorbed immediately and completely through leaves and roots.

Folium should be applied first when you set out your bedding plants and seed your lawn; also when your lawn is dormant. Its nourishment reaches seed or plants right away, when most needed to speed strong, healthy growth. Then apply, according to directions, through the season. It is so simple to use when watering garden or lawn, and it goes to work immediately.

IVANHOE

Bob Gay Gives Talk On 'Bible Mothers'

IVANHOE — A Mother's Day service was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday afternoon. This service was well attended, many former members and friends being present with the choir.

The call to worship and invocation prayer, given by Rev. W. H. V. Walker, was followed by a baptismal service. The following babies were baptized: John Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sills; James Samuel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Boyer; Patricia Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bowman; Margaret Rae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Benson.

An address, Motherhood's Greatest Gift was given by Mr. Bob Gay.

Bible Mothers

On this day, set aside in honor of mothers, let us think of the mothers of the Bible, of the sacrifice and sacrifice of Mary, the Mother of Jesus; the devotion of Ruth who, feeling the wrath of the government, hid her baby in Solomon's temple, and Jochebed, her mother, who rather than have her child cast into the river, chose to give him up.

"In likewise, we have the highest type of motherhood. She prayed she might have a son and received a vow that her prayer was answered she would lend him to the Lord. She brought her little son to the priest, and left him in the temple.

"Every mother knows that Hannah's sacrifice was not in vain, for, in giving up an only child, a mere baby, to the care of others would indeed be the hardest instinct heart.

"We are told his mother made him a little coat and brought it to him from year to year. The only little garment through the long year of separation.

Give Child Rest

"To give a child to the Lord is no small matter. Mothers should realize the importance of giving their children rest in the Lord, and this is most important — giving God the first place, and having done this leave them in his watchful care.

The Scripture passages were read by Mr. Jack Sills, Mrs. John Walker, Sunday School superintendent, spoke on "Home and Mother."

"Children are a great and dangerous responsibility, but trust. They are the property of God, given to parents not to be used in their might but trained in body, mind and spirit. Their character and destiny, after life will be the prints of our dealings with them.

"Among the world's greatest glory or a parent's shame.

"A mother's love is one of sacrificial love. Let every mother remember that the smallest piece of blank paper but upon them will be written the record of our lives that must be read Most Our Action with More Christian Modern."

Preserve The Faith

Rev. W. H. V. Walker, in closing, spoke of the importance of "holding fast the faith" and preserving the foundation of the faith from destruction. Every mother has a redemptive influence in the community. Christian living provides a vital faith."

Special music was given, "Blessings for Mother," by the Junior and "Our Mothers," by the choir.

Among the lovely spring flowers in the church was a plant placed there by Mrs. Don Campbell, in memory of her mother, Mrs. W. H. Rollins, and Mrs. James Campbell.

The Program

At the West Huntingdon United Church, Mr. Phillip Carr, the superintendent, planned an interesting and helpful program which was deemed superior to the one from P.E.I. last Sunday.

Mr. John Lainson had charge of the singing and Mrs. Donald Wilson, ex-student of the Summer School of Theology, Kingston, and Mr. Robert Gay, graduate student of the Toronto Bible College, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Glyn Fitchett contributed a solo and Miss Joyce Wilson a reading heard in a duet.

Mr. H. J. Burks gave the special Mother's Day address.

Mr. John Lainson was presented with a beautiful gift. The address was read by the assistant superintendent, Mr. Ross Curdy.

Other mothers also remembered were: Mrs. George Barragar, Mrs. Bessie Barragar, Mrs. Phillip Carr, and Mrs. John Moorcroft. Each was presented with a box of flowers. Mrs. Ernest Bowerman was prevented from attending because of illness but received flowers with a lovely bouquet of pansies.

The lesson for the day was well studied. There was a large number in attendance.

The Council

The Council of Huntingdon township met in regular session with on the fine condition of the township roads. It was decided to have all well graded and this week a portion of them is being graded. Also the township is having the new pit recently purchased by Mr. Ernest Bowerman.

Mother's Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bowerman were Mrs. and Mr. and Mrs. Ken Thompson and family, of Marmora, Mr. and Mrs. John Walker, Sunday School superintendent, spoke on "Home and Mother."

"Children are a great and dangerous responsibility, but trust. They are the property of God, given to parents not to be used in their might but trained in body, mind and spirit. Their character and destiny, after life will be the prints of our dealings with them.

"Among the world's greatest glory or a parent's shame.

"A mother's love is one of sacrificial love. Let every mother remember that the smallest piece of blank paper but upon them will be written the record of our lives that must be read Most Our Action with More Christian Modern."

Preserve The Faith

Rev. W. H. V. Walker, in closing, spoke of the importance of "holding fast the faith" and preserving the foundation of the faith from destruction. Every mother has a redemptive influence in the community. Christian living provides a vital faith."

Special music was given, "Blessings for Mother," by the Junior and "Our Mothers," by the choir.

Among the lovely spring flowers in the church was a plant placed there by Mrs. Don Campbell, in memory of her mother, Mrs. W. H. Rollins, and Mrs. James Campbell.

"Today many people are meeting, like you and me, their own mothers, whether they are still with us or have been called home. This day is observed by all races, the rich and the poor.

"In the story of Moses' mother, we read of her careful planning for the child she gave her child. Later Moses had the privileges of a king's court, but became a great leader of his people. He never forgot his own mother.

"Every mother still thinks for her children, plans for them, and prays for them. Her wisdom and wisdom of our mothers who

Nova Scotia Liberals Fight General Election on Record

HALIFAX (CP)—The Liberal government of Premier Angus L. Macdonald is fighting Nova Scotia's May 26 general election on its record, assailed by opposition parties as reflecting extravagance, waste and patronage.

Liberals, after 30 years in government, say their record is one of proud achievement. Progressive Conservatives say it shows extravagance and waste and the CCF hinted at more election practices and patronage in the administration of business.

Housing and education were big planks in the platforms of all three parties.

Liberals said they had assisted housing to the extent of $2,000,000 and had increased teachers' salaries, provided free school books and built 13 rural and regional high schools.

Aid for Education

The Progressive Conservatives, official opposition in the last House promised to seek federal aid to meet mounting education costs if the party wins the election.

The party promised to "follow an educational program which places greater emphasis upon the training problem and the course of study." It mentioned co-operation with individuals and municipals in the housing field.

The CCF manifesto promised to back efforts to improve housing by slum clearance and the establishment of low-rental accommodation.

Liberals and Progressive Conservatives are running full slates of 37 candidates in the election and the CCF has 16 entered. There is one independent. When the last house dissolved there were 27 Liberals, eight Progressive Conservatives and two CCF members.

Education was a big talking point during the last session. Teachers' salaries came in for most of the fire but road construction and the courses of study also were discussed at length.

Government Record

The Liberal platform outlined the government's record in many fields and said it has paved 1,500 miles of road, provided electricity to 125,000 people of the province, loaned $2,000,000 to fishermen, aided hospital construction with advanced cash income of farmers from $10,000,000 in 1933 to $45,000,000 in 1951.

Progressive Conservatives included a plan for closer co-operation with other Maritime provinces and Newfoundland. In the financial field they promised elimination of "extravagance and waste" and appointment of an auditor-general responsible only to the legislature.

The CCF proposed a province-wide hospital plan, "adequate salaries" for teachers and a program for development of the coal and steel industries.

Other planks in their program called for new labor legislation and establishment of a department of co-operatives. Another plank was "elimination of corrupt election practices and of patronage. . . ."

Voting will be all in from 9 am to 7 pm ADT.

Premier Frost To Open Throttle On Museum Train

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost today is to open the throttle of an 1836-model locomotive to pilot the Canadian National Railways museum train into Aurora from King.

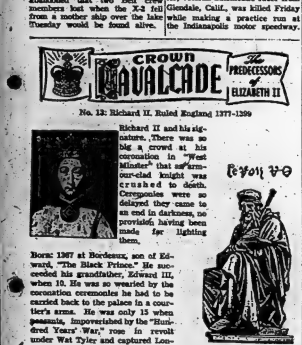
The eight-mile journey between the Toronto district points commemorates the 100th anniversary of the first scheduled steam railway service in Ontario.

Mr. Frost can claim the honorary post of engineer because he is chief executive of the province and also because his father was a passenger on the first run from Toronto to Machell's Corners, now Aurora.

Some Balsa Wood From Hull Of Plane Found

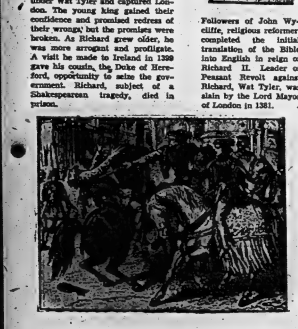
NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Bell Aircraft Corp. announced Friday night that some balsa wood from the hull of the top-secret rocket plane X-2 had been found in Lake Ontario.

Meanwhile, hope had been nearly abandoned that two Bell crew members lost when the X-2 fell from a mother ship over the lake Tuesday would be found alive.



A Bell spokesman said a Canadian fisherman found "about a bag-full" of the light balsa wood in his nets Thursday and notified Bell by telephone Friday.

The wood was flown here in a Bell plane and identified in the laboratory as parts of the leading edge of the rear part of the X-2 fuselage, the spokesman added.



The wood was found between eight and fifteen miles off the Canadian shore near Point Petre.

No. 13: Richard II Ruled England 1377-1399

Richard II and his signature. There was no big a crowd at his coronation in "West Minster" that as'arm-our-clad knight was crushed to death. Ceremonies were so delayed they came to an end in darkness, no provision having been made for lighting them.

Born: 1367 at Bordeaux, son of Edward, "The Black Prince." He succeeded his grandfather, Edward III, when 10. He was so wearied by the coronation ceremonies he had to be carried back to the palace in a courtier's arms. He was only 15 when peasants, impoverished by the "Hundred Years' War," rose in revolt under Wat Tyler and captured London. The young king gained their confidence and promised redress of their wrongs; but the promises were broken. As Richard grew older, he was more arrogant and profligate. A visit he made to Ireland in 1399 gave his cousin, the Duke of Hereford, opportunity to seize the government. Richard, subject of a Shakespearean tragedy, died in prison.

Followers of John Wycliffe, religious reformer, completed the initial translation of the Bible into English in reign of Richard II. Leader of Peasant Revolt against Richard, Wat Tyler, was slain by the Lord Mayor of London in 1381.

BANCROFT

Two New Schools Opened in North Part of County

BANCROFT — Two new schools, one at Maynooth and another at Combermere, were officially opened Wednesday afternoon by C. F. Cannon, Deputy Minister of Education.

The $90,000 four-room school at Maynooth was opened in the afternoon, while the $28,000 one-room school at Combermere, which will be known as the C. F. Cannon School, was opened in the evening.

Fred Connelly, chairman of the Combermere school board, noted that the first school there was built in 1871, the site of which cost $1, and the teacher received $150 a year. Another school was built in 1880, burned in 1923 and was rebuilt the same year. Mr. Cannon was introduced by C. Cornwall.

Mr. Cannon spoke of his days as school inspector in the district and stressed the importance of instilling into the children the value of exercising and expanding their minds, rather than the "cramming" method which had so long been a part of general education.

The Rev. Stephen Kenwood offered the prayer of dedication and presented Miss K. Farmer, the resident teacher, with a Bible, on behalf of the Public School Trustees of Ontario.

Ernest Stevenson, secretary of the school board, welcomed the guests.

Police said Armand Ferguson, 28, of Shelburne was driving towards an intersection with a load of eight tons. Ferguson said he saw the stop sign too late to pull up. He drove across and in by an overturning truck near suburban Malton. Police said Armand overturned on to Jenkins' car.

Marciano Unbeaten Champ After 'Short Count' KO Of Walcott

Controversy Raging Whether Walcott 'Caught Short' or Hit By Damaging Left in Stomach

CHICAGO (AP)—The house of hockey's famed "long-count" rapped a short-count controversy rap-ping after heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano's first-round knockout of Jersey Joe Walcott at the Chicago Stadium.

While the dynamite - punching Marciano, now unbeaten in 44 pro fights, faced a rematch in New York in September match with Roland La-Starza or Ezzard Charles, Walcott's hooting handlers made ready a formal protest of the manner in which Jersey Joe was tolled into apparent oblivion Friday night.

It appeared to many ringside observers, that a stagey-eyed Walcott "sat out" the 10-count of referee Frank Sikora after he was knocked back a-flying by a brutal Marciano right uppercut in 2:35 of a bewildering first round.

Probably Misheard

Not the fans in the far reaches of the stadium, along the 7-8 circuit felt strongly that Walcott was caught short. To a man, they was misheard by himself and his corner.

The controversial finish was reminiscent, with reverse spin, of referee Dave Barry's famed long count at Soldier Field in 1927 when Jack Dempsey failed to go to his corner after knocking down heavyweight champion Gene Tunney.

Scores of fans, many of whom paid the $30 top, streamed to ringside to question the knockout count and on TV, viewers—who saw only Walcott's back when the big punch came—seemed in doubt that Joe didn't make it to his feet in time.

Walcott asserted he wasn't hurt and that "I could have gotten up at the count of ten."

Did Not Touch Knee

But Jersey Joe, the 39-year-old Camden, N.J., father of six children, also told reporters that it was a "one-hand and a punch or something" that floored him. He also said that he thought he had touched one knee at the count of three.

But he didn't climb to one knee. After he righted himself from a fall on his back with his heels flying high in the air, he sat up and dinged it right back on the ropes with no attempt to get up until the toll actually had reached 10. He has no memory, he said, of the face and if, as he claims, he was looking at his corner for advice to climb to his feet, it didn't appear that way to many ringsiders.

Walcott's manager, trainer Felix Bocchicchio, said his lawyer, Angelo Miranda, would prepare a protest for the Illinois state athletic commission. Meanwhile, the commission members today were in Milwaukee attending a National Boxing Association meeting and it said such a protest could not be received until Monday.

Received $250,000

Thus Walcott joined seven other former heavyweights who failed to win back the title he had from him, however, of a $250,000 payoff—approximately $1,724 a second for his 145 seconds of surprisingly inept performing.

Jersey Joe, who had floored Marciano for the first time in his career in the first round of their hectic Philadelphia meeting last Sept. 23, let Rocky carry the fight from the outset Friday night.

Marciano waded right in, forced the attack, and Walcott merely tried to tie him up inside. Never once did Walcott cut loose with the standard punches he threw at Marciano in Philadelphia from the opening bell.

Jersey Joe didn't seem to be in distress and the end came with amazing quickness as Marciano set him up with a left hook and then whirled the right uppercut which nailed the old boy flush on the chin.

All Confusion

All was confusion. Even the ring announcer gave the wrong time on the knockout. The first announcement was that the knockout came in 1:25.

Marciano's first title defence left him considerably short of the chal-lenger on pay with approximately $165,000 for his 30 per cent of the $233,462 net gate and a $200,000 TV fee. Walcott's $250,000 was guaranteed to the sponsoring International Boxing Club. Marciano weighed 184½ and Walcott 197½.

A paid crowd of 13,366 contributed a gross gate of $331,794.

Toronto Leafs Crowding Leaders With 8-4 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs may not be strong on hitting power but they can take advantage of opposing pitchers' walks to win International League games.

Friday night they only collected seven hits in Orioles's 10 but emerged on the long end of an 8-4 score to move to half a game and eight percentage points behind the idle Montreal Royals, who lead the league. Four Ottawa hurlers yielded nine vital walks to enable the Leafs to wrap up the verdict.

Ralph Zerniak gave the Eatsons a 6-5 victory over Montreal before one of the smallest crowds in the city's night baseball history—6,000 spectators.

Zernial's wallop, scoring pinch-runner Ken Humphrey from second, and Bill Miller's double in the his first victory of the year after succeeding Paul Pavlack in the third.

The rest of the league schedule was rained out.

British Boxing 'Almost Out On Its Feet'

GLASGOW (AP)—British boxing is "almost out on its feet" because of the 33 1-3 per cent entertainment tax, J. Couper Fane, chairman of the British boxing board of control, said Friday.

Fane told the board's annual meeting that the "crippling" tax was forcing 50 per cent of the smaller promoters in Britain to close down.

He said an amendment to the finance bill will be discussed in the House of Commons Tuesday and hoped this might mean a reduction in the tax.

The fog was so heavy that it was impossible for the 20,419 fans to see the horses on the back stretch.

Thomas H. Scott, 6-5 favorite, set the pace until the top of the stretch when Henry Chukey brought Hi-Lo's Forbes down the middle of the track. Irish Hal was third.

Phils To Find Out Whether Braves Myth Or Miracle

Two Clubs Open Three-Game Series Tied for Leadership; Roberts Wins Fifth Contest

By REX FELDGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Philadelphia Phillies invade the wilds of Wisconsin for the first time today determined to find out whether the 1953 Braves are a myth or a miracle.

The two clubs open a three-game set tied for the National League lead. They've met only once before this season with Milwaukee taking a 5-3 decision in Philadelphia last month.

Jump followers this spring duplicated the Braves the most improved team in the league. But they didn't see them as a full-fledged pennant contender.

The Phillies figured to be real tough, and they have been. With their whip-two pitching staff of Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons plus the part-time help of Karl Drews and Jim Konstanty, the Phils have won 15 of 23 games.

Roberts Wins Fifth

Roberts won his fifth one Friday, a 1-0 effort against Chicago Cubs. Ike Fisher broke Simmons, who goes today, has won five while losing only one. Drews is 3-2 and Konstanty 2-1 as the Phils are counted for all the victories.

The Braves have a five-game winner, too. He's Max Surkont, a chunky slugthander who hung up No. 5 Friday over Pittsburgh. Max hasn't been beaten.

Charlie Grimm, who nominated Don Liddle, a bright rookie who has looked like one season in one game—he won a two-hitter against the Cubs last Sunday—to open the series in Philadelphia.

Milwaukee is riding a six-game winning streak.

The Phillies and Braves pulled two games ahead of their nearest pursuers Friday as St. Louis Cardinals handed third-place Brooklyn its sixth straight beat out. The Giants defeated Cincinnati 7-3 in 11 innings in the other National League game.

Trucks is Hot

A year ago Virgil Trucks, then with Detroit, beat Washington with a no-hitter. Friday night, working for St. Louis Browns, he gave up eight hits but still shut out the Senators 4-0, ending Washington's six-game winning streak. Trucks is pitched Philadelphia 7-4. Chicago at New York and Cleveland at Boston in the American League completed out.

The Braves edged Pittsburgh when Sid Gordon homered with a runner on base in the eighth inning.

Philadelphia whipped the Cubs on a run in the ninth as Earl Torgeson doubled and scored on a single by Granny Hamner.

St. Louis routed Preacher Roe, who had beaten the Cards 10 times running, in the same innings. The Preacher was blasted for six runs in the second. Harvey Haddix, relieved by Stu Miller in the sixth followed by Cal Emanuelle's 11th homer of the year, was the winner.

Giants Rally

The Giants rallied with two out in the 11th to score one run, then added three more as Bobby Thomson homered with two on.

Dick Zryboski got Trucks away to a good start in Washington, homering in the first inning with Vic Wertz on base.

Walt Hoskinson of Detroit hit his first major league home run and with his first game of the season against the Athletics.

Marciano Says Walcott's Eyes Were Glassy

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—"At first I thought he would get up—and then I looked at his eyes and they were glassy. . . I knew then he was finished."

That's what heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano had to say Friday night after knocking out challenger Joe Walcott in the first round at Chicago Stadium.

"I connected with a left hook and followed, with a right uppercut," Marciano said. "I think that right was better than the one I hit him with to win last September."

Marciano was jammed into the answer room of his quarters by a great crowd which shoved and clawed its way through the corridors of the stadium basement.

Counted Out

Policemen were nearly overpowered and kept yelling:

"Take it easy or someone is going to get trampled to death."

"The referee counted him out as plain as day," declared pudgy Al Weill, the champion's manager. "Rocky really doesn't know how hard he hit. I don't think he ever right uppercut he has thrown, I think."

Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, elbowed his way to both fighters' rooms.

"Naturally I'm disappointed it did not go longer," he told a reporter. "If Walcott protests to the state boxing commission I don't see where it will do him any good. If he lodges a protest there is nothing I can do. There is nothing the commission can do about it either."

Waterloo Wants Control Of Junior B Entry

WATERLOO (CP)—The Waterloo arena commission indicated Friday that Kitchener junior hockey sponsors will be approached on the prospect of relinquishing the Twin City Junior B field to Waterloo.

Last season's setup was that both Kitchener and Waterloo had a Junior B entry with the Kitchener club sponsored by Kitchener Hockey Limited, operators of the junior A Greenshirts.

The new setup would have Waterloo organizing the Twin City Junior B club and grooming players for the K-W Greenshirts' Junior A squad.

Walcott Calls KO Punch 'Ridiculous'

By TOM ERANAGAN

CHICAGO (AP)—A bewildered Joe Walcott protested out in the first round of his heavyweight championship fight with Rocky Marciano, sportsmen Friday night that his KO "was ridiculous."

"I wasn't hurt at any time," he told a packed dressing room audience after the fight.

"I guess it was a left hook and a punch-push, or something, that knocked me down.

"I could have gotten up at the count of two."

As Jersey Joe and his manager, Felix Bocchicchio, spoke disgustedly their fighter, Angelo Dundee, shouted that he had "just made an official protest with the Illinois athletic commission.

Bocchicchio's words were literally spat at reporters as he ridiculed the manner in which referee Frank Sikora had counted out his 39-year-old protege.

"Gentlemen," he shouted through a microphone rigged up for the huge press crowd, "I was robbed! Robbed! Like in 1948 when we beat Joe Louis (Walcott beat a decision) but I never can see robbery equal like this tonight. (He obviously meant the Louis-Walcott fight in December, 1947)).

"I'm gonna have Joe go on the road and protest against this act of thing from here on out.

Bocchicchio did not explain just what he meant by this remark. He added, however:

"We don't want to fight anyone if that's the way they do."

Oshawa Squad Beaten First Start In Intercounty

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

That seasonal cry of "play ball" was heard in four Western Ontario ball parks Friday night. It served to usher in the 1953 Intercounty baseball League season.

Brantford Red Sox set back Kitchener Panthers 4-3; Waterloo Tigers downed Guelph Maple Leafs 3-2; Galt Terriers blasted Oshawa Merchants 8-2; and London Majors edged St. Thomas Elgins 1-0.

The Red Sox trailed Kitchener 3-1 until the ninth when Brantford home fans got something to cheer about as the Sox scored three runs that decided the game.

The Panthers took a 3-0 lead in the third inning, made it 3-2 in the fourth before the Red Sox got their first run in the fourth. Johnny Lockhart, Bob Thurman, Stan Lipka and Don Rowe paced the Red Sox attack with two hits each. Dick Welker and Irv Lee registered two hits each for Kitchener.

Pitches Nine-Hitter

Lefthander Bob Thurman pitched nine-hit ball for Brantford. Chuck Fedoris gave up 12 hits for the Panthers.

Waterloo scored two runs in each of the second and seventh innings to one more in the eighth to defeat Maple Leafs in Guelph.

Playing manager George d'Addario of the Leafs announced the game was being played under protest due to a technicality. D'Addario said Waterloo presented a batting order card listing seven pitchers, one over the maximum allowed by league rules.

The Tigers took a 2-0 lead in the second inning on three singles and a walk. The Leafs knotted the score in the fourth on three singles. The Tigers regained the lead in the bottom of the seventh when outfielder Billy Pick singled to drive in two runs. Playing manager Hank Biasatti added an insurance run in the eighth with a double.

Credited With Victory

Ford Arias, who allowed only two hits in 5 2-3 innings, was credited with the victory.

Galt Terriers pleased a home audience with their one-sided win over Oshawa. The Galt club scored in the first, third, fourth, seventh and eighth innings and all were counted after two men were out.

Gerry Cline, the Terriers' nifty first baseman, took the batting honors with three hits, including a homer in the first after Andy Turowski had walked. A walk to Chuck Stevens, a single and a triple to deep left and Mike Pentarelli's single to right field gave the Merchants their two runs.

Jerry Sharp, Negro speedball righthander, went the route for the Terriers. The Merchants used a trio of pitchers—Kenny Young for 3 2-3 innings, John Walters for one frame and Bob Dadson who finished the game.

Gerry Burke, London's new righthanded pitching ace, limited nine hits and managed to spread them out in the Majors' win at St. Thomas. However, he was opposed in a tight mound duel by the Elgins' Stu Lare who gave up only four hits.

What Is a 'Solunar Period?'

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

Charley, the milkman who serves the area in which my son Dick lives in South Miami, Florida, is an enthusiastic fisherman. Also, I am happy to say, he is a devout follower of the doctrine of the Solunar Theory. Each week he clips the Solunar Schedule from The Miami Herald and puts it in his tackle box.

When Charley heard that I was coming to Florida he asked Dick to see if a fishing trip could be arranged. Accordingly, I found myself one evening in Government Cut, Biscayne Bay, together with Dick and Charley. There the captain and mate run large and hungry and the etro or "lady-fish" are present by the thousands.

I had given a copy of our publication, The Solunar Tables, to Charley a few days before our trip and he had studied it with interest. Therein he found the answers to a great many of the questions which had been in the back of his mind.

Scientific Adaptation

The Solunar Tables are simply a scientific adaptation of this old folk-lore rule of thumb. Why they or are the calculations roughly made. Almost 30 years of observation has enabled us to predict these periods of activity with surprising accuracy.

The great majority of the old timers knew only of the two major periods of activity which occurred roughly at "moon up—moon down." In the course of our observations we learned that there were two other periods of activity periods which took place midway between the periods of "moon up — moon down."

Accordingly we listed these midway activity periods in the Solunar Tables. Since they are of shorter duration, we labelled them "minor periods." The "moon up — moon down" feeding times are called "major periods."

Too many people regard The Solunar Tables as "fish calendars" and think of them only with reference to fishing. This is a mistake. The schedule applies to hunting every bit as well as it does to fishing.

When we first went to South Florida last February I stopped in the Owens-Rickle Shop in Homestead to see my friend Saunders, the manager. This is what he had to say about The Solunar Tables.

Service Appreciated

"A lot of the boys," he said, "are do appreciative having The Solunar Tables in the local newspaper. Take my father and the old timers he hunts with. Used to be, he had to figure out his own schedule and that was a nuisance. Now all he does is look it up in the newspaper and there it is, all figured out for him.

"Our chairman of camp is way out in the scrub so instead of using a car we fly from the Club plane. If there's a Solunar Period going on it is not unusual to see 40 or 50 planes on the way out. Fly over the same country three or four days later and there won't see a single one.

"We don't drive our deer; we stalk 'em. It's more fun that way. But unless we know the Solunar Period on we stay in camp. It is a waste of time and energy to hunt when these periods aren't moving.

We think we know" — in fact, we are fairly sure — what causes the Solunar Periods and why the fish and game respond as they do. No need to go into that end of it here. There isn't time or space in which to explain it.

But take our word for it — we can predict the activity periods quite accurately. No use knowing about these things unless you can take advantage of the knowledge.

So get the habit, like those boys in South Florida, of keep track of the daily Solunar Periods. They have found — and you will too — that it pays big dividends in sport.

The All American award winner for 1952. Its color is deeper than the Fire-chief the 1950 winner. It is a dwarf type, vigorous and free flowering. This would make a striking border silene alpestris with Cream star. Lipstick, also new, is a luscious deep rose. The cellent bedder.

A violet alyssum, Royal Carpet, is dwarf, compact and long blooming. It was the only other award winner. The flowers are like Zyolankas sweet peas received honorable mention. These are multiflowered, and suitable for greenhouse culture.

The giant hybrid scabiosa (pincushion flower) is still new enough to be interesting and quite hardy, may be planted early and will go on blooming long after many of our annuals are killed off by the frost. They make handsome cut flowers which last unusually long in water. Blue moon is the newest in this. It has deep azure blooms, and the blues are all the especially tall cut of our garden plans.

Hardy, Fast Grower

For hot dry places may we recommend Thbwaia. It grows quickly, is as hardy as a zinnia, and the orange-scarlet flowers are good for cutting. It has also a good background plant for the annual border.

Speaking of zinnias, have you seen Peppermint stick? It is a striped dwarf type. The blooms are novel and most attractive for

Bedding Plants from Seeds

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

As you browse through the new seed catalogue do you wish you had five acres of land, perpetual summer, and an eight-day week? Well, I do. I see so many things I would like to grow, so many new plants and old, old favorites listed, pictured and described.

But, time and space put a limit on all gardening activities. We have to be content with what we can still time to do that. Before it is too late to be sure that we look over some of the new and improved seeds and bulbs. Perhaps we will decide to grow our own bedding material this year instead of buying flats from the florist.

There are two new and outstanding petunias. Comanche is one. The All American award winner for 1952. Its color is deeper than the Fire-chief the 1950 winner. It is a dwarf type, vigorous and free flowering. This would make a striking border silene alpestris with Cream star. Lipstick, also new, is a luscious deep rose. The cellent bedder.

Blue ball and Blue cap are all fine edging plants, or may be used in solid color masses.

Golden ageratum is not a true ageratum but has golden masses of blooms about the same height, and growing habits as the blue, and can be used with, or in place of the blue for borders and for combinations. Dwarf white, ageratum has fluffy blooms, compact plants and makes a good edge for bedding.

Camelia flowered balsam are among a word of praise for. This new type produces its blooms at the top of the stems, rather than along the side. They make fine bushy plants, suitable for beds, or to fill vacant spaces in the perennial border. They are not difficult to grow, but do require plenty of water.

Tall, Elegant Duchess of Kent And Children in Royal Group Will Attract Public Attention

LONDON (CP)—A family group certain to be in the front rank of public attention at the Coronation will be that of the widowed Duchess of Kent and her three children.

The tall, elegant Duchess, with her good looks and serene dignity, is her long been a popular favorite in the Coronation processions at Westminster Abbey—she will be seen with her elder son, 17-year-old Edward, Duke of Kent, and her only daughter, 16-year-old Princess Alexandra.

Her younger son, Prince Michael, 16, will be farther to the rear of the abbey procession. He will wear a kilt of Royal Stewart tartan and the velvet and lace of full Scots dress.

In Royal Purple

The Duchess will wear rich robes of royal purple, with a glittering tiara on her smooth, dark hair. At her right hand will be the Duke of Kent, and at her left Princess Alexandra, already taller than her mother and modestly likely to become just as imposing a figure in royal society.

The Duke of Kent, in the crimson robes of a royal duke, has a page to carry his train and a member of his household to carry his coronet. Princess Alexandra has a lady-in-waiting and a lady-in-waiting carries her coronet. The Duchess' coronet will be carried by her comptroller, Phillip Hay, in full court dress.

The Duchess and her children will be part of the royal group which is to assemble in Buckingham Palace for processional purposes.

First to leave will be the Princess Royal and the Duchess of Gloucester with Prince William and Prince Richard. (The Duke of Gloucester goes separately.) The Kents follow in the next carriage, then comes the Earl and Countess of Athlone, Lady Patricia Ramsay and Princess Marie Louise. The last two carriages will be those of the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret, the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh.

The Commonwealth and foreign prime ministers, followed by foreign royalty, leave the palace ahead of the royal landaus.

Notable Romance

The Duchess of Kent, in her open state landau, surrounded by the children of a marriage considered one of the royal romances of the century, will receive rousing cheers. This youthfully-attractive widow, with a grasp of politics, diplomacy and international affairs, has won steadfast regard throughout the country. Though she had to break down some initial suspicion when she arrived in 1934 to marry the prospective son of the reigning monarch, George V.

Thousands will remember the captivating Greek princess, who walked so regally at the 1937 Coronation beside the tall, good-looking young husband she was later to lose in an air crash in Scotland in 1942.

This will be the first Coronation attended by her children, and for the shy teen-agers walking with her, it will be something of an ordeal. Since they were born, the Duchess has followed the ruling that her children be kept as much out of the public eye as possible.

Unfortunately, the death of his father put an early spotlight on the young Duke. Although, like his sister, he has not gone through the "coming out" process, he must even now fill the role of a royal duke. It is as such he will be seated with the Duke of Edinburgh and Gloucester in Westminster Abbey.

His first major role as a royal duke was in the funeral procession of George VI.

It is unlikely that either the Duke of Kent or Princess Alexandra will take much part in the round of social engagements scheduled for royal attendance after the Coronation. The Duchess of Kent will be the guest of honor at a Buckingham Palace, the Coronation ball in the Palace's Throne Hall and the dinner for Commonwealth and foreign diplomats arranged by the foreign office, at Lancaster House.

Guest of Honor

At the colonial ball in Grosvenor House June 3, funds from which go to the British Empire Society for the Blind, the Duchess will be guest of honor.

Neither the Duke of Kent nor Alexandra is expected at this or other big functions. The Duke will return early to his station in Sutherland, and Alexandra will continue her studies at the governess-ship Coppice, their small, comfortable family home in Buckinghamshire, 30 miles from London, to boarding school nearby.

There is reasoning behind that automatically follows the "coming out" of sons and daughters of royal blood has resulted in the Duchess taking over a 15-room apartment in Kensington Palace, first London home she has contemplated since her husband's death.

It's not yet known when she will move in, but this royal palace of red brick and white-trimmed windows is set among the trees of Kensington Gardens, has always been linked with the name of Kent. It was the home of an earlier Duchess of Kent, mother of Queen Victoria.

Near neighbors of the Duchess in the new home will be the Earl of Athlone, one-time governor-general of Canada, and Countess of Athlone.

Car Turns Over, Youths Escape With Soaking

PICTON — Two 16-year-old youths escaped with a soaking after the car in which they were driving turned over on the West Lake road and came to rest in two feet of water in the marsh. They were Victor McDevitt and Bruce Greenwood of East Lake. They escaped by breaking a window of the car which was badly damaged. The accident occurred near a turn which had been freshly gravelled. After rolling over on the road side, the car bounced over the rock fill at the side and then into the marsh. A charge of driving without a proper permit is being laid against Leavitt, Provincial Police stated today.

Wellington on the Lake

STAY WITH US, MAY

Stay with us, May, Oh! do not haste away,
For you we've longed through many a winter day;
Now you have brought the blossoms on the tree,
The wild-wood flowers, the soft and soothing breeze;
And meadow grass is springing fresh and green
Where'er you impress of your foot is seen;
And at your call the oriole returns
And a deep joy for which the spirit yearns;
For you have shown that the dead winter earth
Was waiting for a springtime's glad rebirth;
And in the heart where hope and faith had died,
And every earthly dream had been denied,
Now faith and spirit, too, may find the spring
And join the earth in May-time carolling.

—Helen B. Anderson.

Wellington — The month of May, faithful as of old, is spreading beauty over the countryside. Pear and plum trees are in bloom and tulips and bleeding-heart display their beauty. The oriole is back cheering us with his call and the wren and the martins have returned to their last summer homes. Robin Redbreast is a friendly visitor. I am hoping he may not fall a prey to the prowling cats.

The Mother's Day service in the United church was largely attended.

Rev. A. Poulter baptized several children.

Among visitors in Wellington who attended the W.C.T.U. convention in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, were: Mrs. L. Wilbee, Mrs. H. Dorland, Mrs. J. Mann, Mrs. E. Wall, Mrs. A. T. Fleming, Miss E. B. Phillips and Mrs. C. McConnell.

An invitation was read from Burr's W.A. to attend their meeting on June 18. Plans were discussed for obtaining the film, The Royal Tour. Mrs. Kingerly invited the W.A. to her home for the June meeting.

Questioned Eight Hours Daily Before Trial Says Oatis

Czech Jailers Have Effective Way to Obtain Confessions

NEW YORK (AP)—William N. Oatis says he was questioned many times for as much as eight hours a day during a two-month period before his "espionage" trials in Communist Czechoslovakia.

The 39-year-old AP correspondent who returned Monday to the United States after spending 20 months in Prague prison indicated there are two things high on his agenda for the cause of freedom—first, an effort to regain the lost moments of separation from his wife, Lauralee; and, second, a study of the record of his trial.

Oatis was freed by the Czechs Saturday. He had been serving a 10-year sentence after engaging in what the Communists called "espionage" while working as an AP correspondent in Prague.

The slight, bespectacled newspaper man met with reporters in an hour-long press conference at New York's Commodore Hotel shortly after his arrival by plane from Germany.

Although speaking at length on many phases of his experiences, Oatis declined to answer specific questions or to go into details. He indicated that he hopes to be more fully acquainted with all aspects of his case.

Spoke at Trustcord

He spoke of his treatment by his Czech jailers, saying they had effective methods of conducting interrogations. However, he added that to the best of his knowledge no drugs were used on him. He said:

"They gave me about 10 injections which they said were multi-solution and vitamins to build up my weight and I was convinced they were. I felt no effects from these injections whatsoever.

"They also put me under a sun lamp to give me a tan. I think they wanted me to look good for the trial."

Oatis added that he contracted tuberculosis and that he was given "40 pills a day until I got well."

His desire to look again at the record was evidenced in a number of instances during the press conference. He said it frankly was hard for him to decide if he were justly accused of a crime under Czech law and added:

"In order to answer it could be considered from their point of view that there were violations. They look at things differently.

"I'll put it this way—in their country, practicing journalism as we know it, it could come under suspicion of espionage under their laws."

Other instances of his hesitation to answer questions or to make queries on whether he had transmitted any information to the U. S. embassy in Prague or whether he ever worked, with or without pay, for the state department or any other U. S. government agency.

He replied at one time that he could not answer that "kind of question" and would not say anything about it. At another point he said:

"I want to take a look at the record of the trial. Until I see what the record is, I want to let it stand."

Asked if he planned to repudiate his "confession" he said with a peculiar stand:

"I want to see the record and also what came through here before I say anything about that."

Oatis' grasp of the situation and this remark from one of his interviewers:

"I think a fuller answer might avoid some embarrassment."

The newspaper man replied that he realized there is a desire "to understand the whole story right now." He added:

"But I can't go into it entirely and I don't understand it all myself just yet.

"It's a big question that needs a great amount of elucidation."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis

Cooler air pushed across Ontario Monday night bringing rain to northern regions and a few thunderstorms to southern Ontario. Skies clearing behind the front and Tuesday will be a fine sunny day in Southern Ontario. However, a disturbance in Northwestern Ontario is rapidly moving eastward and will bring rain to northern regions again this afternoon. Clearing is expected late this evening as the disturbance continues rapidly into Quebec. Warm, dry air will push into Southern Ontario tonight. Wednesday will be sunny and warmer over most of the province.

All a Mistake And So Painful

BERLIN (Reuters) — East German Communists have ordered Hans Christian Andersen's and Grimm's fairy tales rewritten because of their "reactionary socialistic" nature, the United States high commission reported Monday.

Characters like Cinderella, the Lead Soldier and Rumpelstiltskin will be purged of "romantic bourgeois tendencies" and instead will be "Socialistic realist values." The revised version makes Cinderella's young prince a revolutionary who eventually rejects his "fruitless parasite existence."

Yoshida Squeezes Back Into Office

TOKYO (Reuters)—Shigeru Yoshida, 74, today stepped back into office as prime minister of Japan, helped by the abstention of Socialist opposition deputies who could have tipped the scale in favor of Premier Ichiro Hatoyama.

Yoshida squeaked into office by a narrow margin of 10 votes between Yoshida, leader of the Liberal party, and Mamoru Shigemitsu, leader of the Progressive party.

Yoshida commands only 205 seats in the 466-member Diet, and had the opposition got 10 Diet against him, Shigemitsu would have been able to muster a bloc of his fifth term as prime minister.

But 141 Socialists abstained from voting and Yoshida regained the post with 204 votes against 118 for Shigemitsu.

The Lower House nomination later was confirmed by the Upper House, where the Liberals command a working majority with the help of friendly parties and the independents.

'Flying Bishop' Dies in Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Rt. Rev. Archibald Lang Fleming, 65, known as the flying bishop for his flights in the Canadian north and sub-Arctic, died of a heart attack Sunday.

He had been living in Goderich but was visiting Toronto.

Bishop Fleming was the first missionary bishop of the Arctic and he ministered to a diocese covering 1,250,000 square miles inhabited by 10,000 Eskimos. He was known by them as In-Nook-Tah-Kaub, meaning "he visiting from afar off."

Born in Greenock, Scotland, he offered his services as a missionary to the Eskimos and came to Canada. He was ordained at Chapleau College. He spent two years in Baffin Land before graduating. He was made a deacon in 1912 and a priest in 1913, the same year he married Helen Grace Gillespie.

Budget Cuts to Delay Building Of Atom-Powered Aircraft, Ships

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eisenhower administration economies in the atomic energy program will postpone construction of nuclear-powered aircraft and ships and will delay development of peacetime power plants.

But there will be no reductions in the production of weapons parts for atomic submarines, Representative W. Sterling Cole (Rep.-N.Y.) said today. Cole commented that the budget for the year beginning July 1 calls for a cut in the order of 30 per cent" under the $1,600,000,000 recommended by former president Truman.

Cole is chairman of the joint congressional atomic energy committee which keeps watch on the nation's atomic program.

Despite his assurances that the administration will ask sufficient funds to "carry on the weapons phase of the program without any curtailment," the decision seemed certain to stir up the same kind of Congressional criticism which followed the announcement that the budget would be reduced by $5,000,000,000.

A cut of 30 per cent for atomic energy is far more than the approximately 12 per cent cut made in the Truman defense budget and 5 per cent in the related foreign aid program.

Cole said newspaper men the reductions would mean:

A slower pace of the construction of reactors—the power plants for atom-powered aircraft and aircraft carriers. Research and development on these projects will continue "pretty much as planned," he added.

"Some curtailment in the studies and work" on development of a reactor for industrial use, which Cole said is directly related to the development of power for surface ships.

WOMAN PILOT SMASHES SOUND BARRIER AT L.A.

Jacqueline Cochrane Also Breaks Record

LOS ANGELES (AP)—For years North America's No. 1 woman pilot, 43-year-old Jacqueline Cochran has achieved a much cherished goal. Monday she became the first of her sex to fly through the sonic barrier and surpass the speed of sound. She did it in a Canadian-built F-86 Sabre jet.

The speed of sound at sea level is approximately 700 miles an hour, depending on temperature.

Miss Cochran followed the mile "first" by flying the Sabre around a 100-kilometer closed course at a speed of 652.337 miles an hour, a world record for the distance. She flew over a course only 300 feet above the sun-parched Mojave desert.

National Aeronautical Associations timers recorded her top all-time jet record for a 100-kilometre course—652.686 miles an hour—set in 1951. Maj. Fred Ascani, United States Air Force. She also established a women's jet record of 534.375 miles an hour established last December by Mme. Jacqueline Auriol, daredevil wife-in-law of the president of France.

Trained for Weeks

Miss Cochran, wife of financier Floyd B. Odlum, multi-millionaire founder of one of the largest investment trusts in the U.S., said she had been training for several weeks for the record-breaking flight. The man who helped her prepare for the test is Maj. Charles Yeager, the first pilot to fly faster than the speed of sound.

He flew alongside her in preparatory runs around the 12-pylon course at Edwards air force base and radioed instructions to her. He was in the air near her Monday, just in case of emergency."

Miss Cochran was quick to learn, as ever. Back in 1932 she got her pilot's license after only three weeks' training. She has flown commercial, transport and army pursuit planes and bombers and holds several national, transcontinental and international flying records, in addition to the two she added Monday.

Built in Montreal

"Passing the sonic barrier, with its shock waves and other strange effects, was the most exciting and interesting experience in my 14 years of flying," she told newsmen per men. "Just for good measure, I bettered the speed of sound twice more. I'll be sure to record the records I set to last long, however. I'll have jet planes and more powerful engines already are showing up on the flight line."

Miss Cochran's jet was built in Montreal by Canadair. She has been visiting Canadair staff and advisor to Canadair for more than a year.

The Sabre was powered by a Orenda engine, manufactured by A. V. Roe Canada Ltd.

It was Col. Ascani, a good friend of Miss Cochran, who urged her to use the Sabre in an attempt to beat his record. He offered to let her fly it shortly after he established his mark. Although she is a reserve officer in the air force reserve, Miss Cochran is forbidden by regulations to fly a U. S. Air Force jet plane solo, so she acquired the Canadair.

Expect Churchill Will Arrange Meeting With Eisenhower After Commonwealth Talks in June

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters) — Political sources today predicted that Prime Minister Churchill will seek an early meeting with President Eisenhower to discuss the international situation.

They said, however, that the prime minister likely will consult the Commonwealth prime ministers first when they confer here after the Coronation next month.

A Churchill-Eisenhower meeting would enable the two statesmen to discuss Anglo-American differences which were brought into the open by last week's foreign affairs debate in the House of Commons.

The debate showed that Britain and the United States do not see eye to eye on some aspects of the Korean truce talks and other issues, although they have no pains not to stress the differences.

A meeting with Eisenhower would also give Churchill a chance to test personally the president's views on a high-level conference between East and West.

The question of talks with Russia will be in the forefront of the Commonwealth Conference and Churchill has indicated that he will be made in his recent speech to Parliament.

Each of the Commonwealth statement will give the Commonwealth views on the question of an East-West meeting. Prime Minister Nehru of India has already supported the idea.

Will Speak Plainly

Churchill said Monday in the course of his speech that it is Britain's "duty" to speak plainly to the U. S. on Korean truce problems but not to "appear to go on nagging" about it.

At the same time, Churchill hinted he favored a return to India's proposal, approved by the United Nations, for repatriation Communist war prisoners unwilling to go home.

Labor party critics of the new allied repatriation plan in part claimed the American negotiators at Panmunjon had abandoned the Indian plan, which was sponsored by minister in the former Labor cab-

Washington To Get All Texts Of UK Speeches

LONDON (Reuters) — Sir Winston Churchill said today that the verbatim texts of important foreign affairs speeches by the British prime minister or the leader of the opposition will be cabled to Washington immediately they are delivered.

The prime minister told the House of Commons that the texts would be cabled through the British embassy in Washington.

inet, asked Churchill if he did not think it advisable to propose a return to the Indian plan.

"I will bear that suggestion in mind so far as it has not already been in my thoughts," Churchill said.

Not Ignored

Former war minister John Strachey then asked: "Does that think it makes our support of the war in Korea very much more difficult? Does he not think that it makes it reasonable are rejected by our Commonwealth?"

Churchill replied that he believed the British viewpoint is "largely understood" in Washington. "I do not think it would be a good thing for us to appear to go on nagging when we do not shrink in any way from the most candid discussion in the proper channels our views on the subject."

In reply to demands that British troops be sent to Korea, Churchill reiterated that the United Nations had placed the entire conduct of the Korean war in American hands from the time the war started.

"I must remind the House as I have done several times," he said, "that the United States is mandatory to the United Nations and has 19-20ths of the burden in blood and treasure."

Rain Mars Holiday in East, West Bathed in Sunshine

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bright spring sunshine in the West, drenching rain in most of the East were the setting Monday for Canada's celebration of Empire Day.

A Canadian Press survey of the situation showed that, with one notable official birthday of the Queen, showed that most Canadians enjoyed an extra holiday in areas where the weather was good and headed for picnic and recreation grounds. Travel was heavy and nearly 60 persons died violently from highway accidents and other causes. Salutes of 21 guns boomed out in provincial capitals and some other large cities.

Victoria Day is traditionally May 24 but, by government proclamation last January, it was moved ahead to the nearest week-end to the official birthday of the Queen, April 21. April 21 is also some Canadians, the first big holiday of the summer season seemed to have been officially set in those areas where the weather proved unfavorable.

Clear by Noon

In most areas of Southern Ontario the day's rainfall ended the day night cleared away at noon Monday and bright sunshine lured out the motorists, the gardeners and the golfers. However, in many areas the good weather came too late for holiday makers to make up their minds about an outing. The Toronto Island ferries, for example, carried only about 1,500 Victoria Day passengers, compared with the normal holiday volume of 20,000 to 30,000.

Winnipeg's Victoria Day activities included a big welcome for the 1st regiment of the Royal Canadian Heavy Artillery on its return from Korea. The unit was scheduled on the legislative grounds.

The week-end weather in Manitoba was mainly fine and hot, but although Sunday saw some sun, rain fell on Monday night. There was fairly heavy, some holidayers heading for the beaches and others watching drives.

Steady Rain

Rain forced postponements of sports events in Saskatchewan and elsewhere in Alberta and in Saskatchewan. The British Columbia interior also had hot sunshine, but driving rain that started about mid-morning on the lower mainland spoiled many holiday outings. Celebrations in the coastal province included a rodeo at Cloverdale and an Indian pow-wow in North Vancouver.

Home from Scotland

LONDON (Reuters) — Prince Charles arrived from Scotland today by train on a week's vacation in Scotland to prepare himself for their mother's Coronation, just two weeks off.

Anne, 5, received a small crowd of onlookers with an elaborate pirouette and curtsy as she followed today from a week's vacation in Scotland to prepare themselves for their mother's Coronation, just two weeks off.

Anne, 5, received a small crowd of onlookers with an elaborate pirouette and curtsy as she followed Charles, 4, more shy than usual, simply walked self-consciously to the car, but recovered his composure in time to wave cheerily as he drove off.

The Queen returned from Balmoral Castle Monday and the Duke of Edinburgh Sunday.

Rope Two Short

NORTH BAY (CP)—Eighteen-month-old Susan Harkness was killed Monday when she was run over by a light truck while playing in the driveway behind her home here.

Police said the child was tied to a back porch with a rope, but it apparently only prevented her from reaching the road.

Driver of the truck was town engineer W. G. Hardy, occupant of a vehicle driven by another man, who the Harkness family lives.

DR. J.E. RENTON, TRENTON, KILLED IN RACING BOAT

Speedboat Hits Wall Of Dock at High Speed

Trenton (Special)—A tragic accident on the waterfront here on Sunday morning took the life of Trenton's foremost sportsman. Dr. John E. Renton, 54, the man who gave Trenton countrywide publicity as a speedboat racer died in hospital here after his high-powered craft crashed into the west wall of Trenton harbor in the treacherous horrible conditions looked on.

The prominent Trenton dentist, 1st chairman of the Centennial celebration here in June 1934 was driving his racer through its tune-up paces and it is believed that the throttle stuck against the dock. The ill-fated dentist froze at the wheel as the runaway craft hit the concrete wall at nearly 50 miles an hour. They turned his body and clutched the steering wheel as the boat roared unabated toward the cement breakwall.

Sickening Thud

A sickening thud resounded across the water as the front of the boat shattered. The dentist's seven-year-old son Michael Renton, and his father were thrown against the wall and then plunged into the water. Fragments of the boat. An onlooker Alfred Leland with help from others got the boy and the severely-injured driver out of the sinking hull. Minutes later he was in the operating room at the Trenton Memorial Hospital, where he succumbed to multiple head injuries.

Dr. Renton knew his accelerating was caused a trouble. He was taking a trial spin around the mouth of the Trent River before this checking the throttle and changing to racing plugs. "I'll be back in a couple of minutes," he said as he waved his hand and zoomed away from the dock.

Had Many Spills

Known as a keen racing dentist Dr. Renton had many spills during his three years in competition. Last year in a fuel fire at the Canadian National Exhibition course he gave the crowd a thrill when he drove his boat up on the breakwall manoeuvering a corner.

A graduate of Toronto University, Dr. Renton practised dentistry in Trenton for more than 30 years. He was an original member of the Trenton Country Club, a member of the Prince Edward Lodge A.F. and A.M., one of the founders of the Trenton Yacht Club. He was also a member of the Masonic Lodge No. 38.

Surviving are his widow Vivian, two daughters, one son and four brothers, Thomas, Campbellford; James, Calgary; William, Langstaff; Allan, Toronto, and Dr. Gordon, of the Trenton Dentalia.

Interment will be in St. George's cemetery.

U.N. May Release 34,500 N. Koreans Refusing Repatriation

New Armistice Plan May Set Time Limit on Talks

By OLEN CLEMENTS

TOKYO (AP)—The Korean truce talks were recessed for another six days today and an informed United Nations command source said if negotiations collapse, the Allies probably will free 34,000 North Korean prisoners who refuse to Communist rule.

There were reports in Tokyo the Allies were preparing a revised armistice plan that might set a time limit on the peace talks.

The UN command asked an extension until next Monday of the three-day recess that was due to end Tuesday. The Reds agreed at a liaison meeting at Panmunjon.

A spokesman close to Gen. Mark Clark's headquarters said the UN command is considering turning loose as civilians balky North Koreans.

Last Major Block

The ultimate disposition of these and 14,500 Chinese captives who also have renounced Communism is the last major block to a truce. The Reds have agreed in principle for freeing captives already had been set by the Reds.

Clark has agreed freed "at the front" 50,000 Allied prisoners they captured during the Korean war, the spokesman said.

"There is no question to keep holding these North Korean prisoners. They hate communism and will not go back to it under any circumstances.

"They are anxious to get back to their wives and families and be assimilated in South Korea among people of their own nationality who also are opposed to communism.

Something to Talk About

"The 14,500 Chinese prisoners held by the UN command are another thing. They do not want to return to communism either. So their future is something to talk about."

The UN command said it asked for the extended recess in the truce talks for "more time to review past efforts" and to consider completely the present position in the light of the new issue the prisoner deadlock.

Last week Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison Jr., chief Allied truce delegate, gave "administrative problems" as the reason for the recess.

Today's explanation only mentioned "reviewing" the prisoner question.

Opportunity

The UN command statement explaining the new recess request said the Communists have given the Reds "an opportunity" for "serious consideration" of past and present efforts to settle the PoW problem.

The UN in its latest proposal suggested turning loose the 34,000 North Koreans as soon as an armistice is reached and letting the 14,500 Chinese be taken from them in South Korea by a five-nation neutral repatriation commission composed of Sweden, Switzerland, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

The Communists said such a proposal was "unthinkable." They said the 14,500 Chinese prisoners remain in South Korea under neutral custody but do not specify how long until given a chance to send representatives among them to "explain things."

Why Didn't He Have a Horse?

TORONTO (CP) — Milkman William Kean is likely going strapped on the days of the horse-drawn milk wagon. A dog snapped on the emergency brake of his truck Monday and the truck careened 115 feet down a steep grade, jumped a curb, plowed through a line of wash, tore across lawns, rolled down a 15-foot embankment and came to rest upside down. Total damages: $500—enough to buy a lot of oats.

David Deryaw Drowned in Moira Near Lazier's Dam

Slipping from the broken pier of Lazier's Dam as he waved to his girl friend in a canoe while swimming, David Deryaw, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Deryaw, East Moira Street, was drowned in the Moira River Saturday when he was swept 200 yards downstream in the fast current.

The accident took place in view of a number of picnickers and other persons fishing in the river below the dam. The boy's body was recovered about 15 minutes by inhalator treatment given by Belleville firemen and also at Belleville General Hospital shortly after him.

Cor. Dr. J. Russel Scott who pronounced the young swimmed dead said he apparently had injured himself when he slipped from the pier of the dam and never will be no inquest.

Young Deryaw, who worked with his father in a family woodworking shop, had taken the afternoon off to have his first swim of the year. With his girl friend, Miss Marjorie Lewis of Camilton, he had gone to Lazier's Dam and was just about to enter the water when the accident occurred.

Only Few Feet Away

The young swimmer was only a few feet away when Deryaw slipped and was carried by the fast rushing current. Miss MacPherson who had been fishing from the bank threw her line out and was carried downstream in the rushing current. She got along the shore and once got within four or five feet of David but she missed his hand and he was carried under.

A Hamilton motorist who was fishing below the dam notified police and firemen who assisted in bringing the boy ashore after he was spotted by Constable Bonner, Belleville. Joined hands with police and firemen and waded out in the fast current and brought the boy's body ashore.

Plane Hitchhiker, Victim of Crash En Route to Meet Fiance in Belleville

The fatal air crash which early Saturday morning claimed the lives of eight RCAF personnel returning from Germany, and the ensuing plans of a young local girl, Miss Edna Ervine, 22 Harriet Street.

The young Belleville girl was a passenger on the plane, Miss Ervine, 22, of Montreal, who was "hitchhiking" a ride from Chatham, N.B., on the ill-fated Trenton-based Mitchell medium bomber.

A Belleville man, Sgt. William L. MacDonald, 35, of Trent Rd., was also killed in the crash, along with four crew members, all from Trenton. Sgt. MacDonald leaves a wife and two small daughters, John 9, and Catherine 7.

First indication that Miss Ervine had that anything was amiss was at mid-morning Saturday when a report reached the local receptionist at the local radio station CJBQ. She was reading a morning news bulletin she learned a Trenton-based plane had crashed at Montreal killing all eight aboard.

Miss Ervine knew that her fiance was getting a "flip" from Chatham to Belleville for the week-end. Her fears were later confirmed when it was reported that a wallet containing her fiance's name was found at the scene of the crash.

Miss Ervine was to be married on June 6th. Wedding presents were already arriving at the Ervine home and invitations to the wedding were to go out this week.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Prices held firmly to small early gains in forenoon stock market trading today.

Golds and western oils made small advances and industrials were mixed. Base metals continued opening weakness with a minor loss.

Golf Season Opens At Bay of Quinte

Close play featured the opening of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club links activities yesterday.

In the Men's Sweeps, Harry Hidley, Lloyd Lantz and George Ling carded a 88 net to tie for first place. Harry Knott won the "booby" prize with the highest score by 18 holes, a 141.

The "most strokes taken for one hole" was taken by Cecil Brown who had, thirteen at the No. 2 hole.

In the Mixed Two-Ball Foursome played in the afternoon, Miss Helen Lee and Bud Little were tops with a low gross of 82. Mrs. Muriel Joss and Scotty Reid and Miss G. Genik and Terry McCabe tied with a low net of 72.

Next Sunday, starting at 9 a.m. the club will hold its annual "New Golfers Day". Senior members or the club will take new members around the course in an "acclimatization" round.

Industrials mixed as papers and foods gained and banks and constructions weakened. Price changes were small.

Higher-priced base metals weakened and others followed.

A good majority of western oils gained.

Senior and junior golds showed strength.

Holding companies were mixed as Prospectors Airways slipped and Ventures and Frobisher gained.

Heavy Rains Over Holiday Put Quietus on All Events

Ole Jope Fluvius either had his dates mixed or the wily old man kept abreast of the times by coming up with his almost-annual caper of spoiling the "Glorious 24th" for the Queen's birthday.

In any event, he discovered there had been a switch in dates due to royal directive, but that didn't deter him from raining, or near-ruining, the long weekend scheduled for the 16th. to the 18th.

In this particular district he put an effective quietus on all sports events and baseball, softball, bowling and soccer fixtures were all called off due to the wet condition of grounds.

Fluvius got his dirty work in on Sunday night and early Monday morning when 29 inches of rain fell over the district. There were some hopes raised on Monday morning when the skies broke fairly clear, but these were dashed a short time after twelve noon when again the rains came to dash all hopes of any outdoor sports that day.

The fishing fraternity and pleasure boaters, on the other hand, were the rain and general engineers, with the "fin wingers" coming off the best. The anglers, who braved the elements came home with small but disappointing hauls. In fact one remarked there were more bass than pickerel in Hay Bay, generally conceded to be the cream of the pickerel spots in the district.

Some individual catches were made, one a seven-pound lake trout caught in Ashley Lake, near Denbigh.

Fixtures Cancelled

Many outdoor picnics were cancelled on Monday and a number of popular resorts, who had planned near-elaborate "opening dates" were far from being crowded.

Cottage and cabin owners had a respite from the workaday toil but that is about all. Murky,

'Mr. Bowling' Honored With Trophy, Prizes

Turning in a brilliant fifteen-game score of 4182, Ron Saylor was tops for the second consecutive time that winning the "Mr. Bowling" title is right down his alley. This total works out to an amazing 278.8 average for the tournament. (The winner of a similar tourney held in Toronto recently to declare the city's singles champ, had an average of 271.)

At the completion of bowling Mr. "Tools" Kolway presented "Mr. Bowling" of 1953 with the O'Keefe Trophy — the "Mr. Bowling" trophy. He was also the recipient of a beautiful wrist watch, donated by Paul Mercier, jeweller, presented by Mr. Mercier in person. "Mr. Bowling," Ron Saylor, also received a substantial cash prize, a valuable Thermos picnic kit and other prizes.

His first five games gave him 1402 and left him 1pst 53 pins off the pace set by Lee Lucciola. On the second night he overtook Lucciola with a 1378 five. To complete the pattern his final score was 1402 again. Jim McKenzie put in a strong big one on the night by turning in a beautiful 1470 total for five. McKenzie's strong finish gave him 4g's from seventh to second place, edging Joe Legault by a mere single margin. Legault's 2945 was him the-show spot.

Fourth spot was claimed by Jim Corlies with 2862. Leo Lucciola, after being top dog on the first night and within 40 pins of the winner after ten games, slipped down to fifth place. His average was a little better than 252 per game. Horace Ormshaw of Trenton with 2776 sixth, Jim Sea mark, 2702, was seventh, followed by Hal Wallis, 2677, Cec Hardwick, 3617, Ken Scovell, Deseronto, 2574, Car Anderson, 2557, "Dusty" Rhodes, 2555, Joe Dunphy, Kingston, 3534, Jack Fitzgerald, 3527, Joe Cote, Kingston, 3509.

Perhaps it should be pointed out that the above scores are equivalent of a five-man team score for three games, and that any of the above Belleville 3560 would be considered a very good team score in most major leagues.

Class "B" winner was Vince Sagriff, who by virtue of a final flight surge of 1247 literally came from nowhere to cop the first prize. Jack Sweet, with a fifteen game 3407 total, just couldn't get over the 3450 mountain piled up by Sagriff. Joe Millera 3360 was good for third rung and one step lower, Ed McQuat, 3353, followed by Ken Burnside of Kingston 3336. Further down the line in the race to the finish were Lionel Blaker, 3152, Jack Yeres, 3083 and Doug Wylie, 3077. Considering that all bowlers in this group had averages under 200 for the past season, the above scores show that most bowlers could improve through serious competition. Or merely by concentrating. Other good scores in this group were bowled by Charlie Sagriff 3011, E. Barrons, 3004, A. Randle, 2987, Joe Deryaw, 2938 and Orville May 2918.

LET'S BUILD A SCHOOL!

In last week's Saturday Evening Post there was an article explaining how Sid Cesar had become the top man in TV because he had never been told that it was impossible to do a ninety-minute show every week. Of course, it's impossible, but Cesar does it.

Out in Thurlow Township there was no one around to tell the trustees of No. 5 Rural School Section that you just can't go ahead and build a school for $17 cash. So they just went ahead and built a school for $17 cash. And they are saving themselves $100,000.

Harassed urban taxpayers who have seen school costs hitting their tax rates year after year might well pay attention to the way they are doing business in Thurlow. Actually there isn't anything funny or tricky about it. They are simply doing things the way any private citizen would have done them 100 years ago. They probably heard about the pay-as-you-go policy in municipal finance and, believing that it meant pay as you go, decided to build a new four-room school out of current revenue. It is costing the ratepayers about $17 each for it. In cash, this year. And the school will be ready and paid for in September.

Of course the Thurlow trustees could have gone about their school expansion in the regular way. The estimates said it could be done for about $100,000. This could be financed over a 20-year period at an additional cost of $5,000 to the ratepayers. That way—over 20 years—you don't even notice the difference on the tax bills. In fact it is going on all the time all over the province. It is as easy as 50 cents down and 50 cents a week.

But in Thurlow, No. 5 Rural School Section, there are at least two or three ratepayers who realized the thing in the face and said there must be an easier way of doing this. First off, someone (probably someone who had put up a few buildings on his own place) said, let's build it ourselves. And all of them the trustees couldn't see a thing wrong with the idea.

And right there all the orthodox ideas about building schools went out the window. You just don't set out on a school building bee and expect someone to accept your 20-year bonds to pay for it, even if they are only going to ask you for $80.00 debt charges in the next 20 years. So, if the Thurlow trustees were to go ahead and build their own school they were faced with the matter of paying for it in cash.

Fortunately there was no excuse to prevent the board from collecting its capital grant from the province once they got the school under construction. And one way and another it was discovered that a school that would ordinarily cost about $160,000 could be completed for $17,000 as cost to the ratepayers. With an average assessment of about $1,000 this worked out at about $17 per ratepayer.

Someone suggested that people would look rather silly issuing 20-year debentures for a electric toaster or even a TV set. And every one round about agreed.

Before now it has probably been suspected that the trustees of No. 5 Rural School Section knew how to take care of their ratepayers' money. It is a good thing to inspect thereabouts to discover that the board had a $9,000 surplus on last year's account. Apply that to $17,000 and there was only something like $8,000 to be found in cash for a four-room school addition.

Anywhere else but in Thurlow someone would probably have made a major political issue of it. But the ratepayers there decided to take care of it in a special levy this year.

All of this reminds us of the speeches we hear from time to time from our men in public life today. They like to tell us, chide us, in fact, about the way things were done in the days when our grandfathers were building up this great land on the sweat of their brows and had an eye for the value of a dollar. Out in Thurlow Township they have remembered those things and brought them up to date.

THE ELEVATOR

In quite a few Belleville homes this week the family will be devoting no little attention to the Elevator, B.C.I.'s Year Book.

It is a handsome volume and a credit to its editorial staff.

We won't say that the excellence of its literary section. It is typical of newspaper people, of course, to be overly impressed with any talent for writing which is revealed in someone who hasn't a newspaper background. If we read something that we can't very well take apart we are immediately suspect, and start wondering where plagiarism set in.

So, by way of saying that there were two or three efforts in the current Elevator that were not only well written but also had the vital punch of good short stories. One was tight and cleverly done in its arresting realism.

There is, however, some room for critical comment. There were several pages of snapshots and without a single else to identify the subjects. Of course everyone at the school knows who's who. But Year Books are meant to be long-time keepsakes. How much better it would be if the book could be piled up 30 years hence and everyone could be readily identified. And one other thing, how was the cast of Kampus Kapers overlooked? It was certainly an outstanding B.C.I. event of the year.

The first North American herds of wild horses were believed descended from Spanish steeds brought to Mexico.

With Shoes on The Table

(New York Times)

Among the various superstitions having to do with fate is one that says to put shoes on a table is to bring bad luck. Certainly many superstitions seem to stress bad luck rather than good, but perhaps that is justified here and there. Sufficient for the moment is the fact that to put shoes on a table will immediately bring a slash in pay, a night of insomnia or a mouthful of feathers. Presumably, the shoes in question are empty ones, discarded in exchange for shoes being worn, and in earlier years, removed that the spring may be refilled overnight. It could mean shoes with the feet still in them, since, as everyone knows, that type of shoe does not bring bad luck. Shoes with the feet enclosed may bring down recriminations from mama on the furniture, about sloppy habits, but that is just routine living and not bad luck. Comfort and ease, peace and rest, cannot be regarded as bad luck. Only, quite usually, the heavier the shoes, the more weary the feet within, the greater is the good luck that they are bad. Those foolish, foolish superstitions.

They have, of course, various terms for this activity with the shoe. They call it slouching about the house, loafing, using a gar and uncouth practice. They refer to it as a singularly graceless exhibition of the lack of sensible example for the children. At times their rage is more than the provocation, the usual shrill screaming and enters into a form of hysteria. Then, after the shoes on the table wearing the shoe, they do not literally grow purple in the face, but they come close. An expression more closely resembling that of blue carnation is declare that the practice of wearing the shoe on the table is an invitation to civilized fate. That it is a reversion to type — that type being of the ape. They never say what their mothers were right in warning remarks made long ago, before the term existed. And as for if delivering the unanswerable clincher, they remark that they themselves would never think of putting such a shoe on the table. They go on and on.

To anyone knowing the virtues of the shoe on the table, this point of view is unreasonable, unjust and is offered with complete disregard of the facts. To those of the higher intellect, it is fully known and understood that, short of lying down mutely with the feet on the table is the most comfortable of all positions. It rests the feet and the legs, it relaxes the spine. Nothing is harder on the spine than to attempt to sit erect in a straight, stiff bolt upright for the rest. This gives no relaxation. this simply burns up energy which might far better be turned to other things. So many of the day's few hours must be spent in uncomfortable position that it is foolish not to take advantage of a comfort so infrequently available. After a long day at the office it is only sensible to place shoes on the table for a time before supper, or, in the place there as an aid to digestion of the evening meal, before the start of another chair will do. It is not the equipment that matters, but the action.

There is another thing about shoes on the table. When they are placed there, with feet inside, they are not, are a great deal refreshed. Perhaps this is so because blood that is normally active in the feet can rest instead to go to the brain, where it is not wanted. Dreams are important, for sometimes they can lead to the beginning of a new book, a new picture, a new to the couch of the psychiatrist. But when shoes are placed on the table it is possible to indulge in splendid flights of imagination. Travelling at this moment in Paris and the next to Capetown. Even a trip to the moon could probably will be brought about by some engineer who, polishing the shoes with his feet were on the table—or, better still, the desk. Whatever the shoes are placed on than on the table is, quite naturally, the floor. This, unless this is a suspicious and cantankerous fellow. Superstitions could be free from the firing threats by such a one.

Coronation Salvage

(Sudbury Daily Star)

Preparations for the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II on June 2 have changed the face of Bell Island. That stately road leading to Buckingham Palace, to make it look like bleacher stands at a baseball park.

One of the current jokes in London is that cab drivers are getting lost because all the familiar landmarks are being hidden behind the thicket of scaffolding.

But behind all the preparation is the foresight of the Government planners who estimate they will be able to salvage at least one million timber for the building of housing projects in the United Kingdom.

Nails are used sparingly in the construction of the stands and small washers are placed under their heads so that the wood will not be marred by hammer blows. All metal and steel will be salvaged for other purposes.

Canada has sent some interest in the coronation stands for the reason the timber is mostly constructed from British Columbia pine, Douglas fir and western hemlock imported from the forests of the Dominion.

It is a warming thought to know that the timber will find its way into new homes for the people in the war-shattered London'areas.

He Knows Fresh Eggs

(Windsor Star)

L. E. Cardiff, Conservative M.P. for Huron South, confesses he sees no reason for "storage" eggs. His reason is simple. They aren't fresh. This isn't to cast any aspersions, or be hatched. It is merely they have lost their freshness. That's why Mr. Cardiff knows a fresh egg when he eats one.

The great progress has been made in the grading, packing, freezing and shipping methods to keep foodstuffs "fresh," it is undeniable there is a deterioration in many. Apples and other edible items from the time they leave the land, until they reach the consumer's plates.

If you eat an egg which has been laid only a few hours previously, the difference from a "storage" egg is easily discernible. The same is true of freshly killed pork, or beef, or poultry, or vegetables, also. It is particularly true of fish. All Mr. Cardiff would need do is to crack an egg in a pan, and he could tell whether it is fresh or fresh.

Farmers know what freshness means in flavor. They know the advantage of digging potatoes from the hill, putting them in the pot and eating them within an hour of being in the soil. The same applies to fruits and vegetables. They know the taste of pork chops right off the hoof, or of a fish from an adjacent lake that was killed around a few hands for a job like that.

Letter to the Editor

Favors National Health Scheme

The Editor:

While in Belleville yesterday I picked up a copy of your paper, and would appreciate a chance to comment on your editorial "No Price Ticket Shown."

It's perfectly true that it would be difficult to arrive at an accurate figure on the cost of a National Health Plan, but we could certainly make a good guess. In countries — including Japan, Italy, Germany, The Scandinavian countries, and even the United States — where more have had a great many years experience than we have had plans and that experience is there for our guidance.

At the Dominion Provincial Conference in 1945 the Liberal Government of the day estimated the cost at $300,000,000. With wages and prices much lower than higher today, but certainly not more than double that figure.

You notice that the present government announced that a recent survey of medical needs showed we are now spending $383,800,000 on health, more than the total figure. Add to this the amount that the government is now spending — about $600,000,000 — and you can see that already we as Canadians are spending a total of $1,000,000,000, amount which would take care of a National Health Plan. Where we're not getting the health care we need. We're not getting the peace of mind a Health Plan would bring, either.

Today industrial accidents cost Canada about $250,000,000 annually — a staggering amount on preventive medicine. People would not be needlessly before they are critical ill. The national health would be cut off both in health standards and in productive capacity.

The kind of unorganized and inefficient health care we now have is costing Canadians at least as much as a proper system of health care would cost.

Can we afford not to have a National Health Plan?

FRED YOUNG,
CCF Provincial Organizer.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Familiar query in the mail. How long will it take to get all the nicotine out of my system?

If we assume that the ill-effects of smoking are due entirely or mainly to nicotine (which is doubt), the answer must be, say, 12 to 36 hours after the last smoke.

Dr. Brady

After a drinking bout it takes less than half an hour to get rid of the alcohol out of the system, whether the lamebrain sobers up in jail, Turkish bath or at home.

But this has little or nothing to do with the damage done by the poison. It may take three months or three years to repair the damage the poison has done to the body organs or cells, if the damage has not been too great to repair.

It is fairly well known that breathing air containing one part in two parts of carbon monoxide in a thousand may render a person unconscious, and air containing three parts in the thousand will kill, unless the victim is promptly rescued.

Nevertheless, carbon monoxide is not a poison in itself. All of the effects of carbon monoxide are due to anoxia, deprivation of oxygen, which is incorrect and unscientific to refer to asphyxia from carbon monoxide as "poisoning"; it is anoxia (absence of oxygen) and nothing else. The carbon monoxide (colorless and odorless) inhaled is picked up by the hemoglobin (iron-containing coloring matter of the red blood corpuscles, instead of the oxygen the hemoglobin should pick up, delivered to the body cells, which cannot use it, instead of the oxygen which they must have to continue functioning.

Some cells, particularly in the vital nerve cells, function only feebly or not at all if their oxygen supply is greatly restricted or reduced for even a short time. They degenerate or die if their oxygen supply is shut off completely for a few seconds.

Of course it is desirable in every instance of carbon monoxide anoxia, acute or chronic, to get the carbon monoxide out of the system as quickly as possible, and the best way to do so is by administering pure oxygen — inhalations of a mixture of oxygen with carbon dioxide (5 per cent carbon dioxide, seven per cent oxygen, 88 per cent nitrogen) which promptly and effectively stimulates the pulmonary volume exchange, as shown by the late great Prof. Yandell Henderson, and so supplies the cells a high concentration of oxygen — hence relief of anoxia.

Inhalations of carbon oxygen from inhalators are not just emergency treatment but excellent treatment for daily use in mild or chronic carbon monoxide toxia, which will be the subject of a talk next week.

Place Names

(St. John's Nfld., Journal)

Let's be careful in changing place names. Often the choice of place names appears to rest with the local social authorities. It becomes even more important than ever to guard the sanctity of long-established names shall not be made arbitrary. The duplication of names which have no particular significance might well be changed to facilitate the distribution of mail matter, but even in such instances should be avoided the substitution of grandiloquent names or others of no relevance, historical or otherwise.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DIGNITY

There are few finer words so attractive as dignity in a man or woman. Even in an animal it is outstanding. Here note a lion, as he walks along the street with smaller dogs barking at his heels? That big dog just goes ahead, paying no attention at all to the smaller inhabitants of his world. He is a big dog always.

There is a world of difference between dignity and self-importance. The snob is an imitation of superiority, whereas a man or woman of dignity is conscious of equality. A friend of mine, a noted editor of a newspaper, was once horse-whipped on the street by a man in his town because of an article in his town paper which had been published in his paper about the lady's husband. It was an undignified thing to do, and the man, but the editor kept his dignity and refused to retaliate or prosecute her.

It is an inspiring thing to see the dignity and bearing of a person under false accusation and abuse. It is a man's armor and his own defense under all circumstances.

President Wilson was reported to have said that a nation could "be too proud to fight." What I felt that he meant was that a nation should not fight, thus standing before the world as an example of dignity when strongly assailed.

Abraham Lincoln had dignity to a marked degree. His own cabinet members assailed him and tried to convince him that they were wiser and abler than he was, but he kept his dignity and refused to retaliate for a person possessing it. In high office, something more than mere ability is expected. The office itself is one of dignity. With spiritual dignity goes humility, even the hemlock—and became immortal!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHICH WILL YOU TAKE?

We live today in a man-centered age. Our forebears through many centuries lived in a God-centered age. Generation after generation, man's best thought was given to the study of theology. There were also times in past history when the man on the street knew more about the Holy Trinity than do most seminary graduates today. Wars were fought over abstruse theological questions.

The supernatural world of the past took itself very seriously, and what was more important, it took God very seriously. None of us of course would want to go back to that mediaeval age. We are not fanatical enough to live like that, nor makes us yearn sometimes for the interests and the spiritual certainty of many of our forebears. Today we are interested rather more than to what God declares. Man's greatest aim is to raise his standard of living, to improve his science, to solve his social problems. And he believes that he can do it.

Yet there has not been a time for centuries when men were more in bondage to fear than at the present moment. We pride ourselves on our objective attitude toward life, but all the while we look down into the void of our own souls and are horrified and affrighted by what we see.

Fear, frustration, man's opinion—which will you take?

Don't throw bad money after good!

If you own a fur coat, take heed!

Investigate before you entrust its cleaning to anyone. Poor cleaning methods ruin furs.

How?

By drying up precious natural oils . . . the very oils furs need to retain their exquisite gloss.

By stiffening the leather side, making it hard and brittle, robbing you of many years of wear.

By leaving deep-down grit and grime in your coat. Microscopic dirt can't be seen . . . but can cut and rub and tear the silky hairs.

When you pay for expert cleaning . . . be sure you get it! Insist on Hollanderizing, for cleansing and rejuvenation by Hollander.

The Hollander people are the world's largest and most famous processors of furs. Chances are they dressed and dyed your skins originally.

Hollanderizing uses fine "wool powders" to absorb and remove even the smallest particles of dirt, making your fur coat truly . . . exquisitely . . . clean.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Mo's 21, His Wife is 28 — He's Worrying About It

The question whether or not a bridegroom is honeymoon if the wife is several years older than the husband is one often asked me. Usually it comes from the woman in such a case, less often from the man.

A quite new twist to such a situation, however, appears in a letter just received from a young man who went ahead and married an older woman without putting this advance cautious question to anyone. Now he has begun to worry.

"I am a corporal in the U.S. Air Force," he writes, "and three days before I went into service a year ago, I got married to someone I had known a few months. The fact is, I was undecided up until the last minute whether to get married or not, because she was 28 and I was 21.

"Since I have been stationed a long way from home, I have begun to wonder how this is going to work out after I get back. I act younger than my wife, look a little younger, and I know I can take care of her. That worries me, though, is that even now, when people ask me about my wife and how old she is, I can't get up the nerve to tell them, and I keep thinking about how it is going to be when I get home again and have to introduce my wife to my friends. I keep imagining they will talk about us afterward, and say 'she must be a lot more older than he is,' and I would feel funny about it.

"My wife knows all about how I feel and does not seem to mind too much. Perhaps my trouble is that we were together for only a few days after we were married.

"What is your opinion about this?"

Same Interest

How it would be pretty hard for me to express any very useful opinion about this marriage since this boy gives me no idea about what sort of people he and his wife are. For the fact is, of course, that it does not matter so much that a wife and her husband should be the same age as it does that they should be equally mature and have common interests, common ideals and a similar way of looking at life. On these vitally important points, nothing is revealed.

If this husband and wife do enjoy the same things; if they have similar interests, tastes and find the same kind of people congenial as friends; and if the philosophy of life with each one holds touches the other's philosophy at most points, then there is good reason to believe that they will get along very well and be happy indeed.

Wonder if this young man knew the woman he married well enough and well enough to feel this to be true? If so, then he is probably worrying needlessly.

On the other hand, the young man's fear that he will "feel funny" when he gets home and starts introducing this older woman as his wife may be an indication that the two actually do not have much common ground on which to meet, and that already he has a subconscious awareness of this. For if they did feel close together in the ways mentioned above, while after all are the basic elements of life, the difference in years would seem so immaterial as to be practically forgotten.

My advice would be that he try not to worry about the matter while he is in service, but to wait till he comes home and see how things go. He may find that all worry is quite unnecessary, and that he will not really be self-conscious about his marriage at all. At any rate, he should give things a try before deciding that he made a mistake.

He should realize, too, that people are not likely to talk about his marriage in the way he thinks. If he himself acts as though it were a perfectly natural affair, and if he and his wife are happy together, they won't care if people do comment at first. Unless his own attitude keeps them reminded of the fact that he is younger than his wife, they'll soon take the marriage for granted.

KIDNEY ACIDS Rob your Rest..

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They toss and turn because it's "no use"—when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys clean out poisons and excess acids from the blood. If they fail and poisons stay in the system—disturbed rest often follows. If you don't rest well get and use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's help the kidneys so that you can rest—sleep—and feel better.

How To Reply To A Formal Wedding Invitation

A formal invitation to the church ceremony also engraved invitation that "requests the honour of your presence"... does not require an answer.

But

When you receive a formal invitation to the reception... or to the wedding breakfast, luncheon or dinner, or to a house wedding or a wedding in a club or hotel... you must write a formal reply. (On these invitations a reply is usually requested... most often by "R.s.v.p.")

Writing your reply is very easy, very simple! You word it in the third person. You write your reply on the first page of double-sheet letter-paper or note-paper. You write it in the center of the page. You space the lines carefully.

Accepting an invitation... only 3 lines necessary:

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hill
accept with pleasure
the kind invitation of
Mr. and Mrs. Allen
for Tuesday, the ninth of June
Regretting an invitation... only 3 lines necessary

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hill regret they are unable to accept the very kind invitation of
Mr. and Mrs. Allen
for Tuesday, the ninth of June

Note 1: If you wish, you may use the longer form of reply which follows more fully the form of the engraved invitation:

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hill
accept with pleasure
the kind invitation of
Mr. and Mrs. Allen to the wedding reception of their daughter Mary and
Mr. Arthur Rowland
on Tuesday, the ninth of June at five o'clock
The Park Lane

Note 2: It is not considered necessary to give a reason for regretting a formal invitation.

Note 3: It is more gracious, when regretting an invitation, to write a note to the host or hostess.

Note 4: Your reply to the invitation should be very prompt, and should be addressed to the person or persons in whose name the invitation is issued... usually the bride's parents.

Wedding Reception Menu For Seventy-Five

By Mary Moore

Every mother of a marriageable daughter is asked to clip this and file it away, for I am flooded with the following type of request:

"Dear Mary: We are planning a wedding with 75 to 100 guests, and did not want to set tables if we could help it.

Could you suggest a menu and the amounts of food required for that number of people. Betty S."

It is the large quantity recipes that are difficult to locate, so if you are in for planning a wedding reception take my tip and clip this.

Wedding Reception Menu (buffet)
Lobster Salad Loaf (cold)
or
Hot Small Buttered Rolls
Or
Chicken or Turkey a la King (hot) in small patty shells
Stuffed Celery Curls Or Perfection Salad
Assorted Olives and Pickled Watermelon Strips Fresh Strawberry Ice Cream
or
Rich Vanilla Ice Cream with Crushed Strawberries
Orange Pecan Cookies (ice box)
Angel Food Cake
Salted Pecans
Wedding Cake
Reception Punch
Coffee

Directions
Lobster Salad Loaf

This amount serves 25. Make this amount three times to serve 75. Four cups soft fresh bread-crumbs, 4 six-oz. tins of lobster, 2 8-oz. tins best quality salmon, 1 cup canned mushrooms chopped, 1 tablespoon finely grated onion or chopped chives, 8 beaten eggs, 2 cups rich milk, ¼ cup chopped pimientoes (or finely chopped stuffed olives or crisp green pickles), salt and pepper. Remove liquid and bones from lobster and salmon and flake them and add them to the chopped mushrooms and the crumbs. Beat the eggs, add them and the remaining ingredients tasting for salt and pepper. Turn into greased loaf tins and bake pans in a very large shallow pan containing hot water to half the depth of the loaf tins. Bake in oven of 325 deg. Fahr. until set - about 40 minutes. Chill. Slice and serve on delicate lettuce leaves garnished with lemon slice and parsley. The salmon takes on the flavor of the lobster and reduces the cost.

Chicken or Turkey a La King

(Serves 25. Triple this amount 75)

Ten cups cooked chicken. (A 4½ lb. chicken when cooked yields approximately 4 cups, well-packed. Sliced meat) ½ cup chopped, drained, canned pimiento, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, ½ lb. sliced mushrooms sauted in 3 tablespoons butter, gently for 10 minutes, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 6 cups white sauce. Cut chicken in cubes before measuring. Make white sauce by melting ¾ cup butter, stirring in ¾ cup flour, and when blended, 5 ¼ cups whole milk, until thick. Add salt and pepper to taste to the white sauce. Now add the mushrooms, which have been sauteed, to the white sauce with the chicken and all other ingredients. Heat through in top of large double boiler. Do not heat this over direct heat. Serve hot on biscuits or pastry shells daintily garnished.

Orange Pecan Cookies (4 dozen)

One cup best quality shortening ½ cup white and brown sugar, 1 beaten egg, 2 tablespoons orange juice, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind, 2 cups flour, ¼ teaspoon soda, ¼ cup chopped pecans. Cream shortening and sugar until fluffy, then beat in egg, orange juice and rind until smooth. Sift the unsifted flour and soda together then add them with the pecans. Shape dough into long rolls 1 ½ inches in diameter. Wrap well bake on ungreased cookie sheet and chill overnight. Slice thin and at 375 deg. Fahr. for 10 to 12 minutes.

Reception Punch (serves 20)

Boil together for 10 minutes 1 ¼ cups water and 2 ½ cups sugar. Cool. Add 1 pt. lemon juice, 20 oz. orange juice, 48 oz. grapefruit juice (canned if desired), 16 oz. grape juice, 1 large sliced maraschino cherries plus juice, 1 cup fresh strong tea. Let stand 1 hour. Add ice to make this up to 7 ¼ quarts liquid. Ginger ale may be substituted for some of the ice.

BEAUTY

Clay Packs Remove Blackheads

Complexions have many enemies, chief among them being atmospheric dust which, caught by the oily exudations in the pores, forms horrid black points. These tiny blemishes are strange to the fabric of the skin into a coarse one. They attract bacteria that produce pimples.

A pore is, in normal condition, a minute aperture almost imperceptible to the eye; it is like that in childhood, as a rule. It becomes enlarged when the sebaceous gland in the underlying tissues becomes extra active, exuding an acid like fluid that it hardens in a bead-like mass. Dust lodges there, and trouble starts.

If soap is used twice a day, and used properly, it will dissolve these deposits. The lather should be rich and thick, frictioned in with the fingertips while the flesh is moistened gently. After a warm rinsing, moist hot applications should be held close to the flesh.

If you are a victim of blackheads and twice-daily face-washings do not bring results, try a clay pack. These treatments are given in beauty shops, but are no trick at all when self-administered. You are not likely to look very pretty; in fact you are likely to scare a little children when you are wearing a cosmetic mask.

Get a package of kaolin from your druggist. This is our old friend Fuller's earth, used for many years cleaning felts and furs, but made clean and sterile for cosmetic purposes.

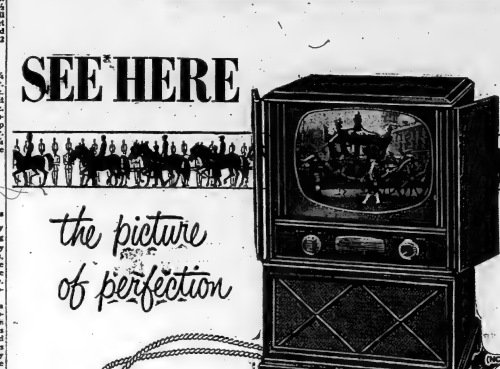
Mix three tablespoonfuls with which hazel, using enough of the with hazel to form a paste the consistency of whipped cream. Before applying, wash your face with soap, dry and apply a light film of cosmetic oil. Bind back your hair to protect it from coming in contact with the kaolin.

Spread on the pack with flattened fingers; include your neck. Now you have an opportunity to relax or stick your nose in a mystery story for half an hour. By that time the mask will have started to flake. Remove it with a washcloth that has been dipped in warm water. Dry gently.

To complete the treatment, have a three-minute massage with a heavy cream, then frisk an ice cube over face and neck. Usually it is "Goodbye blackheads."

Fashion Flashes

Growing in favor ad hat trimming are fruits and vegetables, judging by some recent collections. A clever-shaped, level white straw pillbox is veiled in yellow and sports two velvet lemons on top. Tiny brown velvet mushrooms trim the side of a profile bonnet in beige straw braid.



Nice, neat, wearable daytime dresses are available at every price level. Little more than a ten spot, for instance, takes care of a white, washable, all-nylon sheer bright with red, navy or black "dollar dots." A round capelet collar is linked by a rhinestone-studded velvet bow drawn through slits. Skirt is easy, bodice snug.

Increasing in popularity is the informal bridal gown, so named because it is floor-length. One such gown is of mousseline de soie, the bodice simple, the skirt marked by panels of embroidered Alencon type lace, lavishly trimmed with rhinestones, pearls and crystal beading.

Good for all day wear for a long while is the well-done navy dress. Under eighteen is the happy price tag on a handsome dress in navy faille, the skirt umbrella-gored, the deep V neckline of the short-sleeved bodice filled in with a white piqué glint. A change of gilet would turn this into a virtually new, or certainly different, dress.

Woman Walks Sixty-Two Miles On 62nd Birthday

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Brandt Johnston, 62, Monday celebrated her birthday by travelling 62 miles by automobile in the direction of Welland.

Then she laced on running shoes and walked the 62 miles back home to Toronto.

To keep up her strength and spirits during the 16-hour hike, she ate dates, whole wheat buns and a black olive sandwich. When she got thirsty she took a drink of water and a tall glass of buttermilk.

Back home, she said: "I've felt more tired after some 50-mile walks."

VANDALS WRECK CLUB

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Vandals have caused several hundred dollars damage to the Sportsmen's Club in nearby Tecumseh, it was discovered during the week-end. Members said furniture in the club house was smashed, paint was streaked across the floors, light fixtures broken, 40 windows shattered and feathers and wings from stuffed ducks and pheasants strewn about.

Red Peace Moves May be Disruptive To Western Unity

—Pearson

TORONTO (CP)—A warning that Russian peace moves may be disruptive to western unity was voiced Saturday night by External Affairs Minister Pearson.

In a dinner speech to delegates attending the annual Ontario Liberal Association convention, Mr. Pearson said differences of opinion as to the meaning of Soviet strategy provide the greatest danger.

"As the tension and fear seems to ease, we may yield to the temptation to be more critical of each other—to engage in useless bickering and backbiting," he said.

"This would be a great tragedy for us and a great victory for those who may have altered their tactics for this very purpose. Good relations between friends may be easily spoiled if we mistake fierceness for frankness in our discussions or if we substitute violent condemnation for honest criticism."

In Saturday business sessions, delegates approved resolutions calling for increased provincial spending for education and for provincial payment of construction and maintenance costs of municipal roads connecting provincial highways.

Delegates also favored increased immigration and amendment of the Ontario Mining Act to provide protection and encourage individual prospectors.

Diefenbaker Will Be Candidate In Prince Albert

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—John Diefenbaker will be the Progressive Conservative candidate in Prince Albert in the coming federal general election.

Mr. Diefenbaker, the successful candidate in the Centre constituency in three successive federal elections, was nominated Saturday at a convention attended by more than 300 delegates.

Lake Centre, which Mr. Diefenbaker represented in the House of Commons for 13 years, was wiped out in the recent redistribution.

Supporters of the 58-year-old lawyer said the Prince Albert Progressive Conservative organization as such, will drop out of the picture and Diefenbaker clubs, organized last November by members of all parties, will take charge of the campaign.

Atomic Blast Rocks Buildings 200 Miles Away

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—An atomic blast powerful enough to shake buildings in Bishop, Calif., 200 miles away, flared over the Nevada desert before dawn today.

The unusually bright shot also rattled buildings in this gambling community 75 miles from the proving ground, but there were no immediate reports of damage.

Police in Bishop said the shock wave came in two or three short bolts, rumbling like cannon shots, and were the strongest ever felt there.

The blast, ninth and next-to-last of the spring test series, was set off from a 300-foot tower at Yucca flat, with 28 congressmen watching from the control centre and 1,000 armed forces observers in trenches 4,000 yards away.

The shot was primarily for scientific and observational purposes. The atomic energy commission said 60 tests were conducted.

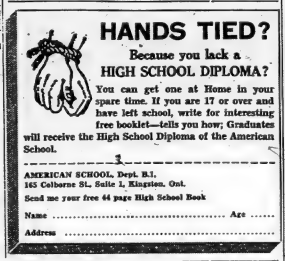
Besides military equipment and civilian defence structures, antibiotics provided by the federal food and drug administration were exposed to the burst. The drugs were tested for resistance to blast effects.

Forty-seven planes were in the air on various missions. A U. S. Navy AD-2 drone plane was flown into the thermal cyclone, but there was no immediate report on how it fared.

JET PILOTS DIE

COPENHAGEN (Reuters)—Two Danish Air Force jet fighters collided and plunged into the sea today off the Zealand coast. Both pilots were killed.

Body Recovered



HOUGHTON, Mich. (AP)—The body of Arthur L. Morse, hero of the sinking of the freighter Henry Steinbrenner during a storm on Lake Superior Monday, was recovered Friday.

The coast guard said the body was picked up by the freighter Clifford Hood 19 miles northwest of the Portage canal entry. Survivors said Morse stayed on the sinking ship and helped his mates get away on a raft.

Morse, third assistant engineer, was from Michigan City, Ind.

Seventeen crew members lost their lives. Fourteen were rescued.

"Imagine Raggedy Ann taking me to Bermuda!"

"I once had a doll called Raggedy Ann. She had red hair, and a wide, happy mouth. She was just a floppy rag doll, but I loved her.

"One night last summer I decided to make another Raggedy Ann for my niece's birthday.

"In two evenings I finished the doll and gave it to Martha, who is just six. She was so delighted, I made more Raggedy Anns for little girls I knew.

"It wasn't long before several mothers wanted me to make Raggedy Anns for their little girls.

"With the money they paid me for the dolls, I opened a special savings account at The Dominion Bank in our neighbourhood. My savings grew, and I really got interested in being thrifty, because now I had an objective. Mr. Wilson, the manager, calls it my 'Bermuda Vacation Account'.

"Next year, thanks to Raggedy Ann and my Dominion Bank savings account, I'm going to Bermuda for a vacation. Who knows where Raggedy Ann may help to take me in the future!"

If you have a hobby or a spare time skill, it may earn extra money for you too. Keep track of those extra dollars by opening a savings account at The Dominion Bank. Remember, every account at The Dominion Bank is an important account!

The Dominion Bank offers many services. The manager will be happy to tell you about them.

Huge Celebrations Planned For Capital on Coronation Day

OTTAWA (CP)—Mammoth celebrations symbolizing Canada's homage are planned for the national capital on Coronation Day.

While similar festivities will be held across the country, the observance of the Queen's Coronation by the governor-general, is the nation's recognition of a supreme royal event.

Activities will centre in front of the Peace Tower against an impressive backdrop formed by the Parliament Buildings and surrounded by acres of lawn and flowers. A large platform is being erected in front of the tower.

Early on June 2 church bells and factory whistles throughout the city will sound at the exact time the crown is placed on the head of the sovereign.

Trooping the ...

At 11:30 a.m. trooping of the color on Parliament Hill will take place by the Governor General's Foot Guards, but it will not be until the afternoon that observances really get under way.

All available armed forces personnel in the Ottawa area will parade for the national ceremony.

Taking part will be a 300-man RCN collegiate from Halifax, together with 1,700 RCAF members, the Royal Canadian Dragoons (Petawawa), 2nd battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment (London, Ont.), 2nd Canadian Rifle Battalion (Upperwash, Ont.) 3rd battalion, the Royal 22nd Regiment (Quebec City), 2nd Canadian Infantry Battalion (Valcartier), 30th Central Ordnance Depot (Ottawa) and the Royal Canadian School of Artillery (Camp Oro, Ont.). Another 875 officers and men will represent the Canadian Army reserve force from Ottawa.

From the Ottawa area will come 1,750 RCAF members, and 250 more will come from Trenton, Ont.

Variety of Bands

Military bands will be provided by the RCAF, Royal Canadian Regiment, Royal Canadian Corps of Signals (Kingston), Governor General's Foot Guards, the RCN and the RCAF.

Pipe bands will represent the Black Watch (Royal Highlanders of Canada, Montreal), the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders (Hamilton), the Cameron Highlanders, Ottawa, and the RCAF.

Bugle and trumpet bands will come from the Governor-General's Foot Guards, 26th Central Ordnance Depot, 2nd Canadian Signals Regiment (Toronto) and the Royal Canadian Dragoons (Petawawa).

Altogether, approximately 5,000 troops will participate in parades and massed band concerts.

The national ceremony on Parliament Hill begins at 10:45 a.m., preceded by 15-minute carillon program from the Peace Tower.

At 3 p.m. the governor-general will meet Governor - General Vincent Massey at the gates of his home, Rideau Hall, pledge allegiance to the Queen, offer his free passage through city streets and escort his party to Parliament Hill. He will travel in an open carriage, horse drawn, direct to the steps of the Peace Tower where he will receive a royal salute from the Foot Guards.

His Excellency will make a brief inspection of his guards at this stage, and the bands will play Coronation music specially written for presentation in Westminster Abbey that day—the "Orb and Sceptre" by Sir William Walton.

Vice-Regal Address

Then the governor-general will speak in both French and English. On a fanfare of trumpets, his standard is to be lowered and the Royal Standard broken out at the masthead. At this His Excellency will announce "Her Majesty, the Queen," and a public address system will relay the Queen's message to the assembled thousands.

After the address, the governor-general will call for three cheers from the crowd on the hill. Following playing of "O Canada" and "God Save the Queen" the royal standard will be lowered and the governor general's standard raised.

This will be the signal for the RCAF fly-past in which approximately 150 aircraft will take part, including 50 jets. In conjunction with will be a 42-gun artillery salute. At the capital, Ottawa is entitled to a 42-gun salute; elsewhere in Canada it is a 21-gun.

The governor-general will move to a saluting base in front of the centre gate where the armed forces will march past.

From 3 p.m. until 9 p.m. massed bands will present a concert on Parliament Hill. Special selections by trumpet and pipe bands will highlight the performance.

Civic Celebration

The civic celebration will take place the evening of Coronation Day. Starting at 9 p. m., a civic flotilla will leave Lemieux lake and proceed by way of the Rideau canal to historic Confederation Square in the heart of the city. On the leading ship of the flotilla, consisting of approximately 20 vessels, will be the city council attired in their new robes.

The ceremony will centre around a platform in front of the national war memorial. It will be centred by a 30-foot totem pole bearing the arms of the provinces, surmounted by a crown. Flags of all Commonwealth countries will fly.

Deputy mayor Dan McCann (Mayor Wilkins will be in England for the Coronation) will read a declaration of loyalty to Her Majesty. Bands will play and standard bearers of the Commonwealth countries will bear their flags to the platform.

At 10 p.m. fireworks will be set off along the canal bank. The civic flotilla will leave for Dow's lake at 10:30 p.m. and all vessels will carry flares and sparklers. The canal route will be framed in colored lights.

Federal authorities plan brilliant decorations along the route from Government House to the Peace Tower and additional decorations on all public buildings.

On all highways entering Ottawa special standards will be erected on 30-foot poles. These will consist of scarlet and gold banners, hanging from a central bar on each side of the flag staff and draped 12 feet below, topped by the royal cipher.

Medal Metal

It's HARD to realize that less than one hundred years ago aluminum was a precious metal, priced at $17 an ounce. In fact, Queen's University at Kingston, Ont., presented the first graduate from its chemistry course with an aluminum medal in 1858.

Nowadays the price of aluminum is its principal limit. Is it that a dollar buys as much aluminum today as it did before the war, while it buys so much less of most other things? One big reason is the increasing use of aluminum — ten times that of 15 years ago. Volume production keeps production costs down. Aluminum is not only light and strong — it is low in price too. The Regent, Mrs. G. H. Rennie, presided. The meeting opened in the regular manner and the treasurer's report was received. Mrs. D. P. Marett, as publicity convener, recently sent the chapter's scrap book, which she compiled, to the provincial convention as an entry in the competition open to all provincial chapters, and while it was not given an award, a letter of praise was sent to the Marmora chapter by Mrs. A. H. McIntosh, provincial publicity convener and was read to the members.

Request Granted

The request that the chapter made of the high school board that meetings of the Marmora Girl Guide company, which they are sponsoring, be held in the high school auditorium on Thursday evenings, was reported as being granted.

Some financial assistance was voted to the Girl Guides in the matter of their sending some girls to camp this summer.

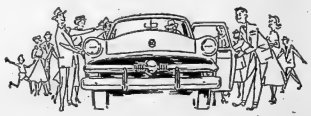
Why drive less than a V-8?
this year go



*Fordomatic Drive, Overdrive and white sidewall tires optional at extra cost.

CRESTLINE VICTORIA

The best way to measure Ford's dollar-for-dollar value is to compare it feature-for-feature with other cars that cost as much or more.

We think you'll be surprised at what you'll find. For example, you'll discover that Ford's Strato-Star 110-Hp. V-8 engine is the kind of engine you've always associated with the most expensive cars . . . that it delivers the kind of power and smoothness you never hoped to find in a car that's priced as low as Ford. When you try out Ford's relaxing "Wonder Ride" you'll immediately sense that "big car" feeling that's so satisfying to a driver.

When you take into account Ford's choice of Fordomatic*, Overdrive* or Synchro-Silent transmission (no other car at any price can offer more)—and realize how many attractive extra features Ford includes (like Full Circle Visibility, Centre-Fill Fueling, Key-Turn Starting and foam rubber seats) . . . well, then you'll understand why more and more motorists are making Ford their new first choice!

Friends Unable to Persuade Churchill to Take Things Easy

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill's friends say he is working far too hard for a man of his age. But most of them have given up trying to persuade the prime minister to ease up, because it is a sheer waste of time.

"Frankie," well into his 79th year, is at present in one of his galvanic moods. His "East - West talks" speech recently, which started a wave of Anglo-American controversy, was symphonatic of this bounding energy.

When he led the Conservative opposition from 1945 to 1951, Churchill seemed to lose much of the dynamism he displayed as Britain's war leader. But recently he has revealed a good deal of his old form, thriving on the hard work which accompanies power.

In addition to his numerous tasks as head of the government, he is handling the foreign office until Anthony Eden, the foreign secretary, recovers from his operations. He is involved also in the Coronation preparations.

Churchill spends all his problems by burning the candle at both ends and depending on a tough constitution to ensure that he himself is not burned out in the process.

Though he is an early riser, one day in his life would tire many a lesser mortal for weeks. He may do two hours' work in bed before dressing.

Breakfast in bed means fresh fruit, a small mixed grill of kidney and bacon, and coffee — never tea.

If there are no early cabinet or other engagements, the prime minister may not get up until about 11 a.m. Then he will dictate at high speed until lunch—probably roast poultry and a glass of champagne, followed by a brandy and a cigar.

Except in unusual circumstances, lunch is followed by one of his most important engagements—the afternoon nap which many people believe is the chief secret of his vitality. He undresses and gets right into bed, snatching from 10 minutes to an hour.

If he is attending Parliament, he will be at work again by 3 p.m. refreshed and ready to carry on indefinitely. He does not stop for tea, but likes dinner about eight.

Over the day as he has may have smoked about three fat Havana cigars. His drink before dinner will probably be a whisky, and after a good meal there will be another cigar and a brandy.

Then the real work of the day begins. The prime minister is liable to work, write, confer and dictate until 2 or 3 a.m.

When he gets to bed he allows himself six hours' sleep.

'Can't Take It' Wins Jumping Frog Contest

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (AP) — Slough Foot Sue couldn't quite make it, but Can't Take It did and won the 1953 Calaveras county jumping frog jubilee Sunday. Can't Take It finished 1 1/2 feet behind the list.

Can't Take It, a local frog owned by Roy Weimer, won the $250 first prize with a distance of 15 feet 6½ inches in three hops. That's well short of the record 16 feet 2 inches set by Maggie in 1946.

Slough Foot Sue, owned by R. E. Whiting of Sacramento, managed 14 feet 3 inches for second place and $125. Lightning, owned by Walter Dell of Gustine, Calif., topped 12 feet 11 inches for third and $60.

Two Canadian entry was King of Georgian Bay, owned by Ben. A. Graham of Owen Sound. The King placed 13th with 9 feet 6½ inches.

Cardinal Speaks To Knights At St. Catharines

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—James Cardinal McGuigan, Roman Catholic archbishop of Toronto, told delegates to the Ontario convention of the Knights of Columbus Monday that the world is divided between the forces of communism and freedom and that there is a danger of an increasing materialism "corroding hearts."

He said the knights can consider themselves engaged like knights of old as crusaders in the front line of the church's work.

Officers include: state chaplain, Most Rev. W. J. Smith, bishop of Peterborough; past state deputy, Hugo F. Shaw, Sudbury; state advocate, J. N. McPherson, Sault Ste. Marie; state warden, E. J. Wolff, Peterborough.

STRATFORD NATIVE DIES

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Lawrence T. Lemaire, a native of Stratford, and resident here for the last 11 years, died Saturday. He was assistant supervisor of plant No. 2 of Chrysler Corporation of Canada.

Lt.-Col. Nasser Named Monday To Assist Naguib

CAIRO (Reuters) — Lt.-Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser, a young, strapping six-footer who looks like a movie star, was appointed Monday to the no. 2 role in the Egyptian administration.

His appointment as vice-president of the 13-man military junta revolutionary council, the country's controlling body, confirmed his position as the right-hand man of Prime Minister Mohammed Naguib, president of the council.

In recent weeks, Nasser has prejudiced over the daily meetings of the council when Naguib could not be present, and has come to be regarded as the top policy-maker in Egypt's military administration.

Nasser, a modest man of 35, wields vast power in the fast-moving regime of the new Egypt.

After Naguib's coup d'etat last July, when the coup leaders vacillated on whether to shoot, imprison or exile Farouk, it was Nasser who largely influenced the decision to spare the pudgy monarch's life. His reason: "History will sentence him to death."

Now Nasser is the right-hand man of the premier. But, unlike Naguib, Nasser's power is directed from behind the scenes. He rarely makes public appearances.

40 Schoolboys Sail for Canada For 2-Week Tour

LONDON (CP) — Forty British schoolboys sail for Canada late in July for a two-week tour of Ontario and Quebec.

The visit will be the fifth under an educational trust fund established by W. R. Rhodes, Yorkshire industrialist. The tours were suspended during the Second World War and remained in abeyance until 1951 because of currency difficulties.

The boys, drawn from secondary schools in London, Birmingham, Bradford and Glasgow, will be given a send-off at a civic reception in London's county hall. They sail from Southampton 1ly 30 aboard the liner Scythia.

The tour includes visits to the Plains of Abraham at Quebec, stops at Toronto, Montreal, Hamilton and Niagara Falls, Ont., and a steamship trip across Lake Temagami in Northern Ontario. The boys will spend three days in camp and then go to Ottawa.

The party returns home from Montreal Aug. 19 on the liner Franconia.

TOUGH YOUNGSTER

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—A three-year-old boy fell three storeys Monday and landed on his head. Harold Brown was taken to hospital. Doctors examined him and sent him home. He wasn't hurt.

Earl Alexander To Play Important Role in Coronation

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Earl Alexander, Britain's defence minister and former governor-general of Canada, who will play an important role in the Coronation June 2, attended his first rehearsal in Westminster Abbey Monday.

Dressed in the red robes of an earl and the uniform of a field marshal, Lord Alexander will carry the golden orb, one of the "regalia of royalty" which the Queen receives after she is anointed.

The orb is shaped like a globe, surmounted by a jewelled cross. This signifies, in an old tradition, the domination of the world by the emblem of Christianity. The orb will be placed in the Queen's hands after she is invested with the royal mantle, but will then be handed back to leave her hands free to receive the ring and the two sceptres.

On Coronation Day, Lord Alexander and other peers charged with specific tasks in the ceremony will arrive at the abbey ahead of the Queen, assemble in the nave, for a procession in the opposite direction down the aisle of the abbey followed by the Queen.

Lord Alexander will be followed in the procession by his youngest son, 11-year-old Brian, dressed as a page and carrying his father's coronet.

Monday's rehearsal was for the aristocratic attendants who must carry such objects as crowns, sceptres, orbs, spurs, rings and bracelets from the abbey annex about 100 yards to the high altar on a split-second schedule.

WOODSTOCK FAIR HURT

BRANTFORD (CP)—Borys Jatsiuk and Dastanas Kallmauskas, both of Woodstock, were admitted to Willett Hospital in Paris, Ont., Sunday after a car driven by Jatsiuk left No. 2 Highway near Paris and struck a hydro pole. Jatsiuk suffered a broken shoulder and Kallmauskas suffered head injuries.

STRATFORD CADETS WIN

Sloppy Fielding Costs Marylebone Cricket Match

LONDON (Reuters) — The Marylebone Cricket Club, including the cream of England's cricketers, put on a shocking display of batting and fielding against the Australian tourists at Lords Monday.

On a pitch which favored the bowlers, the Australians dismissed the M.C.C. for 78. The Australians then stroked 179 first-innings runs assisted by the fact that the M.C.C. fielders let at least four catches go astray.

In a high-scoring county match, Somerset's 347 was topped by Yorkshire's 525 for four—including three-figure totals by Len Hutton (178) and Willie Watson (162).

Close of play scores in Monday's first-class cricket:

M.C.C. 78 and 19 for two, Australian tourists 179.

Essex 357, Middlesex 285. Northamptonshire 180, Sussex 202.

Lancashire 400, Kent 238 and 10 for one.

Cambridge University 90 and 194, Worcestershire 89 and 59 for no wicket.

Gloucestershire 185 and 47 for one, Nottinghamshire 182.

Leicestershire 194 and 84, Hampshire 68 and 134 for no wicket.

Somerset 347, Yorkshire 305 for four.

Glamorgan 289 for nine declared and 121 for three, Derbyshire 182.

Russkys, Yanks Will Battle At Chess Board

NEW YORK (AP)—Russians and Americans are going to try to settle one international problem this summer at the chess board.

The U.S. Chess Federation has received word that its formal invitation for a match with the Russians, sent behind the Iron Curtain in January, has been accepted.

A 10-man squad of comrade masters is all ready for a go here at settling the recurrent debate in chess circles over whether Soviet players are really better than anyone else.

Efforts have been under way since 1946 for a tilt between the two countries.

GORGEOUS GEORGE COMING!

Master Frank Tunney, impresario of wrestling and boxing up around Toronto way, always had a soft spot in his heart for this village. He probably heard last season of the many requests from the faithful here regarding the appearance of the fabulous, money-grubbed, marcelled master of the "mauling" ring, one Gorgeous George, and parked them for future reference.

Well, kiddies, the blonde bomber of the scent-waves will formally open the wrestling season here come Friday evening against none other than the popular Pride of East York, Belleville and area points, Whipper Billy Watson. Manager Walter Gerow and Marse Tunney got together over the weekend and the arena manager shyly hinted that "George" would be just about it as far as an opening attraction goes, second, mebbe to the Whip himself, so Marse Tunney settled for both.

So there it is. It is the first appearance in this part of the Gorgeous One, who has more tripes in his blonde trousers than the navy of Quinte on a windy day. They tell us he has no less than ninety gowns, all vivid-hued and some of them would make the proverbial Joseph's coat look like a hunk of mothballs. This "mauler" has assembled scientists in Canada's regiment of North Korea guerillas, and the Gorgeous One really puts on a pro-best show.

And look who's in the semi-final. None other than the famous strong man from the Ould Sod himself. Timmy Geohagen, helpers, a right hooch or a beer, who was a tremendous favorite here a couple of seasons ago. Timmy is pitted against Max Mountain Dean, Jr., a quarter-ton son of the former bewhiskered "Mountain." This ought to be the show will be two newcomers, Don Leo Jonathan and Howard Cantonwine (surely that's not the old "Hangman", or is it?)

LEAGUE OPENS!

The South Hastings-Baseball League swings into action Wednesday night with five teams comprising the loop. Latta faces Read in the opening twin bill on Wednesday, May 20, while Shannonville meets Melrose. Cannifton is the other team and will see action later. The league will play its scheduled games on Wednesday and Friday nights.

"MR. BOWLING"

Ron Saylor, winner of the "Mr. Bowling" title and trophy for the second straight year gets the tip of the columnar chinese, if a little belated. Another def yes to Jim McKenzie and his able kegler assistants who made this tournament possible. It was well organized and administered by Jim, Bill Bateman, Cec Hardwick and others and was a rip-roaring success. Proof of the popularity of this post-season alley event is seen in the fact that this year there were 69 entries as against 59—old last year. The tournament will run nightly unless all of Eastern Ontario next year and it is highly unlikely to become one of the outstanding affairs of its kind in the province.

WASH OUT!

Ole Jupe Flavius was the third man in the sports ring over the holiday week-end and his mere or less consistent spielers put an effective action over activities here and in general. The Northern Electric-Glen Ross junior softball game and that between the powerful Point Anne squad supposed to take the curtain on the league's activities were washed out and will be played tonight.

Bryson Reid's Regent juniors and the Prince Edward County Combines scheduled to try the 1st off district baseball activities was likewise washed out. This game will be played this evening at eight starting 6.30. The Regent juniors will hold a practice tonight at the Exhibition Grounds starting at 6.30 p.m.

The stock car races, we are informed, which were scheduled for the Belleville Speedway, were also postponed and will be run next Saturday.

The week-end's sports activities were tinged with tragedy. Dr. Jack Renton, of Trenton, one of the district's most enthusiastic speed-boat drivers was instantly killed when his driving craft crashed into an abutment. We met the amiable "doc" for the first time at the Trenton Centenary Committee party for district radio and press on Friday night and were impressed with his friendliness and sociability. The late dentist was one of Trenton's leading figures in the forthcoming 100-year celebrations.

FOR SURE!

Jersey Joe Walcott will probably toss away any and all of his cameras, if he possesses any. For the eagle-eyed lens of special cameras which "eyed" the controversial count definitely provet that Jersey was counted out legally, properly and with no skips of two. A special wire from a news service said its cameras had an eye on the ageless Joe and he was seated on the canvas with one hand on a rope and the other on the mat when the fateful "ten" was counted.

Former Korean Paratrooper Handcuffs Philadelphia 4-0; Third-Spot 'Bums' Lose Again

By REN FELEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Parachute jumping isn't included in the normal course of instruction on how to become a winning major league pitcher, but young hurlers may consider it when they study the amazing development of blazing Bob Buhl.

The 24-year-old righthander is one of the newest reasons for the surprising success of Milwaukee Braves. Monday night in his biggest test so far, Buhl whipped Philadelphia 4-0 and pulled the Braves into a first-place tie with the Phillies in the National League.

The former paratrooper scattered seven hits and has now worked 17 scoreless innings out of a possible 18 as a starting pitcher.

Two years in the United States Army—much of it in Korea—worked a big change in Buhl. Although a high jumper during high school he took no short pitching, he somehow developed a good curve and a change of pace to go with his good fast ball.

Got Even Split

"The improvement in the kid is amazing," said his manager, Charlie Grimm. "Bob pitched for me when I managed Dallas in 1950. He was a wild youngster then."

Monday night's effort which included a home run by Del Crandall, gave the Braves an even split in their first home series with the Phils.

The third-place Brooklyn Dodgers lost again Monday night to Cincinnati Red Legs, 3-1, in 10 innings. It was the Dodgers' fifth loss in six games. New York Giants rallied to defeat St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 in the only other National League game.

In the American League Detroit split a doubleheader with Boston, taking the first game 5-2 and losing the second 8-5. Washington Senators cooled off Chicago White Sox 3-0 and the other clubs weren't scheduled.

Ted Kluszewski homered with one out in the tenth inning for the Cincinnati triumph as the Dodgers equalled a modern major league record by leaving 18 baserunners stranded in the first nine innings.

Bud Podleisan pitched an amazing game for the Redlegs. He walked 12 men in the first nine innings—one short of the modern National League record—gave up six hits and saw one man get aboard on an error. Yet he was scored on only once, in the fifth inning when Jackie Robinson followed two walks with a double.

Mantle Ace Three

The Giants put together five straight hits after two were out in the seventh to defeat St. Louis. The big blow was Monte Irvin's home run with two on which broke a 2-3 tie. Connie Mathews had the White Sox fanning the night air trying to hit his "pitchin'" balls at Washington. He struck out nine and allowed five hits.

Detroit jumped away to a three-run lead in the first inning of its first game at Boston when Fred Hatfield and Steve Souchock doubled and Johnny Pesky and Walt Dropo singled. Mel Parnell scored his fifth straight victory in the second game, but he needed help in the seventh from Ellis Kinder.

Wins Archery Contest

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Reg Edie of Dunnville Sunday won the Blue Water Archery Club field tournament on the 3 regulation courses in Harriston Park woods. He had a total score of 621 for 135 hits.

Ron Warburton of Owen Sound was second with 563 and John Landen, president of the Owen Sound club, third with 550. Edie used a polar 42-pound bow, fibre glass with wood core and no sight.

Leafs Win Twins From Syracuse; Wings Take Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The $20,000 Toronto paid for pitcher Lou Sleater was worth it. At least that's the impression the big right-hander gave Monday in winning his initial International Baseball League start.

The Maple Leafs Monday swept a doubleheader from Syracuse Chiefs and swamped the Chiefs 15-1 in the nine-inning opener that starred Sleater, purchased from Washington Senators of the American League.

Sleater practically won the game by himself. He held the Chiefs to five hits and had a perfect day at the plate, hitting four times in four trips and leading the Leafs with runs batted in, sending four men home. He fanned seven and walked only two.

The Leafs took the abbreviated nightcap 6-3, though the Chiefs outhit them 10-7. Forrest Main, who relieved Stubby Overmire in the third inning, also banged his first start a good one.

Toronto Baseballman Mike Goliat whacked two round-trippers one in each game.

Dennis Reeder of Rochester Red Wings, with help from reliever Bob Tiefenauer, turned back Buffalo Bisons 8-3 and gave Rochester the league leadership. Reeder had a 4-2 lead before an error, a walk and two base hits brought on Tiefenauer in the ninth. It was Lefty's third win against one loss.

Ben Flowers, who joined the Orioles Sunday from Boston Red Sox, gave up only four hits in taking the victory in the opener. Two Montreal hurlers allowed six hits, with starter Tom LaSorda charged with the loss.

The Royals belted four Baltimore pitchers for 10 hits in the nightcap with Jack Sanford suffering his third loss against three victories.

Ottawa Athletics' and the tail-end Springfield Cubs split another night doubleheader, with the Cubs blanking the A's 3-0 in the opener and losing the nightcap 11-4.

Reliefer Tony Jacobs won the opener, his first victory against no losses. An eight-run eighth inning rally gave Ottawa the second contest. Ed Hrabcak' notched his second win against one loss.

Jersey Joe's Knockout Ruled Official As Five-Point Protest Is Disallowed

By CHARLES CHAMBERLIN

CHICAGO (AP)—The Illinois Athletic commission, voicing disappointment of Jersey Joe Walcott's showing against Rocky Marciano and urging a fast retirement, today rejected a protest of the fight by the aged ex-champion's manager.

There was little drama at the commission hearing as chairman Livingston Osborne ruled that Marciano's knockout of Walcott in Chicago Stadium last night "stands as official" and all five points of a referee's protest are "disallowed."

Unless Felix Bocchicchio, Walcott's manager, and his lawyer Angelo Malandrio, decide to seek legal action against the decision in the courts, the case is closed.

Picks Up Cheque

Both men attended a special showing of three-dimensional films of the heavyweight title bout prior to the hearing and charged they had been edited. Bocchicchio then went to Chicago Stadium and picked up a cheque from the International Boxing Club for $250,000 as Walcott's guarantee, before appearing at the commission with Malandrio.

The moving pictures showed conclusively that Walcott stirred only slightly at the audible count of 10 and then arose, somewhat wobbly, after being waved out by referee Frank Sikora.

In slow motion and conventional speed they showed that Rocky's haye punch in 2:25 of the first round was a left hook partially blocked, followed by a combination right cross-uppercut sort of blow to his chin.

The right did not appear to be as devastating as the head-snapping right cross Rocky landed eight months ago in Philadelphia to put Walcott away in the 13th round. But it was the damaging blow, and not the left hook that most television fans thought did the trick.

At the protest meeting, Osborne praised Walcott—who insists he is 38—as a one-time great fighter and then added:

"I think Walcott was through when he went into the ring and I was very disappointed in his performance. . . he should retire."

Bocchicchio's only main utterance before the commission was that Walcott "should have wiped off Joe's gloves and continued the fight."

St. Kitts, Orillia Win Senior Lacrosse Tilts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Athletics won their second game of the young Ontario Lacrosse Association senior season during the week-end with an easy 21-13 win over Fergus Thistles. It was Fergus' first loss after an opening game win.

Orillia West Yorks picked up their first victory of the season on Saturday with a 16-11 win over Brampton Excelsiors. The Excelsiors now have lost two games in as many tries.

Some 1,200 St. Catharines fans saw the Athletics jump into a 6-1 lead in the first quarter and go on to push the margin to 13-5 at the half and to 16-12 at the end of the third quarter.

Ted Howe led for the winners with four goals with Derry Davies scoring three. Bill Nelson, Doug Smith, John Dewar, Max Wolley and Al Frick each contributed two with one each by Jim McMahon, Don Moore, Bill Bradshaw and Don Gulp.

Topping the losers with four markers was Bob Dobbie. Don Gear, Jay Hill and Stan Abbott took two each and Don Campbell, John Matheson and Ron Landoni each tallied once.

Toronto West Yorks had no trouble with Brampton, taking a 3-1 lead in the first quarter, extending it to 7-3 by the half and 9-5 by the end of the third. Toronto received three majors, the only penalties of the game.

Playing coach Don McPhail, Leo Testo, Reay Damico each scored three goals for the winners; Testo had four assists. Damico two and McPhail one. Jim Richmond scored twice and Digby, Kapasky, Croft, Lee and Hammond each tallied singles.

Jack Dicodi and Bradkin both scored three for Brampton. Nick Ferri scored twice and Dicin, Sibell and Steele notched one apiece.

TALBOT SAYS

'Twas Mean Trick on Walcott's Part TV 'Stoke-Up' Time When Blow Fell'

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—About the only thing one can conclude after watching the showing of the newsreel films of the Rocky Marciano-Joe Walcott fiasco is that television and its millions of free-loading devotees were victims of a diabolical conspiracy.

Before they strap you into your seat and clamp ship goggles over your eyes, the film people announce sneeringly that you will first see what the great TV audience saw, ha-ha. As a build-up for what is to follow, this is tremendous.

Were in Kitchen

In the first place, our timing indicates that nine out of 10 hosts were moving toward the kitchen when Walcott went down. The action had been slow and unexciting, and with only 45 seconds left in the round it looked like a smart time to take up.

Those who did happen to be gazing at their screens saw Walcott retreating toward them, back first, and then they saw him sit down suddenly, as though he had tripped awakened to the sad situation, they had, indeed, received a short count.

The film will remove any doubt in your mind that old folks get well and truly hit. In slow motion you will see Marciano throw a beauty of a one-two—a left swing right on the cheek followed by a crushing right to the jaw packing every ounce of his weight behind it. Rocky, himself, called it an uppercut, but through our polaroids it looked like a horizontal one, more like a right cross.

You'll see Walcott just a 'settin' there, his right glove grasping the rope and his eyes staring at nothing in particular. The referee, incidentally, is shown to be talking exactly in unison with the knock-down timekeeper, whose arm can be seen rising and falling in the foreground.

Some think they saw Walcott stir slightly at around five. We didn't, nor at 8, which the referees calls especially loud, as though seeking to rouse the stricken fighter. Finally, an instant after the arbiter's arm has descended on 10, you still see Walcott spring to his feet and stray somewhat uncertainly toward his own corner.

Only one thing the pictures will not tell you—whether Joe could have gotten up sooner and continued the fight. One personal opinion at the time was, and still is, that he was helpless, and that it would have been dangerous to have let Rocky hit him again.

Hamilton Loses To Irish Soccer Tourists

HAMILTON (CP)—The Irish International soccer team Monday defeated a Hamilton and district all-star team 4-1 after a scoreless first half.

Scorers for the Irish were Jimmy d'Arcy with two, Sammy Hughes and Danny Blanchflower. Hamilton's goal was netted by Jimmy Hunter.

Half Intercounty Holiday Games Are Washed Out

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Senior Intercounty Baseball clubs were steamed up for a beatting holiday week-end of baseball, but only managed to play six of the 11 games scheduled. Rain washed out the other five.

Saturday's schedule was completed, however, Oshawa Majors kept their home opener 4-1 to Waterloo Hawks, Guelph Gail Gallo Gale Terriers 7-4, Guelph Maple Leafs shut out St. Thomas Elgins 5-0 and London Majors edged Brantford Red Sox 3-2.

Of Monday's slated games Waterloo dropped Guelph 8-6 and Brantford shut out Kitchener 4-0. The other scheduled games, Kitchener at Waterloo, Oshawa at St. Thomas, London at Gail Gallo at Guelph at Brantford, were rained out.

Win Two in Row

Joe Yurusik pitched Waterloo to their second straight win Saturday, scattering five hits. Leading the Tiger attack was Billy Flick with a double and two singles. His double drove in Yurusik for Waterloo's first run and he scored himself in the third. Oshawa's lone tally was a 380-foot home run by Gord Acres in the sixth.

Goelph catcher Eddie Napier and outfielder George Carruth each socked a home run in the sixth to shut out St. Thomas.

Right-hander Lew Fauth allowed only six hits. Acres, the powerful started for St. Thomas and lasted until the eighth, when John Pollock took over.

Making the most of a few hits, London barely skyped Brantford for their second win. The Majors' Bob Pearce, a right-throwing right-hander, shaded southpaw Alf Gayey in a mound duel. Russ Cox, with a single and a double in four times at bat, led the London hitters.

A five-run rally in the seventh inning gave Waterloo their decision over Guelph Monday night. Playing manager Hank Biasatti hurled all the way for the Tigers for his first victory. Biasatti also had a big night at the plate, with three hits in three trips. He was robbed of a homer in the second when centre-armed outfielder Fred Gray leaned over the fence to make a sensational catch.

The Brantford-Kitchener game was a weird duel. Starting Brantford pitcher Mel Lipka gave up only two hits in eight innings but walked 10 men and was in trouble. Frank Parker pitched the ninth for the Red Sox, walking one and allowing the final Kitchener safety. He struck out the last two batters.

Trailing 3-0, the Panthers filled the bases on walks with two out in the eighth. Shortstop Irve Carr then smashed a double to left centre, presumably for the tying run. However, they were all washed out anyway. The umpires ruled that Jackson Owens, who had been on first, did not touch second base.

Wednesday Kitchener is at Oshawa, Guelph at Gall, London at Waterloo and St. Thomas at Brantford.

BOXER DIES AFTER FIGHT

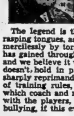
Middlecoff Wins Meadow Brook Golf Tourney

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—Dr. Cary Middlecoff won the Meadow Brook round-robin golf championship Sunday with a seven-point edge over Jimmy Demaret.

The 32-year-old Memphis dentist, regularly a leading money winner on the pro circuit, clinched the rich first prize in the $17,500 event by firing a four-under-par 66 for the final round and winding up with a 42-total plus points.

Demaret shot a last round of par 70 plus points.



Jackie Burke, Jr., Demaret's co-host at Lake Kianesha, N.Y., finished third with plus 22 and Lloyd Mangrum was fourth with plus 14.

The point standings are gained by matching one player's score with that of the other three in his foursome. Middlecoff with his 66 thus picked up 42 point from Ferrier, who shot a 67 and three each from Sam Snead and Dave Douglas, who had 69s.

SOCCER TOURISTS WIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Kevin Baron and Bill Jones scored two goals each to lead the Liverpool football club of England to a 4-1 victory over the American Soccer League all-stars Sunday in the second game of their United States tour.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

A legend of professional sport died when, in the most amazing sport upset of the 1953 Stanley Cup series, the powerful all-star Detroit Red Wings were humbled and knocked out of hockey's stands by the no-stars Boston Bruins.

The legend is that all professional sports managers possess raging tongues, acid vocabularies, drive their players mercilessly by torrents of abuse and threats. It's a legend that has gained through imaginative fiction, but if it ever existed and we believe it was correct only in some isolated instances, it doesn't hold in professional hockey today. A player may be sharply reprimanded in private for some boneheaded piece of training rules, but intelligent analysts and conferences in which coach and manager submit their plans and discuss them with the players, have replaced old-fashioned and out-moded bullying, if this ever existed generally.

This legend of managerial abuse was punctured right in the Detroit Red Wing camp. Jack Adams, former playing star, who as a manager has been one of hockey's great builders and fighting leader. He is forthright, he is experienced, he doesn't hesitate to speak his mind. Indeed, he has the reputation, outside his club, of being a hard driver.

Before the second-last game of the Bruin-Red Wing Series, a game played in Detroit, it was apparent the great Red Wing machine was grinding its gears. Boring had already won three games. Another defeat would put Wings out of the series. Jack Adams called for a players' conference. There were those, on the fringe, who thought that the Wing leader would rant, roar, abuse the players, seek to inspire them by threats. But as it turned out, Adams talked to his players as a kindly father might talk to a beloved baby boy who had temporarily misbehaved.

As he talked, the Stanley Cup stood in the room with him. And Adams said, quietly, sincerely: "This Stanley Cup is yours now. You won it last spring and you know the fun in winning it. Every kid in Canada wants his name on it. You're the greatest team today and your names will be on it. But a third place team is on the verge of preventing that. I want you to know that no matter what happens tonight, you are still my boys and you're the best boys I know on and off the ice."

No threats, no abuse, but the psychological appeal of the quiet Adams' speech was far stronger than any fulminations could have been. There wasn't a dry eye in the Wing dressing-room. And Wings went out, fought furiously, won the game, kept their hopes alive until these were snuffed out by the driving Bruins in Boston two nights later.

The days of abusive leaders are over in professional hockey, if they ever existed. In hockey today, the potential awards are too great, the athletes playing a game that constitutes a career in itself and a springboard to the future are too aware of these facts to require, or perhaps to tolerate, the driving, abusive, blustering coach pictured in fiction.

Piper Laurie and Julia Adams share co-star billing with Power.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — One of the strangest things about television has been the rise of comediennes.

Funny women have long been a stock in trade of show business. But until TV, they were always overshadowed by the popularity of the male laugh-getters. TV has changed all that.

The title role in the home screen's top show—"I Love Lucy"—belongs to a woman. Among the others who have nice ratings are Imogene Coca, Eve Arden, Joan Davis, Ann Sothern, Marie Wilson, Gracie Allen, Martha Raye and Tallulah Bankhead. Most of them were in radio, too, but have never had the immense success they enjoy now.

How come, I asked Joan Davis, is it because women's voices are not as recognizable on radio?

"No," she replied, "it isn't hard to recognize my voice, or Eve Arden's, or Gracie Allen's."

Is it because male comics excel in audible humor while the gals rely on sight gags?

"Nope, I don't think so."

Then why is it?

"I think it's because of that nasty old thing called sex," Miss Davis replied. "And sex is more visible than audible."

All of us girls try to look the best we possibly can. I always have a smart outfit on, unless I've just fallen in a mud puddle or something.

"I held out for three years against doing live TV. One of the main reasons I wanted to film was that you can look better. We spend much more time lighting me than they ever did when I was making movies. In those days, they'd look at my nose and light my with a match."

Lighting, you see, is what makes the glamor girls glamorous. It shouldn't be too big a job on Joan. Despite her comic characterizations, she is a smart looking woman, with smooth skin and blonde hair.

Joan admitted that TV was the biggest thing that ever happened to her.

"I became better known in six weeks on TV than I did in all those years on radio and in pictures," she remarked.

SHIPS COLLIDE

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP)—The British minesweeper Coquette and the Swedish freighter Arnold Bratt collided in a heavy fog Monday night. No one was reported injured, but the impact ripped deep gashes in the bows of both ships.

AT THE DRIVE-IN

"Close To My Heart"

Gene Tierney, married to newspaper columnist Ray Milland, wants a baby, but, according to the doctors, is unable to have one, so she is determined to adopt one. At an adoption centre directed by Faye Bainter, she learns that she will have a long wait, but makes out an application. Later she hears of an abandoned baby boy and reveals him to the authorities are keeping him. She falls in love with him, and asks Bainter if she may have him. She is permitted temporary adoption. Milland, anxious to find out something about his parents, runs something in his collimg, and receives a tip which enables him to find out that the mother is dead. More searching reveals that the father, a murderer, is about to die. Bainter takes the child away, saying that Milland is not the proper father because he would always be looking for bad things to crop out in the child. When Milland returns after visiting the father, he finds Tierney alone, and he tries to recover the child but he can't. He goes to Bainter, and convinces her that he loves the child, and that he will be a real member of the family. All ends well as he returns the child to Tierney.

"About Face."

The graduating class of Southern Military Institute includes Gordon MacRae, Eddie Bracken and Dick Wesson. Coming down for the annual garrison review and ball-and-sabre game are Aileen Stanley Jr., MacRae's girl, and Phyllis Kirk, who—against institute regulations — is secretly married to Bracken and expecting a baby. Along with the girls Irvives Virginia Gibson, daughter of the new commandant. Wesson immediately falls for her. MacRae and Wesson, calling on Aileen and Virginia, are caught violating off-bounds rules and confined to barracks, while Bracken, the star pitcher, muffs the big game and has to be replaced. Then Bracken is arrested on a mistaken charge of writing short checks. By the time this rap is squared, and after a hassle to successfully coach him for his chemistry examinations, they all graduate and Bracken becomes the papa of a baby boy.

JUNGLE CRASH

GUAM (AP)—A four-engined B,50 bomber crashed and burned in dense jungle today, killing two crew members and injuring four.

COLLISION KILLS ONE

TOKYO (AP)—A Japanese fishing boat and the freighter Seitoku Maru collided about 100 miles southeast of Tokyo today and left one fishermen dead and 19 missing. The maritime safety board reported the 6,843-ton freighter picked up 17 survivors in high seas. The fishing boat sank after the crash.

AT THE BELLE—Beguiling the ear and bewitching the eye, Rosemary Clooney makes her screen debut in Paramount's brand new Technicolor musical "The Stars are Singing", now entertaining large audiences at the Belle Theatre. Co-starred with Rosemary in the delightful tune-filled film are Anna Marie Alberghetti and Lauritz Melchior.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The Klibitzer

A bold bridge player will skate on pretty thin ice to show his stuff. Especially if he has had some encouragement from partner. As when south was dealer in the spread pictured here:

	NORTH
	♠ J
	♥ A 9 8 6
	♦ K J 10 9 3
	♣ A Q 3
WEST		EAST
♠ K Q J 10 2		♠ A 8 5 4 3
♥ 2		♥ Q J 10
♦ A 8 5 4		♦ 7 6
♣ K J 10		♣ 7 6 5
	SOUTH
	♥ K 7 5 4 3
	♣ 9 5 4 2

The bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 S	Dbl	2 S
3 H	3 S	4 H	Dbl

The immediate double by north was for takeout. It was a signal that forced south to bid if he had intervened: if east did not come in there with a bid south would be forced to bid even with nothing.

When the next player intervenes with a bid after the double south is not forced to bid. Therefore, any bid he makes is free; that is, voluntary. It is a bid that denies absolute weakness.

How much strength does south show by his free bid? The same as he would show by a voluntary response to an opening bid of one; that is, more than two tricks with at least two high cards in the hand.

South had enough for his bid of three hearts with a count of four that his hand contained. Because the north double promised five tricks. A satisfactory trump suit is all they need for it.

The three spade bid by west was according to south. And so was the raise to four hearts by north. Each had a trick more than shown in the first call of either. Each had six tricks.

The penalty of double by east was a bit too close. He can be sure of a trump trick. But there is no assurance of three side suit tricks even with the opening bid by west.

However, in view of the result, my criticism falls flat on its face. West led a spade and east found a way of helping to defeat four hearts. Would you have known how?

RADAR TREATMENT

SEOUL (Reuters)—South Korean public health officials said today that 72 persons died of smallpox in Pusan during the weekend after a renewed outbreak of the disease. More than 300 cases were reported in the second outbreak of the disease this year.

Violent Deaths Over Holiday Number 56

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The number of violent deaths across Canada from midnight Friday to early Tuesday—Victoria Day week-end and the first big holiday of the summer—reached 56.

The big figure is a sharp increase over last year's total of 33 for the same period.

Traffic and drowning accidents accounted for 22 lives. A Canadian Press compilation showed 22 persons died in highway accidents and 10 were drowned, several in boating accidents.

Five persons lost their lives in fires and 10, including eight airmen, were killed in two separate plane crashes. Of the remaining nine, one, a guard at a mental hospital in Ontario, was killed by a patient.

There were 34 deaths in Quebec, 16 in Ontario, four in each of New Brunswick and British Columbia, three in Nova Scotia and two each in Prince Edward Island and Alberta and one in Manitoba.

Ontario

Traffic—C. H. Jenkins, 39, of Sudbury, when a truck overturned and crushed his car near Malton; Gordon Gorham, 24, of Welland, when his auto struck a tree; Robert Butler, 8, of Etobicoke township, when he ran into the side of a moving car and was gashed in the neck by the door handle; Sylvia Lamont, 4, of Middleton, struck by an auto as she dashed across a street; Alex McCabe, 63, of Alvinston, in a car-truck collision; George Levac, 62, of Sturgeon Falls, struck by a truck; Mrs. May Campbell, in her 60s, of Barrie, in a two-car collision; Mrs. Cecile Zambito, 31, of Rochester, N. Drownings—David Decraw, 16, of Belleville, while swimming in the Moira river; John Pietro, 17, of Toronto, when a boat overturned on Baptiste lake northeast of Peterborough; Tom Saunders, 60, of Nicholson, in Lake Windermere near Chapleau.

Fire—Mrs. Jeanine Bolz, 21, of Coppell, in a vain attempt to rescue her two children from their burning house; Mrs. Lenora Scott, 36, of Hamilton, in an apartment blaze.

Miscellaneous—William Soodby of Thornbury, of a self-inflicted shot wound; Harvey Christian Forrest, 47, of London, when a mental patient at the Ontario Hospital hit him over the head with a metal tea pitcher; Dr. John E. Reston of Trenton, when his speedboat crashed into a concrete wall at the Trenton dock.

ONCE in a lifetime... a Queen is crowned

MY family will see it!

Not since 1837 has Britain crowned a Queen as reigning sovereign. It is an event that happens once in a lifetime . . . it is not likely that it will happen again in our time or during the life of our youngest children.

On June the 2nd, with all the tradition of centuries ... with the pomp and ceremony that reach royal perfection only in Great Britain . . . within the hallowed precincts of Westminster Abbey our young and beautiful Queen Elizabeth II will be crowned our sovereign ruler.

And my family will see it all! Yes, from a front seat in our own home, we shall see everything . . . on our wonderful Admiral Television Set. We shall see it all . . . not just from some point along the route . . . but everything that happens . . . the Procession leaving the Palace . . . the glitter of troops and the blare of bands as they pass along historic streets . . . the arrival at the Abbey, heart of the Commonwealth.

And inside the Abbey ... we shall be present at the whole historic ceremony as the Crown is placed upon the head of our Queen ... as the Peers and Nobles, the Prime Ministers and representatives of the People pay homage . . . as the princes and dignitaries of foreign lands honour our Queen.

And we shall watch as the great panoply of splendour of the Royal Procession returns from the Abbey . . . we shall be close to it as privileged guests . . . for it will be clear, and big, and beautiful! . . . something we shall all remember, and something we shall see at its very best on Admiral Television.

Make sure your family sees the Coronation ... and all the other great events and grand entertainment that television brings you all year through. Visit your Admiral dealer now to select the Admiral model you prefer. Begin now to enjoy the regal glamour and fairy-tale enchantment of the Coronation telecasts up to and including the Ceremony itself . . . and all the entertainment of TV from now on.

There is an Admiral just right to style and price for you. Choose the model that suits you best. But hurry . . . everyone will want their new Admiral in time for the Coronation. Act now! See your Admiral dealer today and enquire about low down payment and easy budget terms.

Farmers Stop Bulldozer Crews From Working

COMBER, Ont. (CP)—Anger over delays by the Ontario department of highways in making a settlement for the land used for the new superhighway, about 100 farmers turned up at the place where the highway will intersect with the Rochester town line and stopped two bulldozer crews from working.

Property owners on whose lands the new highway will pass, claim the government has been using delaying tactics and that much of the land for the highway has not been paid for, though agreements with the farmers were reached last fall.

The highways department has been offering $300 an acre for tiled farm land, and $250 an acre for land which is not under-drained. The farmers are not quibbling too much over the price per acre, but in many cases say they can't come to a agreement with the department and buyers because of damages they may suffer when the limited access highway cuts the farms.

In some instances, a farmer finds himself with 50 acres of his farmland on one side of the highway, and his farm buildings on the other.

Three Are Killed In Truck Crash

THORNBURY, Ont. (CP)—A 15-year-old girl and early today the third victim of a dump truck accident which killed two teen-age girls and injures Tuesday night. Two of the nine persons in the truck were hurt.

Reita Sadler of Thornbury, died in hospital several hours after the vehicle went out of control and overturned 3½ miles east of here.

Gary Dillon, 18, a member of a juvenile hockey team here, and his teammate, Richard Harmer, 17, both of Thornbury, were crushed to death.

Dillon, whose father, Cecil Dillon, once played for New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, died under one of the dump wheels and Harmer under the dump box.

Reita's sister, Audrey, 15, suffered a leg injury and shock and a broken arm. She was not in serious condition.

Beverley Skinner, 21, of Kirkland Lake, who police said was the truck driver, was taken to hospital with back injuries. Police said they will question him.

Four Shacks Burn

Riding in the cab with Skinner were Doug Harmer, Dorothy Sadler and Reita Sadler. Four others were shaken up. Bruce Langtry, riding in the dump body with the two who were killed and the two Sadler sisters, was thrown clear and only bruised.

Dorothy Sadler told police the group left Thornbury and drove to Collingwood, 14 miles southeast of here. She said the truck went out of control after Skinner decided something was wrong with a tire and opened the door.

Police said the shoulder of the road was wet following Monday's heavy rain.

The two boys were dead when pulled clear of the truck.

The truck is owned by Walter Playfair of Kirkland Lake. Ontario District community.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Warm, sunny weather will continue in Southern Ontario today. Temperatures are expected to reach the 70s in a southerly flow of warm, dry air.

Cooler and gusty winds accompanied by rain will develop widely scattered showers during the night. It is expected that the cool air will shift in its westward push, in the central regions of Ontario, but will advance rapidly eastward across northern Quebec today.

A disturbance developing in South Dakota is expected to bring cool and rain into Ontario Thursday afternoon. Little change in temperatures is expected Thursday over most of the province.

Polish Pilot Flies Red MIG To Denmark

Political Asylum Asked Immediately on Arrival

ROENNE, Denmark (AP)—Another Polish pilot crashed through the Iron Curtain today to land a Soviet-built MIG-15 jet fighter on this Danish island 100 miles southwest of Copenhagen.

Roenne police, who immediately took the young pilot into custody, said he had asked for political asylum. The plane was surrounded by military guards and police orders to keep reporters and press photographers away.

An uncondirmed report said the plane was of a newer type than the one which flew into Danish territory March 25 by Lieut. Franciszek Jarecki, the first Polish Air Force escapee.

Jarecki's plane was later returned to Poland after a thorough examination by Western air experts. Jarecki was granted asylum and since has gone to the United States.

The latest coup is only a few minutes flying time from Poland.

Story of Escape

The speedy Russian-built fighter was first sighted by observers in the control tower of the airport at Roenne, the island's capital. The pilot apparently was unable to know the field and made his first training ground at nearby Almindingen airport.

The MIG swayed violently after the pilot made a wide circle above and small bushes, then roared over the knotty ground before coming to a halt 300 feet from the nearest group of trees.

One of its wings was hit by a tree branch, but damage was reported only slight.

The young Polish pilot, unhurt, climbed out of the cockpit and greeted the unarmed commander with a smile.

Police said the pilot told them he broke away from a formation of MiG fighters flying over Polish territory.

A Prize Catch

Meanwhile, jet fighters experts from the Danish Air Force flew to Roenne to investigate the MIG-15, generally considered a prize catch by Western military experts.

About three weeks ago the U.S. Government hiked the bounty from $100,000 to the first Communist pilot in Korea who brought his MIG-15 intact to the East or Allied side. No one there has reacted to the offer.

The first MIG-15 was thoroughly studied by Danish and other NATO experts before being handed back to Poland—and only after the Western governments had gained a diplomatic outcry against the delay in the discussions.

Things were further complicated when it was reported that a secret American organization engineered the MiG escape.

British Press Hopeful Of Better Understanding

LONDON (AP) — The British press voiced hope today that the current "slams across the sea" relationship between United States and Britain could be cooled by keeping the record straight.

The encouragement by Prime Minister Churchill that he will cable Washington the text of major British speeches on foreign affairs was greeted with approving editorials.

Anglo-U.S. relations hit a low last week after Churchill and Secretary of State Dulles and Clement Attlee, leader of the Labor party.

McCarthy denounced Attlee as a "traitor" for saying some elements in America oppose peace in Korea. He accused Churchill of "meekly nodding his head" while Attlee made a number of other points against U.S. foreign policy in a House of Commons debate.

The Liberal News Chronicle commented: "Churchill's decision to cable the texts, said:

"It will make it easier to cable a speech than to get it perused by busy Senators and congressmen. Short of a verbatim report, a text is, or soon will be, available may tend to curb the exhilarating though dangerous practice of shooting from the hip."

The Conservative Daily Telegraph said Churchill runs the risk "of being charged with locking the stable door after the horse has escaped, but called his move one which would minimize future misunderstanding.

"The issue of such material on the other side of the Atlantic," the Telegraph said, "may prevent responsible men from falling into errors such as are unavoidable when they come to rely on garbled extracts.

"But it is useless to expect this latest step to stop all misunderstanding. The verbatim text will give the context of a remark, but not the atmosphere, which can subtly alter the impression left by the bare words."

The Pro-Labor Daily Herald which delivered two bristling front page editorial attacks on McCarthy last week, said some good came of the McCarthy-Attlee outburst after all. It added:

"As a result of the furore many Americans who would not normally read a Great British opinions at all are hearing them now."

Churchill Says He Hopes Eisenhower Will Visit U.K.

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill said today he hoped Gen. Eisenhower will visit Britain while he is president of the United States, but not because it is necessary to patch up relations between the two countries.

Churchill told a questioner in the House of Commons that Eisenhower was always welcome there, but said that he did not feel that any difference in Anglo-American relations would "justify the measure of such magnitude at the present time."

He said that if and when Eisenhower came, the visit would stress the great body of agreement between the people of the English-speaking world.

The possibility of a visit by the president was raised by Labor member Woodrow Wyatt, who asked if the prime minister would issue an invitation at an early date.

A meeting would be timely, Wyatt said, "in order that the present differences of approach between Britain and the United States toward the international situation may be reconciled."

Churchill said that if he thought there was a chance the president could detach Egypt from Communism, he would "certainly make the necessary submission to the Queen so that an invitation could be sent from one head of state to another."

Woman Admits Kidnapping Two Children

NEW YORK (AP)—A real-old Gal. Mrs. Lucille Hall, Washington home with her two-year-old daughter, was found today with the woman who police said, admitted kidnapping the two children.

Barbara Jean Mackle, Tulara Calif., was taken into custody after a man she had befriended her became suspicious and telephoned police.

Doctors later examined the baby girl, Diane Bradford, and reported she was unharmed.

Her brother, Clifton, was found in the Central Park zoo here Sunday and was returned safely home by their father, Clifton Bradford Sr., in Atlanta, Ga.

Bradford, who reported the children missing during the week-end, told Washington he met a woman in a restaurant Friday, took her home to meet his family, and left her with the children while he and his wife went out for about 15 minutes. The woman and children were gone when they returned.

SPECIAL POLICE DUTY

BALM BEACH (CP)—Special police duty will be given by a detachment of Georgian Bay resort near Midland when the tourist season, which broke out during the week-end, gets into full swing.

Provincial police commissioners is reported to be considering asking for the appointment of men who holiday in the area and volunteer to help.

Police chief Howard French said he laid 19 charges Saturday and Sunday, most of them against minors. Seven or the charges were for having beer and liquor in an illegal place, four for obtaining liquor for minors, two for impaired driving, one for drunkenness and four for careless driving.

Siamese Twins Born In N.S. Not Too Strong

Joined Face-to-Face From Close to Neck

By DON MacKenzie

Canadian Press Correspondent

INVERNESS, N.S. (CP)—Six-mese twin boys born here Tuesday became "mightily weaker" during the night, doctors said today.

Condition of the 19-year-old mother, meanwhile, was "as good as could be expected." Her husband, a garage mechanic, has told her only that she gave birth to a boy.

Dr. Ronald Ritchie, pediatrician at the Children's Hospital in Halifax, said they were taking a small amount of nourishment—about five per cent glucose in water—through the mouth.

The children, who have separate hearts and lungs, are to go on a formula tonight.

The twins were born to Mrs. Max Wyrwas. The first started to breathe about a minute after birth. The other began breathing four to five minutes later, after artificial respiration had been applied.

Dr. Frank MacLeod, chief surgeon of the Inverness Miners' Memorial Hospital, gave them an excellent chance of survival.

"I can't see any reason why they won't live," he said. "They are perfectly healthy."

Hospital officials said it was too early to discuss a possible operation to separate them.

Perfectly Healthy

The twins are joined face-to-face from close to the neck, and are linked by a bone. "Otherwise," says Dr. MacLeod, "they are perfectly healthy.

"It was a bit of shrik sense and a bit of luck that we decided to go ahead with a caesarean."

Edwin MacLean, husband of one of the attendant nurses, took one look at the only incubator available at the hospital, then rushed to his woodworking shop to make a larger one. He finished the job in 2½ hours.

Mrs. Wyrwas entered the hospital shortly before the twins were born.

Dr. MacLeod said the birth was relatively normal. Dr. C. E. Rilliard, who assisted at the delivery, said the twins were first fed by injection, but later took the normal process and water diet by mouth.

Foaming Argument as Westminster Debates Free Beer for Coronation

LONDON (Reuters)—A great debate stormed over the brass-railed bars of Britain's pubs today on a subject of fascination to the customers: Should the landlords shell out free beer for the Queen's coronation?

The question was asked in the House of Commons Tuesday by Conservative Sir Granville Janner member east-self-professed lover on beer drinking.

Sir Granville Janner then asked if the government would "give consideration to the question of free beer on Coronation Day."

It can be done, he said, pointing ominously toward the Conservative party bench.

Undoubtable way it will be done, he said, by the 570 private members' clubs in the northern counties—at least 15 pints of brew for every man wishing to become free member for the day. Her Majesty

"We brew our ogen brew," he said. "We brew beer for Christmas again and added, "if our clubs in it, why not the vested interests, the breweries?"

"The northern clubs own a controlling interest in the brewery-on-Tyne from which, between 1940 and 1950, they gained £3,000,000 in dividends. They have used some of the profits for social welfare."

Glanville was rapped back by Sir Charles for saying that his "festival, fanatical friends. . . can all go to hell."

But Mr. Bevanman for the brewers' society said the brewers had no plan to provide free beer on the big day.

Egyptians Urged To Prepare For 'Fight to Death'

British Reinforcements Arrive at Canal Base

CAIRO (CP)—A high-ranking British officer said today at an army base in the Suez canal zone that "if trouble is forced upon us we are ready to counter it."

He spoke a few hours after Premier Mohammed Naguib urged Egyptians to prepare for a "life or death" fight to drive British troops from the canal zone.

"We are prepared to defend ourselves and are fully confident of our capacity to do so," Brig. Robin Goldsmith, chief of staff of British troops in Egypt, said at Fayid.

Incidents Decline

He said anti-British incidents in the zone had declined as the result of precautionary measures taken by the British army since Naguib broke off discussions over the future of the base. More reinforcements arrived Tuesday.

A few new incidents were reported Tuesday night. A truckload of British troops was stoned, some of them were injured and received casualties and some cables were cut by saboteurs.

Naguib's call for a continuing struggle to regain control of the zone for Egypt was made by radio.

In a broadcast to the country, the Egyptian premier said "we shall not hesitate to sacrifice what we are fit and ready." Warning that it would not be easy task, Premier Naguib urged Egyptians to train themselves to sustain hunger and privation.

The premier asserted that he and his revolutionary government believe that "Egypt's rights should be taken by force and not given by the enemy."

"God knows," he added, "we continue with the British talks on the evacuation of the British troops, not because we believe in the talks as a means of attaining our rights but to reveal Britain's intransigence to the whole world and to save Egypt the responsibility of the inevitable consequences of British policy."

Talks Break Down

Anglo-Egyptian talks on evacuation of the base and the Sudan and the vital military installations there broke down last week when Britain insisted that 5,000 British technicians remain behind to keep the base in working order after evacuation.

The Egyptians asserted they could do the job with only 500 British technicians, and would only need them for a few months.

In another broadcast, Naguib publicly referred to Prime Minister Churchill's reference in the House of Commons to possible military advisers now with the Egyptian Army.

"Churchill showed his grievance against the German experts working in Egypt because he realized the Egyptian Army to depend on British experts instead. But British experts will not benefit Egypt nor help her against Britain."

NEW YORK (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent sailed aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth today en route to the Coronation.

The Prime minister, looking fit and in jovial spirits, posed for newsreel cameras for several minutes when he boarded the liner following an overnight train trip from Ottawa.

He was accompanied by Mrs. St. Laurent and their daughter, Mrs. Frank Lafferty of Montreal.

The Prime Minister said he was looking forward to the trip and planned to do no work during the voyage. He emphasized the importance of the Coronation for all the Commonwealth, and added:

Will Hold Inquest

BLIND RIVER, Ont. (CP)—An inquest will be held into the death of a United States fisherman who was drowned Monday when a canoe overturned during a storm on Rocky Island lake. Three other American fishermen and their guide swam to shore.

The lake is 27 miles north of this Northern Ontario town. Drowned was Von Arnold, 55, of West Milton, Ohio.

Police said Arnold was wearing a life preserver but drowned when his head submerged during the storm.

The guide, Napoleon Vincent of Blind River, said the others managed to make shore but had to travel several miles across the lake to reach their cars and notify police.

'Ridiculous' Who Would Say That?

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"I know it sounds ridiculous," movie actor John Wayne said the court, "but I and his wife "just couldn't make ends meet" on his income of several hundred thousand dollars a year.

In 1951, for instance, the actor testified Tuesday, his wife's extravagances "got out of my category"—and some of my capital, too."

Wayne in disputing his estranged wife's demand for $9,000 a month alimony pending trial of her suit for separate maintenance from his wife, former actress Esperanza Baur, charged "extreme cruelty."

Wayne, named the No. 1 box-office attraction in a poll of exhibitors last year, testified:

"We were spending too much money, but I did not wish to argue with my wife about it. I was trying to keep my home together at the same time."

Last year when his wife refused to limit her spending, he notified merchants he would not be responsible for her bills.

He has assets of $500,000, but owes $150,000 more than that, plus $150,000 in income tax obligations, leaving his net worth only about $150,000.

Fright Believed Good Medicine In Treating Tubercular People

BY RENNIE TAYLOR

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Fright apparently is good medicine for some tubercular people.

Doctors' cases in which a good scare favorably turned the course of treatment for sanatorium patients were reported to the National Tuberculosis Association today by a group of Seattle physicians.

The frightening episodes were brought on accidentally, but the results —ere so striking that the doctors decided to use it scientifically as an experimental means of treatment.

This strange finding was the result of experiments to determine the significance of adrenal gland size in the role of the disease. The work was done by Dr. Edmund R. Clark, Dr. Donald R. Baum and Dr. Thomas H. Holmes of Firland Sanatorium, Seattle.

The adrenal glands, cap-like formations atop the kidneys, produce adrenalin, a hormone which the body uses in large quantities during periods of anger, fright or other forms of mental stress. During periods of fright this hormone is produced and utilized at relatively low levels.

The Seattle doctors measured the amount of adrenal activity of top tubercular patients. They found that it varied widely according to the individuals' mental state.

People with basically low levels of adrenal activity, they found, appeared to have more serious TB cases than those with high levels. How adrenal functioning went along with discouragement and apathy, the TB victim's general attitude of tenseness, rapid heartbeat, high blood pressure and sweating the palms and restlessness.

One patient, Dr. Clarke said, was being kept under very great effort, and a part of the treatment included giving him a hypodermic needle. He became so angry with the doctor who would provoke him with the needle that his adrenal functioning took a big jump. Anger and fright, the doctors found, are one as fright. The patient now is on the road to recovery.

Another patient with low adrenal activity was being prepared for a minor lung operation. His fellow patients kidded him into believing that the doctors were going to take a whole lung, not just a small part of it. The physicians soon found that his adrenal activity soared. This "lift" helped him through with flying colors, Dr. Clarke said.

16-POUNDER TAKEN FROM SALMON LAKE

The Salmon Lake haunts of the Gerrie, the sheriff and the lonesome pine are proving this season that the feats of the shore trio around Lake Ontario were a myth.

For the second time this season a sixteen-pound grey trout has been hauled from the lake.

The latest beauty was taken by Clinton (Doc) Rutter and Elmer Hess over the holiday week-end. It tipped the scales at 16 pounds, measured 36 inches in length and had a girth of 19 inches.

The anglers battled the big fish some twenty minutes before it was finally landed.

Petty Vandalism At City Schools Causes Concern

Petty vandalism resulting at times to almost wholesale breaking of windows in public school buildings in the city, is rousing concern on the part of school board members.

The breaking of windows has occurred at all public schools in the past, the latest incident being last night when supervisors of a Girl Guide group holding a meeting at Queen Mary School reported that teen age boys were throwing rocks through the building.

School board members were informed and the police were called to investigate with result that a report this morning indicated some of the culprits had been located.

Class breaking is but a part of the petty vandalism that has taken place at the Queen Mary School, according to board officials. Other damage included the demolition of a section of fence built about four years ago and the carving of doors and posts on the playground building.

CARS AND TRUCKS NOT ALLOWED TO CROSS GROUNDS

Drivers of cars and trucks seeking a short cut across the playgrounds at the Prince Charles School grounds is causing concern by public school board members for safety of children at play.

At a previous meeting board members authorized that rocks be placed at the entrance to pedestrian walks so these could not be used by vehicles, but this has resulted in a protest from a resident of the area that the board was interfering with his rights by blocking a thoroughfare. Still later a telephone call was received by the board advising that if the rocks were not moved, the board would be sued.

In the years before Prince Charles school was built, the property was an open field and was criss-crossed with tracks and paths. When the school was opened the area was surrounded with walks provided for the children being used for playground.

The board authorized blocking of the walk entrances with rocks and the matter will take whatever action is necessary to secure the safety of children on board-owned property.

Board Appoints Supervisor Of School Property

Appointment of Dan Wilson, caretaker at King George School, as supervisor of property and maintenance for the public school board at a salary of $250 per month was approved Tuesday night by members of the Belleville Public School Board.

Board members decided the move was necessary to provide for an adequate maintenance program in line with the expansion of the schools' system and further school accommodation planned for the immediate future. The move would also relieve the school superintendent of detail to which he had found it impossible to give personal attention.

General Supervision

Duties of the new supervisor would be to provide general supervision of the physical conditions and of buildings and sites. Details of the supervisor's responsibilities have yet still to be worked out by the board and an additional caretaker has to be hired to replace Mr. Wilson at King George School.

Mr. Wilson has been a member of the Belleville schools custodian staff since 1946. Originally from Scotland, he came to Canada in 1926 and attended Belleville schools briefly. On leaving school he took up the baking trade and in 1939 enlisted in the armed services. On his return to Canada he entered the employ of the Board of Education as an assistant caretaker at the Collegiate and later was placed in charge of caretaking and maintenance at King George School.

School Pupils To be Presented With Medallions

Drawing attention to the forthcoming visit of Queen Elizabeth on June 2, pupils of Belleville public and separate schools will receive special Coronation medallions some time in the very near future.

A special shipment direct from the Royal Canadian Mint at Ottawa, containing approximately 4,000 of the medallions arrived in the city today and L. A. Kells, public schools administrator, said each pupil would receive one.

Approximately the size of a silver dollar, the Coronation commemorative medallion bears Queen Elizabeth's picture in profile on the one side, and on the other side are the words: Elizabeth II, Regina Coronation, and the letter and MCMLIII, signifying the year 1953 in Roman numerals. In the centre of the medallion is the picture of a crown, with the symbol E-II-R, standing for Queen Elizabeth II.

Deer Crashes Into Office At Brighton

TRENTON (Special) —Brighton citizens are doing a thriving early season deer hunting —hunting for the deer that broke the door and front windows of the hydro office and escaped leaving a trail of blood behind.

The animal apparently chased by dogs early Monday, crashed through the back window to the utilities building.

Blood spots on the floor indicated the deer wandered about the office for a while before crashing to freedom. A Dutch broker, standing in a doorway across the street watched the deer peering out through the plate glass in the front of the office. Ross Evans watched it down the roadway through town and out of sight.

Students Visit Station

RCAF Station Trenton was host to approximately 40 students from Woodville High School in the Lindsay district, on Friday morning, May 15th. Four students from Little Briton High School were included in this group.

The group was met under the leadership of the school principal, Mr. Arthur Bell, and Miss J. Lockie and was on its way to visit the city of Kingston. Each year the school takes one day off for just such a visit to all parts of Ontario. As well as being a delightful outing and experience, the trip serves as vocational guidance for the enthusiastic students.

Upon arrival at Station Trenton the visit was divided into two groups under Flight Lieutenant Max Reid and Flying Officer Glen Campbell. Each group then proceeded to do an extensive tour of the station where a full explanation was given to cover most units on the station.

Flight Sergeant Simmons enlightened the group on present day armament in modern day aircraft, while Sergeant Farr explained all about Para-Rescue in the RCAF. The maintenance of all aircraft on strength of Station Trenton was covered by Sergeant Hall and Sgt. Cooper. The film "NATO Wings", depicting the the first graduation of NATO aircrew in Canada was shown by Flying Officer H. Parnell.

T-33 and Vampire jet aircraft were on display and made a memorable impression. Students ended out a delightful tour.

CAMPBELLFORD

Family Homeless Due to Fire

CAMPBELLFORD — Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cunningham and their family are facing destitute as a result of a fire which wrecked a house and ruined their personal belongings on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Cunningham, who resided in a dwelling owned by John Parcels, and located half way up the Maple Street hill in Campbellford, was visiting a neighbor at the top of the hill when she saw smoke from the fire broke out, the children, Barbara, 11, and Bonnie, an infant in arms, being in company of their mother. Mrs. George Parcels, another neighbor, first noticed the smoke and the alarm was sounded at 2.50 p.m. Firemen held the blaze under control half an hour later, but not before irreparable damage had been caused to the small frame dwelling and its contents, which included children's and infant's clothes and such necessities as furniture.

Mr. Cunningham, at work at the time of the fire, arrived at the scene to learn the sad truth that he and his family were homeless. Cunningham had resided in the place less than a month before the misfortune struck.

The Salvation Army stated that they will pick up clothing household effects etc. so urgently be needed by the family.

New Method To Read Meters Will be Probed

CAMPBELLFORD — At the regular meeting of the Public Utilities Commission on Thursday evening, a motion was carried, sponsored by Commissioner A. C. Newman, asking that the manager investigate the photostatic camera method of reading meters in order that a higher degree of accuracy may be obtained. The motion also included the authorization for the purchase of a stop-watch, which could be used as a sure check on meters in many instances in which customers had complained of alleged unaccountable irregularities in their power bills from month to month.

Manager P. C. Denyes, in the process of the discussion had revealed that many complaints on this score had been received at the Public Utilities Office, the number of phone calls from customers complaining over the variance of the amount of their bills at times, seemingly coming in cycles. That during the certain periods there were many complaints, other times, few.

Commissioner Newman asked the manager if there was any possibility of a man permanently employed by the commission at the present time, assisting in servicing the meters. Mr. Denyes felt that this was not possible, outlining his reasons.

New Firm Locating

Commissioner R. J. A. McGregor had interviewed Fred G. Robertson in Ottawa recently, and among other matters, had discussed the priority concerning water rights in the Moira vicinity. Commissioner McGregor further stated that during his interview in Ottawa, he had been assured that a new firm would be located in Campbellford, the nature of which he was not at liberty to disclose at the time of the meeting. Realizing that the new industry would require power, and also knowing that at present the town plant was being taxed near capacity to supply present needs, he was personally concerned about the power supply situation.

Manager P. C. Denyes reported that the fire truck had been moved to its new home in the adjacent building at the fire hall and that the gas intake over the present period by the Commission was considerably improved over a similar period a year ago, quoting figures to verify same. The report was deemed satisfactory.

It was moved by Commissioner A. C. Newman and seconded by Commissioner R. J. A. McGregor and carried, that as part payment of the annual authorized grant, $5,000 be turned over to the town council as agreed.

There will be a special meeting of the Commission board with E. G. Garnett of Hydro regarding matters of mutual concern to both. Chairman A. J. Meyers presided over the meeting, all members being present.

OUR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

On the week-end the Honorable Lester B. Pearson, Canada's minister for external affairs, was in Toronto. He was addressing the Ontario Liberal Association. He said that Canada was remaining aloof from the current squabble between Senator McCarthy and Mr. Clement Attlee.

Mr. Pearson put it in the most circumspect words, referring to a row between "friends and neighbors." Mr. Pearson would have sounded better if he had been talking to the Quebec Liberal Association. Where he said "friends", he might well have said "our Mother Country," and people in this province would have had some idea what he meant.

Of course Mr. Pearson has become Canada's minister for external affairs in days when he is led to believe that we are a great nation in our own right. He is not so young, however, that he does not recall when Canada was proud to refer to the United Kingdom as the Mother Country. We would not expect him to say so if he were talking in Quebec province on election year.

In fact, even our best imperial patriot, the Honorable George Drew, was talking to a Quebec audience a few days ago and was reassuring the habitant that there was no other issue in the forthcoming election quite so important as provincial rights. He knows better than to say such a thing elsewhere.

Come August, when Mr. Drew finds out that the people of Quebec are still listening to "Uncle Louie", he will wish that he had thought of a better punch line. Meantime, Canadians by and large will tolerate the carefully chosen words of the politicians. Most of us know that our country has come a long way and that the sworn strings of a Mother Country and there are few who are ashamed of it.

Of course we are not all seeking political office this year. As for Mr. Pearson's soft words, it is enough to recognise his astounding presumption that it could make the slightest difference whether or not we remained aloof from an argument between Westminster and Washington.

We have yet to hear even the saner heads in either place say that, after all, we know Canada is on our side. Actually, neither place could care less.

But we have heard some plain speaking on both sides. We have heard the mainmost men on either side make it clear that some name calling is not going to interfere with the harmonious relations between our "friends and neighbors" in the great task which both have accepted in trying to make this world an easier place in which to live. It is to this sort of plain speaking which will do a great deal to make it understood in Washington that our Mother Country is still in the major league and in which she has always been a contender. And this will be made quite clear without any assists or otherwise from Mr. Pearson.

UNTIMELY TRAGEDY

The Trenton community has sustained a sudden shock in the untimely death of Dr. J. H. Renton on the week-end.

It is trite to say that he will be sorely missed, but the evidence of this is in the spontaneous reaction of his fellow citizens in suggesting that one day of the forthcoming Trenton centennial week will be dedicated to his memory.

It seems that in every community there is a dynamic personality who can always be depended upon to act as a spark plug for every local project or enterprise in which all will be glad to join. But all the spark plugs in the world and the industry and initiative which are required to put things over. Such a man in the Trenton community was Dr. J. H. Renton.

Of course the centennial show will go on and Dr. Renton's colleagues will make it the event of the century. In doing so they will find themselves saying "it's too bad Doc couldn't be here to see this."

Heartfelt condolences are tendered to Mrs. Renton and the family from all of Trenton and many good friends in Belleville in the sudden loss of a husband and father in tragic circumstances.

STENOGRAPHER'S DREAM

Even the most hard working stenographer can now remove the traces of her labors. If she wants to, that is. According to the N.Y. Journal of Commerce, a new product called "Steno-Creme" is on the market which removes ink, carbon and ribbon smudge, glue, lipstick, grease, nicotine stains and general office dirt. The only drawback from the steno's point of view is that the cream does not require water, thus reducing the number of trips to the washroom.

SLOW DOWN

Time was that I could race the stairs,
Two at a step the risers taking.
"No more," the doctor now declares,
A warning finger at me shaking.
"Calmly slowly now and watch your step.
"It's rush like that you lack the pep."

What is it surgeons cut away
The long condemns the flesh to weaving?
Why must the spirit idle stay
And leave the body soundly sleeping?

Why should the flesh become a cell
In which the mind is forced to dwell?

Spirit and flesh that once combined
Have by the Surgeon's knife been parted.
The body that should serve the mind
Wearies as soon as work is started.
"Let's go," the eager spirit cries.
"Slow down, slow down," the flesh replies.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

25 YEARS AGO

May 20, 1933.

Only one building permit has been issued at the city engineer's office so far this month and it was for a small house on Purdy street. May is generally considered one of the best months for the granting of building permits.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Reeves and children, Barbara and Jack, Toronto, are spending a few days with the former's mother, Mrs. Emma Reeves, Charlotte street.

Miss Amy Wallbridge, Miss Rita Allen and Miss M. Waters left yesterday on a motor car trip to Ottawa. Miss Waters will be filled a two days' engagement at the Capitol theatre, Ottawa, that city.

Mr. M. W. Mott, principal of Queen Alexandra public school here, has resigned after 31 years of distinguished and efficient service. He will retire at the end of the term in June. During his years in the teaching profession Mr. Mott has been absent from his desk only five days owing to illness. His retirement is being accepted by the Board of Education and also by many children.

50 YEARS AGO

May 22, 1903.

At a meeting of the Board of Education the following were present: Messrs. Harry W. Ackerman, Charles Hamm, Arthur Jones, John Cook, Fred S. Deacon, Geo. T. Wetzler, Fred B. Smith, Arthur McGie, T. Marshall, W. Harvey, Phil. Harrison, Alex. Marshall, Dr. O'Brien and Mrs. J. A. McFee.

It was reported that 40 cadet caps have been purchased for members of the High School Cadet Corps. The tender of the Downey Coal Company for the supply of 400 tons of pocahontas coal at $10.31 per ton was accepted. Public School Inspector H. J. Clarke reported the attendance at the city schools as follows: Queen Victoria School 476; Queen Mary School 469; Queen Alexandra School 410; Grier Street School 181. Mr. Clarke stated that the teachers in the public schools here rank high in ability and teaching methods.

Mrs. George Dafoe of West Huntingdon is visiting her sister, Mrs. William Ketcheson, Lewis Street.

Mrs. Blendell and Miss Marjorie Corlett will leave shortly to spend some time in the Old Country.

Mr. Allan Schryver of this city has successfully passed the final examinations at the College of Physicians in Toronto. We extend congratulations. He will take a position in Toronto for a time.

Of Fate's Little Ironies

(London Times)

Though at one time popular, especially in the Orient, the idea of making the punishment fit the crime has been more or less abandoned in legislative circles.

Even school masters, who used to have a preparatory word in this context, tend nowadays to stick to conventional penalties for fear lest more imaginative forms of retribution may incur criticism on the official inspectorate.

On the other hand Fate (or whatever you like to call it) continues sporadically to assert a kind of rough logic or symmetry between our actions and their consequence; as when, recently, a footbridge collapsed and precipitated into a torrent a deputation of Spanish farmers who had been to a protest meeting about bad irrigation.

Nobody was hurt, and although the incident was so obviously alarming that it involved in it, we should never have heard anything about it if the press reporting had not been concerned with irrigation. This circumstance reminded the writer into the variant of the man-bites-dog category; because of what preceded it, the farmers' duckling became recognizable as one of the very tend to call "Fate's little ironies."

It is certainly perverse, and quite possibly ill-advised to talk, as we invariably do on these occasions, about the irony of Fate.

Irony, says the dictionary, is "a contradictory outcome of events as if in mockery of the promise and fitness of things." There is very seldom anything contradictory about Fate's endeavors to make (as it were) the punishment fit the crime; and although when they are successful, we may protest we discern an element of mockery in the result, we have no right to assume that Fate does not take the whole thing dead seriously. In her world-wide, remorseless distribution of bouquets and bananas she cannot achieve artistry every time; but that is not to say that she would not like to, if only the sheer pleasure of work allowed it.

It is probably unsound to credit Fate with a sense of humor. We apply that, it is too much to expect Fate to keep up with all the changes in taste and outlook which condition it. In Eastern Europe, for instance, Fate is still going through the old routine of overnight demolition. Just as there is a difference, however, between protesting about the lack of irrigation and falling immediately afterwards over, or into, a ditch, so in the face of it, a similar connection between being a statesman and a New Democracies periodically are, a hero one day and a hyena the next. But Fate nowadays evidently no longer seem to detect Fate's little ironies."

They have indeed a certain symmetry, but they are mechanical rather than whimsical, and, although we never quite know in what they are destined, it is certainly not to the irony of Fate.

Letters to The Editor

Exception Taken To News Report

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

On page one of your edition, dated Saturday, May 16, you carried a dispatch from Ottawa over the by-line of Mr. Peter Buckley of The Canadian Press, which dealt with an airplane accident at Deseronto, Quebec, involving several families in this community.

In the fourth paragraph of his release, Mr. Buckley departed from what we believe to be ethical reporting to indulge in some heartless, if not ghoulish, descriptive at the scene of the accident.

That this item, which of itself, brought great sorrow and bereavement to families of our community, as well as in the city of Belleville, should further circulation through the columns of your paper was both a shock and a disappointment to your many readers in the city of Belleville. We did not expect our mutual sorrow to be heightened and prolonged by such needless, purposeless excursion into the realm of gruesome.

We felt justified in saying that no segment of Canadian society has been more helpful in the maintenance of our Four Freedoms than the press, and whose service is dedicated to that cause.

The reporting exhibited by Mr. Canadian Press reporter Mr. Buckley, would seem to indicate that some germ of editorial discretion is necessary if that freedom, known as "freedom of the press" is to contain the ethical position so generously attributed to it by the citizens of this country.

In conclusion, I trust that you will appreciate that I have expressed the consummate feelings of all members of this Auxiliary and not merely the opinions of a few disheartened readers.

Yours truly,

Mrs. E. J. Johnston,
President, R.C.A.F. Women's Auxiliary,
Belleville, Ontario.

The Ontario Intelligencer agrees with Mrs. Johnston that the offending paragraph should have been omitted in the report of the tragedy. Harrowing details of an accident are always necessary and it is regrettable that they were not eliminated in this instance.

This newspaper deeply regrets the shocking suffering caused by the added anguish to several families of the air disaster community in the form of a great personal sorrow.

International Wheat Agreement

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

The news that Britain has withdrawn from the IWA (International Wheat Agreement) doesn't win many smiles on the Canadian Prairies. I am glad, however, to see in subsequent editorial references to this decision, that the rest of the wheat-deficient countries have agreed to continue under the agreement, involving 393,194,440 bushels, annually.

It would be nice, of course, if some arrangement could be arrived at before next July (by which time the governments must approve the signatures of their representatives), as between the authorities at Canberra, Ottawa, London, and Delhi, a problem of caring for Britain's yearly import of 175,000,000 bushels, if such can be done without increasing the load of the IWA?

Many people have had the impression that there would, in fact, be no real IWA if our valiant "2 to 1" failed to sign? The later reports from Britain, the latter's determination to turn this wheat agreement into a 'big' speculative traders would seem, to a layman like myself, to be much less than a billion bushels a year. This is the period of the pre-war slump (1935-39) when it averaged in the neighborhood of 530 million bushels annually, and when the allways been the world's greatest market for breadgrains, and that during the past year non-European countries bought more wheat than did those of Europe. The following figures are from the Corn Trade News: Liverpool—all-in millions of bushels (with non-European exports in brackets): 1945-49, 603 (338); 1949-50, 411 (241); 1950-51, 484 (444); 1951-52, 487 (485).

Pickerel Season

(North Bay Nugget)

Pickerel is distributed over wide areas of Ontario from the St. Lawrence River and the Great Lakes to some far northern streams and lakes. One of the best pickerel lakes in the province, according to officials of the Ontario Lands and Forests Department, is Lake Nipissing. And the department is right, of course.

Nowhere, perhaps, is the fishing keener than at North Bay. Here, a dock, only a few blocks from City Hall, is a favorite opening day and for weeks afterwards with fishermen of all ages and varieties. They all catch fish, too.

Usually, there isn't much trick to it, a bamboo pole, short line, single hook and live minnows will take plenty. So will fly-fishing equipment or bait rods using plugs, spoons, spinners or live bait.

Personal Health Talks

CHILDREN MORE VULNERABLE TO C — G

On the bowling green I devote myself earnestly to needling a character who just won't bleed. I once advised him not to make me mad or he averred that I was mad — that I was born mad. This same cowrily missed characteristic narrowly missed shedding some

Dr. Brady blood one day when I had put him in his place. "Tonight after dinner," he said, "when you settle down in your easy chair and light your pipe, and ponder your day's work you may realize what a stinker you have been today."

My crony seems invulnerable. It really doesn't irk me, but I feel so sorry for his wife. What in the world does the poor girl do when she is in the mood for an argument? He's a big guy, you know.

A child is overcome by carbon monoxide more quickly than an adult because the child has a relatively faster breathing and heart rate. A young infant is more vunerable to a 5% mixture of C-O in the air than an older child. A small animal, such as a mouse, or a bird, such as a canary, is still more sensitive than an infant. Therefore mine owner's crew canary canaries when C-O is suspected. A canary topples from its perch dead before a child or an adult gets headache, tightness across the forehead, and the flushing of face, throbbing in temples or dizziness.

The air of a room where one or more persons are smoking always contains some carbon monoxide. Therefore, if the room is not thoroughly ventilated, the air will accrue.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON YOUR OWN TERMS

One of the surest ways to master life is on your own terms. After all, it's your life with which you have to deal. If you habitually accept terms of others, or compromise when you should stand firm, you are sure to one day yourself in blame if you get a bad deal.

We need continual tests to measure out our powers and possibilities. We usually get plenty of them. There are very few days without problems. The work of the world is carried on mostly by those who early discover their full possibilities. Concealed within many of us is the genius, the great leadership. Henry Ford once remarked, "I'm looking for a lot of men with an infinite capacity for not knowing what can't be done."

Accepting challenges and dealing with them on your own terms are sure to set you apart. The rise of a man or woman from comparative obscurity is always exciting and inspiring. They do it on our own terms.

their own terms. That is what Abraham Lincoln did. People who know their own minds are well able to make up their minds. Hesitation and indecision are often costly. Napoleon stated that he was "the master of my fate, the Captain of my own destiny." Almost he was ill in a hospital. He was told that amputation of a leg was necessary. He refused, the wine—and the leg was saved!

People who get physical, as well as spiritual, enjoyment out of the accomplishment of difficult tests of continuity and power. Mastery. They make their own terms with life and fortune. Instead of allowing difficulties or failure to depress them, they are inspired along the way, that is a part of the game, which they willingly accept.

To live a triumphant life, we have to dedicate ourselves to something substantial and factual. If we do this, we can well carry out our determination to meet all emergencies on our own terms.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE POWER OF TRUST

Everybody likes to be trusted. Mention has been made before in this column of the unsophisticated elderly woman who, finding herself in the possession of a big diamond ring one evening and feeling that she would be robbed, handed it to a passing stranger on a burly chap who gave every evidence of being honest, and asked him to keep it for her until she returned. Of course he did. The old girl was a wise psychologist. She knew that people like to be trusted—even thieves.

A woman who had spent much of her life in Kenya recently told of hearing on this same point. She had arranged for a certain trustworthy Egyptian to bring her little daughter home from school each evening in a taxi. One evening when she was out and the child's arrival was delayed, she was written over the hall center. There she confronted the worst-looking lot of cut-throat ruffians she had ever seen. She inquired about the little girl (who by the way had come home a few minutes later), everybody was voluble with information. Practically everyone in the city had at some time or other driven the little girl home and pride was written over the face of each man that this American mother should trust her little daughter with him—which of course was anything but true.

The outstanding fact of the Christian religion is that God trusts us, and in so doing trusts the universe.

Work of Handicraft Experts To be Exhibited at School

In seventeen days, the exhibition gates of Air Marshal Breadner School auditorium will swing open to reveal to the public the talents of more than 140 handicraft experts from in and around Middleton Park.

The official opening of the RCAF Trenton Auxiliary Arts and Crafts exhibition and bake sale by Group Captain D. H. Arnott, commanding officer, No. 6 Repair Depot, is scheduled to take place before the doors of Breadner School at 1 p.m. on Saturday June 6 and will mark the culmination of one year's work by a committee organized for cultural self-betterment. Since its inception in the fall of 1952, the Arts and Crafts Branch of the auxiliary has brought strangers together, and proven to onlookers welding the young community together as a whole, than most organization in established cities and towns can do, after years of labor and hard work. Although, the exhibition is restricted to the display of handicrafts, it is not the only phase of the Arts and Crafts program. Swimming, physical training, driving, French, English, drama, square dancing and bridge lessons were all included on the agenda.

A parade, in which some 70 RCAF Trenton Girl Guides and Boy Scouts will participate, headed by the station's sound truck, providing music and latest Arts and Crafts bulletins, will wend its way through the park to the speaker's platform prior to the official opening.

Ten out-of-volunteers have been enlisted as judges for the affair. Trenton's chief judges: Mrs. Wm. William Bain, knitted goods, Rev. R. C. MacLean and Miss A. Johnson, leathercraft.

At Large Again After 17 Years

Generally miscalled "17-year-locust," a periodical cicada makes its appearance on a twig, clinging to its shell while gaining strength. This is the first appearance of the locusts since May, 1936. After one month in the air, the insects will go underground until May, 1970, in eastern Canada, the main of the species is a nuisance because of its shrill "singing." — Central Press Canadian.

Judges Appointed

Belleville residents who have agreed to act as judges for the one-day affair include: Mrs. J. M. Parrott, rug hooking; Mrs. W. Gilroy and Mrs. W. A. Watson, shellcraft; Mrs. Thomas Lawe, needlepoint; Mrs. W. E. Stock, crocheting, and Mrs. H. S. Robbins, sketching.

Miss Beth Bryce, teacher of smocking, felt-craft and millinery in Trenton schools will judge the smocking entries.

Air Commodore W. W. Brown, Chief Staff Officer Training Command headquarters, will present thirteen awards to successful entrants at 3.30 p.m. in the auditorium. Immediately after, place in the school in the month long horse show exhibit is opened to the public at 1 p.m.

More than 180 articles will be shown by pupils. In the non-competitive field, teachers will exhibit their work which includes a prize winning smocked dress by Mrs. A. A. Behan, of 11 St. Hubert Street. The first prize dress was judged the best of 1300 entries in a Toronto contest and won for its maker the sum of $150.00.

More than 400 wives from in and around Middleton Park will bake for the exhibition. The sale of baked goods will include cakes, cakes, cookies, bread, rolls, muffins, jam, tarts and pies.

Bake sale convenors are: Mrs. G. M. West, Mrs. E. E. Ralph, Mrs. J. M. Larache, Mrs. R. Pelton, Mrs. P. Holvick, Mrs. V. C. Bockland, Mrs. I. F. Campbell, Mrs. E. L. Geddes, Mrs. R. J. Report of General Inspection Made at Belleville Collegiate

Editor's Note; The Bay of Quinte District High School Board in April carried out the report of the general inspection made at the BCI and VS by five secondary school inspectors. The board, believing there was much of interest in the general public, submitted it to the Ontario Intelligencer for publication in detail. The editor, in agreement with the board, here-with presents the first portion of the report. The second portion will be published on Thursday.

Five years ago, one of the first general inspections of a secondary school was conducted in the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School. In the succeeding years, the general and vocational departments of the school have been inspected separately.

This year, once again, the inspection is designed to study the organization and operation of the entire school. Such a survey entails much detailed work in every room inspection of the work of the teachers. It is necessary, also, the way in which the school is meeting the educational needs in the large geographical area it serves.

As part of the inspection, therefore, meetings have been held with the board and the advisory vocational committee, with teachers individually, in department groups as well as a group with the presidents of the pupil associations; with leaders of organizations in the community interested in adult education; and with those people concerned with the administration of the school with the maintenance of effective liaison between elementary and the secondary schools.

Visits have been paid to the school during regular school hours, during the lunch period to examine the facilities offered to the many pupils who remain at school for the entire day, and during the evening when the school is used for adult instruction and the varied activities of community organizations. Visits have been also paid to the city library, and discussions have been held with local merchants and business executives.

And finally the observations and recommendations outlined in the following report were discussed on the evening of February 17, at a full meeting of the board and the advisory vocational committee.

Problem of Accommodation

For a number of years the school has been faced with a rising enrolment; this has amounted to an increase of 32 per cent in the past five years. The increase has been higher in the vocational institutions, which, in many cases, require highly specialized accommodation and equipment.

This enrolment trend is illustrated in the following table:

Collegiate Vocational Total
1947-48	487	356	873
1952-53	836	571	1207
Increase (Per cent)
	30	48	38

A result of the increase in enrolment has been the progressive utilization of areas not originally designed for classroom purposes, such as the following:

1. The partitioning of the library to provide an additional classroom. 2. The use of the remaining library area as full-time classroom. 3. The use of the cafeteria as two classrooms; 4. The use of the auditorium-gymnasium as a classroom. 5. The partitioning of the front of the auditorium stage by the curtains, to provide two temporary classrooms. 6. The use of the old manual training room as a classroom. 7. The utilization of a basement room, and the use of the boiler room and with only a narrow stair as an exit, as a classroom. 8. The use of a stage dressing room as a part-time counselling room.

In addition, the growing need for shop accommodation has necessitated the use of basement areas for a temporary benchwork shop and for night school shops in welding and bricklaying. As noted in previous reports, no instruction is provided in electrical or in sheet-metal work, despite an indicated demand from the specialized electrical industries of the city.

A survey based on the present enrolment in the elementary schools indicates that increased secondary enrolment will not only be maintained but will be accelerated markedly in the years 1955, 1957, and 1960.

Aware of these conditions, the board has already pledged the establishment of an additional secondary school. Until the completion of this school, it may be necessary to take further drastic measures to provide accommodation in the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School.

Relationship Between Elementary and Secondary Schools

The newly-constituted Bay of Quinte High School District, which embraces the City of Belleville and the townships of Thurlow, Tyendinaga and Ameliasburg, is the source of nearly one-thousand secondary school pupils. Over two hundred come from other high school districts, counties, Indian reservations and the Royal Canadian Air Force establishments in all.

It is not surprising to learn, therefore, that the students of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School come from a total of fifty-four secondary schools. While this makes more difficult the maintenance of worthwhile articulation between the elementary and secondary schools, much valuable work is accomplished.

The achievements of the curriculum, guidance committee and subject committees are worthy of particular notice. Broadened courses have been introduced in grades 7 and 8, and those for grades 9 and 10 are in process of development.

The services of the guidance department of the secondary school are available to the elementary schools, and grade 8 pupils are provided with an opportunity to visit the secondary school in April and June. During the June visit, the pupils are organized in a one-night class group.

During our inspection, a special meeting was convened to discuss inter-school relationships. The topics under review were as follows:

1. The liaison developed between schools through curriculum study, and grade 8 promotion and induction program. 2. Means by which the principals may more fully inform elementary schools regarding the continued progress of their pupils in the secondary schools. 3. The problem of maintaining valuable interschool relationships. 4. The maintenance of effective liaison between the elementary and the secondary schools.

Visits have been paid to the school during regular school hours, during the lunch period to examine the facilities offered to the many pupils who remain at school for the entire day, and during the evening when the school is used for adult instruction and the varied activities of community organizations. Visits have been also paid to the city library, and discussions have been held with local merchants and business executives.

public. Of particular interest were comments from business and industrial executives which indicated a need for training in certain vocational skills.

Reference was made to the value of classes sponsored by individual firms, and it was suggested that a survey investigation would be an excellent project for the local chapter of the Industrial Education Council. Recommendations arising from this or similar studies could be referred to the advisory vocational committee for consideration.

The organizations represented at the meeting were as follows: Recreational Association of Belleville; the Y.M.C.A.; Corby Boys' Club; St. Andrew's University Club; Belleville Theatre Guild; Canadian Order of Foresters; Sales and Ad Club; Belleville Film Council; South Hastings Film Council; Arts and Crafts Club; Engineering Institute of Canada; Foremen's Club; Rotary; Kiwanis; Y's Men's Club; Belleville Girls' Work Board; Collegiate Home Economics Club; Canadian Canadian Club; South Hastings Educational Association.

General Organization

The school is staffed by the principal, 46 full-time teachers, and one part-time teacher. The overall ratio of pupils to teachers including the principal, is 25.5:1. This is a satisfactory ratio for such a composite school of moderate size offering the general, business, technical, agricultural and home economics courses.

It is doubtful if it could be met, however, that the total time for administration and supervision, including time allotted to department heads for industrial contact and planning work and the time allotted to Miss Merry for the care of the library, is less than the equivalent of two full days.

The time allotment for counselling, now supplemented by the department, part of this time is devoted to the valuable work carried on in the elementary schools.

The spare periods per teacher average about one a week. When it is considered that the principal has full responsibilities in supervising the long lunch period (from five to ten teachers on duty during any one time), and that they share in a heavy load of extra-curricular activities, it may be concluded that the staff is giving extremely good service to the school. That this service is being given loyally and willingly is evidenced by the fine professional spirit which exists and which stems, to no small part, from the democratic spirit fostered by the principal.

The principal has displayed great skill in organizing the school with limited facilities for accommodation, he has developed a program which offers a broad range of courses, and which provides a number of options within the courses.

The timetable has been constructed so that the various different courses may be combined for certain options. This permits a maximum of flexibility in accommodation and teaching time, but results in a timetable which has certain disadvantages which will be mentioned in the section following.

A few classes, particularly in physics and chemistry, are much too large. One class of approximately 75 pupils was observed in the laboratory.

General Course

In the general course, pupils take the compulsory subjects of English, social studies and physical education, and options in either French, science (or agricultural science) and mathematics. Pupils are permitted the choice of one option from the following: Latin, art, commercial, agricultural, commercial work, shopwork, and home economics.

This program is termed rigid because it provides only one free option, and this option only for pupils who do not elect Latin. In this way it is possible for pupils of better-than-average ability to take an additional option.

At the present time pupils are taking the general course in grade 9 if they intend to continue with this subject. The advisability of this restriction was discussed with the principal and the teacher of the subject.

Agricultural Course

The vocational agricultural course is offered in grades 9 and 10, which have enrolments of 28 and 20 respectively. All but two of the boys are from rural areas.

As part of the activities in agriculture, pupils enter into seed judging and plowing competitions, and they visit the Royal Winter Fair, reforestation areas, creameries, and other places and events related to their specialized studies. Visits are paid to farms by agricultural representatives, and the teachers inspect the home projects of the pupils.

Industrial Course

As noted previously, the work in the industrial course is hampered by lack of adequate shop accommodation, and a temporary benchwork shop has been set up in the basement.

The semester plan is in operation in grades 9 and 10. This is in accordance with previous recommendations of the Inspectors. Boys in grade 9 are given industrial education in the course as well as general, and appear to be stimulating genuine interest.

The demand for graduates of the industrial course is greater than the supply. In looking for a solution to this problem, industry and the school should be able to coordinate their efforts with the facilities of the local chapter of the Ontario Industrial Education Council.

Commercial Course

An interesting innovation this year is the option in accountancy and for pupils who do not want shorthand; this may attract a greater number of boys to the course.

At a meeting with the teachers of the commercial department, it was suggested that the time allotted to typing practice be reduced and that additional work be given in specialized bookkeeping and business machines.

Since the accommodation in the school is limited, it was suggested that the distinction between the commercial office and the typing room be abolished and provide a room large enough for full-time use in senior office practice, machine work and typewriting. It was also suggested that pupils be given the option of several consecutive periods for typewriting and office practice, so that the practical work of the commercial office can be carried on to better advantage.

Home Economics Course

The school offers a vocational course in home economics and also an option for the pupils of the general course. The fields which are explored in the department are as follows: child study and development; clothing and textiles; family and personal economics; foods; and dietetics; management of the home; housing; and human relations. An interesting feature of the school's equipment is the provision of instruction in the use of the industrial shops.

A number of the graduates of the home economics course have undertaken nursing as a career.

Canadians Will Celebrate With Queen at Crowning

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When Elizabeth goes to be crowned Queen, a Canadian will celebrate with her.

There will be dancing in the streets 'midst the explosion of fireworks. Troops will parade. Beacons will light the night sky from coast to coast. There will be solemn church services, too, as Canadians offer prayers for a long and happy reign for their young Queen.

With municipal and provincial plans for the celebration all but complete, a Canadian Press survey today showed that each locality will express its joy in its own individual fashion. For instance, High River, Alberta cattle town 40 miles south of Calgary, will feature a chuckwagon race and a horse show.

Edmonton, the largest continuous celebration may go to Medicine Hat. That southern Alberta city plans a 13-hour parade of historical events, an open air church service, sports, band concerts, a variety show, street dancing and fireworks.

Appropriately, Ottawa's television station CBOT opens television service on Coron. Day. It will televise the impressive official ceremonies on Parliament Hill.

Simultaneously Coronation night, Boy Scouts across Canada will light beacon fires. From Newfoundland to Vancouver Island their flames will penetrate every sking skies.

Across the land, these are the highlights of Coronation Day plans:

Newfoundland: A giant fireworks display at St. John's. There and in other communities, the program includes parades, a speeches and church services.

Nova Scotia: A parade at Halifax by members of the army, navy and air force and the RCMP with an RCAF flypast. All schools will have special programs.

New Brunswick: Special church services in Fredericton, Sahel John and other centres. The armed services will hold church parades. Afternoon programs will include sports and parades, while all night there will be street dancing, fireworks, bands, band concerts, fireworks and bonfires.

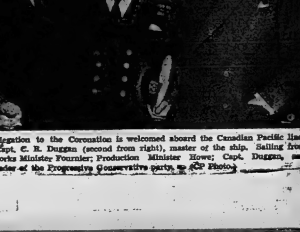
Prince Edward Island: Charlottetown plans a big celebration for the afternoon, a parade of service men and school children to the exhibition grounds. Night entertainment will include a band concert, horse racing and fireworks.

Quebec: Church services, a military parade and fireworks at Montreal. Religious observances at Quebec City, as well as armed service parades.

Ontario: Between 5,000 and 6,000 members of the armed forces, active and reserve, will march through Ottawa streets and form a guard of honor for the National Evening for inspection by Governor-General Massey. The evening will include a fly-past and a 42-gun salute. Highlight of Ottawa's evening celebration will include a wide parade of floats on the Rideau canal. Elsewhere in Ontario, religious processions and artillery salutes.

Manitoba: Winnipeg's main celebration is expected to be a province-wide municipal half-hour ceremony about noon in front of the Legislative Building, preceded by a parade of service personnel through the centre of the city.

Saskatchewan: Regina's program includes a service and fireworks display including Scottish, and Ukrainian folk dancing and Indian dress's pageant. Saskatoon will have a march-past, cenotaph service, Memorial Park Coronation ball.



Alberta: Two thousand armed forces members will march in Edmonton, which also will have gunnery salutes, a long pageant, a church service and fireworks. In Calgary a fireworks display will follow a military parade and various inter-denominational church services.

Work Already Started on St. Lawrence

While top-level political figures confer on U.S. participation in construction of the St. Lawrence seaway project, engineers and workmen go about their work as though agreement had already been reached and the project already scheduled for construction. Camps for working gangs are being built, and excavation is in full satisfaction, new town sites being surveyed. Mr., Mrs. Fred M. Simmons Happily Wed for 50 Years

In the midst of family members who could be home for the occasion, Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Simmons, 98 North Front street, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last Friday.

Three of their four daughters and their families, with their families, were at home for the occasion.

Younger relatives and friends, then trucker, and now "retired", Mr. Simmons looked back over a varied career that saw him go railroading with the old Bay of Quinte railway between Kingston and Tweed, the day after he was married in Tweed. As trucker with the now closed out rail line he was aboard the first mail train to run on the Bannockburn extension of the line.

"My wages as a trainman were 90 cents a day," he said. "And a day meant the round trip between Kingston and Tweed, without benefit of any overtime, regardless of the time the trip got in."

"But even 90 cents a day wasn't so bad," interjected his bride of 50 years. "You could buy tea for 10 cents a pound at that time."

Wool Farming

When the railway closed down Mr. Simmons went farming and tilled the soil near Wellington for eight years before moving with his family to Belleville in 1926. Then he became associated with a local trucking firm and became ill in health has been doing "odd jobs" in recent years.

Mr. Simmons met his future wife, Miss Sarah Lloyd, in Arden, when she was working at the woollen mills in Tweed, and they were married by the Methodist minister and drove a horse-and-buggy to Kingston, 30 miles away, for their honeymoon.

But the honeymoon was short-lived for after the wedding Mr. Simmons commenced work on the Bannockburn line. Then Mr. Simmons is 70, while his wife is one year his junior. They are members of Bridge Street United Church.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Simmons are Mrs. Max (Ida) Lever, Toronto; Dean (Bob) Cory of Belleville; Mrs. Joseph (Marguerite) Treacy of Elmira, N.Y. and Mrs. Joseph (Rhoda) Lachance of Moose Jaw, and Harold Simmons, Club Lake, Hamilton.

There are six grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Girl Guides and Brownies

This is a busy time in the Guide world, as all the Brownies and Guides are working like bees to finish off their various projects, and complete work necessary for obtaining certain badges. Guide Company No. 1—Captain Settle

The Guides of this company held server forget their wonderful visit to Madoc. They were invited there for a hike and wiener roast by the Guide Company of Madoc, and right from the start "fun" was the whole evening's was a howling success. The 1st. Company charters and the Madoc Company joined and had a most enjoyable journey out in spite of double rain on the charter. They hiked along the railway tracks for one and one-half miles, an exciting enough jaunt at any time, but doubly so along the tracks to an unknown destination. There is a train only once a week along that track, so there was no danger.

Wiener Roast

After arrival at Johnson's cottage, a huge fire was built and lots and many, many wieners were roasted thereon. Since by this time the Guides had enormous appetites the wieners must have tasted extra good. These were followed by toasted marshmallows, after which games were played, and a grand sing-song around the camp fire was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The Madoc Guides entertained their visitors with a most amusing little concert, and the 1st. Guides found unknown talent among their ranks. Still singing, and yodelling the happy bunch were returned safely to Belleville, by a co-operative bus driver, who had helped the Guides in many ways by little acts of kindness that were not necessarily in the contract.

Guides Enrolled

During the month, the following Guides were enrolled: Geraldine Town, Diane Smith, Joy Smith, Leona Nolan, and the following badges awarded: Lorna Donaldson, Cook's Badge. Lorna now has her Little House Emblem. Homemaker badges: badge needs six badges and the Little House Emblem is a replica of the Welsh Doll's House given to Princess Elizabeth by the Welsh women. Home Hostmaker's Badge; Beverley Samples, Laundress.

Company 4. Captain Steward of the Salvation Army

The special event of the month past was a variety program which the Guides, with the assistance of the Brownies and the Cubs of the Salvation Army pack, presented in the Citadel on Dundas St. There was a capacity audience, which enjoyed the play: "A Brownie's Dream" by the Brownies and "The Story of Sir Arrows," presented by the Cubs, and "First Aid and Then," a comedy presented by the Guides, followed by "The Story of the Union Jack," an educational play by the Guides. There were also many well done musical numbers.

Company 7. Capt. Samuels

The Guides of this company are busy completing their sewing for the Exhibition Badge. They are making flannelette pyjamas and nighties, and stuffed washable oilcloth toys for the crippled children's ward in the Belleville hospital and are hoping to have these ready by June 2nd.

Badges Awarded

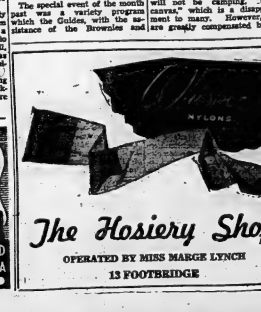
Cook's Badges were awarded to: Carol Puzzeo, Louise Fisher, Frances Mullins.

Laundress' Badges to: Brenda Briscoe, Louise Fisher.

A Library called "Religion and Life Emblem" which is served a great deal of work and study was won by Eleanor Clarke and will be worn on the left arm on the right hand side of the uniform.

4th. Brownie Pack. Brown Owl Mrs. Irvine.

On April 20th., four Tweenies were enrolled: Linda MacDonald, Linda Hardinge, Kathleen and Catherine Irvine.



The following girls have passed their Golden Bar test: Diane Hilton, Jamie Gill, Marilyn Reid and Elaine Cassidy.

Brownie Pack No. 4. St. Michael's. Brown Owl Mulcahy

Brown Owl Townson visited the pack and passed some of the Golden Hand tests. Jean Beaman has won her Golden Hand and her Toymakers' Badge.

Camp News

There is a growing excitement among the Brownies as camp draws nearer, and although the Hastings Exhibition camp is not scheduled to open until August 9th, plans are already laid, and many Brownies and Brownie workers are on the job. Owing to a new ruling from Guide Headquarters, by the Guides will not be allowed to borrow tents from the Exhibition camp as they will not be camping, "under canvas," which is a disappointment to many. However, they are greatly compensated by the

Montreal Girl Will be One Of Maids of Honor

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Lady Mary Hamilton, 19-year-old granddaughter of Montreal's Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Cook, will be one of the six maids of honor carrying the Queen's train at the Coronation.

On Coronation morning, Lady Mary and her parents, the Earl and Countess of Haddington, will leave for the abbey at about 6:45 a.m. If they wait too long the roads will be closed. Gates have been built on the streets that form the Coronation route and they will be closed by the police about breakfast time.

Seated in a grey-and-green lounge, overlooking the walled-in garden of the Chelsea town house her family bought last year, Lady Mary described what it was like to have an important role in the Coronation. She said she will be a "bundle of nerves" throughout the ceremony.

Parents With Peers

On what she regards as perhaps the most important day of her life, Lady Mary will have her parents sit with the peers, and fact that the camp will be held at Quin-McLaren, on Lake Simcoe—a grand spot.

Girl Guides Cookies

Cookie Week also looms near, this month, to be exact, when Lady Mary, and her fellow Guide ladies in Guide blue, and Brownies brown, will call at every house in the district to buy Girl Guide cookies. Half of the proceeds goes to Lake Simcoe camp or pack and the remaining half is the local share, in order to help further the work of Guiding in Canada and to help the camp expenses. Each year the money earned by packs and camps are handed used to help complete their Coronation projects.

Lady Mary will be in the forefront of attention with the other maids of honor.

The other maids of honor are girls of approximately her own age whom she has known mostly since childhood. They are: Lady Anne Coke, Lady Jane Vane-Tempest-Stewart, Lady Rosemary Spencer-Churchill, Lady Moira Heathcote-Drummond-Willoughby and Lady Moyra Hamilton.

On opening Queen's invitation to take part in the abbey ceremony, Lady Mary was just as pleased and excited as her 11-year-old brother, Lord Binning.

So far, except for one or two snippets of the gown she will wear in the abbey, Coronation preparations have not taken up much of her time. Rehearsals for the abbey ceremony don't start till late May. Right now Lady Mary insists her life in London is thoroughly lazy.

Taking It Easy

She has quiet dinners with close friends, spends most week-ends at country house parties, and goes to occasional balls. At 18, she says she is "too old" to be included in the social round of the season debutante season.

Most of her time is spent studying music—her outstanding hobby and interest. She can often be found playing in a music room of the Chelsea house, last home of Mrs. John S. Sargent, whose father was the painter's studio, and the grey, early-French panelled dining room and lofty settee, and the 19th-century Aubusson carpet.

Lady Mary's coming-out will be held in Scotland. An old Scottish family, the Haddingtons have a place in Scottish "society," an annual event when the Queen is resident at Edinburgh's Holyrood House.

This year the "season" is mid-June, and Lady Mary is booked for a week of balls and parties that will be the biggest Scotland has organized for many years.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Second Letter Reveals Somebody

About three weeks ago there appeared in this column a letter from a woman who described her own life for dealing with an unfaithful husband.

What she had done was to set up an intensive program of "keeping cool" — to allow bowling alleys, to restaurants, to visit friends, to take walks - anything she could think of that would take her out of the house and her mind off her unhappiness.

Apparently, the plan was successful in that it produced such an effect on her husband that he began to stay home and devote himself to his wife and his children - even dispensing with the baby-sitter she had been hiring when she went out, and taking over this chore himself. His wife attributed his change of heart to the fact that he is now afraid of her reaction as to whether or not she herself was seeing somebody else. She said he has never had the slightest inkling that she knows what he was doing behind her back.

Having that to keep him guessing is the surest way to guarantee his remaining faithful himself.

I have now received a second letter from this woman, written after she saw her first one, and very cautiously on it, by someone. In it, she gives further details about the program she followed, and makes a highly significant statement which, as I see it, renders the whole effort she made virtually useless.

She reveals now that her plan grew out of suggestions made to her by a man whose profession brings him in contact every day with situations similar to hers. Meeting him by sheer accident, she poured out her story in response to a comment he made when his experienced eye noted signs of trouble in her face. She set down for me the suggestions he made, and I would like to pass them on because so much of what he says seems to me sound and sensible. This I shall do within the next day or so.

At the moment, I would like to discuss the statement to which I take serious exception. What she said was:

No Hope of Convincing

"Since there is no marriage without trust, my husband must prove to me that I can trust him again. He now knows that I will never again forgive him, and that I can and will know what to do without him."

Now I cannot possibly see what incentive it would give any husband to try and prove his wife that she "can trust him again," when he is given to understand definitely that she "will never again forgive him." For an unforgiving attitude on the part of any one person toward another in itself destroys the possibility of understanding ever developing between them. It also suggests that no matter how sincerely her husband might try to "prove" that he was a changed man, there would be no hope of convincing her.

Moreover, what about his trust in her? Is it her idea that, even though she deliberately planted in his mind doubts of her own fidelity and intends them to stay, he should retain the same faith in her he had before? Has she considered the fact that it might be equally reasonable for him to expect her to prove she can be trusted? It seems to me she weakens her own position seriously by the inconsistent and attitude she takes in holding the pose of the betrayed wife while at the same time keeping her husband unsure of her loyalty to him.

Frankly, I do not believe this wife cares whether or not she and her husband ever regain anything of their old relationship, or develop a new and better one. Everything she says makes me believe that she has become wholly alienated to him, and that she is remaining with him largely for the sake of the children and perhaps, in small measure, because she wishes to maintain the appearance of a united home. If she allows her present attitude to harden into finality, it will stand as an impenetrable barrier between the two of them, against which any efforts of his would fall back dead.

I admire this woman for her initiative and persistence in carrying through her program, but I believe that part of it which deliberately undermines her husband's faith in her, and her determination never to forgive. As things stand now, he may be wrong, but so, also, is she. And two wrongs never made a right.

Supper for Bridge Club

Asparagus and Egg Special
Jellied Salad
Open-Face Rhubarb Pie
Tea

Milk for Children

Here's the story: Gertrude wrote to me saying that her bridge club was so big she needed some real economy hints from me. They have plenty of their own eggs and other farm produce so this menu is designed to use the lovely fresh things many of you have in your gardens.

Mary J.'s Spring Soup

(to serve four generously)

Slice very thin carrots to make 1 cup, radishes sliced thin, 2 finely cut stalks celery including leaves, 2 small green onions included tops cut as thin as possible, ½ cup fresh or frozen peas (or fresh tender-cooked asparagus). The latter vegetables add 1 ½ cups boiling water and boil about 10 minutes. Mary J. says part of the goodness of this spring soup is the crispness of the undercooked carrots and celery.) Mix together 1 tablespoon flour, ½ teaspoon each salt and sugar and a generous shake of pepper. Measure 2 cups milk, and stir a little of the cold milk into the flour to a paste. Add the milk to the cooked vegetables and liquor, then stir in the flour paste until a little thickened. This is delicious to serve now but is improved a little by two things. Cook a little while longer in double boiler and when served sprinkle little finely chopped parsley or grated old cheese over each bowl.

Asparagus And Egg Special

This is fine asparagus and hard-cooked eggs on toast or patties or timbales with a rich sauce of some kind. But to make it as nourishing and attractive as possible I serve it on buttered whole wheat toast. On this I place about 6 to 8 barely tender stalks of hot asparagus, and pour over it a white sauce made with the asparagus liquor and milk which contains the chopped hard-cooked egg whites. I push the hard-cooked egg yolks through the sieve directly over the sauce. If you try to handle the sieved yolks with a fork they will pack. So work neatly.

Jellied Vegetable Salad

Soak 1 ¼ tablespoons gelatin in ¼ cup cold water 5 minutes then add to it 1 tablespoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup boiling water and stir until dissolved. Add ¼ cup mild vinegar, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce 1 tablespoon lemon juice and grated onion, ½ to 1 cup very finely shredded cabbage, cup finely chopped celery, 1 chopped canned pimiento or 1 tablespoon green pepper or ¼ cup sliced stuffed olives, or cooked green peas. The vegetables will sink, so this must be stirred just as it begins to congeal, or vegetables may be added first when it begins to congeal. Pour into 1 large mould or 6 individual moulds to chill until firm. Unmould on bed of lettuce or cress.

Open-Face Rhubarb Pie

Line a deep 9-inch pie plate with rich puff. Fill with this mixture: 1 1-3 cups sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 6 teaspoons quick-cooking tapioca and flour, 2 tablespoons grated orange rind, 4 cups unpeeled washed rhubarb cut into ½-inch pieces, 1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine. Spread this evenly in the unbaked shell. If desired cover with lattiend strips of pastry. Sprinkle top with a little sugar and if desired, freshly grated nutmeg. Bake at 425 deg. F.ahr. for 40 minutes.

Fashion Flashes

The effort to return natural Norwegian blue fox is favor is meeting with success. A clipped, full-length coat of the fur, and jackets and coat trim and small furs have all registered. Natural blue fox is used for a pretty cape to be worn with a bow-tied fastening. With the tie removed, caps snugly under the arms for a shoulder shrug bolero. A good accessory color for wear with black, navy, beige or gray is lemon peel yellow. It is the color chosen for a wicker handbag, a soft basket shape with handles of twisted and stitched black velvet, and a black velvet fastening trimmed with a spray of deeper yellow flowers.

GOOD MANNERS

The Procedure For The Christening

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I would like to have my children baptized at home. Please tell me the correct procedure.

2. The minister and his wife are friends of ours, but not intimate friends. Should I invite them? If so, verbally?

3. What is the fee given to the minister, and when is it given?

4. It is correct, isn't it, to serve tea afterward? What menu? Anything special?

1. First, of course, consult with your minister, as to date, hour, place, and any special arrangements he wishes as to procedure, vestments, and so forth. Usually it is the living room which is arranged for the ceremony: with space planned for the guests; perhaps a vase or two filled with light-colored flowers; and, most important of course, a small, not-too-low table prepared for the font. On this table which is placed at some focal point in the room is a bowl, usually and preferably of silver, though it may be of crystal, from which, at least at least ten or eleven inches in diameter; I suggest you circle the base of the bowl with some delicate, white, baby-like flowers, baby's breath, for example, or bouvardia, lilies-of-the-valley, or white violets. You and your husband receive the guests, and when they have all arrived, the minister enters the room first, the godmother or godmothers next, each with her godchild, the other godparents following. The guests stand aside to let them reach the ceremony-place, and the ceremony begins.

2. Yes, of course invite the minister and his wife to the tea after the christening. Invite them verbally or by telephone.

3. There is no required fee for the minister. But generally the father hands the minister (as he is leaving) an envelope containing an amount appropriate to his circumstances. For a modest occasion, ten dollars more, of course, for a more elaborate occasion.

4. Yes tea is usually served after an afternoon christening. And even though most simply planned, it can be an occasion of charm and grace and memories to be treasured always. The usual tea-menu is served first; small, delicate sandwiches, with simple fillings, perhaps the majority bread-and-butter sandwiches, the bread of various kinds; tea and or coffee. Then the two very important traditional features: (1) the christening cake, and (2) the cold drink for the toasts. The christening cake is a white cake, with white icing; often decorated with garlands of small white sugar flowers, and or with the initials or names or the christening-cake. The beverage for the toasts may be a delicate fruit punch or whatever beverage is preferred. As soon as the guests have had sheir tea, the host serves the beverage, and the godfather proposes the first toast to the health and happiness and future welfare and well-being of his godchild.

State Coach Dream to See And Nightmare to Ride In

By SONYA YOUNG

LONDON (Reuters)—The golden state coach which will carry Queen Elizabeth to her Coronation June 2 is a dream to look at—and a nightmare to ride in.

Only Kings and Queens of Britain are allowed to use it, but to many this has been an ordeal rather than a privilege.

The main discomfort is that the four-ton monster, 182 years old, is inclined to sway and roll like a ship in a storm as it is pulled through the streets by eight horses. Even the Queen's bows to the crowds may be enough to set it in uncontrollable motion.

Queen Victoria refused to use the state coach more than three times in the last 30 years of her reign. King George VI, after one ordeal in it, said: "It was the most uncomfortable ride of my life."

But to the spectators watching the Queen pass by on her Coronation Day, the sight of the coach will be enough to make them gasp, especially if the sun is shining and the gold glitters.

For, if ever there was a carriage straight out of a fairy tale this is it. From the golden palm trees flanking its doors and corners to the four fearsome sea-gods at the front and rear of the under-carriage, the coach is a magnificent and imaginative creation.

Built by Dane

It was built by Laurence Anderson Holme, a Danish coach builder who lived in London, to the order of the neurotic King George III who thought it would please the people at his coronation. But he never went to Westminster Abbey in it, for the coach took two years to complete and was delivered the day after he had been crowned.

The King paid the bill of £7,360. He died five years later. This is equivalent to $21,344.54 at current exchange rates.

Delighted by his gorgeous toy, he drove out in it almost as soon as it was delivered to him and it was damaged right away by crowds who surged forward and by their curiosity broke a handle and a pane of glass.

The leading Italian artist of the day, Giovanni Cipriani, painted the panels on the coach. They symbolize industry, justice, and the arts and sciences.

The coach is so heavy that it can only be drawn at walking pace.

Wheels Modernized

During the last year the bronze trimmed coach with its copies or those of an ancient triumphal chariot, have been dressed up with a plastic solution and fitted with rubber.

A microphone has been fitted inside the coach so that the Queen will be able to give orders to her postillions if she feels that the gaudy old vehicle is going too fast or too slow for comfort.

The coach will be drawn by eight horses known as the Windsor greys from the royal stables.

They are 18 hands (six feet at the shoulder) high and full of stamina, a blend of daintiness and strength.

Eight months past they have been rigorously trained to face anything that might happen at the Coronation without blinking an eye.

Queen Mary-Prince Charles H-S Assoc. Elects Officers

A brisk and interesting annual meeting took place on Thursday in the Prince Charles School auditorium, when the Queen Mary-Prince Charles Home and School Association brought a well-rounded season to a successful close. Mr. W. Jackson, president, opened the meeting and welcomed those present.

Reports by the various convenors were read and received with enthusiasm. Mrs. R. Pugh, membership convenor reported a paid-up membership of 380 with 17 members attaining perfect attendance. Mr. Ray Pusic reported a varied and interesting season of programs, Miss Tower urged members to make more use of publications and pamphlets which were available at all meetings. Mrs. MacDonald reported for the social committee and thanked all those who had helped to make the get-togethers after meetings enjoyable.

The treasurer's report was read by Mr. Powell and showed that the association is at present slightly on the red side of the ledger. Mr. Jackson, Mr. Jackson hastened to explain that this condition is only a temporary one, as

After the meeting closed the committee for the month served refreshments.

The June meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Percy Gray, Sr., and will have a bearing on "The Royal Family."

school safety women; a donation for sports sweaters for the pupils of Queen Mary School; donation towards new amplifying equipment for Prince Charles School—this will be used in the new addition to the school—Christmas party candy; Kindergarten toys; New Mothers' tea; skate sale; supervision of children during skating periods at the arena; and help on the tag-day for the blind. Mr. Jackson voiced his appreciation for the friendly atmosphere which always prevails at meetings and thanked teachers and parents for their co-operation.

The banner awards were presented by Mrs. Pugh to Miss Horten's class, junior, and Miss Wilson's class, senior, for Queen Mary School, and to Miss Robertson's class, junior, and Miss Wil-Lloyd's class, senior for Prince Charles School.

Mrs. Pugh urged as many members as possible to attend the pot-luck supper and leadership training course, sponsored by the Central committee which is to be held in Prince Charles School on May 25. The special speaker for the occasion will be Mrs. Sherk of Toronto, who will have much helpful information for Home-School members whether executives or not.

The new slate of officers for the coming year was presented by Mr. C. A. S. Smith on behalf of the nominating committee and these officers were accepted as nominated. Mrs. Dan Stewart, a charter member of the association welcomed the new executive and conducted the installation service. Mr. Willis Jackson will be the president for a second term and the other officers are as follows: first vice president, Mr. W. A. Irwinizer, second vice president, Mrs. H. Regensburg; recording secretary, Mrs. Chappell; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Nelson; treasurer, Mr. Grayson Calwill. Elected executive members, Mrs. H. Rosen, Mrs. J. Rosevear, Mr. W. Mills, Mr. F. Douglas, Mr. Jack O'Neill.

Mr. C. A. S. Smith tendered a vote of thanks to the out-going executive and a welcome to the new officers.

The principals of the two schools, Mr. Frederick and Mr. Bateman, each spoke of their pleasure at the enthusiasm of the association which, many times last year filled the auditorium to capacity.

At the close of the business portion of the meeting, Miss Norma Arkles and Mrs. A. Macdonald sang two enjoyable numbers, "The Waltz of the Flowers" and "I Passed by Your Window." They were accompanied at the piano by Miss Marion Nichol.

Refreshments were served and enjoyed.

Women's Institute

MARMORA W.I.

The May meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Frank Grant with the newly elected president, Mrs. M. Kourt in the chair and a good attendance of members.

Mrs. Percy Gordon assumed her duties as the new secretary-treasurer and her presentation of the financial statement showed funds to be in good condition.

A letter of thanks was read from the Artificial Ice Committee thanking the branch for their donation. This District Annual which it being held in Ivanhoe on May 28, was discussed and members attending as delegates will be Mesdames M. Kourt; P. Gordon; E. Brady; and H. Sabine, with Mrs. L. H. Green as alternate. Others wishing to attend are asked to let the president know at an early date in order that transportation may be arranged.

Booklets on the "Extension Services for the Homemaker" were passed out. After a perusal of the courses, the branch decided to apply for the afternoon course on "Something to Wear," with "Cooking Shortcuts" as the second choice.

Good Motto

The motto for the month was mentioned as being, "Begin Well and End Better."

The president extended thanks to the members for their good turnout. It was decided to send a fruit basket to a sick member and also that members, individually, send her a card of wishes for a speedy recovery.

Mrs. L. R. Green gave a comprehensive report of the provincial conference which she attended in Guelph, with Mrs. P. Gordon the previous week. She reminded that 90 per cent of the delegates in attendance were newcomers which it was felt augured well for the welfare of Women's Institute, which has 1500 branches in Ontario. It was the fifth conference and about 1000 were in attendance.

Mrs. T. Hannah gave a humorous reading, "Ma's Bank Acount."

Wherever big things are going on there you'll find the engineer

Wherever you go in Canada today, you see the work of the professional engineer. A river's course is changed and its rushing power harnessed for man's needs ... an oil pipeline scales a mighty mountain range ... a highway is punched through the rocky wilderness ... the skylines of cities are altered in a few short months ... and behind each mighty accomplishment stands the engineer.

Behind our many new industries, unknown a decade ago, as well as the unprecedented development of our natural resources—stands the engineer. His is the vision and the orderly thinking that is contributing so much to Canada's phenomenal expansion.

WE OF CANADIAN GENERAL ELECTRIC never forget that ours is essentially an engineering organization. We know that our progress depends on the constant recruitment of young engineers and are proud of the contribution we are making to their training.

Engineering graduates join this Company each year

Each year, since its earliest days, engineering graduates have joined this Company to continue their training in special courses—nearly twelve hundred have already gained invaluable experience on the Company's well-known "Test" Course.

The purpose of the Course is primarily to ensure a constant supply of trained talent for this Company. A high proportion of the executives of this organization got their start on the "Test" Course.

The Course over the years has also contributed a constant stream of highly-trained graduates to fill the ranks of Canadian industry. In fact, it is a source of pride that not a few of them are to be found today holding important positions in many widely diversified engineering fields.

Everybody benefits from the engineers' work

Canadian General Electric currently employs some eight hundred engineers—that's one out of every eighteen employees—and is continually adding to their number. These men—whether they work as development, design, production, application, sales or service engineers, in the electrical, mechanical or chemical fields—are in the final analysis working for you.

They develop, design and manufacture the complex electrical equipment that generates power, transmits it across great distances, controls it and then puts it to work for the common good. They are constantly improving and simplifying existing products to increase their efficiency and lower their cost. They develop brand-new products to meet brand-new needs. In co-operation with our customers' engineers they design and install equipment to meet specialized needs—to raise productivity and to lower costs.

The engineers' part in Canada's rising prosperity

It is an important part of their work to find new methods of manufacture, and to develop new equipment and products that do more, last longer and cost less to operate. It is by employing outstanding engineers—the key men in Canada's progress—that we are able to play a worthy part in our country's industrial growth, and in the developments that are raising the living standards of all of us.

Fall Wheat, Rye Wintered Well Says Report

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's fall wheat and rye generally came through the winter in good condition, and the outlook for yield ranges from good to excellent.

The department of agriculture said today an average of 91 per cent of these crops died over the winter, with a 15-per-cent loss in Carleton and Renfrew counties and 10 to 15-per-cent loss in Haldimand, Lincoln, Grenville and Lanark.

Hay, clover and alfalfa wintered well, except in Carleton and Renfrew counties, where the loss was almost 30 per cent.

Most farmers had sufficient feed to carry livestock through to pasture.

Bird Unknown To Science Found In New Zealand

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

INVERCARGILL, N.Z. (CP)—A bird unknown to science came out of the forest in New Zealand's fiordland and announced its existence to a visiting scientist.

The bird, a species of wren with very feeble wings which relies mainly on its legs, had never been seen before. It was discovered by Thane Riney, an American biologist attached to the wild life division of the New Zealand department of internal affairs.

He was leading an expedition to study the little-known fauna of Fiordland, the wild, rugged and uninhabited region in the extreme south-west of New Zealand.

Friendly Type

"Actually the bird discovered me," he said. "I was standing on a rock when the bird, a friendly little thing, walked out of the scrub. It came right up and looked at me."

The bird's wingspread is extremely short and members of the expedition found that it could hardly fly at all. It has very powerful legs and when trying to fly makes a spring of about three feet into the air. But it does not stay in the air long and often cannot manage flights of 40 or 50 feet.

Fiordland has yielded some surprising finds in recent years. Not long ago an exploring party discovered thriving colonies of the notornis, a flightless bird about the size of a turkey, which had been thought to be extinct for half a century.

The same party had found the new bird also found living specimens of the Alpine rifleman, a small bird which had not been seen for nearly 50 years. It was last spotted in 1905 by Lord Hanfurly, who sent a specimen to the British Museum.

Ornithologists suspected this bird might be living in remote unlabited areas, but for all practical purposes it has been considered extinct.

May Find Moa

These finds of unknown or "extinct" species in Fiordland lead scientists to think that living specimens of the moa may yet be discovered in this almost unexplored area. If so it would be one of the most startling discoveries in ornithology. Many species of moas roamed New Zealand in prehistoric times, ranging from huge birds somewhat resembling an ostrich, but larger and with far heavier legs, down to smaller species only three or four feet high.

The bones of these moas are frequently found in caves and swamps but they are generally believed to have died out shortly after the coming of the Maoris to New Zealand more than six centuries ago. There are, however, fables among the Maoris of moa hunting in remote areas up in comparatively recent times and some authorities place considerable faith in these reports. They think that in some wild and rugged corner of Fiordland not penetrated by man because of the sheer mountains and thick forest, last survivors of the species may still be living.

MARMORA

Youth Loses Left Hand At Wrist by Saw

MARMORA — Glenn Presnick, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Presnick, of Marmora, suffered a painful accident on Saturday afternoon which later cost him his left hand. With his father's saw, he had been sawing wood at the residence of a relative, William Burns.

About 3 p.m. his left hand got caught in the saw, being badly mangled and almost severed. He received treatment at the office of Dr. H. G. Parkin and was then conveyed to Belleville General Hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate at the wrist.

Eisenhower Defends Defence Cuts, Urges Unchanged Taxes In First Report to Nation

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON(AP)—President Eisenhower said Tuesday night his administration, far from skimping on the air force, plans to put 60 cents of every United States defence dollar into offensive and defensive air power for the navy and air force.

He set the stage for bitter legislative battles by asking Congress to retain the excess profits tax and to postpone cuts in other levies. He asked Congress to keep high revenues to keep "our nation secure and our dollar sound . . . in an age of peril."

In a Congress anxious to trim the tax burden, this brought a mixed reaction. Some leaders said the outcome appears in doubt, but that Eisenhower might get what he asked for after a tough fight.

In his first direct report to the country since taking office Jan. 20, Eisenhower described what he called a "middle way" military program. Evidently taking note of criticism in Congress and elsewhere of plans to cut the air force budget by $5,000,000,000, he said in his country-wide radio broadcast:

". . . Investments in air power represent and will continue to represent the heaviest single outlay of our government . . ."

There is no sign that Russia has changed her plans for destruction of freedom around the world, the president said. Government revenues must be maintained at present high levels.

He spoke against a drive in the House of Representatives to cut personal income taxes 10 per cent starting July 1. Instead, the 10 per cent reduction should be allowed to take effect on schedule next Jan. 1.

He called for a six-month extension of the excess profits tax on corporations, now scheduled to die in six weeks. He asked Congress to postpone indefinitely cuts scheduled next March 31 in regular corporation income taxes and excise (sales) taxes on scores of items.

He said he will submit a completely revised tax program next January.

The president offered to forego one small scheduled tax increase. That is the social security tax increase from 1½ to 2 per cent due to take effect Jan. 1. It is paid by both employees and employers on the first $3,600 of a worker's annual wage or salary.

The program he outlined would provide $1,000,000,000 more, compared with present law. For the fiscal year starting July 1, but would still leave an estimated federal deficit of about $5,500,000,000.

Opposition centred in the powerful ways and means committee, the group that starts all tax bills through Congress. All 15 Republicans on the committee, in a private caucus, already have lined up against an extension of the excess profits tax.

Many Democrats remained critical of the decision to cut air force goals from the 143 wings—set for mid - 1955 under the Democratic Truman administration—to 120.

Typical of Republican comment was the statement by chairman of the Senate armed services committee:

"On the basis of the facts as I know them, under this program we will be building as rapidly as we can a more adequate and more effective air force than was originally planned by the last administration."

In apparent reply to air force advocates, the president said it would be foolish and dangerous "to be hypnotized by magic numbers." He said one military man would argue loudly for a given number of aircraft as an "absolute minimum" while another might say the size of a different kind were "imperative."

Eisenhower said the government must equally avoid "a needlessly high rate of federal spending in the name of federal economy" or "any penny - wise, pound-foolish policy that could, through lack of needed strength, cripple the cause of freedom everywhere."

"This middle way may lack drama and sensation, but it has sense and strength — lasting strength.

"It may no scream with shrill crisis and emergency. But it speaks with conviction and realism."

Federal Govt. Grants $774,000 For 3 Hospitals

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal health department announced today that more than $774,000 in meet the cost of enlarging hospitals in Toronto, Orillia and Brockville.

In addition, the department said $65,300 has been earmarked to help meet the cost of nurses' residences for hospitals in Toronto and St. Catharines.

The federal grant toward the cost of conversion to provide space for 41 more patients at the Ontario hospital, Toronto, totals $174,000.

The grant to the Ontario hospital, Orillia, is $330,000 for construction of a dormitory building and isolation building while $270,000 goes to the Ontario hospital, Brockville, for an extensive renovation and expansion program.

STEPMOTHER KILLED

LOVINGTON, N. M. (AP)—A 14-year-old boy was held today in the slaying of his stepmother and her three-year-old daughter. Mrs. Elsie Royal and her daughter, Beverly, were shot down with a rifle 146 feet from the front door of their farm home. Sheriff Charles Trimble quoted the boy as saying he shot the pair because "she was always trying to scream him down my throat."

Only Suffering From Frustration As Taxi Dancer

MANILA (AP)—Two government physicians said Tuesday a woman who complained that an invisible curly-haired monster and a "tall man with a big moustache" were biting her was only suffering from frustration because she no longer enjoys the hectic life of a taxi-dancer.

Manila mayor Arsenio Lacson, after viewing one of the "attacks", said that he had seen teeth marks mysteriously appear on the body of Clarita Villanueva, 18.

Two experts from the national psychic hospital, Dr. Jame Zaguirre and Dr. Casata Cadacsa-par, examined the girl at city jail.

They said she was suffering from "hysterical fugue," a nervous condition. The "attack marks," they said, were only changes in skin coloring caused by the nervous fits.

South Koreans Casual About Court Martial

LONDON (CP) — Brig. John Rockingham, who recruited, trained and led Canada's first fighting force in Korea, today described some of the problems encountered in that war.

Rockingham, now attending British Imperial Defence College, told how a South Korean battalion commander was summarily executed when his troops gave way under pressure. An American officer, somewhat shocked, asked the South Korean general who ordered the execution to come along to an American court martial and "see how we do these things."

Later the general advised the American he was holding a court martial of his own. The American asked how the accused was reacting.

"He's not reacting at all," said the general. "We shot him the first day, but the court martial is still going on."

Rockingham told the story at a luncheon of Canadian newspaper and advertising men.

On prospects for peace in Korea, Rockingham said he takes a rather pessimistic view of the possibilities.

CIVIC HOSPITAL

SUDBURY (CP)—City council decided Tuesday night to declare Coronation Day, June 2, as a civic holiday here. Mayor Dan Jessop was certain council would approve his motion and had the holiday proclamation typed out beforehand.

Says Economic Outlook Not So Favorable

OTTAWA (CP)—There may be trouble ahead for Canadian business, the agriculture department warned today.

Generally, the economy is still strong, the department said in its economic review for May, but there are three developments that may cause trouble, particularly the second half of 1953.

These are:

1. Buyer's resistance—"For the first time since the outbreak of the Korean war, consumer resistance is causing business more concern than are the supply factors."

2. The peace offensive—"Recent and unexpected developments in the international situation and their likely effect on the economy are raising further problems."

3. Imports—Competition from imported goods is expected to be stronger in some industries.

Meanwhile, figures of statistics reported today there still are a lot of goods on manufacturers' shelves.

Manufacturers' inventories at the end of February totalled $3,909,-000,000, up from $3,887,900,000 at the end of January and a jump of more than $180,000,000 from $3,727,-100,000 at the end of February, 1952.

Boy Took Mother's Warning Too Literally

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A stranger handed out at least two $100 bills in London Monday with no strings attached.

One $100 bill went to William Glanfield, 26, and another to a young boy. A second child missed out on a third bill by refusing to accept it from the strange man. He had been warned by his parents to be wary of strangers.

The boy said: "Mom who would not tell her name, telephoned police and said 'now I wish I had not warned him to be so wary of strangers.'"

The stranger's identity is a mystery.

One Killed, Three Injured in Crash Of Sea Plane

TECUMSEH, Ont. (CP)—One man was killed and three others suffered minor injuries Tuesday night when a privately-owned, two engine sea plane crashed into nearby Lake St. Clair.

Trapped in the Grumman Widgeon float plane when it sank about a half hour after making an unsuccessful practice landing was Lenis Hansen, 31, of Detroit. Injured were Clifford Trevillian, 29, and Ken McConnochie, both of Detroit, and Mel Searway, 36, of Rochester, Rich.

The crash occurred about a mile off shore and about five miles from Detroit, where the plane took off.

The survivors said they struggled to release Hansen until minutes before the craft sank. They freed him from his safety belt but were unable to untangle his legs when were caught in wreckage. They said they believed he was dead before they were forced to abandon him.

Supports Seaway

CANTON, O. (AP) — Attorney General Herbert Brownell of the U.S. Tuesday night urged support of the proposed St. Lawrence seaway "as a means of bettering the economic life of the nation and also strengthening our nation's defences."

In an address prepared for a Republican fund-raising dinner, he said the seaway and power project has unanimous support of President Eisenhower's cabinet, and added:

"The cost, even in the present day, would be small compared to the great benefit which would accrue to the United States as well as to Canada."

Dentists Advocate Brushing Teeth After Each Meal

TORONTO (CP)—Parents should teach their children to brush their teeth after every meal, Dr. M. G. Boyes of Toronto said Tuesday.

Because of the increase of sugar consumption in Canada "children's teeth are in the direct line of attack for dental decay," he told delegates to the annual meeting of the Ontario Dental Association.

"It would be ideal, of course, if all children were denied candy and not given a taste of ice-cream until they were at least four years of age," he said. "But not even the most idealistic dentist can expect this."

An ordinary rubber ball tied to the end of a baby's thumb was suggested by a Toronto doctor as a thumb-sucking cure.

Dr. Marjorie Jackson told the association that she has cured thumb sucking by slitting an ordinary rubber ball down the side and then lacing it together. The child's thumb is put in and, as long as the ball is big enough, the infant will soon give up trying to suck it.

"I simply keep adding rubber balls until they run out of fingers," she said.

Dr. J. H. Johnson, professor at the University of Toronto, was elected president.

The board of governors includes J. A. Boyd, Stratford; K. M. Phillips, Toronto, and E. E. Johns, Kingston.

Dr. F. A. Williamson of Hamilton and Dr. S. M. Kennedy of London, were awarded honorary life memberships.

531 Donate Blood

WELLAND (CP)—The largest industrial blood donor clinic in Canada was held Tuesday at the Atlas Steels Limited plant here when 531 men and women employees donated blood in a 6½-hour period.

R. B. Newham of Toronto, national director of Canadian Red Cross blood donor panels, said the 531 pints of blood donated in 6½ hours represented a Canadian record. Previous high at the Atlas plant here was 310 donations in one day.

Jury Decides Soldier Unfit To Stand Trial

STRATFORD (CP)—A Supreme Court jury early today decided that Pte. Ruben Henry Norman is mentally unfit to stand trial for murder in the Feb. 2 slaying of 17-year-old Jean Satchell.

Mr. Justice J. M. King ordered Norman held in custody to await the pleasure of the lieutenant-governor. It is expected he will be committed to Ontario hospital.

Before retiring the jury was addressed for 55 minutes by Mr. Justice King who reviewed evidence given in the day-long hearing.

A motion by Norman's counsel, Nelson MacFarlane, said Norman's mental condition will not allow him to stand trial and said he is not fit to instruct counsel.

Norman's trial arising out of the shooting of Miss Satchell on a downtown street was adjourned March 9 by Mr. Justice A. M. Lebel, who ruled it would be prejudicial to the accused to proceed immediately. The soldier's defence was based on insanity. A provincial county legal aid committee and counsel had been engaged only a few days before the trial opened.

Two psychiatrists testified Tuesday that Norman is suffering from a split personality.

May Boost Price

WINNIPEG (CP) — A 20-cent boost in the price of domestic oatmeal was announced Tuesday, may take another boost in the price of loaf of bread to Canadian consumers.

After Canada formally accepted the new international wheat agreement Monday, the Canadian wheat board said it was instructed to sell wheat in Canada for $2.05 a bushel of No. 1 Manitoba northern, basis Fort William-Port Arthur or Vancouver.

Officials of flour milling companies said the new price, which is 20 cents more than the $1.85 they paid previously, will mean an increase in the price of flour to bakeries. The increase to milling companies will be effective immediately.

15,000 Persons Forced Out Of Homes by $100,000,000 Flood of Louisiana Lowlands

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Louisiana's coastal lowlands faced a new flood crisis from the Gulf of Mexico today as rising streams to the north forced 15,000 persons from their homes in a $100,000,000 flood.

While swollen bayous and rivers poured tons of water toward the gulf, the coastal residents braced against the possibility of inundation from wind-whipped tides.

Streams were higher at some points than in 1940, when high tides blew into already-flooded sections and covered several coastal communities with six feet of water.

Observers believed the crisis would come today. If tides remain moderate another 36 hours, they think there is a chance that streams and backwater areas can handle the load.

The threat centres around Crowley, in southwest Louisiana. Overflowing bayous have forced evacuations at Mermentau, Evangeline, Midland and Estherwood and sent the flood lapping into the outskirts of Crowley.

The weather bureau predicted winds from the south, putting the area in extreme danger if tides are higher.

The Sabine area was a broad belt arching from the southwest corner of the state, near the Texas border, through central Louisiana to the east central boundary with Mississippi. The belt is more than 200 miles long and 100 miles wide at points.

Four big cargo planes flew to the quartermaster depot at Carswell air force base near Fort Worth, Tex., to airlift 37,000 pounds of tents and cots to flood victims.

The water began draining from the hilly areas into the submerged lowlands—the rich cotton and rice producing areas.

WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1817

CROWN PAVALCADE — The PREDECESSORS of ELIZABETH II

No. 12: Edward V had title of King April-June, 1483. Richard III ruled England 1483-1485.

Edward V, son of Edward IV, was born in Westminster in 1470. Three months after he succeeded to the throne at 12, he was seized by his paternal uncle, the Duke of Gloucester, and imprisoned with his younger brother. At the Duke's instigation he was deposed as ruler by an assembly of Lords and Commons who declared his father's marriage invalid and Edward, therefore, an illegitimate child. The Duke's purpose, of course, was to make himself king.

He, Richard III, the son of Richard, Duke of York, and brother of Edward IV, was born at Fotheringhem in 1452. His record was one of an able soldier and man of culture until kingly ambitions got the better of him. He then stooped to any means, including the murder of the rightful heir, to further his ends. But the throne won by crime made for an unsavy reign. When conspiracy and open rebellion flared, Richard tried hard to cultivate friendships. Parliament in particular came in for especial approval and a large share of the authority it had lost under Edward IV was restored. But the king was always dogged by the memory of his own misdeeds. He died on the field of battle at Bosworth, crying out, "My kingdom for a horse!" His slayer was the Earl of Richmond (later Henry VIII). Horses began to make history in another way in Richard's reign. Stage-coach systems were started.

Richard III and, below, his nephew, Edward V. Their autographs appear beside them.

Below: Murder of the young princes, Rooses, reportedly theirs, were found in 1674 in the Tower and reinterred in Westminster Abbey.

Ambassador Says Marshal Plan Era Is Over

DETROIT (CP) — Sir Roger Makins, British ambassador to the United States, said Monday the Marshal Plan era is over.

Addressing the Economic Club of Detroit, he said that era has achieved its objective in recreating Europe's capacity to earn its own living and pay its own way.

Now we have the capacity, he said, we need one thing more and that is the opportunity to use it.

This year marks a turning point in Britain's affairs, Sir Roger said.

"We have come to the end of the period of reconstruction, during which our power to expand exports was limited by the amount of goods we could produce. From now on, our power to increase exports will depend more and more on the amount of goods we can sell.

"We are grateful to you for the aid you have given us but the Marshal Plan is, in a broad sense, over."

Police Trying To Restore Peace In Tribal War

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—Two hundred police, armed with rifles and sten guns, rushed to Sultan Hamed, 80 miles south of Nairobi, today to restore peace between two tribes.

For several days about 1,000 Masai tribesmen armed with spears have been threatening a major battle with a similar number of Wakamba tribesmen armed with bows and poisoned arrows. Several minor clashes already have taken place.

The tribal war is reported to have started when a Wakamba tribesman was killed and his cattle driven away. The Wakamba tribesmen, seeking revenge, poured into the Masai reserve on a cattle-raiding expedition.

'Lip' Fined For 'Talking'

CHICAGO (AP)—Manager Leo Durocher of New York Giants was fined $1[illegible] by president Warren Giles of the National League Monday for fraternizing with manager Eddie Stanky of the Cardinals before Sunday's game in St. Louis.

Durocher explained that Stanky had cut the Giants' batting practice time from 40 minutes to 30 and he wanted to know why. The reason was, Durocher explained, a directive from Giles permitting the shorter time because all clubs have cut their playing rosters to 25 players, plus a limited number of returned servicemen.

CAMPBELLFORD 3-Year-Old Boy Wanted to Fish Is Found Drowned

Campbellford — Missing from his parents' cottage since Friday afternoon, the body of three-year-old Bobby Panetta, son of Mr. and Mrs. "Socky" Panetta, East York suburban Toronto, was recovered from the Trent River Sunday afternoon.

The lad had been missing from outside the cottage for only four minutes when the mother raised the alarm that touched off an extensive search in the woods surrounding the summer home, and also in the river.

The lad's curiosity about a fishing pole may have had something to do with the tragedy. Friday morning the small boy had spotted a fishing pole against the cottage and asked his father what it was. The father explained, but warned him not to touch the pole.

A short time after the boy was missing the fishing pole was found floating in the Trent River a short distance from where the lad's body was recovered. It is believed he had taken the fishing pole to the river bank and fell in.

Police and firemen assisted by neighbors joined in the search for the small lad after the alarm was raised by his mother. Water in the Trent River was lowered by Hydro officials to aid in the search. The boy's body was spotted by Walter Scott and Donald MacArthur waded in and brought it ashore.

The Panettas had recently bought a new home in East York to get away from heavy city traffic thought to be dangerous for their small son. They had gone to their cottage two miles north of Campbellford for the holiday week-end.

The parents were overcome with grief at the loss of their only child and were placed under a doctor's care.

FIVE ROSES

Several Effective Chemicals Available for Caterpillar Control

Guelph — The forest tent caterpillar has caused serious damage in many areas of Ontario for several years. This year it is expected to be serious in the Georgian Bay and Eastern Ontario areas in particular, and possibly in some areas farther north, says Prof. H. W. Gobie, provincial entomologist, Department of Entomology and Zoology, Ontario Agricultural College.

This type of caterpillar does not build a tent. It will migrate from tree to tree, often stripping the leaves from the broad-leaved trees in an area. This type will be present in some of the apple-growing areas, and in such areas, it may be necessary to spray the fence rows as well as the orchard, in order to prevent migration to the trees.

The eastern tent caterpillar, on the other hand, does build a tent, and will be quite plentiful in many sections of Southern Ontario this year. The caterpillars hatch the end of April and by the middle of May small "tents" have been formed, which will increase in size as the caterpillars grow, and will be conspicuous by June. This type will not migrate from tree to tree, and will feed only within a yard or two of the "tent," returning to it each night. This type will be found mostly on wild cherry, apple, hawthorn, plum, and to a lesser degree on other shade trees. It does not attack evergreens. These "tents" will be unsightly along roadsides, on neglected apple, plum, and cherry trees, but are not likely to cause great damage.

Parasite Control

In those places in which these caterpillars have been present for two or three years they may be active this year. In places in which they were present for the first time last year, they are likely to be present this year. The parasites attacking these caterpillars usually take two or three years to bring an infection under control.

Ornamental and shade trees and shrubs around the home may be protected from either type of caterpillar by spraying with orchard – type equipment. The nests of the eastern tent caterpillar may be destroyed by cutting off the infested branches in the evening and burning them, or by burning the tents in the evening by means of a torch. For the forest tent caterpillar it is also advisable to spray trees and shrubs in an area 100 to 300 feet around the area to be protected, as this type may migrate. DDT, lead or calcium arsenate may be used. DDT and calcium arsenate being the cheapest.

Suggested Rates of Material Are as Follows:

DDT 50 per cent wettable powder, 2 lb. (2 tablespoons to 1 gallon). Water 50 gallons.

Or

Calcium arsenate, 2¼ lb. (2 tablespoons per gallon)

Or

Lead arsenate, 3¼ lb. (3 tablespoons per gallon). Water, 100 gallons.

For migrating forest tent caterpillars, it will help to spray the trunks and main limbs as well as the foliage with DDT as given above. Dusts of 5 per cent DDT or arsenical dusts may also be used.

A bulletin on the forest tent caterpillar is available from the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

60th Indian Field Ambulance One of Finest in Korea

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—A cluster of tents at a medical centre here symbolizes the Commonwealth ef- fort in Korea.

It is the advanced dressing sta- tion of the 60th Indian Field Am- bulance. Patients under its canvas one day recently came from Can- ada, Australia, New Zealand, Great Britain and India.

The ADS, as it is called, just now is treating Canadian casualties not evacuated directly from the front, and minor sick.

That can happen occasionally be- cause medical units are divisional, not brigade, troops and take their turns in forward areas as Common- wealth divisional headquarters de- cide.

Farther Back

These days the Canadian Field Ambulance is farther toward the rear, caring for Canadians likely to be sick longer than the seven days an ADS is allowed to keep them. Canadian casualties, there- fore, together with soldiers suffer- ing from such minor complaints as colds, sore throats, boils and some skin disturbances are treat- ed by the Indians.

The unit is no stranger to Cana- dian troops. Most of its officers and other ranks have been here 2½ years, and treated sick and wounded from the 2nd battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, when the battalion fought with the Commonwealth brigades in 1951.

Patricias always spoke highly of their treatment, especially of the brew of tea they received—even before being registered in.

The Indian Field Ambulance is an airborne unit, and medical de- tachments from it dropped with United States troops at Munsan in 1951.

It is commanded by Lt.-Col. M. B. K. Nair, who served near the Canadians in Italy.

Nair's unit comprises bearded, turbanned Sikhs, Hindus, Chri- tians and Mohammedans—"every- body except the Jains, who are not a soldiering class," he says.

"As far as religion is concerned India is a conglomerate nation and we are exactly the same as a unit. I'd have to have seven chaplains if everyone was to be looked after. Only the Christians have chaplain services. For the rest, we live to- gether and follow our faiths as best we can."

Pte. Ken Crompton, 26-year-old ard Patricia from Nexlit, Man., en- listed over the Dominion's he was getting. He had been three days in bed with a sore throat. "I could spend the rest of my time here," he said.

Equally happy were L. Bdr. Delbert Jones, 30, of Liverpool, N.S., and Pte. Henry Fitzgerald, 20, of Wolfville, N.S. The two Mari- timers were in with tonsilitis. Jones nine months with the 1st regiment, the Royal Canadian Horse Artill- ery, has another three months to go in Korea with the 81st Field Regiment, RCA, while Fitzgerald is with the 3rd battalion, the Royal Canadian Regiment.

In charge of their ward is milita- trained Capt. C. R. Narang.

Nair's ADS cares for the battle casualties of four infantry battal- ions (Canadian, Australian, Brit- ish), two artillery regiments (Cana- dian and New Zealand) and two tank outfits (Canadian and British).

Canadians handled by the Indian ADS may go to any of three in- stallations—the 43rd U.S. Surgical Hospital Mobile (if immediate sur- gery is needed), the 25th Canadian Field Dressing Station, or the 37th Canadian Field Ambulance. The Canadian FDS still does all Cana- dian elective surgery, as well as one treat sick likely to be well within

Emphasis on Sport in Korea For Division of Troops

By BILL ROSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—Brig. J. V. Allard, recently-arrived commander of the 25th Canadian infantry brigade, has ordered a heavier emphasis on sport here.

In one of a series of conferences marshalling his assumption of command, Allard told unit welfare and sports officers, whom he called to his headquarters:

"One of the essentials in winning a war is care for the physical and moral welfare of our men. It is the responsibility of every officer to do this in whatever field he is engaged.

"Your responsibilities are not discharged unless you do as good a job in these matters as in anything else.

"Welfare is of vital importance and our policy is going to be to make sport a major recreation." Start Tournaments

He then ordered the officers to organize unit tournaments in a variety of sports, to culminate in a Dominion Day meet for the entire formation, with brigade championships at stake.

Ottawa is sending equipment for volleyball, b a s k e t ball, baseball, badminton, Deck Tennis and horseshoes, as well as standard track and field equipment.

"There is to be a drive on sports in every unit," he ordered.

Ball-players are being loaned to "done out unit sportsgrounds. Each unit will have two—one at each of its rear headquarters. There also will be a brigade sports ground, where a brigade sports centre will be established.

Besides their own sports officers detailed by units from their own strengths, units will be guided and co-ordinated by two brigade officers whose jobs will be exclusively connected with sports. They are Lieuts. Doug Scott of Toronto and Jack Widder of Kingston, Ont.

Means of setting up prizes for the events, "so that they will mean something to the soldiers," are to be decided upon.

Seek Entertainers

Allard told the officers he wanted them to become talent scouts as well.

They should encourage men with entertainment ability to rehearse and put together unit shows. He said the better entertainers might be assembled to put on a brigade show. If it looked feasible they might form a permanent brigade concert party.

He also said a brigade mobile library would be formed. A caravan-type vehicle would be fitted up as a library, with an NCO in charge, and tour the brigade regularly with reading matter.

"The idea would be to work out an exchange system so that the books will circulate and all the men will have a chance to select books of their own choice," he said.

"We will have to improve the quality, too. I—am greatly concerned with the type of books we seem to have been getting. We shall have to arrange for a supply of books which are not necessarily light serious, but perhaps less harmful."

While soldiers are adult men, he said, some books could hardly be considered suitable under circumstances which might cause them to "excite or frustrate" soldiers restricted to life in the bunkers for months on end.

"We can give the men some of the things they like," he concluded. "But giving them all the things they want doesn't necessarily mean they are being well looked after."

New De Haviland Otter Is Prize Aircraft, 'Too Good to be True'

By M. DENT HODGSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GOLDEN LAKE, Ont. (CP)—RCAF pilots at No. 408 photo squadron's training detachment near here have a new "baby" and they're really tickled with it.

It's the new DeHavilland Otter, which is starting to replace the long-established and popular Norseman as the bush plane of the northland. Pontoon-equipped Otter aircraft will be used by the RCAF for the first time this summer for water-based operations.

At the detachment's base—two shacks and a handful of summer cottages three miles from this village 80 miles west of Ottawa—pilots who will handle summer operations from Labrador to the Yukon are practising on the Otter and finding it almost too good to be true.

Flt. Lt. C. W. (Bounce) Weir of Dauphin, Man., officer commanding the detachment, says the capabilities of the new plane are "almost unbelievable."

Here's why:

1. The Otter can carry 10 passengers or a payload of 2,000 pounds with fuel tanks full. The Norseman can lift five passengers or a payload of 600 pounds.

2. To take off and clear a 50-foot obstacle the Otter needs a takeoff run of only 1,000 feet. The Norseman needs a mile and a half.

3. Cruising speed of 125 miles an hour is about the same for both. The Norseman's nine-hour endurance beats the Otter's 7½ hours, but the Norseman can't begin to match the Otter's ability to head into wind and hover over a spot by throttling back to an airspeed of 35 miles an hour.

Both planes have exactly the same engine, the Pratt and Whitney R-Wasp, but the Otter has a better propeller, different wing flaps, and a wing with better lift.

For a group of reporters Tuesday, Flt. Lt. Weir and his second-in-command, Flt. Lt. P. B. St. Louis of Ottawa, demonstrated by taking off side-by-side at the same time. By the time St. Louis' Norseman broke water, Weir's Otter was 600 feet off the lake.

The detachment operates here only for four weeks, training pilots who have had no experience with float planes on Otters and Norsemen. The airmen get about 50 hours on each plane.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was lighting his first cigar after dinner, and I said, Hay pop, how soon am I going to be allowed to carry matches around in my pockit?

Not soon, pop said. What do you want to do that for? he said, and I said, Because it will be a sine I'm growing up.

For Pete sake dont try to get ahead of yourself, pop said. Don't p-sh, just take events in your stride. Act your age. Do you want to botch things up like Isodor Sensidge? he said, and I said, Who was he?

He was a boy who decided he wanted to be a fireman when he grew up, pop said. So he tried to train himself by running after fire engines instead of walking to shool. He missed half his sleep because he was always waking up from some exciting dreem about a fire, and he didn't even get mutch good from his meels, because he continually slipped out of the dining room to watch the gas berning on the kitchin stove, pop said.

I bet he had fun, though, I said, as pop said, Yes, that was the truble. He exhawsted all the pleasure, so when he grew up and became a fireman and actually had to attend fires on bizness, all the novelty had worn off and his only sensation was a deprissing feeling that he was working for a living. So he handed in his resignation, and now he's a repair man in meersham pipe factory. He finds the werk quite intristing, but even at that it reminds him of smoke when he gets to thinking about it. And now do your homework and try to injoy it, pop said.

Dodgers Get Assist As The Phillies Climb Into Game Lead In National

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

REVE OFF!

Pedal Anne and Frankford finally got the Belleville District Softball League away to a start last night with the Ox Fokkers coming up with a sparkling 5-1 victory over the Frankfordians. It was a stirring hurling duel between Frankford's Don Berrie and Pal Maracle and the erstwhile Glen Roy jumper neared ace, Bobby Hunter. Maracle held the opposition to no runs and two out until the fourth when he developed a streak of wildness with three straight walks. Hunter went in and choked the rally without allowing a score and hurled one-run, four-hit softball over the rest of the route. Berrie allowed eight hits, four of them coming in the third when the Fokkers scored three of their runs. It was an outstanding display of softball considering it was the opening game of the season.

Meanwhile the Glen Roy Juniors, last year's all-Ontario champions ran into a snag here in an exhibition game with the newly-organized Bobcats. The Cats clawed the youngsters for an 8-3 loss despite the fact they used two entire teams to turn the trick. Bobby Green and Doug Badner divided the hurling for the Juniors with "Bunk" Young and Lou Dowsett turning in outstanding mound efforts for the "Pair-a-Bobs" outfit. The Juniors could at best get but four hits off the duo's delivery, but were wary of Dowsett in five innings. A five-run splurge in the seventh broke a three-all tie and gave the Cats the nod.

PINDERS, KEEPERS!"

Go-gous Go'ga, sub, is a man to be respected by any other gentleman of the rasslin' fraternity who essays to enter the squared field with him. The blonde-tressed Norseman, who has paid hobbyist wife-ully to the dark side of his audience, is a man of many colors, gowns, whims and wrestling "holts."

This fabulous Dapper Dan graduate of the College of Applied Fancydressy, whose golden, marcelled hair is the envy of many a chorus gal of the Gotham main stem, is known to the fans as the "Human Orchid." He sports a valet, who dexterously wields ane, two or three atomizers which spray permeating concoctions about the ring, the referee, the opponent and anything the "Master" contacts before going into action. He often sprays himself.

Gorgeous is making his Belleville debut here Friday night when the wrestling season opens with a flourish of perfumes, hair-do's, bobby pins and gorgeously-colored dressing gowns. And the Go'ga appears in a sun-tanned hard-as-nails Whipper Billy Watson, just back from a Florida vacation, and who likes nothing better than a world's wrestling title than to humiliate the "Orchid" before his petals get set.

Included in the supporting cards are Belleville Collegiate, Albert College, Ontario School for the Deaf, Trenton, Picton, Wellington, Campbellford, Deseronto, Bath, Stella, Napanee, Lyndhurst, Seeley's Bay, Elgin, Sydenham, Sharbot Lake, Reginald's College, St. Mary's College, Brockville, Athens, Gananoque, Malleryiew and Kingston Collegiate.

The girls' contests will include sprints, high jump, broad jump and relay racing. Winners will go on to participate in the Eastern Ontario Tournament.

"MARK, LEARN . . ."

And here's a tip for softball players, coaches, umpires and managers. OASA secretary Frank Fowler notes in a bulletin of several rules changes this season. Under the new rule for the catcher and first-sacker, must have at least three-fingers and a thumb. (A lot of these guys never settled for two fingers anyway.) The roller play is disallowed and any ball rolled on the ground by the pitcher is dead. The batter must present the ball before delivery. An official strike zone has been adopted. These and some another rules changes are outlined in the 1953 rulebook and all should grab a copy and study them. Batters hit by a pitched ball do not get a base, nor may a runner leave a base with a batter. Study of the rules changes and subsequent observation will eliminate a lot of unnecessary bickering and game-delays.

'Bums' Blast Brewtown Braves As Roberts Marks Sixth Win; Yankees Stretch Lead To Three

By Ben Fiblegar
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now the folks in Milwaukee ignore what the rest of the National League fans found out a long time ago—as guests Brooklyn's Dodgers leave a lot to be desired.

Before 36,638, the largest crowd ever to pay its way to a sports event in the Wisconsin metropolis, the Dodgers slapped down the Braves 4-1 Tuesday night and knocked them out of a first-place tie in the National League.

The victory was only the second for the Dodgers in seven road games.

After five scoreless innings, Andy Pafko put the Braves ahead by singling home Eddie Mathews. Brooklyn's Red ace then belted his own with a home run after Jackie Robinson walked.

Homer Did It

The Braves brought in Max Surkont to pitch in the eighth and the Dodgers greeted him with two more runs. John Logan's drive was homer of the season—a blast over the right field fence that cleared Reverse Reese.

While the Braves went down, Philadelphia Phillies went up. Robin Roberts checked Cincinnati Red Legs on a six-hit victory against two defeats and moved the Phils one full game in front of the Dodgers.

St. Louis Cardinals edged Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4, and Chicago Cubs moved New York Giants won their third in a row, a 9-4 triumph over Chicago Cubs in 10 innings.

Hank Bauer homered in the 11th inning with a man on base to give New York Yankees a 4-2 triumph over Detroit Tigers while the second-place Chicago White Sox lost their second in a row, a 7-5 setback to Harry Byrd and Philadelphia Athletics. The loss pushed the Sox two games back of the pace-setting Yankees.

Boston Red Sox defeated St. Louis Browns 4-3. Cleveland's game with the Senators at Washington was postponed because of rain.

In Trouble Once

Roberts was in trouble in only one inning at Cincinnati. He walked out in the third, Willard Marshall smashed a home run with a man on base and Ted Kluszewski followed with a bases-empty drive. The Red Legs got only three other hits. Richie Ashburn and Willie Jones homered for the Phils.

Johnny Lindell gave the Cardinals only five hits and struck out eight. Both St. Louis runs were unearned, coming after an error by Danny O'Connell, the Pirates' second baseman. A fly by Solly Hemus brought home one run and the other scored on a double by Stan Musial.

New Giants came from two runs behind to tie their game with the Cubs in the fifth inning, then added three more runs in the 10th to hand Warren Hacker his sixth loss of the season.

A double by Tom Umphlett followed by Milt Bolling's single gave the Red Sox their winning run in the eighth inning against the Browns. The hits came off Satchell Paige.

Windsor Likes 'Serve' Of Yankee Hurlers

NEW YORK (AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor attended their first major league baseball game together Tuesday night, between New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers.

The Duke acted like any ordinary baseball fan, asking for an autographed baseball and requesting to see "what switcher Reiser that everybody is talking about."

After dining with Dan Topping, owner of the Yankees, the Duke and Duchess went to the Yankee Stadium where he was granted his wish, meeting the switch-hitting star, Mickey Mantle, as well as many of the other Yankees. He also received the requested baseball, autographed by all the Yankees.

The Duke admitted he knew little about baseball but showed great interest when somebody suggested he volunteered to show him how he pitches his various assortment of "serves."

Lopat demonstrated how he holds the ball when throwing his fast ball, curve, screwball and knuckler. The Duke was especially interested in the knuckler.

"That's the serve those cricketers find the most difficult to throw," Lopat replied.

Mantle showed the Duke the cricket ball he received from Sir Don Bradman and asked him to demonstrate his swing.

"I'm afraid I'm not sure I can use it," apologized the Duke. "Don't see I never was much of a cricket player."

In other league games, Bob Lodwick, young rookie southpaw, pitched the fourth-place Montreal Royals to a 4-0 shutout over Baltimore Orioles and the cellar-dwelling Springfield Cubs downed the sixth-place Ottawa Athletics 7-3. Dick Greco batted in all three Ottawa runs with a 330-foot homer, his third of the season.

Point Anne Defeats Frankford 5-1 In District Softball Loop Opener

By GEO. H. CARTER
(Sports Editor)

Behind the masterful hurling of Pat Maracle and Bobby Hunter, the Point Anne entry in the Bay of Quinte District Softball League officially opened its season last night with a clean-cut 5-1 victory over Frankford.

The game developed into a three-way hurling duel between the Point duo and the Frankford ace Don Boyle.

Maracle started for the Pointers and set the visitors down with two hits and no runs for three innings. With one out in the fourth, he developed a wild streak and walked the next three batters. Hunter, who pitched the last two innings to an all-Ontario title last year relieved him and restricted the opposition to one run and four hits over the rest of the route.

Maracle whiffed five and walked four. Hunter struck out eight and issued but two walks. The chunky hurler aided his own cause with a ringing single in the third.

Legend is below:

Boyle was in good form with the exception of a third period lapse when the Pointers got to him for four clouts good for four runs that practically settled the issue. He allowed but eight hits over the nine innings route, struck out six and walked five.

The teams battled scorelessly until the bottom of the third when Pat Maracle, batting cleanup for the first time this season, got a clean single. Sammy Mulholland followed suit and L. Maracle made it three in a row driving in the two runs. Doug Hall then cut out a double scoring Maracle then Boyle settled down and struck out the next two batters.

Singles by Roger Mallory and Mulholland plus a base on balls accounted for the fourth Point Anne run in the fifth. Mallory's double, a walk and a wild pitch sent the former across the plate for the fifth tally in the seventh.

Red Culkin's single in the eighth aided by a Point error accounted for the lone Frankford run.

Roger Mallory's potent bat packed the Point offensive with a double and two singles. Mulholland was good for a double and a single while Doug Hull also cracked out a two-bagger. The two Maracles accounted for the remaining pair of single.

Curtis drove out two one baggers for the losers with Culkin, Cosgrove, Dafoe and Wickson contributing the rest.

The teams:

Point Anne: Mulholland cf; L. Maracle 3b; D. Hull ss; Mallory rf; J. Green p; Wood 2b; Burbanan 1b; Strahan lf; P. Maracle c; D. Hunter p; Horwood 3b.

Bobcats Defeat Glen Roys 8-3

The "Bobcats", playing the first "two-platoon" system seen in city softball circles, handed the Glen Roy juniors an unexpected 8-3 defeat in an exhibition tilt at the Alcmite Field last night. The "Cats" represent the Northern Electric team which was unable to field a squad.

The Glens grabbed a 3-0 lead in the first inning and were held scoreless the rest of the route by a pair of "Cat" hurlers. The Glen runs came in the second and tied the count in the third.

The "Two Bobs" rushed in what proved to be offensive plays in the fifth, eight men all told, and they proceeded to lower the boom for the win the verdict before they were retired.

Bob Green started for the Glens and gave up five hits for as many runs. He walked eight. Doug Rankin relieved him and was touched for three hits and a trio of markers.

"Bunk" Young was on the hill for the Cats at the start and yielded three hits for all the junior runs. Lou Dowsett handcuffed the youngsters with a deceptive bolo style. He restricted them to one hit over a five-innings route. G. Donovan hit a home run for the Cats in the fourth. McBride, Young and Bovay were good for doubles.

Davy Jones tripled and singled for the youngster, with Pete Green and Junior Derry plus the remaining pair of Glen clouts.

The lineups:

Glen Roys—Barclay, Goyer, Carr, Batchelor, P. Green, Day, Whales, Jones, Dowsett, Bob Green, Radner.

Bobcats—Temple, McTaggart, Lucas, McBride, Rogers, Burley, Manik, Peters, Old, G. Donovan, Powers, Bovay, Belnap, Burley, Young, Dowsett.

Umpires—Williams, Lum Carson.

Johnson, McGraw Were in 'Cahoots' Latter's Latest Biography Reveals

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — Everyone who knows his baseball history is aware that back in 1902 the great John J. McGraw, deceased at American League, "deserted" Baltimore Orioles in mid-season and jumped to New York Giants of the rival National League, whom he drove to 10 pennants in the next 30 years.

The fight between McGraw and Johnson, their repeated clashes over policies, and the explosive outcome of their feud, have been described in detail in all the biographies of the "little Napoleon" and in the official history books on the game. One immediate result was hard feeling of McGraw's mounting anger at his league president, says:

Seems Trapped

"In midseason of 1902 the irascible McGraw sold out his Baltimore holdings and jumped back to the National League. Johnson's answer was to move the Baltimore franchise to New York for 1903." Another historian related "it was a situation almost parallel Johnson and the American League seemed trapped by the trickery of McGraw."

It's a good story, says Mrs. John J. McGraw in her biography of her distinguished husband, "The Real McGraw," appearing this week, but it simply isn't true. Writing in collaboration with Arthur Mann, one of the game's better authorities, Mrs. McGraw says:

Her husband and Johnson were not enemies and never even had a row. Johnson not only was aware of every move McGraw made leading to his legendary "desertion" of the younger league, but actually advised him behind the scenes on how to make them. Johnson planned all along to wreck the Baltimore club and move the franchise to New York, and he realized that the Giants, under McGraw, would supply the red hot intracity rivalry his team would need to prosper.

Mrs. McGraw produces a photostat of a letter written by Johnson to her husband Jan. 24, 1902, five months before McGraw made his celebrated jump, advising him guardedly of the way things were shaping up and "again urging you to be very guarded in your dealings with the New Yorker." The letter leaves no doubt whatever that the two were in cahoots.

Citadelles' Boss Appeals Entry New Junior Club

QUEBEC (CP)—Frank Byrne, owner of Quebec Citadelles, said Tuesday night in a statement he has appealed to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association the decision of the Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey Association to admit a new junior A club to the league as a replacement for his team.

The JAHA announced in Montreal Tuesday it has given Emile Couture of Quebec a league franchise with the rights to Citadelle players.

League officials have claimed Byrne automatically lost his franchise when he defaulted a playoff game with Montreal Canadiens Juniors and entered the CAHA Memorial Cup playoffs from which the Quebec league had been barred in a sweeping suspension of Quebec Hockey leagues, teams and players.

The Quebec Amateur Hockey Association has been readmitted into the CAHA.

Byrne, who has announced his intention of selling his club and getting out of junior hockey, said he does not consider he has lost his franchise.

He did not indicate any change in his decision to sell.

Byrne said that before the new franchise can be operated it must be approved by the CAHA.

Sport in Brief

NEW YORK (AP)—Roy Campanella of Brooklyn Dodgers and George Kell of Boston Red Sox are setting their pace in the 1953 major league slugging crowns.

Campanella, whose bat has been blazing during the first month of the season, has accumulated 79 total bases in 100 at bats for a lusty .790 slugging average that tops the National League.

Averages compiled by The Associated Press show that Kell is the American League pace-setter with a robust .538 slugging percentage, achieved on 57 total bases in 92 trips. Averages include Sunday's games.

Slugging averages are figured by dividing a batter's total bases by his number of times at bat.

Campanella has collected four doubles, one triple and 13 home runs. The stocky catcher also leads the National League in both homers and runs batted in. His slugging mark last season was .433.

Kell, a veteran third baseman, has garnered 37 hits, including two home runs and 14 doubles—most in the American League. In 1953 Kell got a .423 slugging mark.

Runner-up to Campanella in the National League slugging derby is Gus Bell of Cincinnati Redlegs with a .697 average.

Al Rosen of Cleveland Indians is second to Kell for American League slugging supremacy with a .593 percentage.

BATAVIA, O. (AP)—Sam Leever, 82, who pitched for Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League from 1898 to 1910, died Tuesday at his home in nearby Goshen. Leever, a native of Goshen, was a 30-game winner in the National League four times. He won 20 while losing 23 in 1906. His record was 25-7 in 1903, 30-5 in 1905 and 22-7 in 1908.

Sport From Britain

By ARCH McKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The unofficial rivalry of British sports fans may be preoccupied this summer with the visit of the Australian cricketers, but some 450 baseball teams anticipate a top season. In fact, their best yet.

Cricket, Liverpool, hotbed of baseball in Britain, is London's 25 teams the story is the same. Less ball here is gradually being played better by more and more Britons. Some day the game will even draw real crowds.

The game's new-found in the land of soccer and cricket was strengthened immeasurably during the Second World War as Canadian and American servicemen spread the baseball gospel.

Today, partly because of the Canadians who stayed on, married or otherwise, London has the 26-team Southeastern League and the nine-team Western Amateur League. They are sprinkled with North Americans, including C 4 s a clan hockey fanatics in cricket shape, but they operate only because of the large British enrolment.

The game's standards have come a long way, says Edward Lee Brown, Windsor, Ont., native who played at home and in Britain during the First World War and returned permanently in 1933 and now is president of the Western League.

As one of the surviving members of the pre-war National Baseball Association, now the Baseball Association of Liverpool, Brown says Britons are coming to realize that baseball isn't the same as rounders or Stool Pigeon Rounders, variations, a childrens' game here where "you hit the ball and run like hell."

Charlie Dickson, Cockney manager of the Pioneers in the Western League, says baseball used to be "terrible." But it's getting better. A soccer player turned baseball fan—he couldn't stand cricket—Dickson is a baseball fanatic who stays up till 2 and 3 a.m. to get American major league baseball on his radio.

COSTLY WOLVES

WEEKEES, Sask. (CP)—Wolves continue to take toll of purebred livestock on the FV ranch here. The owners, George and Arthur White, estimate each $10 bounty wolf killed actually means a $200 in relation to livestock saved.

HATS TAXED

LUTON, England (CP)—Luton hat manufacturers have asked the British government to abolish or reduce the purchase tax on ladies' hats. At present, the 25-per-cent levy is applied on all hats except knitted headgear.

Mint Completes Distribution Of Medallions

OTTAWA (CP)—The mint has completed distribution of some 3,000,000 special Coronation medallions for Canadian schoolchildren, a mint spokesman said today.

The bronze medallions, bearing the effigy of the Queen, crowned, on one side, and the royal cipher on the other, have been sent to provincial departments of education.

It will be up to the provinces to make their own distribution to each school.

The medallions will be about the only commemorative memento ordered by the federal government for the Coronation.

There will be no special silver coins nor any special markings or issues of new currency to mark the occasion.

Canada is designing new paper currency bearing the figure of the Queen, but the currency won't be ready until 1954.

N.S. Growers Hope to Recapture Part of Market

KENTVILLE, N. S. (CP)—Nova Scotia's apple growers are still hoping they will some day recapture at least part of the once lucrative United Kingdom market.

The market was lost during the Second World War and remained dormant in the post-war period of Britain's dollar troubles.

For Nova Scotia's Annapolis valley apple growers it was a big blow, since 1860 to the start of the war the U. K. was uprooted and varieties more suitable to the domestic market were substituted.

New markets had to be found, but growers felt the pinch and many added sidelines to keep in business.

Nova Scotia's interest in the U. K. market will be evident at the British Empire Fruit Council meeting in London June 8-9.

The Nova Scotia Fruit Growers' Association is represented by R. D. Sutton to the meeting and Terry L. Meek, general manager of United Fruit Companies, Limited will attend.

F. Waldo Walsh, deputy minister of agriculture and marketing, will represent the province.

The United Fruit Company is Canada's largest apple co-operative and handles about 40 per cent of the valley's total commercial crop.

Growers are convinced that while the export markets have been sought during the last few years as outlets for Nova Scotia's apples, recapturing the U. K. market is the only hope for new life in the industry.

The province's apple orchards have been cut by more than 50 per cent since 1941.

In 1941 the province had 1,816,973 trees and produced apples worth about $1,703,750.

In 1951 there were 897,800 trees and produced apples worth only $1,250,000 despite the advanced value of the dollar.

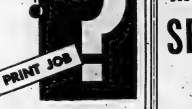
WOULD NAME DUKE KING

LONDON (CP)—An article in the 1936th edition of Burke's Peerage, to be published just before the Coronation, says the Duke of Edinburgh could receive the titular dignity of King—unless the Queen herself disliked the change. A previous summary of Burke's was published Tuesday. It said that should that happen, the Queen's husband would become King Philip.

BRIGHT LIGHTS

SASKATOON (CP)—The Saskatchewan Power Corporation has authorized free decorative electric lighting in rural communities through the province for the Coronation period. The offer applies to outdoor lighting.

OFF TO AUSTRALIA



TILBURY, England (CP)—Forty British youths aged 16 to 18 left here for Australia under the Big Brother movement. Since this movement resumed in 1947, a total of 1,154 youths have left in 37 groups.

Embargo on Hog Shipments in 29 Counties Imposed

9 Cases Have Been Reported Since Outbreak Last Friday

OTTAWA (CP)—The agriculture department today imposed a ban on the outward movement of all hogs in southwestern Ontario because of hog cholera.

The embargo, which covers 29 counties stretching east and north from the Niagara peninsula, was imposed in an attempt to keep the disease from spreading.

The area covers about one-third of Ontario's farm acreage and embraces all of the area west and south of Muskoka, Haliburton, Peterborough and Northumberland, including these four counties.

13 Cases Known

As the ban was announced, the department also reported a case of the virus infection has been discovered in Simcoe county. This makes nine cases confirmed in seven counties since the original outbreak was spotted last Friday.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said: So far, there has been no spread beyond the quarantine.

But federal veterinarians said they are working around the clock seven days in reporting hog sickness.

In the current outbreak, 27 days have elapsed since the time the originally-infected hogs were purchased from a sales barn and the time they were reported sick.

In its drive to eradicate the disease which hits hogs only, the department has suspended its tuberculosis eradication program in southwestern Ontario, switching veterinarians to that area to hog cholera investigation activities.

Federal health of animals authorities emphasized there are three pivital points in the fight to keep the disease from spreading: agreement by farmers to report all sick hogs promptly; reduction of hog movements to an absolute minimum; and a halt on visitors to livestock premises.

Siamese Twins Die 33 Hours After Birth

By DON MacKENZIE

INVERNESS, N. S. (CP)—A young woodworker who hurriedly put together an incubator for Siamese twins born to his wife, has begun preparing a casket for their burial.

The twins, first born of 18-year-old Mrs. Max Wyrwas, wife of a garage mechanic, lived 33 hours following their birth by caesarean section. They appeared in good condition until within 45 minutes of their death at 6:45 p.m. ADT Wednesday.

Edwin MacLean, husband of one of the nurses present at the delivery of the twins, was asked to fashion the casket because the local undertaker hadn't a coffin of the right size.

Death came as a surprise to doctors, who had found the babies gaining in strength following a brief relapse. They failed to cry early in the day. They said the black-haired boys died from anaemia, a poisoning condition found in pregnant women.

Perfect formation

Dr. Frank MacLeod, chief surgeon at Inverness County General Hospital, said in a statement following the death that "there was perfect formation of all organs."

"There was one liver and each baby had only one kidney, larger than normal. They were joined by the rib cartilages. In all ways they were identical to the original Siamese twins." Examination showed the twins' hearts were encased in a single heart sac.

Death was almost simultaneous. The larger of the two boys began to slip first, forcing a heavy burden upon the delicate smaller one who required four to five minutes of artificial respiration at birth.

Doctors worked for 30 minutes in an unsuccessful attempt to revive the two face-to-face figures, who weighed a total of 13 pounds.

The men were Leslie Taske, 23, and Lionel Conroy, 18, both of Blanche, Que.; Fred Allen, 22, of Ottawa, and Edward Hamilton, 61, of Timagami.

Timagami is 55 miles north of North Bay.

TRACKS NATIONALIZED

BUDAPEST (Reuters)—The government will nationalize all of Argentina's race tracks under a bill introduced in Congress Wednesday.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: A storm centre over northern Wisconsin this morning will be crailing northeastward toward Alaska. Most of it was warm from the southern state will give showers and thunder storms in southern Ontario today. Cooler air from the north-central states circling down around this disturbance will invade southern Ontario tonight, and Friday's maximums will be 5 to 15 degrees lower than today's afternoon readings. Scattered showers, or thunderstorms this afternoon or this evening will herald the approach of the cooler air.

Sportsmen's Show Raised $56,733

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian National Sportsmen's Show this year raised $56,733 for the Toronto Anglers' and Hunters' Association to spend on conservation, Frank H. Kortright, president of the show and the association, said Wednesday night.

Income was $259,382 and surplus after expenses was $72,461, he told members. The show was profitable in every department, except the boat section, which lost $6,000 because of poor weather. It was the less money, $600, than in 1952.

The association's share, among other projects a wildfowl sanctuary in the Dundas marsh, a continuing survey of muskellunge population in the Bobcaygeon region and organization, under the conservation council of Ontario.

Duke of Edinburgh Greeted First Time At RCAF Fighter Base in England

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NORTH LUFFENHAM, Eng. (CP)—The Duke of Edinburgh, first time as a spectator, visited one of the RAF, today paid his first visit to the RCAF Fighter Wing.

With characteristic zest, the Duke "did" the station thoroughly. He inspected a guard of honor, watched a flypast of Sabre jets, met officers of the wing, lined up on parade range, talked to airmen, their wives and children and spent about an hour looking at the cockpits of the Sabre.

Sq. Ldr. Ralph Biggar of Midland, Ont., chief test pilot at No. 1 fighter wing, briefed the Duke on the complicated array of buttons and valves inside the fighter. Airmen said Philip must have asked questions about practically every gadget in the aircraft.

The Duke drew sallies of laughter while chatting informally with the wives of officers and airmen. Talking to Mrs. Vivienne Bricker of Chilliwack, B. C., he pointed to a crowd of Canadian children standing nearby.

"Are these all yours?" he asked. The Duke saw a spectacular display of aerobatics by Flt. Lt. Wally Conroy, Montreal, one of the RCAF's trick-flying ace. Kelly broke the sonic barrier but the Duke was not aware of it. Other hundreds of visitors and reporters gathered for the Royal visit.

The air-minded Duke, who recently received his own wings, showed interest in the operations room and hangar, asking questions which showed his knowledge of the subject. Then he went to the edge of the airfield and fired five bursts on a practice gun at 1,000 yards. All hit the bull's-eye.

He shook hands with each of the 14 Sabre pilots and spoke to some of them, asking about the ejector seats and whether the pilots had ever used parachutes. He said he would like to "have a go" at flying a Sabre jet.

ONT., N.Y. STATE ACT TO COMBAT BAD STOCK SALES

New Agreement Signed Between Parties

NEW YORK (CP) — Ontario and New York state agreed Wednesday on joint action to combat fraudulent stock sales across the Canadian border and encourage legitimate Canadian promotions.

Effective at once, the agreement provides that:

1. The Ontario securities commission will revoke the registration of any Canadian stock dealer violating New York Laws in the sale of securities.

2. The commission and the New York attorney-general will co-operate in the prosecution of securities in cases of fraudulent practices.

3. The New York securities bureau will accept registrations of Canadian stock heretofore barred from New York.

Two-Year Pact

The agreement, to continue for two years, was announced at a press conference held by Attorney-General Dana Porter of Ontario and Attorney-General Nathaniel L. Goldstein of New York.

Goldstein estimated that stock racketeering has drained $200,000,000 in the last 10 years from unwary U. S. investors. He declared that 337 Canadian securities companies have been enjoined from sales in New York since 1946.

(Financial circles in Toronto greeted news of the agreement with enthusiasm.

One broker with 37 years experience said it will be good news for people actually trying to develop a mine, who are sincere in their efforts.

"Everybody's happy on the street," he said. "The legitimate people are not hurt.")

The agreement emphasized that there is nothing wrong in selling highly speculative stock to exploit the undeveloped Canadian hinterland as long as dealers do not misrepresent the risk.

The officials described typical operations they are seeking to end. Stock promoters, many of them Americans, have set up offices in Toronto. Known by high-pressure long-distance calls to gullible investors, flung into the prospecting company with little chance of paying off profitably unless it has extraordinary luck.

If the company strikes it rich, the officials said, promoter finds ways of shuffling the investor out of the deal by recapitalizing.

Paper Claims Extracts of Letter Published Sent by Churchill To Benito Arranging Security

ROME (AP)—The Milan newspaper Corriere Lombardo published Wednesday night what it claimed were extracts of a letter from Winston Churchill to Benito Mussolini in the last days of the war arranging for the Italian dictator's security."

The paper, which frequently publishes sensational stories, printed what it claimed was a facsimile of a letter from the British prime minister dated March 29, 1945—29 days before Mussolini was killed by partisans.

This portion published by the paper said:

"His excellency Benito Mussolini:

"As agreed upon in the last meeting of our office, it has been decided that requests will be accepted as a whole. . . I can assure you excellency that I shall act at your entire disposal concerning your security and for this, I have already given the necessary instructions to the competent security services. Trusting to hear from you, I remain, very truly yours, Winston S. Churchill."

On Bases of Statements

The paper said the letter was written on stationery of the British embassy in Cairo.

(In London, a spokesman at the Downing street, Churchill's official residence, denied the British leader ever sent personal letters to Mussolini.

(The spokesman said "there have been stories of an exchange of letters several times-but they had no foundation. No personal letters were sent to Mussolini.")

Corriere Lombardo said a large number of letters were exchanged between Mussolini and Churchill in the waning days of the war arranging for Mussolini's safety and surrender.

The paper said it got some of the letters from a former Fascist lieutenant.

Czechs Freed Oatis After Eisenhower Eased Restrictions

WASHINGTON (CP)—Communist Czechoslovakia, in freeing AP correspondent William N. Oatis, acted six weeks after President Eisenhower offered to consider easing restrictions on Czechoslovakian activities.

The White House Wednesday night announced exchange of messages exchanged between Eisenhower and new Czech President Antonin Zapotocky.

Eisenhower's message, dated March 30, told Zapotocky that if he would release Oatis, the U. S. would ease its embargo on the licensing of sanctions imposed against Czechoslovakia when the newspaper man was jailed 25 months ago.

Zapotocky's reply, dated May 16, informed Eisenhower that Oatis was being pardoned on that day and would be released from the rest of his 10-year sentence on condition he "forgive."

Handle Exchange

U. S. Ambassador George Wadsworth and Czech Premier Siroky handled the exchange between the two chief executives.

The Czech government through its controlled radio today called for the U. S. to terminate its economic warfare and to begin activity now that Oatis is free.

Radio Prague, broadcast in Vienna, broadcast the text of the notes to Czech listeners and quoted an editorial from the Czech Communist party organ Rude Pravo, calling on Eisenhower to lift the sanctions.

In his public announcement of Oatis' release, Zapotocky declared had said he acted on a direct appeal for mercy from Mrs. Oatis. At that time Eisenhower declared that "there wasn't any deal" between Oatis' wife and Communists to free the newspaper man.

The White House also said Wednesday night that it had been before Oatis was released. State Secretary John Foster Dulles presented representations" to the Czech government.

Visited Dulles

The announcement also said Mrs. Oatis personally visited Dulles March 7. It said Dulles told her then the U. S. government would do all in its power to get her husband freed.

Oatis, on his return to the U. S. Wednesday, declined to say whether he served the U. S. government in any capacity while he was Associated Press correspondent at Prague. He said he would stand on the record of his trial and his conviction and sentence.

Wednesday night, however, he issued a statement in New York in which he denied ever spying for the American embassy while a newspaper man in Czechoslovakia.

He said he was "the cause of my trouble" was that he got news tips from sources other than official Czech news outlets, then checked them with the U. S. Embassy in an effort to gain more information.

Practice Explosives

Such practice is routine in Western countries, he said, but under Czech law "can be construed . . . to be espionage."

His purpose in going to the U.S. embassy, Oatis said, was to get information—not to give it.

Says USSR Has Nearly Thousand Aircraft Ready

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia now has between 900 and 1,000 planes in operating units of its long-range bombing force, according to a new estimate of Soviet war power.

These are described as TU-4 four-engined bombers, an improved version of the U. S. Air Force's B-29. They represent only those aircraft in assigned, ready-to-operate squadrons.

The 900-to-1,000 figure does not include members in production or in reserve.

The TU-4s are considered capable of reaching virtually any large industrial city in the U. S. with atomic bombs.

The translations of Soviet warmaking capabilities place the number of Red interceptor planes in operationally-ready units at several thousand. Actually, these figures are fairly definite, but the exact numbers used in official estimates may not be disclosed.

In the past, there have been unofficial estimates that the total number of aircraft in the Red Air Force—of all types and ages—might be about 40,000.

Regular Church Attendance Urged By L.O.L. Speaker

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Continued regular attendance at church to defeat the threat of godlessness was stressed Wednesday by Elias Grey, Toronto, grand master of the Grand Orange Lodge, Ontario West.

Mr. Grey was addressing delegates from Northern and Western Ontario to the annual sessions of the grand lodge.

He said that "the responsibility resting on the present Orange generation is greater even than a great an influx entering our country from Europe. We must be vigilant and suit ourselves like men so our children may be able to enjoy the freedom and I have known."

Delegates marched to the cenotaph at Victoria Park where wreaths were placed by the grand chaplain of the Grand Lodge, Toronto West, and the Grand Chaplain, Toronto East, followed by the grand marshals, J.R. Clarke Sudbury, and R. B. Hamberger, St. Catharines, and W. S. Clipperton, marshal of county of Middlesex.

The St. Laurent government was charged with trying to make Canada another Southern Ireland by W. J. Armstrong, Toronto, editor of the official Canadian Orange organ.

LAYOFF LOOMS FOR 150,000 AUTO WORKERS

Flow of Parts Choked Off by Supplier Strikes

By F. GLENN ENGLE

DETROIT (AP)—Layoffs enrolled or threatened 150,000 or more auto workers today as a dozen major manufacturers reported their flow of parts choked off by supplier strikes.

Ford, Chrysler, Studebaker, Willys, Nash and International Harvester all figured in the mushrooming production cuts.

They attributed their moves to three supplier strikes: at Ford's Canton, O., plant and Troy, Mich., Warner's Warner gear division plants at Muncie, Ind., and at the Budd Company car body stamping plant here in Detroit.

This was the situation:

Ford laid off an unannounced number of employees at its Lincoln-Mercury plant in neighboring Dearborn. Spokesmen said that was the start of layoffs which will make idle 85,000 employees across the country within a few days unless The company said a month-long tie-up at the Canton plant has cut off its only source of forgings for cars and trucks.

Chrysler Corp. 37,000 employees home from its Chrysler, De Soto and Dodge passenger plants here Wednesday. It said a jurisdictional dispute at the Budd plant has halted the inflow of sedan bodies. About 8,000 Budd workers were affected.

Strikes Hurting

Studebaker, Willys, Nash and International Harvester all said the Warner gear strike, also a month old, was hurting them.

Studebaker announced Wednesday night it was cutting from three to two its eight-hour production shifts Monday because of a lack of transmissions normally supplied by Warner. Only cars with automatic transmissions will be assembled, the company said. It was uncertain, a spokesman said, how many Studebakers 25,000 workers might be affected.

Willys halted all car production and completed the layoff of 8,500 workers Wednesday for a lack of transmissions. Another 1,000 employees in non-auto divisions were kept on the job.

Nash had 7,400 workers at Milwaukee and Kenosha, Wis., plants on the layoff list Monday because of the Warner strike.

Vote to Strike

International Harvester has laid off more than 2,000 production workers at Chicago and 1,000 at Louisville, another 1,000 employees in non-auto divisions were kept on the job.

The Canton Ford strike, which also dates back to April 20, involves machinists and carpenters and iron workers around pay rates for various job classifications.

Women MP's Throw Verbal Punches About Manly Art of Self Defence

By KEN BOTWRIGHT

LONDON (Reuters)—Two women members of Britain's Parliament have traded verbal punches in a House of Commons scrap over the subject they just can't agree on—boxing.

Miss Bessie Braddock, 224-pound honorary vice-president of the British Boxing Board of Control Association, put on the gloves to defend the manly art of self defence against an attack from petite, redheaded Dr. Edith Summerskill.

Dr. Edith tweeted Mrs. Braddock's fighting blood by charging that boxing was "sadistic" and should be taxed out of existence. A former Socialist cabinet minister, Dr. Summerskill also opposed levying against a Labor proposal—rejected by the Conservative majority—that no entertainment tax should be paid on boxing because promoters can not make the fight game pay its way in Britain.

"I did not come to this debate as a weak and feeble woman, horrified at the sight of punching or as one untrained in looking upon blood and injury," explained the fast-talking Miss Braddock.

"I am concerned with the relatives of the boys killed in the ring and those whose brains are permanently injured in the sport of professional boxers on the skull."

When she drew a laugh with the punch: "Boxing tournaments are sordid entertainments. It is clear that the only people who are sadistic to the sadistic impulses . . . the women who support pensions in the main. The primitive yells of the crowd make it with these conditions are evidence of what I say."

As Dr. Edith sat down, the House exploded in laughter when Miss Bessie Braddock snorted: "She does not understand at all."

She explained that about 85 per cent of Britain's 3,500 professional boxers come from the poorest districts.

"But not one of them was ever driven into the ring although they may have been dragged out afterwards," she said. "They accept the sport and join in it quite voluntarily."

Swinging hard at Dr. Summerskill, she said: "If I had to choose between listening to the weird and wonderful noises which come from a symphony orchestra or attending a boxing tournament, my choice is always for boxing."

Britain, France U.S. Will Confer, Russia in Later

White House Statement Confirms Meeting Plans

WASHINGTON (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill, President Eisenhower and Premier Mayer of France will meet in Bermuda in June to discuss world problems. It was announced today.

In Paris, Mayer said the conference would discuss the feasibility of a later conference at which Russia would be represented.

The meeting will be held at the invitation of President Eisenhower. Churchill suggested Bermuda as the meeting place.

In London, Reuters reported the date would be June 17.)

However, the Washington announcement did not mention any specific date. It said merely that the meeting would be held in a quiet part of June.

The announcement of the agreement to hold the Bermuda meeting was made at about the same time in London, Washington and Paris.

Churchill told the House of Commons arrangements are being made for the meeting to be held shortly after June 15 although the exact date had not yet been settled.

Churchill said he hoped the meeting would enable the big three to "take a definite step forward to a meeting of the foreign ministers."

This was presumably a reference to a possible Big Four conference with Premier Malenkov of Russia attending. Churchill has previously indicated in his major foreign policy speech in the Commons that he favors a face-to-face meeting of Western and Communist leaders to discuss world problems.

Mayer seemed to agree with this viewpoint. He said the big three meeting could be followed by a meeting of the four powers.

Mayer seemed to agree with this viewpoint. He said the big three meeting could be followed by a meeting of the four powers.

Diplomatic informants said one purpose of the conference undoubtedly is to bring the British and American leaders in session with Churchill and Mayer may go a long way toward dispelling misunderstandings and would dramatically symbolize the extent to which the United States, Britain and France have common interests and common purposes.

The conference will require understanding among the leaders of the Western powers on views from critical Far Eastern issues to difficulties of completing what the United States considers an adequate European defence system.

Denies British Ships Carried Chinese Reds

HONG KONG (AP)—An official of a British steamship company today denied accusations by a U. S. congressional committee that the firm had transported Communist troops.

F. H. Horman-Fisher, Hong Kong manager of the Wheelock Marden Company, said neither his company nor any other British shipping concern he knows of has carried Communist troops.

Horman-Fisher's statement was issued in reply to testimony before a congressional committee by Senator Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin that two British-owned ships were used to transport Red troops along the Chinese coast. The committee was told these vessels later were hired to carry U. S. mutual security administration goods.

Horman-Fisher said the Communists seized three Wheelock Marden ships and are using them in China trade.

Two others confiscated when we tried to withdraw them from China in August, 1950," he said, "have never set out over them. They are the steamships Norina, Romantico and Romanic."

Horman-Fisher said another Wheelock Marden ship, the Wilo, had been reported in China trade, but is no longer the property of Wheelock Marden. He said some outdated ship registers still list various vessels as belonging to the firm.

ference of Churchill, Eisenhower and Mayer.

Agreement on the meeting comes at a time when there has been increasing pressure in Britain for a high-level conference with the Russians aimed at easing East-West tension.

But as far as could be determined here there was no intention or desire on Eisenhower's part to be drawn into a big-four session by bringing in Soviet Premier Malenkov.

Diplomatic informants said one purpose of the conference undoubtedly is to bring the British and American leaders in session with Churchill and Mayer may go a long way toward dispelling misunderstandings and would dramatically symbolize the extent to which the United States, Britain and France have common interests and common purposes.

New Racing Boats Will be Launched In Near Future

Four of the new type of racing boats adopted by the Belleville Yacht Club as its "small craft," will shortly be launched, a club official said today.

The small craft called the "Y Flyer" will be owned and sailed by Ken Ross, John Lennox, Smith and Jack Tubbs with the fourth being owned jointly by Bill Wills and Douglas Mallory.

The "Flyers" are a popular racing boat with clubs along the various yacht clubs along the Lake Ontario watertront, and club officials have long looked to interclub racing regattas featuring these speedy boats.

The handicap committee of the club is holding a meeting at the clubhouse tonight.

STORIES PERSIST

BOWMANVILLE (CP)—Stories persist here about a mysterious reptile supposed to be lurking in a glen behind a rubber manufacturing plant. Workers haven't revealed anything, but opinions of the monster range from a small garter snake to a python. Sceptics say it's a discarded sample from the plant's hose manufacturing department.

Wee Jamie Clarke Leaves Friday For Old 'Hame'

"Wee Jamie" Clarke is on his way "hame" to Auld Scotland and his native folk.

The diminutive piper, "fair trembling wi' excitement," is counting the days until Friday evening when he entrains for Montreal where he will embark on an ocean liner, which will take him to his beloved "Scotia."

Jamie's friends in many walks of life, especially the wee folk of Ameliasburg, have come to it that he will be taken care of financially during his month's holiday in the old country.

The necessary funds are in the hands of the committee in charge and nothing has been left undone to see that the eighty-four year-old piper will enjoy his well-deserved vacation to the utmost.

Jamie will leave the city for Montreal tomorrow evening on the 7.01 flyer from the Canadian National Railway station. He sails aboard the Canadian liner SS Princonia on Saturday morning.

The pipe band of the 6th Anti Tank Regiment, RCA (AA) (1) which Jamie was pipe major and later member for more years than he can remember, will be in charge to give him a typical Scottish send-off. The committee in charge of Jamie's vacation will also be on hand to wish him God-speed.

The many friends of Jamie, and they are legion, will undoubtedly want to be present when Jamie leaves after the people and city he has loved for many years. He will be gone for approximately a month.

"Long may his lum reek."

R.G. Le Tourneau To be Guest Of Commission

R. G. LeTourneau, who will conduct a series of evangelistical meetings in this city, beginning on June 27th, will be the guest of the Industrial Commission of Belleville at the Quinte Hotel on the evening of his arrival. Invited guests will be the Mayor and members of the Board of Control, members of the Chamber of Commerce, leading industrialists of the city and members of the group who are sponsoring his meetings here. The decision to tender one of the leading industrialists of the United States a civic welcome was made at a meeting today of the commission, under the chairmanship of Alderman Arthur Roper.

Mr. LeTourneau, in opening his first campaign in the United States, took God into partnership with him and his relationship has existed through the years. He finds, time-from a busy life to bring the message of God and the wonders of that partnership. He said that a speaker can be a forceful message to deliver in business life he manufactures heavy road building construction companies and has five plants that the present time in the United States but as yet has not entered the Canadian field. Some few days ago he gave a factory fully equipped and valued at $3,000,000 to a municipality in the States.

Arrangements were made at the meeting for the attendance of the members of the Commission at the Tent Fair in Toronto from June 1st to 12th inclusive. Don Kingston, secretary of the commission, will be in charge and every endeavor will be made to visit plants and booklets, describing the industrial set-up in this city will be distributed to the manufacturers.

A letter will be written to the inter-service club council requesting that the signs at both ends of the city, carrying information respecting the services clubs in the city be either taken down or repaired. At the present time they are in a bad state of repair.

Two prospects for the establishment of an industry in the city were discussed by the meeting, but no announcement will be made in the near future.

Must Move Cars On Market Days

Motorists using the local market square for all-night parking will have to have their vehicles moved from there, it was decided this Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday markets, in word passed by market attendant James Matthews.

Mr. Matthews noted that during the winter and early spring when there is little or no outside market during week days, motorists' autos left parked on the market caused little inconvenience. Now, however, with the market again in full swing on Tuesday and Thursday, it will be necessary to have the market clear. Any cars left on the market which interfere with farmers' stands will be towed away.

Move Could Lead To Reduction In Board Members

A move that could lead to a reduction in the number of public school board members from the present 14 to nine will be made at the next meeting of the Belleville Public School Board.

At Tuesday night's meeting of the board, Fred A. Beeby gave notice that at the next meeting he would move to approach city council with a view to having the board membership reduced. He felt the present board membership of 14 was too large for efficient operation and also noted it was difficult to get a full membership out to meetings.

The motion would also carry a request that school board members be elected by general vote instead of by the ward system as at present. Until two years ago when the Belleville board of education was abandoned allowing formation of a public school board, members had been elected by general vote.

The motion would be in accordance with legislation passed at the last session of the legislature giving municipal councils the authority to submit to electors the question of whether they would be in favor of election of school board members by general vote instead of by the ward system.

If the vote of Belleville electors was in the affirmative, nine school board members would be elected, with three members to retire each year. Members would be elected for a three-year term.

Company Starts Survey Report On College St. Dam

The Kilburn Engineering Company, of Toronto, are commencing a survey report on the proposed College St. dam with the intention of eventually erecting a dam in the vicinity of College Street on the Moira River in order to break up frazil ice and thereby prevent flooding in the business section of Belleville, also while here the company is considering the feasibility of narrowing and deepening the river channel between the C.N.R. and C.P.R. bridges. The estimated cost of this survey report is $8,000, of which 25 per cent of the cost will be paid for by the city of Belleville and 75 per cent by the Ontario Department of Planning and Development.

On June 10, members of the Authority and the staff will take a tour of the river, commencing at Belleville and inspecting the Authority forest in Rungerford township, the historic site of the O'Hara mill in Madoc township, the newly constructed dam on the Moira River at Deloro, which will be officially inspected by the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Planning and Development.

There will be a luncheon in Madoc and a business session in the afternoon.

Coronation Day Parade Plans Now Completed

Plans for the big Coronation Day parade and evening program were finalized at a recent meeting of the committees. Markers for the parade are requested to report to Alderman Angus Duffy, parade marshal, at 6.30 p.m. in the Collegiate campus. It is expected that close to 40 groups will be represented on parade, comprising between 600 and 700 individuals.

The parade is scheduled to move off sharply at 7 p.m. for the fair grounds. Murray Irwin, co-ordinator of floats, reports he has had notification from some organizations that they intend to enter decorated floats in the parade. It is felt a few organizations may be considering entering a decorated float but have not yet notified Mr. Irwin. It is stressed interest, $100 in prize money is being offered for the best decorated float. The Belleville Theatre Guild has kindly consented to lend assistance in costuming and decorating the floats. Any other organization that has a float in the parade is requested to contact Irwin or Mrs. Albert Colgrove as soon as possible.

On arrival at the fair grounds and reviewing will be given, featuring the following bands: The Belleville Boys' Band, RCAF Station Trenton Band; Salvation Army Band; Kinsmen's Boys' Band; Belleville Pipe Band; Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Band; and Queen Mary's Band.

Church, School Week Will Be Observed in City

The week of September 20-27 will be observed by the Belleville public schools as "Church and School Week," it has been decided by members of the public school board.

Mrs. Mrs. Robert McCabe has been appointed general chairman to promote the project and will work in co-operation with the Belleville Ministerial Association.

The idea of "Church and School Week," the motion of which is to get every pupil interested in Sunday School, was introduced to the local school board by Lorne E. Shantz, former chairman of the Kitchener public school board. Members of the board were impressed with the story Mr. Shantz had to tell and conferred with the Ministerial Association which urged participation in the operation of such a program.

Nanny, A Goat-Getting Goat Has Her Own Ideas of Life

"Nanny" is the only animated lawn-mower extant in this district.

The eighteen-months-old goat is also a "light-pipe walker," rhubarb eradicator, steeplechaser, and baseballs player. She can lay down a bunt as good as any major leaguer, and often lands on base.

This black daughter of a bewhiskered Billy and a docile milk-producing "Nanny" makes her home with the family of the Trinidad Leaseholds' staff on lower Front street.

When not cutting up goatish capers, Nanny is the quiet grass cutting companion of two young calves, who probably wonder in a bovine way, what kind of ancestry "Nanny" boasts.

Has Varied Diet

She wanders in, around and about the tanks of the company, blasting her complaint at the "grub" the housing situation, and filling her goatish tummy with succulent blades of grass. Sometimes she varies her diet with a few experimental chewing gum or a handkerchief surreptitiously "snitched" from the hip-pocket of an unsuspecting human, in fact, being of a distaff side in spirit, on occasional chewing – the-rag session.

She is claustrophobic as well as athletic. The other day, getting into a pen with her "concertina" cage" idea of existence, "Nanny" backed up a few feet, bleated her defiance, and rose from a dead gallop over a four-foot fence to freedom.

She roamed the city and finally found herself with the canine company in the city gathering-place of stray pooches, Mr. Charlie Horner's dog pound.

She was an honored guest. She had her own private kennel. Occasionally she was taken on for a walk by Mr. Thorne, who thoughtfully provided a leash. She was fed the goat equivalent of bank and swipe.

Unknown to Mr. Thorne, "Nanny" had visited the family rhubarb patch. She awaited her chance and at the first opportunity stripped off as many stalks as she could. She was caught and put on leash again.

But Mr. Thorne did not know what a rhubarb-juiced nanny goat can do, because the rear on "her hind legs and charged around the garden with Mr. Thorne in tow. The goat led by four lengths at the first turn and was well in the lead when she was finally stopped.

Likes Her Pipe

Back home with her "tanks" again. Nanny resumed her light-pipe walking. She ran mount a four-inch pipe some four feet above the ground and once way, one foot over the other, as cleverly as her mountain counterpart. The boys at the tanks will not be surprised when they attempt to discover that Nanny has travelled the spiral steps to the top of a tank and is on the goatish good morning.

But there is a bit of good in any bad little goat.

Nanny and her two calf pals keep the grass levelled close to the ground around the gasified tanks of the company. By doing this, she reduces if not removes the fire hazard which would result if the grass was allowed to grow and later become dry and like tinder. A stray match, and disastrous results would ensue.

Formerly, the company employed the use of sheep. But if "Nanny" fails to improve her behavior, somebody may get the Trinidad Leasehold's goat.

Long-Handled Collection Boxes Will Be Used at Centennial Year Service

Long-handled collection boxes that have been in constant use for over 125 years will be used to take the collection in St. Paul's United Church on Sunday morning the May 24th. Sunday evening service marking the centennial of the congregation's year celebration of that church.

A year long program of events marking the 100th. anniversary of St. Paul's church has been planned by the pastor, Rev. A. E. Baker.

The collection boxes to be used Sunday evening at St. Paul's were made for use in the Belleville Methodist Church, which is now on the Newburgh circuit, north of Belleville. The church was the scene of the first Methodist conference held in 1828. The original Switzerville church was replaced in 1922 by the present brick structure and the collection boxes have been in continuous use down to the present time. The church observed its 125th. anniversary in 1951.

Public school pupils of S.S. No. 1 Rawdon will take part in an Sunday service at St. Paul's in Stirling, when they will give a demonstration of religious education by repeating memory work. Pupils at the Ridge Road school of Ameliasburg, the 1952 pennant for religious education awarded to them, will be present.

Sales of Feeder Hogs Discontinued In This District

The outbreak of hog cholera in certain townships in southwestern Ontario has had an effect on sales in the Belleville district, it was stated today by Charles Scott of the Belleville Livestock Sales.

Mr. Scott noted that sales of feeder hogs throughout the province had been temporarily discontinued as a measure of guarding against the spread of the disease.

"We turned truck load after truck load of hogs away from our sales barns this week," Mr. Scott said.

Mr. Scott said the sales ban was on feeder type hogs only, which would be transferred to other farms. There is no interruption in the sale of hogs for slaughter at packing plants.

Kiwanians Entertain Large Number Of Visiting Members at Stag Party

Upwards of 300 men, representing 14 Kiwanis Club between Guelph and Kingston along with five other clubs outside the district, gathered at the County Club for the annual stag party sponsored by Lieutenant-Governor Robert Strood and the Belleville Kiwanis Club on Wednesday afternoon.

Plans for the day included the annual golf competition held at the club in the afternoon, followed by the prize presentations, dinner and entertainment in the evening at the Club Commodore.

A total of 58 men took part in the competition for the cup presented annually by the Corby Distillery Ltd. This year the coveted trophy was won by the Kiwanis Club of Kingston. The following four men made up the winning team: Pat Travers, Jake Edwards, Frank Mathews, and Roy Roberts, all of Kingston.

Another major golf prize was taken by Kingston in the tournament. Jake Edwards had the best low score for the 18-hole game. His gross for the 18 holes was an 88. Following close behind was Ted Baker of Trenton who took the second prize with a low 92. The above received prizes at the presentation hour in the evening.

Later the guests helped themselves to a buffet dinner presented by Bill Sinclair of the A and P Store in the city. Entertainment was under the direction of the H. J. McFarland Construction Company. Mr. McFarland was present and spoke briefly. He stated he was happy to be able to attend and to have an opportunity of presenting the entertainment at such an obviously successful stag. He also congratulated the members of the Belleville Club for the work they had done in organizing the inter-club stag.

Following his talk, Mr. McFarland was presented with a brightly colored vest in appreciation of his courtesy in supplying the entertainment. He was introduced by Fred Ward and warmly thanked by Harold Carruthers.

Guest of honor was Melvin Osborne, governor of the Ontario, Quebec and Maritimes Kiwanis district.

The Corby Cup was presented the winning team from Kingston by Kiwanian Wilfrid Lapointe, manager of the Corby Distillery plant in Corbyville. In the award section, a vote of thanks was extended Clare Hugo, president of the Country Club, for making the club's facilities available to the Kiwanians. Bill Sinclair was also given a vote of thanks for presenting the buffet dinner.

Mayor to Declare Lawn Bowling Week in City

Open bowling will be the order of the day for the Belleville Bowling Club for the remainder of the week with the usual Saturday afternoon jitney and the official opening which was to have been held on the holiday, will take place on Monday evening with a mixed jitney. This action was decided at the spring meeting of the club held in the clubrooms on Wednesday night with Gerald B. Hyde, president, in the chair.

The women's section of the club was thanked for the donation of $150 and also praised for the splendid job they did in cleaning the club house for the summer's activities. A lengthy report on membership was given by chairman, Cleo B. Colling, and it is hoped that the campaign for 1953, forward will be materially increase the roster of the club. Membership fees are high and with the membership now available, it is quite a problem for the club to remain solvent.

A declaration by the Mayor, which will make June 1st to 6th, "Lawn Bowling Week" in the city will give all citizens an opportunity to observe the working of the club and become sufficiently interested to join as a member. There will be instruction given to the newcomers and competitions will be arranged so that everyone may participate. The members will be asked to show every courtesy and hospitality to the visitors.

The club will hold a mixed jitney on Coronation Day and the money derived will be used for the work of restoring sight to crippled children through the provincial organization. Club games will start immediately following "Bowling Week" while the schedule for the complete in the district games will list their names on the bulletin board.

There was a lengthy discussion on several problems facing the club and all leaned out to the satisfaction of the members.

Two Youths Given Suspended Sentence

A year's suspended sentence, together with payment of costs amounting to $16.50 each and directions to report regularly to the probation officer, was the penalty handed out this morning by Magistrate T. Y. Wills to two local youths charged with causing a disturbance at Jury's restaurant east of the city.

The two youths, Bruce Wood, and Ray Hodgkinson, both of Belleville, pleaded guilty to using foul language in the presence of three young Picton girls who were visiting the restaurant.

"The proper punishment for an offence of this nature would be the strap," observed Magistrate Wills as he passed sentence. "However, the law will not allow me to order the strap."

The maximum penalty for the offence is $100 fine or three months in jail.

Two Korean War Veterans Receive Warm Welcome on Arrival Home

MARMORA

Marmora—Marmora's two native sons to have a part in the Korean conflict arrived home safe and sound by the noonday bus on Wednesday to the intense joy of their parents, sisters and brothers. At both homes flags and bunting indicated there was something special in progress and the passer-by read the sign "Welcome Home, Son" to understand that the 21-year-old son in each case was back in his native heath to receive the much awaited welcome.

About 15 months service in Korea has been given by Carl Gray, B. Battery of the R.C.H.A. and his cousin Kenneth Reynolds of A Battery of the same arm of the services. In that period, neither was hospitalized. They arrived at Seattle, Wash., on May 15 with their unit and speak eloquently of the fine reception received there and at other points en route home.

At both homes relatives and friends literally poured in to the hand clasp of welcome and to give admiring glances to the attractive souvenirs from Korea which the young warriors had brought as proudly as for the members of their families. All their proud relatives could say was, "It seems like a dream."

They are on a 60-day leave, following which they report to Winnipeg. They have no knowledge as to what assignment awaits them there but with the one there is an idea that they might eventually be sent to Germany. The country they have left they describe in terms suggesting it is a large wilderness and one part in particular of hilly terrain as a smooth graveyard of Koreans. They were mostly in eastern and northern Korea and for the latter four months were with the American forces.

They found Japan interesting on a five-day leave spent there and remarked on the beauty of its flowers. The most interesting of the souvenirs brought home by Carl is a walking stick which can be taken apart to form a billiard cue. It is beautifully embossed and has the names of Japanese cities imprinted on it.

At the Reynolds' home where they were on display a display box attracted much attention.

Child Injured In Accident

Gregory Tinney, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tinney of Deseronto is in hospital today following an accident in front of his parents' home early Wednesday evening.

The little boy sufferred a broken leg and scalp injuries when, according to Chief Constable W. S. McTaggart of Deseronto, he ran out in front of an auto driven by Mrs. Ina Thompson, also of Deseronto.

Mrs. Thompson was in the act of bringing her vehicle to a halt at the corner in an intersection when the boy appeared in front of her car. He was struck by the left front end of the bumper and knocked to the road. He was rushed to hospital in the city and admitted.

The chief constable said no charges will be laid.

Two Given Treatment

Two other persons were treated in the emergency ward of the hospital Wednesday evening and allowed to return home after treatment. Melvin McGeachey, Frankford, was taken to the hospital suffering a deep gash in knee following an accident in the Bata Shoe Company plant. Several stitches were required to close the wound.

Eleanor Shannon, 8, of Plainfield cut her leg while playing Wednesday evening. She was taken to the hospital where stitches were necessary to close the gash in her leg.

ARGUMENT IS CONFIRMED

This week's reader took issue with our contention that no one could estimate within some hundreds of millions of dollars what it would cost to underwrite a national health scheme.

This reader was fully entitled to argue the point because he happens to sign himself, "Fred Young, CCF provincial organizer," and it was the CCF notion of a national health scheme that we had discussed. It was our contention that no one in the CCF has the foggiest idea what it would cost to provide full scale health insurance for the Canadian people. Mr. Young confirmed this, but, of course, he did not admit it.

He pointed out that we have the experience of a number of countries on which to base a cost estimate. And the whole point of our discussion had been that the experience in Great Britain revealed that the estimated costs of its national health program was about one-third of the actual cost once it was in operation.

Mr. Young cited quite a few figures but they did nothing to enlighten us. Indeed, he proceeded to discount all his figures by the argument that Canadians are not now getting the health care they need. Yet it is on basis on what is now being spent that Mr. Young would establish the cost of a health plan. And he goes on to say, "a national health plan would put the emphasis on preventive medicine. People would seek medical care before they are critically ill."

It is this premise, of course, that leaves the socialists standing on their hands. They might better say they are simply in favor of a national health insurance regardless of the cost. Mr. Young went almost that far when he concluded his letter with the question: "Can we afford not to have a National Health Plan?"

Only two weeks ago in the House of Commons the veteran CCF-er from Cape Breton, Clare Gillis, gave the complete socialist answer to a national health plan when he shouted: "Let the taxpayers weep and bleed!" With national health insurance we would merely be "re-channeling" the money that is now being spent on health. And the CCF-ers maintain this stand despite all the evidence to the contrary.

How vulnerable a health plan can become was well demonstrated in the United Kingdom when it was learned that hundreds of thousands of citizens of Europe spent their holidays there and qualified thereby to have their teeth removed and plates supplied at the expense of the British taxpayer.

ROMMELL'S PAPERS

Britons have a sense of history which is unique in our times. It is this rare capacity for objectivity which has made Erwin Rommell a hero in the eyes of the world so soon after the late great conflict which was so wholly charged with enmity on all sides.

This was shown long before now but it is fully revealed in the presentation of the Rommell Papers by Captain B. H. Liddell Hart, British military expert and historian. In a review of this volume Time magazine says: "When Lloyd George, David, Winston and Churchill had published laudatory status among his Anglo-Saxon foes. By now he has a safe niche among those defeated military commanders—Lee and Napoleon are outstanding examples—who have contributed to their conquerors in the esteem of military experts."

Time did not add that this estimate of the defeated general is one which has been drawn by British historians and it is the sort of thing which just would not have occurred to any of his American contemporaries.

"It is early and late in the battle," the campaign in the desert, Prime Minister Churchill remarked in the House of Commons: "We have a very daring and skillful opponent against us, and, may I say across the havoc of war, a gallant foe."

Rommell's papers reveal that he, too, was no less ready to give credit to an able adversary. He differed from Montgomery in tactical warfare. He was a pessimist who adhered to a policy of hitting first, hitting hard and keep hitting. In a post-mortem note on his ultimate defeat at El Alamein, Rommell had this to say about his British foe:

"Montgomery did not leave the slightest detail out of his calculations . . . His principle was to fight on land unless he is certain he could win it. Of course, that is a method which will only work given material superiority; but that he had . . . It would be difficult to assess his conduct of the battle in terms of Clausewitz."

Rommell's son wrote a final, gripping chapter to his father's papers describing their last meeting. To his son, the general said: "I am glad that I had your mother and that I shall be dead in a quarter of an hour. The house is surrounded and Hitler is charging me with high treason. In view of my services in Africa . . . I am to have the chance of dying by poison . . . It's fatal in three seconds. If I accept, none of the usual steps will be taken against my family. It's all been prepared to the last detail. You'll be given a funeral . . . In a quarter of an hour you will receive a telephone call from the Wagnerschule reserve hospital to say I've had a brain seizure on the way to a conference."

DROWN THAT FLY

Swatting—the time-honored system of personal mosquito control—is now definitely old fashioned. If you want to be in step with the times this summer, you will drown that bug. According to the N.Y. Journal of Commerce, a new chemical has been developed for that purpose. Called EDOX, it reduces the surface tension of water to such an extent that a hatching mosquito actually drowns.

MIRACLE DAYS

Those are the miracle days
When soil and sun and rain
Shame man and his feeble ways
With beauty and scent again.

And exquisite designs appear,
Exceiling man's skill and thought.

This is the time called Spring
When marvelous works are wrought!

This is the time called Spring
When nature taunts boastful man
With, "Make me a bird to sing
Or a violet if you can."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

MAY 31, 1933

Mr. Philip Denyes, who resides with his son, Mr. Fred Denyes on his farm on the Trent Road, celebrated the 91st. anniversary of his birth yesterday by getting up early and assisting with the chores about the farm. The family wanted to arrange a party for him, but he requested not to have one, telling them to "Wait until I am a hundred, then we can have one." However relatives and friends, of whom he has many, showered him with messages of congratulations and best wishes, Mr. Denyes was born in Thurlow township and was a family of ten of which he alone is living. Farming was his life's work and in this he was successful.

Mrs. E. R. Abbott, of this city, is spending a few days in Toronto.

Misses Helen Gray, Florence Ainsworth and Helen Kirby the Bell Telephone staff are spending a few days in Toronto.

Mr. Austin Walter is home from Boston, Mass., to spend a few months.

Miss Ethel Carr and Miss Bessie Doolittle are spending a few days in Toronto with the former's sister, Mrs. W. Crawford.

An old time spelling match was held last evening by the members of Epworth League in connection with the Tabernacle Methodist Church in which forty persons took part. The pastor, the Rev. W. G. Clarke, called the words to be spelled. Quite a number of the contestants stood up well against the weighty words; the prize, however, was finally won by Miss Mills, of Queen Victoria School.

A Sunday School baseball league has been formed with the following church schools taking part: Bridge St. Methodist Church, Tabernacle Methodist Church and Victoria Ave. Baptist Church. The officers are: President, Ralph Morden; vice-president, Arthur Bell; secretary - treasurer, C. E. Powers; executive committee, Dr. Gilbert, Wm. Sprague, Hinchey, G. R. Powers.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Among those who will be present press chief: indeed, he became much more than that. He was, in fact, the personal adviser to their majesties in the whole field of public relations, travelled on the royal train, not on the press train; and became thus more intimately acquainted with the royal family than have been the case with, any but the members of their personal entourage.

When the then Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh made their royal tour two years ago, Walter Thompson had retired. Hundreds of Canadian newspapermen from all across Canada had attended the great dinner in Montreal which signalized his retirement. But it was Walter who had to come forward and take charge again for the wonderfully successful tour of the new Queen.

How Walter Thompson got his seats in the Abbey was not due to his personal acquaintanceship with Buckingham Palace. Doubtless he would have had no trouble there. But he will be in the Abbey as the representative of the board and membership of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association. He was asked him to do them this honor. And he won't have to write a line. His long Billy head off on his own in the oversea trip.

Walter, of course, began his news-paper career as a youth on the St. James's Gazette in London half a century ago, and one of his earliest recollections is of helping supervise the arrangements for the funeral of Queen Victoria. In 1911, he moved over to Canada and joined the Montreal Witness and the Montreal Herald, but he supposed that royalty and all its trappings were behind him forever.

But no Canadian has been more caught up in things royal than Walter Thompson. He left Journalism to become public relations officer of the Canadian National Railways. And his first experience was the royal tour of the Prince of Wales, on which he functioned as press officer, supplying the correspondents with the Prince and newspapers right across the country. When King and Queen made their 1939 tour, Walter again was elected as public relations officer. And now he has been called upon to do the same thing for the present royal visitors.

Henry Ford's Spelling

(Pittsburgh Bulletin)

Henry Ford derided history as "more or less the bunk," but he was a miser in collecting and keeping it. An enormous mass of historical material, numbering not less than 5,000,000 documents and 25,000 photographs, accumulated in his 56-room house in Dearborn, Mich., and probably will spend years evaluating them as a record of life for the first half of the twentieth century.

Among them are many papers revealing the interest that Ford at times in which he lived. They prove, among other things, that Henry Ford never bothered to take spelling seriously. He wrote that his earliest engine, built at the age of 16, did not develop "mutch" power, and that its fuel was "coal." During World War II he expressed his "pitty" for warmongers. His many "experiaments" might prove a conscientious proofreader crazy.

That history Ford could have said — perhaps he did say it — that he could hire good spellers for less than he paid his factory workers.

Mr. Chafe's Toy Drum

(Hamilton Spectator)

The judicious outburst by a Winnipeg magistrate against the Empire Day hoop being "a lot of baloney" is more a reflection on our educational system than it is on any deficiency in Canada's national spirit. J. W. Chafe, of the prairie city's Alexandra School, told a group of students last Friday that the observance of the day of its own and added "maybe we should hand you a drum because tens of thousands of Canadians don't know their own country in a hundred."

As he, along with Dr. A. E. N. Gurney, wrote Canada's history as a textbook used by last-year high school students, he knows whereof he speaks — tens of thousands of young Canadians may be well addicted to trying to read their own fictionhood means. Mr. Chafe suggests that Empire Day be dated as the penny-farthing bicycle and the Model-T. His acid-covered, double-shoulder touchiness about Canada is also dated—pathetically dated. Naturally there is no advertise itself with the beating of the schoolboy drum. The wall is an old and tiresome one.

One reason we haven't a "distinctive" flag of our own is that Canadians cannot agree on what kind of a flag it is. Another is that some parts of the country — in Quebec, for example — they don't want the Union Jack to appear on it in any way. Among other reasons there is a deep-rooted lack of respect for the flag that emblazons the world's most hated British people, and is inextricably linked with the most inspired political myth of history. It can scoff at our past, and even reject our present, but it is a sign of retionhood it is a strange weave. Its fabric is said to reveal weakness; it is usually the reverse. Canadians do not have to be told that Canada is a nation. Nationhood means. No new flag is needed to tell Canadians and did they have one.

None thumbing is a poor gesture for nationhood. There is more in Canada's annals to give pride than there is in those of a Napoleon, writhing in the throes of defeat, or Bismarck boasting about our national destiny. Mr. Chafe is only parroting a type of Anglophobia when he confirm a feeling of inadequacy. Most Canadians are indifferent about their present, optimistic enough about their future to take appreciative enough of the role played by our ancestors in building the country, to relegate this nonsense to vaudeville. If Mr. Chafe could only feel the pride the Union Jack, as if it were some blight on the landscape he should be a little more coherent —and mature—in giving his reasons—and the alternative.

Young Businessman

(Windsor Star)

A young businessman recently visited Ottawa, England, by air, visit relatives. He was 11-year-old Billy Bishop, grandson of Captain, born overseas of a war-time marriage. He had gone with his father, but with his own money, and he still had some left over for the return journey.

Young Billy is a newsboy, and a smart one. He decided he would spend the trip on his own, and he didn't have to ask anybody but his own money.

This illustrates the advantages gained by boys and girls who have paper routes. It isn't much, but they earn money, though this is valuable training and often a very real help to family finances. The experience gained in handling money, and in dealing with people is of great benefit in many ways besides self-reliance. His parents have reasons about letting Billy head off on his own

Rifle Problem

(Fort William Times-Journal)

Ever since the end of the war Britain and the United States have been considering the best weapon for standard weapons. The advantages of standardization are too obvious to require argument. Britain and America troops use different calibre guns, it will be necessary to retain in service two lines of supply, etc., etc.

It might be that two small progress would be say.

But experience is proving otherwise. It is not impossible to obtain agreement. A typical instance is the rifle. In the early days of the last World War the British used the Lee-Enfield with a .303 calibre bullet. The Americans used the Gerand rifle with a .300 calibre bullet.

Search for a common standard resulted in the British gun with a calibre of .280. The smaller rifle was considered more suitable to lighter to carry. The Americans however desire a .300 calibre rifle.

Speaking on these snarled negotiations in the British House of Commons, Mr. Churchill said: "I have informed the Prime Minister of Canada and Bellgum in the development of a modified .280 rifle which has the Enfield-Garand military characteristics. This is the present stage of the matter. Ultimately, will have the same cartridge case and every rifle will be of the .300 round being developed by the United States. Although the United States has the domestic trials of the new round the arrangements will be made within the next six months, further consideration on the question of a standard round will be necessary in Nato."

The Nato has been made by Nato of the calibre of the new rifle. The rifles being developed in any of the four countries could easily be adapted by replacement of the barrel, to fire it. The new British rifle has already been manufactured to the new round in either calibre.

Room For Customers

(Calgary Herald)

Life in Alberta's beer parlors, after May 15, is going to be a little more pleasant for those who get in.

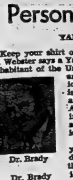
A new ruling of the Liquor Board provides that only two square feet of floor space will have to be allowed for each table and four square feet for each chair, there is no control in regard to over-crowding.

We are not inclined to think that the demand for beer is going to be affected because the seating capacity of the beer parlors is being increased. In fact, there is no advantage in having an interesting era of queues outside the parlors, with thirsty customers patiently awaiting the evacuation of each 12½ square feet of floor space.

Of course the beer-parlors in Calgary are grossly overcrowded. But the cure for the prime reason why there is not in the whole city a single place where a man which could be classified even loosely as a quiet, pleasant, nice place to enjoy, a glass of beer,

Tests For Cyclists

(Montreal Star)



The bicycle and riding tests now being carried out by the Protestant School Board and two Montreal suburbs in the west end should go a long way to make youngsters on bikes less of a hazard to themselves than many of them now are. There are a good many boys, and a few girls as well, who behave in traffic like fiends and mosquitoes. They dart in and out of the traffic stream with an unpredictability that is appalling. They wheel and float about on their bikes in a way which would be unsafe in a country lane, let alone on a crowded city street.

The main purpose of the tests is, we presume, to give bicycle-owning children a sense of responsibility. Apparently, like an orphaly one, like to be taken seriously, and the institution of tests which will be the sole object must be gratifying to many of them. The badge is also a gratifying moment of self-importance can be only good. Children given a sense of practical citizenship, quite apart from the fact that they may also be taught something about their own security and the best way of observing it.

It does not do to maintain that our bicycle-riding population on the stark basis of survival of the fittest. Accidents do, as a rule, avoided by following a few simple rules. Hence a moment will be a sigh of relief that somebody is doing something to make the streets safer for the children the family will get home safely for supper.

YANKEES HAVE DIRTY TEETH

Dr. Brady

Keep your shirt on stupid. Dr. N. Webster says a Yankee is "any inhabitant of the United States," and in my lexicon, a Yankee is any inhabitant of North America, which includes Canada and Mexico.

Now I hope you will understand that this is not my idea. I think Yankee teeth are as clean as they can be, considering the widespread neglect of care of the teeth in Yankeeland. The fact that Yankee teeth are attention is inherent in the slogan dirty is inherited by a huckster back in the gay nineties (gay, eh? not on Chapel Street in Canadiagua, where the poorest family in town, name of Brady, lived on thirty dollars a month, all seven of us, plus the cow, chickens, pigs, geese, tons, squash, corn, peas, beans and stuff we grew on unused land of others, or since enjoyed better nutrition)—like slogan "A clean mouth never decays."

Yankee teeth are more subject to decay than the teeth of any other civilized people, with the possible exception of the Baglish.

American dentists have based their prefabricated view of dental hygiene on this sales slogan for many years, to the sad results of America, not I, that make the insinuation.

The people of the United States and the people of England—I don't know but, I have a sneaky suspicion that Canadians and Mexicans are more fortunate than we—squander more money and time on tooth brushes and on any other civilized people and have more tooth decay than any other civilized people.

Now this is irretrievable fact cramp the style of the dentist who writes books and beautifully illustrated pieces for popular magazines and for the daily Yankee public just how often to brush the teeth and with just what sort of twist of the wrist.

The inhabitants of Tristan da Cunha have no use for either tooth brushes or dentifrices — or didn't up to early 1940, when I believe they have, or for many years had virtually no tooth decay at all.

But, smacks, children, any dentist will admit, with ready-made answers can tell you that of course Tristan people, like primitive savages elsewhere, can live on foods that are not sufficiently refined for the human's digestion...and the chances are that it will sound authentic.

Mind, now, shi ——— bah, bear with me, sibling — that I do not believe tooth brushing does any harm if it is done gently and with nothing other than plain toilet soap as detergent or you are not in danger of getting your eyes cleaner or more comfortable in your mouth. Gently brush your teeth, brush 'em as often as you like. And, say, why not use a piebald soap, if your tonsils a-yearning for it, or your tonsils a-scrubbing once or twice a day? Then you are well on the road to a gastric lavage as part of the morning toilet, and for that matter ... er ...

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE OBVIOUS

The obvious thing to do is always the best thing. Many a long conference or convention discussion could easily and quickly be ended if people would only recognize the obvious) solution. And since the obvious is usually an obvious solution—one most people miss.

Obvious is but another name for common sense. You don't cut corners, but go right to the heart and core of the matter when you look the obvious thing in the face and accept it. The Allies, and during the last World War the British in particular, were forever attracted by it. We are forever being attracted by it, and even life itself. The rules of success and a good life are not at all complicated and easily spotted, if a little thinking is used.

Some one someone is going to write an interesting personal story about Henry Ford and his genius for putting his finger upon the obvious and important and saving time and effort. It was uncanny the way he did it. He surrounded himself with able and expert men, but none of them approached a problem in the new words and with such sure knowledge. Some even called him "ignorant"—but no one ever built a business empire as he did and left it with such magic! Just to talk with him in one of his old-fashioned chairs was an unforgettable experience.

I like that story told about the head of Dr. Johnson and his old school mate, Edwards, field secretary of a philosophery. Dr. Johnson, I have tried too much time be a philosopher but I don't know, cheerfulness was always breaking in!" Can anyone think of a more way to become a philosopher than to live by the simple rules that govern happiness? I have a book on philosophy, composed of the sayings of many heralded men, but I can't get head or tail out of it! I like the book type that says, "Here is welcomes "cheerfulness."

The rules of nature are not complex. If we live by them, we learn the shortest and happiest way of life—the obvious way. The smile travels a longer distance

Strength for the Day

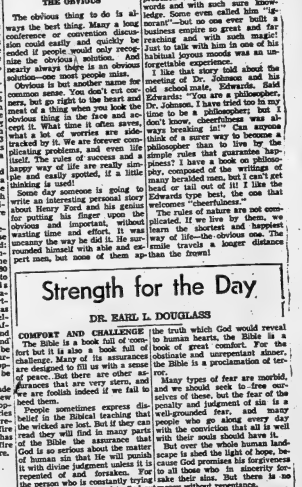
COMFORT AND CHALLENGE



The Bible is a book full of comfort but it is also a book full of challenge. Many of its assurances are designed to fill us with a sense of peace. But there are other assurances that are very disturbing. We are frightened by them and need them.

People sometimes express disbelief in the Biblical teaching that the wicked are lost. But if they can read they will find in many places of the Bible the assurance that God is so serious about the matter of human sin that He will punish it with divine judgment unless it is repented of and forsaken. For to the person who is constantly trying to live a better life and to find more the truth which God would reveal to human hearts, the Bible is a great source of comfort. For the obstinate and unrepentant sinner, however, it is a source of terror.

Many types of fear are morbid, and we should seek to free ourselves of these, but the fear of the consequences of sin is a well-grounded fear, and many people with the conviction that all is well with their souls should have it.

But even the subtle human landscape is shed the light of hope, because the God promises forgiveness to all those who in sincerity forsake their sins. There is no sin

Report of General Inspection Made at Belleville Collegiate

The teaching staff, with a median of thirteen years of experience, has a good balance of youth and maturity. This is shown in the following table:

Years of teaching experience
Years	0-5	6-10	11-15	16-20
Teachers	13	9	7	7
Years	21-25	26-30	Plus
Teachers	5	3	2

Nine teachers have been appointed to the staff within the past two years; several of these had previous teaching experience.

Those who lack complete qualifications for their subjects they teach are: Miss Norma Abrahamson, physical education and Mr. Cecil Hurst, machine shop.

Quality of Teaching

At the meeting of the board and the advisory vocational committee, the work of the inspectors was discussed, with particular reference to that of the newly-appointed members of the staff.

The overall quality of the teaching is satisfactory. Only in only three cases was the work considered to be below average; these were appointed before the inspectors have experienced some distinctly in adapting their methods to the pupils entrusted to them; one experienced teacher has been severely handicapped by poor accommodation.

Perhaps one of the best indications of the keenness of the staff is the type of in-service training which is being undertaken. At least seven teachers took summer courses last year and a considerable amount of professional reading is done, and teachers have discussions within their departments in which much worthwhile ideas gained through their study; curriculum subject committees meet frequently; and heads of departments have been given to visit each other to observe teaching, with a view to stimulating similar action on the part of younger members of the staff.

Prior to our visit, the staff, through the principal, submitted a number of problems, and these were discussed in a general staff meeting. In addition, individual inspectors met with the teachers of different departments to discuss topics of more specialized interest.

Audio-Visual Aids

Another indication of good teaching is the excellent use being made of audio-visual and other aids.

The board has been generous in its provision of modern equipment, and a special staff committee is charged with responsibility for the care of equipment and for assisting teachers in its use. Reports are made of suitable films, which are obtained from the department of education, local film societies and other sources.

Films, film strips and slides are particularly valuable in the teaching of art. It is suggested that their use would be facilitated by the provision of curtains to darken the art room.

Since November 1, all school broadcasts have been recorded, and they are used as required in the classrooms. The public address system is used to advantage; it is particularly valuable for transmitting the assembly programs to the classes which cannot be accommodated in the auditorium.

The local radio station has donated an hour each Saturday for thirteen weeks and pupils are already at work, with staff advisers, in preparing the broadcasts.

Development of Pupils

Throughout our inspection, we were impressed by the extremely fine behavior, the courtesy, and the co-operativeness of the pupils.

In their class work, they are acquiring good habits of work, not only in speaking and writing but in the exercise of skills developed in many of their subjects. Teachers provide opportunities in the classrooms and in many and varied school activities for pupils to develop a sense of responsibility and to assume active leadership.

These qualities were notably displayed in the school assemblies. The programs were of exceptionally fine quality, for they were carefully planned by the pupils under the supervision of a capable committee. Of greater significance was the fact that the pupils were in complete charge at all times, and that the audience was completely self-disciplined.

To the inspectors, one of the most interesting and informative events was a meeting with the presidents of the eighteen student organizations. Each person gave a thumb-nail sketch of his own association and its activities. Significant facts revealed were: pupils may not be members of more than two organizations without permission; through the Hi-Y Club, the Radio Club and the Key Club, contacts are made with the local public; service to the school and to worthy causes in the community is a motivating influence.

We were much impressed by the ability of the students, their sense of responsibility, their confidence in the organizations they represented, and their apparent conviction that it is much better to have a small group of active members than a large group of less-interested students.

A similar review at a board meeting would give the members an intimate picture of the place of student organizations in the life of the school.

Community Relations

There is a close relationship between the Collegiate and School Club and the school. A number of the teachers are active in the organization, and a parents' night with an attendance of upwards of one hundred, gave parents an opportunity to meet the teachers. One representative meet is the annual dentistry dinner provided by the Home and School Club to the graduating class.

The service clubs of the city give active support to the school. The Kiwanis Club furnishes guidance books to the library, and provides scholarships; the Rotary Club sends a senior student to the Rotary students' convention at Ottawa; the Kinsmen's Club has given assistance to the school band; and the Y's Men's Club assists the Y.M.C.A. and provides scholarships.

Guidance Services

Shortly before the inspection, a visit was paid to the school by Mr. W. E. Bowstead, who is the guidance branch of the department of education.

Mr. Bowstead, who joined the inspectors for their meeting with the principal and the advisory vocational committee, commented favorably upon the organization which has been developed in guidance work, the close liaison with the elementary schools, and the beneficial contacts being maintained with the community in the community organizations. "On the whole," he reported, "the guidance program is proving itself through the services rendered to students and the community. The lack of adequate accommodation in the guidance office is unfortunate, but little can be done until further school accommodation is available."

Mr. Bowstead suggested that: (1) if possible, the grade 9 course in occupations should be taught by a staff member with training in guidance; (2) the promotion committees for the various grades, which meet several times a year, and become thoroughly familiar with the pupils, should be encouraged to do some follow-up work with respect to dropouts and graduates.

Examination System

Three sets of examinations are held during the year. In the first examination mark, suitable credit is given for previous examinations and for day-by-day work during the year.

Pupils with an average of 80 per cent are not usually required to write the final papers, but in grade 11 pupils must write Algebra, Science and History, and in grade 12 pupils must write all the papers.

A good system of supervision is maintained. Department heads are responsible for maintaining a fair level of marks in all subjects.

Luncheon Facilities

The cafeteria and lunch room facilities are inadequate for the large number of pupils requiring accommodation at the noon hour. The kitchen is small and inefficiently equipped, and the five lunch rooms, which are also used as classrooms, are located on the third floor and in the basement.

A good menu is prepared daily, under the supervision of Miss Grout, and the meals are well cooked and appetizing. A comparatively small number of pupils purchase a complete meal; many bring their lunches and supplement them with milk and other items.

Supervision of the lunchrooms and the noontime activities places a heavy burden on staff members. They realize the importance of this work, however, for many of the rural pupils have no opportunity to participate in extra-curricular activities other than those offered at noon.

Health Services

The health services consist of an annual T.B. testing survey, physical examination for pupils on teams, and the services of a doctor for one-half hour weekly. The doctor examines pupils referred to him by teachers.

When compared with the minimum program suggested by the department of health and the department of education for schools of 1,000-1,400 pupils, it is apparent that these services are inadequate. It is to be hoped that the improved services now available to the elementary schools of the city will be extended to the secondary schools.

The "sick room" is newly decorated, and is equipped with toilet facilities. However, it lacks first-rid equipment and suitable furniture and furnishings.

Office Services

An inspection of the work of the office staff indicates that excellent records are maintained and that the affairs of the school are efficiently reported. Valuable permanent records, including those in daily use, are safeguarded in the vault.

Three staff members handle a heavy volume of administrative, secretarial and clerical work. They are loyal, efficient, and highly co-operative; their efforts contribute greatly to the smooth functioning of the school.

Condition of Buildings

Extensive improvements have been made to the building within the past year. The parapet on top of the school has been repaired and the exterior of the building has been repointed and repaired. The improvement in lighting has been extended to eleven classrooms; this is the completion of a major project. The auto shop, machine shop and woodworking shop have been rewired to enable new equipment to be safely used, and to replace wiring of insufficient capacity and in unsafe condition. Six classrooms have been redecorated; and the floors of the gymnasium have been sanded and resurfaced. Other improvements in plant include the rebuilding of one stoker, major repairs to one boiler, and the extension of the school inter-communication system.

Mention should be made of the excellent work done by Mr. Wilson in the improvement of the auto shop.

In future planning, consideration should be given to the redecoration of the washrooms and showers, to the refinishing of the terrazzo floors and the floors of the boys' shower, to the elimination of the remainder of the overhead drive in the machine shop, and to the improvement of storage facilities in the physical education department.

The members of the caretaking staff appear to be diligent, conscientious and co-operative. Their work is made more difficult by conditions at many of the floors, which, formerly oiled, are being dried out so that they may be refinished. At the time of the inspection, the campus was very littered with paper, a condition for which the fire department prevented widespread damage.

The disposal chute has been replaced in metal, and the damage has been repaired. However, it should be pointed out that the fire door immediately adjacent to the chute is often failed to close.

Several other conditions were noted which may be hazardous: (1) Large accumulations of obsolete and discarded furniture and equipment in storage areas in the basement and other parts of the building;

(2) Wooden partitions in the basement welding shop;

(3) Basement room 100, adjacent to the boiler room, which has only one exit, up a narrow stairs.

At the request of the inspectors, a visit was paid to the school by members of the fire department, and a fire alarm was sounded. The prompt and orderly evacuation of the building during the fire drill was praiseworthy.

In discussion with the Fire Chief, the following points were agreed upon:

(1) That the teachers be instructed to check their classrooms, door doors and windows, follow their classes outside, and that the numbers of the class are accounted for;

(2) That specified teachers should be responsible for checking all washrooms.

(3) That the fire department would check the building for possible fire hazards, such as those mentioned above.

The inspectors would like to express their appreciation for the thorough co-operation and sound advice given by the Fire Chief and his staff.

Other Hazards

The section of the basement corridor housing pupils' lockers has a number of low pipes and projections; these are dangerous.

There is always a danger of injuries to workmen when they are handling heavy equipment and supplies by converting the window of the caretakers' storeroom into a door, and by building a sloping ramp to it, the movement of supplies would be facilitated and accidents might be prevented.

At the conclusion of the inspection, the inspectors were pleased to have the opportunity of meeting with the board and advisory vocational committee to discuss these matters and recommendations. Present at the meeting were:

Mr. Clifford Barber, chairman of the board; Mr. A. E. Drysdale, chairman of the advisory vocational committee; Mrs. Greta Morden, Miss J. Tickell, Messrs. W. F. Baldwin, Brooks Allen, Arnold Campbell, Enos Davidd, J. B. Durrett, Archie Greatrix, William McMechan, Harold Seldon, J. J. Trudeau, George Wishart, Wallace Bell, George Stanton, Roy O. Dulmage, secretary.

Weddings

GREENFIELD—CALBURY

St. Mark's United Church, Belleville, was the scene of a very pretty double-ring wedding ceremony on Saturday, May 16, at 2:30 p.m. when the Reverend Glen Rutland united in marriage Ruby Mae Calbury, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Calbury, to Lloyd Thomas James Greenfield, now living in Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Greenfield. A background of ferns, delphinium, white and pink bridal wreath flanked the altar. Mrs. A. Rutland rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Ida Honeywell of Bow Lake, Bancroft, who sang before the ceremony, "The Wedding Prayer" and during the signing of the register, "Because".

The bride was given in marriage by her father, who replied to her lovely bridal gown of Chantilly lace over net and satin which molded her figure, having a Sweetheart neckline with long sheer lace sleeves ending in lily points over the hands. The gracefully full skirt was accented by a very pointed peplum of matching Chantilly lace. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion, scalloped at the edges, was held by a halo of silk nylon, and she carried a shower bouquet of red Sweetheart roses and white bridal wreath.

Mrs. Rosella Thompson, of Markham, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor, wearing a floor-length gown of blue taffeta, with matching picture hat, and mitts, and carrying a bouquet of yellow mums and pink snapdragons.

Little Miss Maryis Wright, of Belleville, a cousin of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wright, was flower girl, demure in her floor-length frock of pink satin with matching halo brim of flowers. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of assorted spring flowers and lily-of-the-valley.

Mr. Grant Thompson, of Markham, brother-in-law of the bride, was groomsman, and Mr. W. S. Calbury, brother of the bride, was usher.

The reception was held at Bradish community hall, where the catering was done by the W.A. groups of the church. The bride's mother received, wearing a navy blue check Jersey, with navy hat and accessories and corsage of pink roses.

She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore navy and white with white accessories and corsage of red roses.

The bride's table was lovely with its appointment of white damask, centred by a three-tiered wedding cake topped by a small vase of lily-of-the-valley, and flanking by six tall white candles in crystal holders, tied with white satin bows, while bands of pink satin ribbon added a pretty accent. The table flowers were mixed sweet peas.

Following the reception, a wedding party for the bride and bridegroom was given by the bridegroom's parents at their pavilion at Bow Lake. In the evening, at which 400 guests were in attendance.

For travelling to North Bay, Niagara Falls and Toronto, Mrs. the bride selected a grey suit, grey shortie coat, red accessories and corsage of red roses. The bride and Mrs. Greenfield will reside in Hamilton after their return.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Hamilton, Markham, Otter Lake, Kingston, Whitesboro, New York and Belleville.

The bride's gift to her attendant, organist and soloist, cups and saucers to her little flower girl, a Coronation mug; and to the bridegroom, a set of luggage. The bridegroom's gift to his bride, a cedar chest; to his groomsman, a jumbo Coronation cup and saucer, and, to the usher, a Coronation tray.

St. John Ambulance Brigade Meets

The St. John Ambulance Brigade weekly meeting was held on Tuesday night in the club rooms Front street with a fair attendance.

Mrs. R. J. McLuskie superintendent of the brigade opened the meeting to order and extended a brief welcome to the ladies of Foxboro who were in attendance.

Mrs. McLuskie explained to the members that there were certain regulations in force and asked that they be followed.

Mrs. Hannah read the regulations for efficiency for active members. Mrs. Marriot read the regulations for those on the brigade.

The brigade then received their special instructions from Mrs. McLuskie for help on Coronation Day. Mrs. McLuskie announced that next week instead of having the weekly meeting on Tuesday night, it would be held on Monday night at 7:30 p.m. at the R.C.A.F. Armouries on Pinnacle street and would be in connection with the 1st Defence Class.

On behalf of the Shrine Club Mrs. McLuskie presented those members taking part in the Shriners theatre party for Crippled Children held on Good Friday evening.

Mrs. Hannah, who was classed as a new member last week in error, has signed to the brigade for the past nine years.

Practice of the new Holger Nielsen artificial respiration, was carried on.

Art Display to Be Shown at Boys' Tea

President Don Cherry announced last night's meeting of the Beta Kappa Hi-Y club that some of the work done by students of the Art class at the Y.M.C.A. will be on display at the Boys' Tea this Saturday at the Y.M.C.A. "Through the kindness and co-operation of Mr. Tindale, art instructor at the high school," said Mr. Cherry, "we will have a display of paintings and sketches done by students in this year's Art Class."

Present at the meeting were several mothers of the advisory committee for the tea, Mrs. C. Matthews, Mrs. J. E. MacDonald and Mrs. F. M. Bradley have been advising the members of the club with regard to the arrangement.

At the close of the meeting president Cherry said "Advance indications lead me to believe that there will be a good turnout for the Boys' Tea. Probably many ladies will come because of the novelty of being served tea by a boy and also to support the work of the Y.M.C.A. in forging lands since the entire proceeds of the tea will be given to the Y.M.C.A. World Service Fund."

50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Simmons, 88 North Front Street, observed their 50th wedding anniversary last Friday when they were feted by members of their family. Mr. Simmons recalled that 50 years ago he worked as brakeman on the railway for 90 cents a day with no overtime and the day was over when the round trip between Kingston and Tweed was complete.

Bridge St. United Church W.A. Sponsors Attractive Blossom Tea

Yesterday afternoon the parsonage of Bridge Street United Church was a bower of loveliness for the afternoon tea sponsored by the two groups of the Woman Association under the convenorship of Mrs. Erie Denyes and Mrs. J. S. Loynes with their co-convenors, Mrs. Pringle and Mrs. W. Countryman.

The spacious rooms were fragrant with lilacs gradiosting in shades from deep purple down to pinky-orchard, as well as white lilacs with tiny, waxy double petals, and tulips of every hue.

Into this sweet smelling atmosphere the door was opened by Mrs. J. Marsh, and the guests received by Mrs. D. McTavish and Mrs. H. Wray, president of the association, and later, by the living room hostesses, Mrs. H. W. Ackerman, Mrs. W. H. Finkle, Mrs. F. Pringle and Mrs. Erie Denyes.

Exquisite Tea Table

The tea table with its exquisite Chinese embroidered cloth and unique centrepiece of Barbadoes coral containing lily-of-the-valley, tiny, blue-eyed forget-me-nots, and fragrant white lilacs with three red tulips—typifying the colors, red, white and blue, was a charming picture, presided by two pearly-pink conch shells with their quota of lily-of-the-valley and forget-me-nots, the whole flanked by tri-branched silver candelabra with tall, ivory candles; little figurines and tiny sea shells emphasizing the Barbadoes influence.

Those who presided at the silver services were: Mrs. J. B. Boyce and Mrs. E. Fairman; Mrs. J. S. Loynes and Mrs. D. Williams. Those who served included: Mesdames W. A. Campbell, T. Middleton, A. R. MacKenzie, J. L. Langlois, F. Sherman, E. A. Burwash, P. L. Allcorn, H. B. Petterly, W. Holsay, J. Locke, W. McBride, B. Leslie, R. Chaplin, J. Dickens, A. Kuntze and W. W. Sutton.

Replenishing Mesdames R. Bateman, M. Tugnett, E. M. Hegle, D. McKinney, M. Johnston, A. St. C. Hurlbut, and F. Douglas. The dining room hostess was Miss N. Clarke, while Mrs. W. H. Lee had charge of the delicious and refreshing cups of tea.

Gala Attraction

The homecooking table, conveyed by Mrs. C. Ketchaen, Miss Cora Clarke, Mrs. E. Mayber, Mrs. P. Berry and Mrs. J. Kingdon was a gala attraction with its mouth-watering chocolate cakes, white cakes, pies of many varieties, tatty tarts, dainty cup cakes, angel food, tea rolls, fruit bread, butter cookies and date squares, all appetizing, all most appetizing and appealing, which found ready purchasers, and kept the conveners busily packaging and making change.

The treasurer for the afternoon was Mrs. H. McBurney.

A charming tea, daintily conveyed and bringing much credit to its conveners and all all who assisted in its success.

Women's Auxiliary Plans Garden Party

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was held at the Nurses residence with Mrs. J. Forrester presiding.

Mrs. John Buchan, president, was in Ottawa as one of two official delegates from the Ontario Federation of Hospital Auxiliaries to the Council of the National Federation.

Plans are well underway for the annual auxiliary garden party to be held at the home of Mrs. George Stobie in June. This gala affair is convened by Mrs. J. O'Flynn and promises to be an outstanding affair. There will be fortune telling, palm and hand writting reading, a grocery basket will be drawn for and a set of knicky donated by Mc-Fee's jewelry store will be drawn for.

Successful Month

Mrs. W. Finkle convener of the Opportunity Shop, reported a successful month and brought to the attention of all that consideration of spring and summer clothing would be most welcome. A new set of outstanding opportunities for shoppers has been instituted.

Appreciation was expressed to the auxiliary members who had contributed to the success of the recent Hospital Day by giving their services as guides on the tours and serving tea to the 300 visitors.

Mrs. W. Burrows was convener of the guides and Mrs. J. Marshall convener of the tea room. The latter was made most attractive with bouquets donated by local florists. The youthful guests and winners of the poster contest were particularly appreciative of the soft drinks donated.

Following the meeting tea was served.

Cakes to Postpone Your Dieting Resolutions

By Mary Moore

The young people in this home are "teched." Maybe some of their immediate ancestors are responsible.

For weeks there was not a cake to be seen in the place, then all of a sudden there are three.

On Marianne's day off from the hospital I came across her in the kitchen with a big clean white apron on brandishing a wooden spoon in one hand and a bowl in the other and shouting "I'm going to make some kind of a cake. Speak now or forever hold your peace," in the general direction of Pete. "I want chocolate!" he shouted.

Actually I wanted a windblown cake because I'm currently on a reducing diet (so I can get into last summer's bathing suit) but Pete spoke up fastest and loudest, and besides Marianne wanted chocolate cake too, so chocolate cake it was, and I'm glad for it was a rousing success.

Marianne's Chocolate Cake

(With fluffy boiled frosting)

Sift all-purpose flour and measure 2 ⅓ cups. Turn this into the sifter over the mixing bowl and add 1 ¾ cups sugar, 1-3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 ¾ teaspoons soda, 2-3 cup soft good quality cocoa and sift into bowl. Measure two-thirds cup soft good quality shortening, and cut it into about 8 pieces and add to dry ingredients. Now measure 1 cup water, add 2 teaspoons vanilla to it, and pour a little more than half of it into the bowl. Now beat the whole business like fury for about 2 minutes by hand or with electric beater, until batter is smooth. Now add 2 unbeaten eggs and the remaining water and vanilla and beat for 2 minutes longer. Pour into 2 9-inch cake tins which have been buttered and papered and buttered again. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 30 minutes. You should look in the oven in about 30 minutes for this cake bakes quite quickly. Turn out on cake racks to cool. Frost with

Fluffy Boiled Frosting:

Mix together in a saucepan 1 cup white sugar, 1-3 teaspoon cream of tartar and 1-3 cup boiling water. Stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved, boil gently without stirring to 238 deg. Fahr. - soft ball is formed when a few drops are tested in cold water. Let syrup cool for 2 minutes. While syrup is cooling to temperature beat 2 egg whites until very stiff. When syrup is ready pour in fine stream while constantly beating into beaten whites, and beat until frosting will hold peaks. Spread about ¼ of this on one layer of cooled cake. Cover with second layer. Use about one-quarter more on top and sides. Double remainder on top as high as you can coax it to stand up. This pie won't last long so keep an eagle eye on it if you have plans for it.

M.H.S is in trouble with her Windblown Cake. In the same mail with her letter arrived a package holding what she called "the sorry looking pancake which always forms on the bottom of my wind cake". This was a layer of batter-mixed fruit rises just as high and hard at the bottom of the cake.

M.H.S. goes on to say "Could you give me any clues as to what would cause it? I am sure I must have made fifty or more of these cakes perfectly and then poof! this had to happen. I mix them exactly the same." Then she outlined her recipe and added "my tube pan is the type which has the tube and bottom connected, leaving a complete pan without it."

There are two things which may have caused M.H.S.'s trouble. Insufficient heat from bottom of oven and/or too-thick bottom to tube pan there is my exact recipe:

Windblown Cake

Sift together 1 ½ cups sifted cake flour and 1 teaspoon baking powder. Into a large bowl put 1 medium-sized egg yolks and ¾ cup cold water. Into a medium bowl put the 3 leftover whites and beat until stiff. Transfer beater with-out washing it to the bowl of yolks and beat them until they expand to 1 quart - this takes about 5 minutes with electric beater - longer with rotary. Now add 1 ¼ cups berry or fine granulated sugar slowly. Then sift over the flour and baking powder and add ¾ teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon vanilla, and fold these in along with the stiffly beaten whites. Pour into an ungreased tube pan with single bottom - a one-piece tube pan. Bake at exactly 350 deg. Fahr. for about 50 or 45 minutes.

M.H.S. - have you thought of checking on your bottom oven heat-or to see if it functioning at full heat all over?

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her Husband Won't Keep A Job

My husband and I have quarrelled because he will never hold a job for long. I told him I would go to visit my brother and his wife so he wouldn't have the expense of feeding me, so I did and I have been with them about a week.

Last night I talked to my husband on the phone, and he was very angry to me, as much as to say he could do without me all right. He gets that way every time I go away and leave him alone with his mother. We have two rooms in his mother's house out in the country, and he won't leave there and get a place just for ourselves.

Another problem is that he hardly ever takes me out. I don't ask for much, and if he would take me to a dance once a month, or a show now and then, I would be satisfied.

I love my husband with all my heart, but I feel as though he doesn't love me any more. As soon as he's alone with his mother, he seems to like me. Do you think I should go back to him, or stay where I am and let him think I got myself a job, either? — M.F.

Dear M.F.:

Somebody in a family has got to work, so if your husband won't keep a job, why don't you get one yourself? This would not only ease your financial situation, but it would give you something to think about besides your problems. If you just went quietly ahead and got yourself a job without telling your husband anything about it in advance, it might jolt him a bit and make him ashamed enough so that he would get busy himself.

You might go back home and try this first and see if it helps the situation. If it doesn't, after a reasonable period, then I would make another suggestion.

This is, that you tell your husband you are going to stay with your brother until he gets himself a steady job and is willing to have his mother's house, set up a real home for the two of you and have normal home and social life. Then go to your brother's and get a job in his city to keep you and while waiting developments. Keep in touch with your husband, writing him pleasant letters to tell him of your activities and to let him understand that you are feeling more friendly toward him, even though you cannot put up any longer with the kind of life he was leading you.

It will then be up to him to make the next move. If he really loves you and wants you with him, he knows what he will have to do. If, on the other hand, his mother has such a hold on him that she turns him against you for going away, you are better off apart.

Make It a Wedding Instead of a Threesome

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are two girls in high school. Recently a new boy moved into our neighborhood and we both fell for him.

This other girl and I are the best of friends and wouldn't hurt each other for anything, but since we both like this boy very, very much it makes a problem. We have got to know him quite well because he is a quiet, bashful boy and had hardly ever gone out with girls and we have helped him overcome most of his bashfulness.

He knows that both of us like him, and we are afraid to date either of us, because he knows that it will hurt the other girl if he takes just one of us out. So when we go anywhere, it is always a threesome.

My girl friend and I have talked it all over and can't decide what to do. Neither of us want to give him up. We hope you will be able to help us. — J.D.

Dear J.D.:

I hope I will be able to help you, too, but I am rather doubtful about it, because I'm afraid you won't like my advice.

What I would suggest is that you turn the "threesome" into a "four some" by getting another boy to join you when you go out. Then instead of pairing off, make yourselves into a foursome that always does things together. In this way, you'll neither force this poor boy into a position where two girls a want to make him choose between them, and you and this other girl run the risk of hurting each other and breaking up your friendship.

Honestly, why should either of you have to "give him up"? Why can't you all have fun together by sharing your friendship? I realize perfectly that you teenagers feel that to be friends with a boy means that one else can go with either of you, but why not get a good better girls? Everybody will be much happier all around than if you insist that if one girl gets him the other girl must be discarded.

GOOD MANNERS

Thoughts On Weddings . . . From An Aisle Seat

There is always something very endearing about a Juliet cap. . . enchantingly bride-like. . . a dream-come-true. . . practically always embroidery, Juliet caps and pearls and lace. . . what a charming trio!

They're always smart and always youthful-looking. . . short and short, shortie gloves worn by so many of today's bridal attendants. Worn by many of today's brides, too. Generally these brief gloves are of white kid, and often now they have a bit of graceful pearl embroidery near the wrist-edge.

How grimly apparent it is at some weddings that there has been no conference between the "mothers" as to what they are to wear. . . no cooperation as to the general type of costume both are to wear, no consideration about whether the colors harmonize.

And the moral of this is: It is the bride's mother, the hostess of some by getting another boy to join you when you go out. Then instead of pairing off, make yourselves into a foursome that always does things together. In this way, you'll neither force this poor boy into a position where two girls a want to make him choose between them, and you and this other girl run the risk of hurting each other and breaking up your friendship.

Honestly, why should either of you have to "give him up"? Why can't you all have fun together by sharing your friendship? I realize perfectly that you teenagers feel that to be friends with a boy means that one else can go with either of you, but why not get a good better girls? Everybody will be much happier all around than if you insist that if one girl gets him the other girl must be discarded.

the wedding, who must decide on what type of costume "the mothers" are to wear. . .then she should get in touch with the groom's mother. Or, if she doesn't, the groom's mother must get in touch with her. They consult together about: (1) the type of costume each is to wear; (2) most importantly, the dress-length, both floor-length, or both street-length; and (3) the color each is to wear, colors that will harmonize with each other. Color-harmony is most important, since the mothers sit in the front pews opposite each other, and stand next to each other in the receiving-line.

It's still a "wondrous glory" . . . the traditional bridal-gown-white soft-ivory slipper satin bridal gown!

My enthusiastic salutations to the bride who isn't swayed by that work "peau!" "The bridesmaids were pastel shades" has no interest for her. She chooses a really good and effective shade of the color she wants for her attendants . . . shuns the bland, wishy-washy shades that look so weak and so uninteresting in many church-bred gowns of such, and in most reception backgrounds.

Should Protestant Lift His Hat Too?

Dear Mrs. Reeckman:

My older brother and I have a mutual friend who is a devout Catholic. We met yesterday. Yesterday, when we three were walking together, we happened to pass a Catholic church. Our friend lifted his hat, and so did my brother. I didn't. I have always been confronted with this circumstance before. My brother insists that I should have lifted my hat. I want to do the right thing next time. What is the rule — Jim S.

There is no rule about this. But since, I judge, you were at least somewhat impressed by this courtesy your brother showed, I suggest that it would be a good idea for you to follow his example of courtesy. You couldn't be criticized if you don't lift your hat. . . but if you do, people who respect the rules of reverence will admire your gesture.

Employment Took Sharp Jump in April

OTTAWA (CP) — Employment took a sharp jump in April, the government reported today.

For the first time since early last fall, there was a marked increase in the number of Canadians working full time, the labor department and the bureau of statistics said in their periodic joint survey.

The bureau estimated that at April 18 there were 4,645,000 persons working full time, compared with 4,534,000 a month earlier.

In the same period, the number of jobless looking for work fell to an estimated 185,000 from 172,000.

The survey said the chief causes of higher employment were a sharp increase in seasonal activities and steady growth of labor requirements in the consumer goods, defence, building supplies and construction industries.

Transport Commissioners Investigating Rail Crossings

OTTAWA (CP)—The board of transport commissioners is investigating railway crossings and what should be done to eliminate accidents.

A panel headed by Mr. Justice John D. Kearney now is discussing the matter with provincial and municipal officials in meetings across Canada. Their findings and recommendations will be presented to the government for action.

During the last session of Parliament George Murray, Liberal member for Cariboo in British Columbia, introduced a private bill making it compulsory to eliminate level crossings for any new railway construction. The bill was not considered before Parliament prorogued.

Explaining the bill, Mr. Murray said in an interview:

"Why spend money to create death traps?"

Rural Toll Rises

A report prepared for the transport board on railway-crossing accidents shows that the rate appears to follow the increase in automobile registrations. Until 1930 killed and injured at urban crossings were almost equal to those in rural areas. But as more automobiles moved into the country with the coming of better roads accidents at rural crossings began to exceed those in urban districts.

Since 1925, 3,253 persons have been killed at rural crossings; 809 at urban crossings. In 1952, the last year for which figures are available, there were 54 killed and 254 injured at urban crossings; 87 killed and 236 injured at suburban.

Board figures show that 83.8 per cent of all rural crossings were not protected in 1950 compared with 71.1 per cent of urban crossings.

"Thus," said Mr. Murray, "there is a mounting public awareness of crossings dangers realized by commission."

Position Not Clear

Where existing protection is no longer adequate due to changed conditions, no clear-cut obligation lies with any party to start improvements. This is one problem the board is trying to overcome.

There now are approximately 32,000 railway crossings in Canada. The board, in its meetings, seeks suggestions on protection, methods of financing, means of co-ordinating efforts and a long-term plan of control.

Under the Railway Act, the board must approve all plans and projects involving rail - highway crossings and determine how the cost shall be borne by the railway concerned, the municipality or other parties. The grade crossings fund, established years ago, provides for federal participating in crossing costs, together with the railways and municipalities.

The fund this year is $1,000,000.

Recent projects to eliminate crossing risks have been installation of flashing lights, gates and similar warning signs. Others include bridges, subways, bells and automatic signals and watchmen.

PLAN HIGHWAY PATROL

TORONTO (CP)—A special force of highway police is being planned to keep down traffic accidents in the province, Highways Minister Doucett said Tuesday. He said the force, directed by the provincial police, would control traffic on all provincial highways and enforce laws more strictly.

Grandmother Opposes P.M. In B.C. Election

VANCOUVER (CP)—A woman candidate representing the Progressive Conservative party will run against Premier W. A. C. Bennett in the British Columbia general election June 9.

Mrs. E. C. Weddell, Kelowna housewife and grandmother, filed papers for the Progressive Conservatives in South Okanagan Tuesday, just before the close of official nominations. Her move makes it a four-party fight in the constituency of the Social Credit premier.

"I'll give Mr. Bennett a good run for his money," said Mrs. Weddell, wife of a barrister, as she joined the Liberal and CCF candidates in filing papers.

A total of 228 candidates contest the 48 seats when voters go to the polls for the second time in less than a year to elect a provincial government. The total of candidates for the last election was 212, then a record.

Wonderful Travelling Through System Unless Member of Crew

By DON PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—For a leisurely trip there's nothing like travelling up the St. Lawrence river canal system aboard a Great Lakes freighter provided you're not a member of the crew.

In that case you'll likely be too busy winching the boat into the narrow locks or shovelling coal to enjoy the scenery.

On its first trip from Montreal to Fort William this year the SS Fernie spent 40 hours covering the 190-odd miles to Kingston, Ont., before entering Lake Ontario. That's an average of 4¾ miles an hour. Even in open, motionless water, the Fernie seldom exceeds 10 knots. The vessel's coal consumption is at the rate of 12 tons every 100 miles.

Tough Climb

Time is a big consideration in climbing the 227-foot incline from Montreal to Kingston—nine and 12 lift locks. But, small-paced or not, vessels like the Fernie last year between April and December made a record 17,798,515 tons through Welland canal that links Lake Ontario with Lake Erie.

The Fernie, one of 53 Canada Steamship Lines vessels, carried on the trip a 1,200-ton cargo: everything from sugar and building supplies for Fort William and an Edsel-badge automobile for Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., to oil-well equipment for Calgary. Much of her cargo was destined for points west of the Lakehead, going from there by rail.

On her return the 259-foot-long Fernie, named after the British Columbia mining town, carries grain. She can haul about 70,000 bushels of wheat. On deck she may have newsprint, or automobiles from factories in Windsor. She averages about 16 round trips every season, some 40,000 miles and requires a 34-man crew, plus captain, to keep her under way.

She's manned by men like Eugene Desgroseillers, 30-year-old French-speaking Canadian from Cascade Point, Que. He's been a St. Lawrence pilot for 28 of his 36 years on the big river and he spends the shipping season guiding Canada Steamship Lines boats like the Fernie through the currents and channels between Montreal and Kingston.

Capt. John P. Kimmerly, 53, of Owen Sound, Ont., who's been a Great Lakes master for 29 years, steers the Fernie through the canals and into the locks. Then, from Kingston, he charts her course through the lakes to Fort William.

Shot-Guns and Jokes

He's used a shot-gun to drive off strikers who boarded his vessel in the Cornwall canal back in 1948, but he'd just as soon discuss the trip—by automobile—he and his wife plan next winter, or kid the second mate, Mike Taylor, 36, of Fort Colborne, Ont., about all the money he's making.

There's something to the captain's kidding, too, for Mr. Taylor earns $202.28 a month, room and board. The captain's salary runs between $4,200 and $5,000 yearly and even a deckhand on his first boat like Robert McKenzie, 17, of Brae Dor, N.S., starts at $150 a month, plus a bunk in a cabin with three others and whatever the first cook, Nick Ogg of Owen Sound, has on his menu, which may include inch-thick pork chops or a tender steak.

The men work eight hours a day, in a split shift—four hours on, eight off. They get time off ashore when convenient while in port.

The porter, Lee Button, and his wife, Mary, the second cook, who spent the last three years in Regina, want to save and buy a farm. Fireman Neal Howe, 31, of Toronto said maybe he should have stayed with the Northern Alberta Railway. There he had only one firebox to fill. On the Fernie he's got three.

Even Oscsiphore Menard, the tall, taciturn first mate, also from Cascade Point, figured being a newspaper man, even, was better than working on the boats.

But how does he spend all his spare time? Studying the river's currents and channels for the day when he will be a pilot, too.

Lifetime to Pay

WINNIPEG (CP)—A 31-year-old Winnipeg cashier, who claims he was a victim of blackmailers, may spend the next 67 years paying back more than $10,000 he pleaded guilty to stealing.

Louis Wigginton, father of two children, was given a five-year suspended sentence and ordered to pay back the sum he stole from Western Grocers Ltd. between Dec. 1, 1950, and July 5, 1952.

He was ordered to make restitution of $2,000 at once and pay the rest at $10 a month. If the payments are not increased, he will be 98 when he is finished.

Defence counsel said three of Wigginton's co-employees found out about the thefts and blackmailed him for most of the money. Police said this charge could not be substantiated by evidence.

PICTON

Pieces of Wreckage Picked Up By Fishermen Off Salmon Point

Picton—Shores of Lake Ontario in the vicinity of Salmon Point and Point Petre are being watched for signs of the bodies of two m. bers of Bell Aircraft Co., Niagara Falls, N.Y., who lost their lives as a result of an explosion in a B-50 bomber, Tuesday of last week. An intensive search by boat and plane has failed to locate the bodies but bits of the secret rocket plane which was carried by the mother ship, and which was jettisoned following the explosion, have been picked up eight miles off Salmon Point which is 12 miles southwest of Picton. The search followed finding of pieces of balsa wood in his nets by Stanley Rankin, Salmon Point fisherman.

Taking part in the search which ended Monday night were members of the United States air force, U.S. coast guard, Bell Aircraft Corporation which kept a helicopter based here for several days, the RCMP Provincial Police and the RCAF at Trenton.

Bell Aircraft officials have requested those living along the lake shore to be on the lookout for the bodies. The men were wearing blue jackets and blue overalls and carried yellow life jackets and parachutes.

Among those missing is Jean Ziegler, chief test pilot for Bell Aircraft, manufacturers of Bell X-2, highly secret rocket plane. The explosion in the mother ship tore gaps in the bottom but it was able to land safely with a crew of seven. The two missing men either jumped or fell from the bomber when the explosion occurred. The Bell X-2 was blown to bits and jettisoned. Due to the hurry to land safely, and the fact that the bomber was five miles up in the air, an immediate search for the men was not possible. Bell Aircraft officials expect to return here next week for a further search. Seven of them were here for several days directing efforts of a score of men, but only bits of the secret plane were found.

Hope Report Not Shelved Says Official

OSHAWA (CP)—L. S. Beattie, Ontario superintendent of secondary education, said Wednesday several recommendations of the Hope royal commission on education have been adopted and others will be put into effect in the future.

Addressing members of the Associated High School Boards of Ontario at their annual convention, he said:

"The report hasn't been shelved by any means. It was the best thing that ever happened to education in Ontario and we've made use of it." The 21-man commission was headed by Mr. Justice C. P. Hope.

In an interview later, Mr. Beattie mentioned two specific fields in which action has been taken—an internal reorganization of the department of education and curriculum.

The report recommended closer integration of the various sections of the department and this had been done. In the curriculum field, great strides had been taken to eliminate the artificial barrier between grades 8 and 9.

Alex Matheson New Liberal Premier P.E.I.

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—Alex Matheson, a comparative newcomer to politics, has been chosen the new leader of Prince Edward Island Liberals and premier of the province.

A towering 50-year-old lawyer and former school teacher, Mr. Matheson Wednesday was named to succeed Premier J. Walter Jones at a Liberal caucus Wednesday. Mr. Jones has been appointed to the Senate.

Mr. Matheson, who is health minister, edged Attorney-General Walter E. Darby 13-11 on the second ballot. Four other nominees were eliminated on the first.

Six-feet, six inches with a shock of unruly blond hair, the premier-elect was born in June, 1903, at Bellevue, P. E. I., and has been in the legislature three terms.

Educated in public schools and at Prince of Wales College, there, he taught school for several years before he began studying law.

He received his own practice in 1935. Two years later he married the former Hazel M. Farquharson of Charlottetown. They have five children, three boys and two girls.

Mr. Matheson first enlisted the House in 1940 but was defeated when he offered for re-election in 1943. He went back into the legislature in 1947 and was re-elected in 1951. He was appointed health and welfare minister in 1949.

Mr. Jones, 75, has not yet resigned his premiership and is awaiting official word of his Senate appointment from Ottawa.

Mr. Matheson probably will not name his cabinet until early next week. So far there has been no speculation on possible changes.

There are 34 Liberals and six Progressive Conservatives in the House.

Britain Sending Trouble-Shooter To Cairo Talks

LONDON (AP)—Britain today suddenly switched a trouble-shooting diplomat from behind the Iron Curtain to take charge of her mission in Egypt as Anglo-Egyptian relations worsened.

The foreign office announced that Robert Hankey, minister to Hungary, has been ordered to fly to Cairo next week to take over from Ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson, returning to Britain on sick leave.

Stevenson, together with Gen. Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, commander-in-chief of British land forces in the Middle East, headed Britain's negotiating team at talks with Egyptian leaders on the future status of the British garrison in the Suez canal zone.

The talks were suspended last week.

The foreign spokesman described Hankey's move as "a temporary emergency measure."

Stevenson, he said, eventually will return to Cairo as ambassador.

Meantime the foreign office confirmed that its embassy in Cairo has advised British civilians in Egypt they should leave the country if they have no pressing business to keep them there. The step was taken as a long-term precautionary measure because British authorities fell it is possible relations between the two countries may worsen to the point where lives of Britons will be dangered.

Mayors, Reeves Protest Tax On Municipalities

TORONTO (CP)—The federal government's insistence that municipalities must not only pay the excise tax on their municipal purchases, but also the 10-per-cent sales tax, is an "iniquitous imposition," Barry Atkinson, reeve of East Sandwich, said Wednesday.

In his presidential report to the annual convention of the Association of Ontario Reeves and Mayors, Mr. Atkinson said:

"It is a strange anomaly that the federal government sees fit to exempt the provincial governments from these taxes on all their purchases, yet does not see fit to do so in the case of municipal councils, utilities, commissions and school boards."

Mr. Atkinson said the most disturbing and most important part of the municipal burden is educational costs, which are fast becoming a national emergency.

He asked Ontario legislators to be more understanding of municipal problems and not be so arbitrary.

Mayors and reeves in their first session criticized the ratio of the per capita grants which the province will start paying next year.

The grants range from $1.50 a person in municipalities under 2,000 to $4 in municipalities over 750,000.

William Orr, deputy minister for Municipal affairs, said the grants are weighted in favor of the large centres because they have greater welfare costs as well as others not faced by smaller municipalities.

Elmer Brandon, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for York West, said the provincial-municipal fiscal committee will study the possibility of splitting the province into 10 economic areas for the administration of certain services. One such service would be children's aid.

TO SEE EUROPE ON BIKE

The two will visit England, France, Germany, Switzerland, Holland, Italy, Austria, Spain and Portugal. It will cost them about $500 apiece.

Biggest Flood Threat in 40 Years Drives 1,250 Families From Homes in Louisiana

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP)—The wildly - spreading Calcasieu river swirled toward this southwest Louisiana port city today with the biggest flood threat in 40 years and drove 1,250 families from their homes.

High water elsewhere in Louisiana caused two drownings.

Volunteers with bulldozers and trucks swellered in warm coastal temperatures during the night to push up small dirt dikes to hail slowly rising waters in residential areas in the eastern part of this city.

Five trucks pumped at the river's invasion which threatened the main highway linking nearby Lake Charles air force base with this city of 50,000.

Warmally Tums Stream

Weatherman Paul Cook said the Calcasieu river, normally a tame little stream, would reach five feet over flood stage today, beyond that he would not predict. Flood stage is four feet.

At Old Town Bay, a river gauge spot four miles north of Lake Charles, high waters surged to 14.85 feet, more than 10 feet above flood stage.

The sheriff's office said 1,000 families were evacuated from their homes. The air force said another 250 families were evacuated from trailer camps and that 20 soldier family trailers were moved to the air base.

New Threats Reported

New flood threats were reported on the Red river in northwestern Louisiana and on the Black river in east-central Louisiana.

Miles from rain-swollen waters, draining southward from central Louisiana, drenched in foot of rain early this week, built up along the sharply-turning Calcasieu.

Farm houses along the way in many cases showed only their roofs tops. An air survey showed the river had bulged out more than two miles wide over rich farmlands.

Cook said the flood would be the biggest since 1913. Water is rising about 2 1-3 inches an hour. The river crested at Kinder at 32.04 feet Wednesday. The previous high was 24.7 feet.

Suit Dismissed

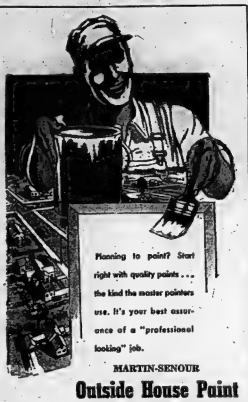
KITCHENER (CP)—A damage suit for $2,000 against Earl O'Loughlin of Stratford was dismissed Wednesday when the plaintiff, Peter Romanick, failed to appear in court.

Romanick is in penitentiary after being convicted in an abortion case.

The action arose out of an accident in July, 1950, on Highway No. 8 when cars driven by Romanick and O'Loughlin collided.

Parents Meet Son First Time In Four Years

NEW YORK (CP)—A Guelph, Ont., couple were reunited Wednesday with their son whom they had not seen in four years.



U.S. Army Pte. Charles Sacco, recuperating in hospital from the effects of 27 months as a prisoner of war in Korea, was watching from a first-floor hospital window when his parents drove up.

"Mom, Mom! Here I am," he shouted.

Seconds later Mrs. Mary Sacco, 68, ran down the hospital corridor and flung herself into the arms of her bedridden son.

Behind her, tears streaming down their cheeks, stood the boy's father, Rico Sacco, 69, and his brother, Bruno, 40.

The Saccos operate a vegetable farm on the outskirts of Guelph.

WELLINGTON

Jean Ann Parks, Neil Holding Win $25 Women's Institute Prize

WELLINGTON — The auditorium in the consolidated school was filled to capacity Friday night. The occasion being Parents' night. The doors were opened at 7 p.m. so that the various rooms could be viewed before the program commenced. Each class room performed pictures of the Queen and features of the coming Coronation. The work showed in them was certainly a credit to the teachers.

About 8 p.m. all wended their way to the auditorium where Mr. Holder, public school principal, opened the program with a few words, thanking the people for turning out so well.

Program

Mrs. Watts' and Mrs. Carly's classes, grade 1, sang "Old King Cole," with the king, his fiddlers three, his pipe and bowl, all on the scene. It was nicely done; also "My Country's Name is Canada," was sung. Miss Wallace's grade 1 class sang "Changing the Guard at Buckingham Palace," with four guards in the background swaggering quite often as the song was rendered.

Miss Sanders' class sang, "The Toy Man," with the various boys acting to the song. The dancing doll, (Wellington's own ballerina, "Nell Haldane") taking the part. The mouse and the chicken hopping around caused a great deal of amusement.

The presentation of medals won on the last field day contests were given out as follows: Primary class, Carol Allison and Wayne Monroe, both received books; the juvenile class, sterling silver medals went to Ann Tuttle and Joan Harrington; bronze medals to Lynda McKenzie; Junior medals to Phillip Greer, Harley Holmes, Ronald Campbell, Larry Snider, Wayne Channel, Helen Holmes, Beverley Wallace and Suzanne Anderson. The Intermediate medals to Carol Marvin, Wanda Down, Arlene Mollard, Bevery Alyea, Leon Bryant, Elden Carter, David Kushner and Alexander Rutmaker received a medal for four years' good conduct and punctuality.

Mrs. Phillips was then called upon to present the Women's Institute prize of $25 to the two highest standing pupils in the public school. Jean Ann Parks and Neil Holding were the two lucky winners.

The rhythm band, in their green and white costumes, played and sang, "A Country Garden."

Mrs. Freeman's class rendered the "Sweet Shop," with so many candy bars, life savers, gum drops and chewing gum, that the two little girls' with only a penny to spend got rather confused by them all.

Miss Pyne's class gave the national flag the Union Jack; "There'll Always be an England," "The Strawberry Fair," and "The Keirow was Excellent."

Mr. Snider's class put on a little musical play, "H.M.S. Pinafore," with solo parts sung by Arlene Mollard, who was poor little buttercup; Walt. Jones, Dick, Leon Bryant, the captain, and Alexander, the jaunty admiral. The chorus of boy and girls in their sailor costumes looked very nice indeed. The whole play was very well done by all.

The final chorus came next with Mrs. Freeman's, Miss Pyne's and Mr. Snider's classes rendering, "Elizabeth of England," "Land of Hope and Glory," and "Soldier of the Queen."

Mr. Benvie was accompanist throughout the whole evening.

Mr. Snider thanked Mr. Benvie, the music teacher, for putting on such a fine program to which Mr. Benvie replied, saying that without the help of the school staff and the children themselves, he could not have done it.

Much credit is due to both the children and their teachers in putting on such a wonderful program.

Premier Tito Denounces Rumors Of Negotiations

BATAJNICA, Yugoslavia (AP)—President Tito today denounced "rumors" that Yugoslavia has begun secret negotiations to settle its bitter feud with Russia and the communism satellites.

Earlier this week, dispatches from Western newspaper men in Moscow reported a growing tendency toward more normal diplomatic exchanges between the Kremlin and Yugoslavia. Their relations have been at a minimum since Tito's regime was ousted from the communism nearly five years ago for "nationalistic deviations" from the Soviet line.

Speaking to a crowd of several thousand persons gathered at Yugoslavia's big military air base here, Tito said "rumors have been circulated that we are dealing in secrecy with Russia."

Angrily waving a clenched fist, the Yugoslav leader cried:

"From this place I say to you that relations between us (and the U. S. S. R. and countries under its influence have not improved.

"On the frontier still, their rifles are shooting our guards. Their press is slandering us. If the U. S. S. R. has softened its propaganda, that is not enough for our country to change its attitude and fall into the arms of those who have so badly harmed us."

Child Suffocated

OSHAWA (CP)—Firemen believe a cigaret lighter a soldier in Korea sent to his wife started a fire which took the life of the couple's 22-month-old daughter Wednesday.

Pamela Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence MacDonald, was suffocated and burned during an afternoon nap in a bedroom.

It is thought the girl's brother, Claude, 3, picked up the lighter from a table and flicked it, setting fire to the family living quarters. The brother ran screaming up the stairs to his mother, who was washing upstairs, and was unharmed.

France Appears Headed For Change in Govt.

PARIS (Reuters)—France appeared headed for yet another change of government today with collapse of Premier Rene Mayer's administration virtually certain before nightfall.

Downfall of Mayer's government, France's 12th since the war will come, this afternoon, observers agree, on a vote in the Chamber of Deputies on the premier's request for special powers to solve the country's current financial crisis.

Mayer has been in office since the beginning of the year.

The 27-strong Gaullist group decided to vote against his request.

Gaullist spokesmen said that between 60 and 70 of their members were unanimous in wanting a change of government.

Mayer has made his financial reform bill a confidence test. Party leaders will announce their attitudes after the premier has made a statement. Then the motion will be voted.

The debate has been going on since Monday. Mayer is asking for authority to make economies and reform the administration, reorganizing the nationalized industries and cutting down the subsidies to producers of spirits.

Kingston's Oldest Resident Dies at 106

KINGSTON (CP) — Elizabeth Richardson, 106, Kingston's oldest resident, died in hospital today.

Highlight of her last years was a cablegram of congratulations from Queen Elizabeth, sent last February when Miss Richardson celebrated her 106th birthday.

Miss Richardson operated a dressmaking business here and retired 40 years ago.

Blind for the last 10 years and crippled with arthritis, she attributed her longevity to "a good English constitution" and to the fact that she had "never been strong, so knew my limitations and kept within them."

Aussie Olympic Boss Resigns

MELBOURNE (AP)—The chief Australian planner for the 1956 Olympic Games resigned Wednesday night—an act which was called a "national tragedy" by Melbourne's acting lord mayor.

"There was nothing left me but to resign," said Arthur W. Coles, who turned in his post as chairman of the Olympic Games control committee. "My position was untenable."

Coles quit when the Victoria (state) government decided not to build the Olympic swimming pool in Fawkner Park—the site which was accepted by the International Olympic Committee at its April meeting in Mexico City.

(In Chicago, Avery Brundage, president of the IOC, said "something must be seriously wrong" with the plans for the games and that the IOC executive committee may hold an emergency meeting to consider another city.)

Child Severely Burned Playing Cowboy in Woods Near Home

Trenton (Special) A little boy playing in his cowboy suit in the woods near his home at Glen Miller last night suffered severe third degree burns, when the garment caught fire and reduced him into a human torch. The youngster a mass of flames came running toward his home screaming for his mother.

A Trenton man Garnet Wickens was talking to Eddie Rupert of Glen Miller. He heard the screams and dashed to the boy's assistance. He threw the lad to the ground and started to roll him over and over smothering the fire. He burned his one hand beating out the flames. The cowboy suit was hanging in shreds on the youngster when he was wrapped in a blanket and rushed to the Trenton Memorial Hospital.

The seven-year-old boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carr, four miles north of here suffered painful burns about the legs and lower parts of the body. His hair was singed and hands seared indicating the lad tried to beat the fire out before help arrived.

Young Carr along with his chums was playing around a fire in the woods. He got too near to the flames and the fuzzy suit took fire like a piece of tinder. The fire in the woods spread and had to be stamped out.

At th hospital surgeon Dr. W. A. L. McDonald and Dr. Gordon Telfer operated on the boy's injuries. Afterwards the little fellow's condition was reported satisfactory.

SEVERELY BURNED

ATWOOD, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Jack Broughton, Atwood, was in critical condition Wednesday night with severe burns suffered while she was lighting a stove in her farmhouse Tuesday. She is in Listowel Memorial Hospital. Her clothing caught fire as she leaned over the stove.

Mayor Casts Deciding Ballot To Demolish Bus Terminal

TRENTON (Special) — Mayor Roly Whitley was called on to cast a deciding ballot on the bus terminal question and by a 4 to 3 vote it was ruled that the present terminal would be demolished immediately after the current tenant vacated the premises on May 31. An offer of $150 from wrecker Percy Hodge, of York Road, for the remains of the building was accepted at this meeting between the bus company heads and the town council. Representing the bus company were Grant Rathbun, Jim Armstrong and Norman Rickett. Ex-mayor Kenneth Couch spoke for the Trenton merchants.

The delegation from the bus companies suggested leaving the terminal up until after the centennial. They expressed a desire to have the terminal moved as long as the location remains a bus terminal. Mr. Rickett assured council that he was moving out on May 31.

Grant Rathbun was the spokesman for the bus representation. He protested tearing down the terminal and dumping people into the [illegible] while the Centennial ca[illegible] was in full swing.

Deliberating until nearly midnight council decided the terminal must go.

Simultaneously council sanctioned an order for the Town Planning Board comprising Joe Gould, Mike Andison, Thorne Spear, Claude Smith, Gerald Rose, reeve of Murray township, and Mayor R. E. Whitley, to investigate and recommend a site for a bus terminal. The order urged expediency.

Said An Eyesore

Council feels that the ancient brick building used now as the terminal is an eyesore and a poor advertisement for a town that is cleaning up its downtown section. The out-going council ordered the bus stop demolished nine months ago but the manager was allowed to remain during the winter months.

There is a feeling in the council that the town is not in the transportation business and that the building of a new terminal is the obligation of the bus owners.

Two petitions have been signed sympathizing with the bus owners and merchants. People who have no other means of transportation ask that a terminal be provided at 25 King Street for their convenience. Ratepayers signed a petition reading in part the present bus terminal be demolished and a new one erected in its place.

To Explain Details

It was announced that next Tuesday night Dr. A. E. Berry, Director of Sanitary Engineering for the Ontario Department of Health, and John Argo of the consulting firm of Gore and Storrie will be present at a meeting in the town hall here to explain the benefits of the proposed sewage disposal system.

Three Named Proposed

At a special meeting of the Centennial executive here last night three names were proposed for the chairmanship of the general committee in where Dr. J. E. Henton left off. They were: ex-Mayor Kenneth J. Couch, O. G. "Buster" Alyea and ex-Councillor Claude Graham.

The meeting was opened by vice-chairman Fred Parker calling a one-minute silence in respect for the late chairman, Dr. E. Henton. A full representation was on hand including Mayor R. vian Tuna Club.

E. Whitley.

All committee heads report further progress as opening d is now not quite six wee away.

VOLKSWAGEN comes to Belleville...

VW Canada Ltd. are pleased to announce the appointment of Patterson Motor Sales of Belleville, Ontario as a distributor for Volkswagen automobiles, commercial vehicles and the Volkswagen Industrial Engine. Volkswagen is the famous car that set the fashion in Europe. Here is a car so advanced in styling, so precise in engineering, that today it far outsells all other light cars in continental Europe. The famous Volkswagen has proved itself in the freezing temperatures of Sweden, the rugged mountains of Switzerland and the dusty heat of the South African veldt.

Now it is in Canada, bringing all the advantages of the rear-mounted air-cooled engine, the 40-mile-per-gallon economy, the superb Continental styling, the safety of its "curb-line" vision and road-hugging suspension.

Now it is in Canada—complete with every kind of spare part available at minutes notice—even complete bodies, fenders, engines, nuts and bolts . . . everything for any necessary repairs . . . everything to keep your Volkswagen in sweet running order.

DELIVERY VAN

The large double "walk-in" doors and "knee-high loading" floor make loading a snap, both coming and going. Ideal for any with back-breaking lifting. Here is a PROFITABLE vehicle for Appliance Dealers, Dry Cleaners, Grocers, etc.
9' 9in. — 565 cu. ft. pay-load space

COMMERCIAL VEHICLES

The Volkswagen line comprises a wide range of ¾ ton commercial vehicles of unusual versatility (such as Pickup, Van, Station Wagon, Bus and Ambulance). Oversize loading capacity, full-arc visibility, easy manoeuvrability and balanced distribution of weight (driver in front—engine in rear) make these the ideal vehicles to cut delivery costs and increase profits.

COMPLETE SERVICE . . .

After months of careful preparation, Volkswagen has now established complete facilities for the servicing of all Volkswagen vehicles. A large staff of factory-trained service men and mechanics, equipped with an abundant supply of spare parts and accessories, is organized and functioning from a central depot.

PROVEN SUCCESS . . .

The Volkswagen story is the outstanding success story of Europe. In 1948, 8,000 vehicles were produced; in 1952 over 135,000 rolled off the assembly lines of one of the world's most modern plants. Volkswagen is the most sought after car in continental Europe today.

DISTINCTIVE FEATURES . . .

Horizontally opposed rear-mounted engine, automatically air-cooled — cannot overheat, boil or freeze up — no water, no anti-freeze. Rear-engine weight gives greater traction under all road conditions.
Torsion bar suspension (front and rear) hugs car to road at all speeds. Amazingly fast "jackrabbit" pickup unequalled in the light car field. Rugged economy is built into the engine . . . unusual low revolutions (only 3,000 R.P.M.) and Fourth Gear Overdrive give longer life — less engine wear.
Volkswagen is built tough to last longer.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

OD SHOW!

The ONE Diesels had to come from behind last night at the CNRAA field to eke out a 6-5 decision over the strong Wooler team in the official opening game of the Belleville District Softball League in the city. They spotted the opposition four runs in the first and in an uphill battle whittled down the lead and grabbed the verdict with a two-run splurge in the seventh inning. It was a fine broad of softball, one that augurs well for the season. Opening ceremonies with Alderman Wilbur Countryman, Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A., and Lionel Train officiating got the season away to a start. Tony Cavetti, the Diesel's new barrier from Toronto, and the veteran Barney McColl went the route and came up with good performances.

WAS THIS!

The Maguats Juniors, although defeated by the Prince Edward County Combines 15-7 last night were by no means disgraced. The kids, probably a mite stagestruck in their first appearance in a league game, bobbled the ball seven times and rated a shade harder after the first inning. They brought back hard and held the Picton crew to four runs over the rest of the route while tabbing seven markers themselves. They showed potential ability and with a few games under their belts should make a good account of the pack step high. They entertain the Trenton RCAF Flyers at the CNR field here on Tuesday night next and they should give the fly-boys a good run for the money.

The softball air is cleared somewhat at last. The schedule has finally put in an appearance. (It is published elsewhere on this edition). .Herby Henn's Northern Electrics are back in the fold after it was reported they had withdrawn from the league; Stirling has unknown quantity up until they ran the Glen Roy juniors, inasmuch as they used two teams, and a set of football signals to do it. The Ox Pointers have demonstrated quite clearly after their victory over the strong Frankford crew on Victoria Day night that they are a power to be reckoned with; Don McNevin has settled for the CNR field as his home grounds and it looks like we are away to a start after all.

THE BIG HOUSE"

Warden Dick Allen of the Kingston Penitentiary, has sent this corner a special personal invitation to be present (in an official capacity, that is) at the official opening of the softball season in the "Big House" next Sunday. The Glen Roy juniors will assist the Saints in the opening diamond festivities in the best closed park in the district. Former president Wes Lee said, it is likely, President Ivor Dyer of the Belleville District Softball League, will be present as will a number of guests from the city of Kingston.

Warden Allen has a warm spot in his heart for "softball" Belleville as it was this city, through Don Lee, that inaugurated the annual softball tournament down there. A year ago we paid our inaugural visit to the "pen" and had our eyes opened wide at what we saw. Brother, if any team in the "outside" had as loyal a rooting section as the Saints they would not lose a game if moral and verbay support are criterions of victory. But the "boys on the inside" know good plays and players when they see them. Belleville did not lack for some support and the conduct of its representatives and the sportsmanship they showed reunited in the institution, is to be commended this year. So we expect to be inside the "Big House" Sunday—and no wise cracks, please.

HE "HENN" CLUCKS!

Herby Henn, who has retired oftener than Al Adams, who has "retired" oftener than did the late Sir Harry Lauder, almost retired again the other night, but it appears he has been a softball roosters on the perch that he first was aware of. The Ole Clucker and his Northern Electrics will swing into action tonight against the Bobcats in a scheduled league game at the Alemite Field in a game which should enlighten the faithful as to the strength of the Sidney Street Maulas.

The Bobcats came up with a surprising array of diamond talent against the Glen Roys the other night and despite the fact Alderman Robert Temple tossed in two platoons, it remains the Bobs appear to be a force to be reckoned with. They have two fine hurlers in Young and Bowyett, a smart infield and a reliable set of outer gardeners with a substantial array of hitting power scattered throughout.

So it should be worth the while to trek to the Alemite field this evening just to see if the Henn will cackle or the Bobcats bare their claws and growl. Game at 6:30.

Native Dancer, Dark Star, Royal Gem Expected to Stage Preakness Drama

BALTIMORE (AP)—A racing world on tenderhooks for the return match of Native Dancer and Dark Star learns definitely today who will be with them in the supporting cast in Saturday's $100,000 Preakness.

Five others are scheduled to be entered by the 10 a. m. EDT deadline, Royal Gem, Correspondent, Ram O'War, Jamie K and Sunshine King are lobbed to complete the field of seven.

There could be additional surprise entries at $500 a throw, but none is anticipated.

This 77th Preakness has drawn as much interest as any since the 1951 inaugural. It's all due to the Kentucky Derby May 2 when Dark Star shattered the aura of invincibility that had surrounded Native Dancer.

The first defeat of the big Alfred G. Vanderbilt grey three-year-old in 13 races stunned the turf fraternity and millions more who watched on television.

The question of whether it was a fluke will bulge Pimlico with a crowd that is expected to approach the record attendance of Native Dancer's 42,370 in 1946.

Developments since the Derby have added sauce to the situation. Native Dancer returned to New York to win the Withers Mile impressively last Saturday while Dark Star was beaten by Royal Bay Gem at Pimlico Monday in the Preakness Prep. Royal Bay Gem, the property of Eugene Constantin Jr., was fourth in the derby.

If seven start, the Preakness pot will total $113,750 with $65,200 to the winner.

Pinch-Hit Home Run in 14th Earns 3-2 Win Over Browns; Brooklyn Blasts Braves 7-2

By BEN FELDGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

If Boston Red Sox figure out some way to beat the other eastern teams, they will be a real pennant threat in the American League. They've solved the western clubs.

The Sox finished up a profitable home stand against the West in sensational fashion Wednesday. With the cut in the 14th inning—the season's longest game—Ted Wilber blasted his third pinch-hit home run of the year to give them a 3-2 triumph over St. Louis Browns.

The victory moved the Red Sox into second place, three games behind the pace-setting New York Yankees.

Have Best Record

The Red Sox have the best intersectional record in either league. They burned up the West early this month as a 6-2 road trip and then won six more and lost only two when the western teams came in to visit Fenway Park.

Against the eastern clubs, however, the Sox have won five while losing eight.

The eastern American League clubs as a group were inhospitable to their western visitors during the intersectional series and all four of them ended with victories. The Athletics defeated Chicago 5-4 on the five-hit pitching of Morris Martin. Washington whipped Cleveland 6-3 and Baltimore and Detroit split 2-4. In all, the eastern teams have won 30 and lost 11.

In the National League the western teams, playing at home, managed to split in the upper bracket, but only by a margin of 18 games to 15. Wednesday's finales Cincinnati thumped the league-leading Philadelphia Phillies 14-5; Milwaukee bowed for the second straight day to Brooklyn 7-2; Chicago took a 16- lasting New York Giants and St. Louis won a 11-6 slugfest from Pittsburgh Pirates. The Giants collected 21 hits in smothering the Cubs. Monte Irvin, Al Dark and Davey Williams homered for New York.

Simmons Beaten

Curt Simmons, the Phillies' ace workhander, suffered his first two innings against Cincinnati. He gave up seven hits and seven runs before heading for cover in the fourth.

Pittsburgh fell to last place by losing to the Cardinals who pounded out 15 hits. Red Schoendienst drove home six of the Cardinal tallies with a home run, two doubles and a single.

Brooklyn stole six bases in handing Milwaukee its first series loss at home. The crowd of 23,450 swelled the Braves' home attendance to 302,667 in 11 home dates, 51,389 more than the club drew all last season in Boston.

The Yankees edged Detroit in the last of the ninth on Gene Woodling's bases-loaded single.

Frank Shea throttled the Indians on two hits for seven innings but had to withdraw with a stiff neck. The Indians picked up five hits and three runs on his successor, Johnny Schmitz, but the Bombers had saved it by a single six runs in the seventh.

Philadelphia's winning run against the White Sox came in the ninth when Billy Pierce, trying for his sixth victory, walked three men, uncorked a wild pitch and then watched Jack Astroth deliver a run-scoring single.

Queen's Horse Derby Favorite

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth's Aureole Wednesday was made a 7-2 favorite for the June 6 Epsom Derby.

Bookmakers shortened the odds as news leaked out that William Humble's Nearula, a raging favorite since his victory in the Two Thousand Guineas race April 29, missed exercise because of a bruised foot. Bookmakers did not quote Nearula.

Captain Charles Elsey, Nearula's trainer, said: "We shall have to report his shoe to see the extent of the damage."

Southern Team Plays Negro Hurler, League Prexy Orders Game Forfeited

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Hot Springs of the Cotton States League presumably will decide today whether to forfeit every game in which it attempts to play a Negro pitcher or cease its effort to introduce Negroes into the three-state circuit.

Wednesday night the cellar-dwelling Hot Springs Bathers attempted to play Jim Tugerson, a Negro righthander, but they were forced to forfeit the game to Jackson, Miss., 9-0 on orders of league president Al Haraway.

Haraway said Hot Springs had "violated an agreement reached in Greenville, Miss., on April 14."

He ordered the class-C league's umpires to forfeit every game to the opposing club when Tugerson's name appears on the roster.

Club co-owner Lewis Goltz said the directors would meet today to settle the issue "once and for all."

He termed the agreement "illegal and contrary to federal law."

Tom Watchko, Miss., came a first that the league may try once again to oust the Bathers from the eight-team circuit.

Tom Glennon, Natchez general manager, is the only league official approved Haraway's action.

"If the league takes action against Hot Springs, that may mean a revision of the league schedule," he said.

The league attempted to oust the Bathers this spring, when Jim Tugerson and his brother, Leander, were hired from Indianapolis of the Negro American League.

But Hot Springs forestalled the action with a ruling by minor league head George Trautman that a club could play Negroes if it desired. Following Greenville, Miss., meeting alluded to by Haraway in Wednesday's statement, the Bathers optioned the brothers to Knoxville (Tenn.) Open Texas State circuit, where Jim completed a 6-2 record. He was recalled Tuesday.

Tugerson was warming up Wednesday night when the forfeit order was read before some 1,500 fans. Reliable from 300 to 300 Negroes, who greeted the announcement with boos—and then dispersed quietly. Every word was the largest of the season here.

London Majors Trounce Tigers For Third Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

London Majors have pulled into first place in the youthful senior intermediate baseball league with three successive wins. Trailing them are Waterloo Tigers with three wins and one loss, and Brantford Red Sox.

Wednesday night the Majors trounced the Tigers 6-1 in one of four games played. Brantford edged St. Thomas Elgins 3-1; Guelph Maple Leafs defeated Galt Terriers 6-3 and Kitchener Panthers dropped Oshawa Merchants 7-3.

Behind the London attack at Waterloo was veteran righthander Tommy Wills who scattered seven hits. Loser was George York who was bolstered his own until the sixth when leftfielder Augie Merchantter dropped a flyball and three Majors scored before he retired the plate.

The Tigers' Bobby Fisher stanted a short-lived rally for Waterloo in the sixth with a walk and Bob Thompson's double but Wills one out but Billy Flick hit into s double play to snuff out Waterloo's hopes.

The Brantford-St. Thomas contest was marred by a sparkling pitching duel. The winner was George Fisher who was helped by Nig Parker in the seventh. Joe Grasso batted in solid game for the Elgins and squelched a rambling rally.

St. Thomas' Roy Urban scored the first run when Bob Benish, Elgins' playing manager, sent him home with a long triple. Brantford tied it in the fifth with a bunt, a sacrifice and a double. Bob Thurman's double and Hoclare's single gave the Sox the lead and win.

Guelph Maple Leafs broke a 1-1 tie with a run in the seventh inning and then added four more in the eighth to down Galt. Cecil Kaiser, Negro southpaw, and one-armed Pete Gray took the honors for the winners.

Galt used three pitchers: Jeep Jessup who went well until the seventh; Ted Symanski who lacked control; and starter Felix Henry who finished the job.

Oshawa Merchants with their keys to Kitchener Panthers now have lost their third game in as many tries. Kitchener has a 2-2 record. Losing the battle for Oshawa was Bill Hilson, who faced only one batter after relieving Ken Yount in the seventh.

Dechene picked off Harry Pautka right after taking over the mound but Jackson Owens singled, stole second, moved to third on a wild pitch and, with Johnny Walter batting, scored on a play which proved the winning run. Kitchener got an unearned tally in the ninth.

TURNER SINKS HAYES

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Free-swinging Jesse Turner of St. Louis beat Boston's Hormen Hayes to the canvas in the first-round here Wednesday night and went on to punch out a unanimous decision in a 10-round televised boxing bout. Hayes weighed 163 to Turner's 154½.

Soccer Star To Return Home

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Leslie Medley, soccer player twice-called to the colors for England, sails next Tuesday with his Canadian wife and child for Canada.

The 32-year-old outside left said Wednesday he will visit Hamilton first, but hopes to get a job in Toronto where he played for Toronto Greenbacks during the Second World War while training there with the RAF.

"Football will be just a sideline in Canada," Medley added. "But I hope I play or coach."

Medley was capped to play for England—equivalent to all-Canadian or all-American status—1950-51 and 1951-52. This season he was handicapped by incidents ranging from food poisoning to outright injury, played only 21 games and got one goal, compared with his past seasonal average of 12 or 13.

His decision to leave for Canada "A wonderful country—didn't please Tottenham Hotspur, London first division club which owns Medley. But the ydecided not to stand in his way.

Sledge Hammer Used by Marshal To Help in Evicting Negro Family

NEW YORK (AP)—A city marshal used a sledge hammer today to break into a three-room apartment and evict a Negro family and 30 persons who had locked themselves in to prevent it.

More than a score of police clubbed William Gaildstone and six aides batter down the door of the apartment in one of the city's largest private housing developments.

The door forced, the marshal cut a safety chain and police escorted the 30 persons—Negro and white, men and women—out of the building. The last person out was Mrs. Michael Decatur, wife of the husband and two children occupied the apartment.

The door smashing followed a few hours after six women abandoned a lock-and-chain sitdown protest against the same eviction in the downtown offices of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., which operates the Parkchester housing development in the Bronx.

The marshal acted on a court order obtained by the company. The Decaturs had obtained the apartment as a favor, and the company said it would not renew the lease because it does not allow subleasing.

The barricade was put up by members of a group calling themselves the "Parkchester Committee to End Discrimination." The protesters, along with several children, crowded in the Decaturs' apartment. Mrs Decatur told reporters that the people had come "to show their solidarity."

Mrs. Decatur was among the group of women which chained themselves for nine hours to chairs in a 20th floor office of Metropolitan Life representative Tuesday. They gave up early today, telling reporters "It is practically impossible to stay any longer."

Terry Sawchuk May Wear Ranger Uniform

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram said Wednesday that all-star goaltender Terry Sawchuk of Detroit Red Wings may be traded to New York Rangers of the National Hockey League.

The newspaper said in a sports page story:

"A tipoff that something could be stirring is an admission by Detroit Red Wing general manager Jack Adams that Frank Boucher of the New York Rangers, some time ago, made an inquiry as to what or how much Detroit would want for Sawchuk. . . .

"Adams, in a telephone conversation, tended to minimize the Ranger overture but admitted that even Sawchuk had been concerned about talk that he would be traded."

The newspaper said rumors indicate the Wings would want seven players and $40,000 in cash for any Sawchuk trade.

Kiner to Cubs Says Report

CHICAGO (AP)—Ralph Kiner, the National League's home run champion for seven straight years, will leave Pittsburgh Pirates for Chicago Cubs before June 15, the Chicago Daily Sun-Times said Wednesday.

The newspaper, keeping the long-reigned Kiner deal boiling, said "it's almost certain" that Kiner will join the Cubs.

Sid Matthews, the Cubs' player personnel director, has had a long-standing offer of $200,000 with the Pirates for the 30-year-old slugger.

Celtics Win Coronation Cup

GLASGOW (Reuters) — Celtic Wednesday won the Coronation Cup soccer tournament, defeating Hibernian 3-0.

The victory marked the end of a special Coronation year tournament played here by four Scottish and four English teams, tops in their respective countries.

In the final game, watched by 107,000 fans at Hampden Park, the Celts' energy and clever football gave them a first-half advantage which paid off with Mohan's great goal at the 28-minute mark.

He also scored for the Celtic's second goal, which Walsh scored three minutes from the end.

Downfalls Win Mixed Bowling League Title

Five teams, winners of their respective leagues, went to the diminutive pin at the Bowl-O-Drome last night in an alleys battle to decide the championship of the city's mixed bowling loops.

In second place was the Short Circuits of the Monday Night Commercial League, with 3073. Next came Corbin Lock with 2987, then Northern Electric with 2782 and the Bellerille Lock with 2748.

The Lorne McDougall trophy was presented to the triumphant Downfalls by Bowl-O-Drome manager Bill Bateman at the conclusion of the tournament.

Members of the winning team are Thelma Westfall, Walter Westfall, Ethel Rahn, Bill Knott, Rose Locke and George Locke.

Cec Moore had the high triple with a 749 and Mack Wodzask turned in the high single of 317.

Other scores: Vince Sagriff 726; Irving Carson 643; Jim Burt 645; Thelma Westfall 674 and Bill Knott 643.

Prince Edwards Defeat Regents 10-7 In District Baseball League Opener

By JOHN GOODFELLOW

Prince Edward County Combines opened the Belleville and District Baseball League season Wednesday night with a 10-7 victory over Belleville Regent Juniors at the Picton Baseball Park. A fair crowd was on hand for the 8-inning affair, which was called after seven innings.

The Combines racked two Regent hurlers for 13 hits to back up Gerald Miller's best-of-school pitching. Miller allowed eight safeties but had control trouble. Claude Carr started for Regents and was touched for nine of the 10 Combine runs. Strachan finished up and turned in an effective effort.

Millers' wildness had him in serious trouble in the first inning as Regents picked up three runs on as many hits. Doug Hull opened the game with a line single to centre and scored a moment later when John Batchelor, who was getting plenty of wood on the ball all evening, lofted a long double to left centre. Pat Gilmour then rashed Batchelor with a safety to left. Jack Gilmour was thrown out stealing, Miller lost his control and walked seven batters in a row to force in the third run.

Struck Back Quickly

The Combines struck back in a hurry in their half of the first for six runs. Bob Cornelius opened with a single. Flo Bolton walked, Miller singled, Jake Bell and Roy Carson were ahead on fielders' choices. Milt Zimmerman, Al Chalmers and Yogi Wattan all followed with single before Randy Claxton ended the Belleville agony by striking out.

Hull picked up a fourth Regent run in the second, gaining a life as Chalmers dropped Cornelius' throw. A passed ball moved Hull to third and he scored as Batchelor flied out to centre.

The Combines came back with a pair in their half of the second. Bolton lined a single to left, moved up as Carr threw away Bell's grounder and scored on Bell's one-baser to right.

The teams played scoreless ball through the third and fourth, although Hull and Batchelor put a pair of singles back to back in the fourth before Goyer grounded to first to end the threat. Combines added another in the fifth, however, as Chalmers doubled to left and Wattan singled. Strachan replaced Carr at this point and Red Carson's strategy appeared sound when the hefty righthander induced Ostrander to line to Barclay, then whiffed Cornelius. But Bolton belted a single through the box and Chalmers scored.

Regents got two in the sixth. Johnny Carr opened with a walk and Strachan was on with a fielder's choice. After Hull and Batchelor had been retired, Goyer rapped a single to right to plate the pair.

Combines picked up their final tally in the sixth when Carson walked and scored after successive singles by Wattan and Ostrander.

Regents threatened in the 7th. Cavarda, pinch hitting for Bowman, was hit by a Miller pitch and Doll ran for him. Don Hall and Casey walked, Doll scored as Strachan grounded to short but Hull ended the game when his liner was snagged by Wattan.

Twenty-Eight Nags Entered For Queen's Plate

TORONTO (CP)—Twenty-eight three-year-olds have been entered for the six-furlong Queen's Plate Trial at Woodbine track May 23, it was announced Wednesday. The $2,500-added trial, tune-up for the June 2 plate, will be raced in two divisions.

The only notable absentee from the trials will be Virginia Fair's Western Canada juvenile champion last year owned by Lance Appleworth of Edmonton. The colt will be a definite starter in the $25,000-added plate.

Virginia Fair is completing her training at Calgary and due in Toronto next week.

Two Western Canada horses are entered in the trials—Food for Thot, owned by Dr. L. H. Appelby of Vancouver, and Bonsand, owned by Charlie Krupp of Winnipeg. The others are from Ontario stables.

Canadiana, $5 winter book favorite for the plate and likely to go to the post even money, may be in a starter for the short distance trials. The filly, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, scored the horse of the year in 1952, won nine of her 11 starts in Canada as a two-year-old and collected $40,763 in purses.

The entries include Young Brother, owned by W. B. Brunt of Hanover; Millbrook, owned by R. M. Horner of Whitby, and Ballyray, owned by J. E. F. Seagram of Waterloo, Ont.

Diesels Edge Wooler 6-5 In Loop Opener

By JACK BEST

It came in the bottom half of the seventh, the play that saw the C. N. R. Diesels snatch the N. D. L. opener from Wooler by a score of 6-5. Wardhaugh was aboard third on a two-base error and a passed ball and Whiting was sitting it out on the second bag on a single by Clarke. The Wooler pitcher, McColl, had deliberately walked Vern Goyer to first to load the bases with the score standing at 5-4 in favor of the visitors and there were two out. Fiery Glen Young was next to bat. First pitch was a strike and the next, Young whomped out to left field for a single, scoring Wardhaugh, and Whiting, the two winning runs. That was all. There was no further scoring on either side.

Wooler opened up the game going strong. The Diesels appeared to be completely off their game in the first inning. For Wooler, Scott opened around on a single and two passed balls to third. McColl drove him home on a hard drive to left field netting himself a single. McKee's double brought in McColl for the second tally. Richards brought in McKee on a single as the Wooler scent wind wild. Richards' clash with the actor are highlights of the game. Sharing starring honors with Power and Miss Laurie is Julia Adams as the "other woman". Mark Dana, Miss Laurie Adams' performance as the woman who wants the finer things of love, serves as an intriguing counterbalance in the absorbing role of Ann.

John McIntyre, William Reynolds, Paul Cavanagh and Fritz Warwick, John Baer and Ron Randell support the star attraction in the supporting roles of this outstanding film directed by Rudolph Mate and produced by Ted Richmond.

Remember When

Sammy Mandell successfully defended his world lightweight title against Jimmy McLarnin at New York 25 years ago Tuesday. The champion poked and slashed his way through a bristling 15 rounds against the Vancouver Irishman. Mandell was dethroned by Al Singer in June, 1930, but McLarnin collared the welterweight crown from Young Corbett in 1933.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Mississippi Gambler"

As broad in scope and as dramatic as the great river from which its title is derived, Universal-International's new Technicolor adventure-film, "The Mississippi Gambler," starring Tyrone Power, Piper Laurie and Julia Adams, opens at the McCarthy Theatre.

Here is a solid hour and a half of thrilling adventure, breath-taking intrigue and compelling romance, woven together in one of the finest films to reach the screen in the past decade.

The story, which will please film fans of widely diverse tastes, concerns a handsome adventurer, adept at cards, dueling and lovemaking who sets out to build himself a fortune through honest gambling. He wins his points and the love of a headstrong New Orleans society belle, but not until he has fought his way to success with the cards stacked at every turn of the game.

Tyrone Power, in the role of Mark Fallon, the riverboat gambler, brings both charm and a touch of the best performances of his career. Never before has he been seen to better advantage than in this role which leads him through adventure and romance at a breath-taking pace.

Not Miss Power, in all his diverse screen roles, ever co-starred with a more intriguing leading lady than Sexy, titian-haired Piper Laurie, a dynamic little actress whose vivacious personality and the actor are highlights of the picture. Sharing co-starring honors with Power and Miss Laurie is Julia Adams as the "other woman" in Mark Fallon's life. Miss Adams' performance as the woman who wants the finer things of love, serves as an intriguing counterbalance in the absorbing role of Ann.

John McIntyre, William Reynolds, Paul Cavanagh and Fritz Warwick, John Baer and Ron Randell support the star attraction in the supporting roles of this outstanding film directed by Rudolph Mate and produced by Ted Richmond.

AT THE BELLE—Rosemary Clooney, the blue-eyed blonde beauty with the effervescent singing style, makes her film debut in Paramount's delightful Technicolor musical, "Here Come the Girls", closing a highly successful five day engagement tonight at the Belle Theatre. Co-starred with Anna Marie Alberghetti and Lauritz Melchior in a bubbling package of melody, Rosemary Clooney emerges as a new screen personality while bewildering charms and unusually appealing dramatic poise tend to beguile the ear and enchant the eye.

Lindbergh Made Hop 26 Years Ago Wednesday

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—The weather over the Atlantic had cleared at last.

And so, early in the morning 26 years ago Wednesday, the pilgrim was rolled from its hangar. A crowd gathered around the young man who was preparing to enter it.

"You taking only five sandwiches?" he was asked.

"Yes," he said with a grin. "That's enough. If I get to Paris I won't need any more, and if I don't get to Paris I won't need any more, either."

The young man climbed in. The heavily loaded plane—it carried 450 gallons of gasoline—roared down the runway, and at 7:52 a.m., it took unsteadily to the air. It almost struck a road scraper, and it barely cleared the telegraph wires.

The AP bulletin read:

"Roosevelt Field, New York, May 20—(AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh, 'capitalist' to the Missouri national guard unit of 'flying' buddies, set out today on an unmarked air trail for Paris.

"The Missourian, who plays a lone hand, had no one to show him the way as he hurled his Ryan monoplane, the Spirit of St. Louis, into the murky air over Roosevelt Field. . ."

Then the Spirit of St. Louis finally settled down on the airfield at Le Bourget near Paris, 33 hours and 30 minutes after the start, and the scene was unbelievable.

Newsman Lindbergh was met by 150,000 hysterical people. . . the 1 v i l i a n communities, the guards, the steel fences, all were mowed down by the crowd. A reporter described it this way: "One of history's greatest mob scenes."

Ruling Reversed By Ontario Supreme Court

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto police commission ruling refusing a man a taxi licence was reversed Wednesday by an Ontario Supreme Court judge.

Mr. Justice A. M. LeBel ruled that a licence must be issued to Thomas A. Ross.

Evidence was that Ross was a partner in a taxi business until a partner was drowned. Ross then applied for licences for three cabs. He has been appearing before the commission since 1953 but was finally turned down last April 2 without reasons being given.

"In effect, what the board has said is that a person may not now be licensed as an owner (of a taxicab) unless he holds a licence or licences to operate more than one cab," said Mr. Justice LeBel. "This is clearly discriminatory."

"Felt Tired from the Time I Got Up In the Morning"

Nerves On Edge; Couldn't Sleep, Suffered From Constipation, Dizzy Spells and Stomach Disorders. Tells of Results She Got by Taking Syntona.

There is scarcely a person who at one time or another has not suffered from functional stomach, kidney, liver or bowel disorders making them feel miserable, tired, nervous and full of aches and pains. Many say that Dr. Hamilton's Syntona will help every one suffering this way, but in thousands of cases where these troubles persist it has given remarkable results. Many of these people say their troubles had been of long duration and that nothing they used had failed to help them.

For example, Mrs. Mary Campbell, 440 Horton Street, London, Ontario, said recently:

Trouble Began Year Ago

"About one year ago my stomach started to get upset and bloated. I would have awful gas, sour stomach and belching up of hot, sour liquids after my meals. I would get sick, dizzy spells, I had very poor appetite and couldn't sleep after going to bed at night. I felt tired all the time I got up in the morning. My head ached and I had pains in my back and joints.

Soon Felt Better

"I began taking Syntona and another without getting any noticeable relief and finally a friend of mine suggested trying Syntona. After taking the medicine I was surprised how much better I felt in a few days' time.

"I kept on taking Syntona and before the nervous, dizzy feelings left me and I felt fine all over. My stomach, too, I have a much better appetite and digestion and I can eat anything I want. My bowels are regular. The soreness and pains in my back and joints are not troubling me now and I feel so much better in every way. All I think Syntona is a grand medicine and am glad to recommend it to others."

Easy To Take

Although Syntona is made from 12 herbs, Dr. Hamilton's Herbs and Roots is so extremely pleasant to take because of the delicious flavor it imparts to the mixture it is unexcelled for the troubles that it is specifically for. Almost any one who has used Syntona will tell you the same.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dobbs The Druggist.

Red Cloak May Conceal Knife Says Pearson

WINNIPEG (CP)—An urgent warning that Russia's latest peace offensive may cloak a calculated effort to undermine the unity of the free world was voiced Wednesday by External Affairs Minister Pearson.

Speaking at a Canadian Club luncheon, he called for a "wide-awake, realistic attitude and judgment based on deeds, not words."

Mr. Pearson said it would be a tragedy if unity of the West became "obscured, scarred or weakened by internal quarrelling." This may be the victory towards which Communist forces are working, he added.

"We would be unwise to believe the objections of the Communists have been altered, even if the tactics have," he said. "But this change may almost mean a change of strategy and policy and if so, we must take full advantage of it."

Friendly words might be propaganda only, he stated. The Russian may notice up its own attitudes to charge the United States with war-mongering.

It may be their belief that a peace might mean a recession and eventual collapse among capitalistic countries. Such a situation could mean high tariffs and restrictive policies, Mr. Pearson said. Lower standards would take shape and economic disputes would be more frequent—all of this would mean the end of political co-operation.

WEST HUNTINGDON

United Church Holds Anniversary Services

WEST HUNTINGDON — The West Huntingdon United Church held its annual anniversary services on Sunday. Both morning and evening services were well attended. The special guest minister for the morning service was Lieut. Brown of the Salvation Army, of Toronto. He brought a most inspiring message based on the subject "Words." He also sang by request, "The Love of God."

Mrs. William Grant, as choir leader, had arranged a large choir and also an added attraction this year was the junior choir and at the morning service they gave an anthem. Miss Heather Grant gave a solo; the Hammond sisters contributed a duet, and the senior choir an anthem.

The evening service was in charge of the Rev. W. Pace, of Tweed United Church, who brought a wonderful message on the subject, "The Mind of Christ."

The Misses Marilyn Fibbett, and Lois Cook gave a duet with the senior choir as anthem.

Mrs. John Lalmon was pianist for the day.

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and potted plants.

The Endeavors Class held its May meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Goodwin on Thursday evening. The program was prepared by Mr. and Mrs. John Jeffrey. Mr. Alex McCurdy presided over the program and was assisted in the worship service by Mr. Mac Hartley, reading a portion of Scripture and Mr. H. R. Burks offering prayer. Mrs. Frank Hammond conducted the responsive Psalm and Mrs. John Moorcroft gave a reading.

Mrs. John Jeffrey introduced the special speaker for the evening, the Rev. Keith Daniel, minister of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, Belleville. Mr. Daniel, who is a talented musician and singer, brought an unusual address on the subject, "The ministry of music." In addition to the address, he gave a number of solos to emphasize his remarks. The members showed their appreciation by the rapt attention given Mr. Daniel.

Mr. Philip Carr voiced the thanks of this splendid address. Mrs. Daniel, also was present, and spoke briefly.

Following the benediction, Mrs. Cooke and her assistants served refreshments.

Anniversary guests of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Carr were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stapley of Stirling, and Miss Ina Phillips of Belleville.

Mr. Fred Haight of Toronto, was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Ashley.

The Rev. and Mrs. R. L. Norman and Barry, were dinner guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ashley.

Lieutenant Brown of Tweed, and Mrs. William Bray, of town, were Sunday guests of Sarah and Arthur Wilson.

Mrs. John Wallace spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. Richard Haggerty at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Clancy, at Wellmans. All are sorry that Mrs. Haggerty is ill at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Pool, Kenneth and Brenda, of Stirling, attended the anniversary services and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cooke.

Friends here were sorry to hear of the illness of the Rev. W. H. V. Walker.

Mr. Roy Dunnan has erected a new cement silo.

Anniversary guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alec McCurdy were Mr. and Mrs. Mac Sharpe and Colin, of Mount Pleasant; Mr. and Mrs. Don Sills and family of Zion and Mrs. Sandy McCurdy of Foxboro.

Visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Carr were Mr. Douglas Lemry and friend, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Drummell and family, of Norwood.

ANCIENT DWELLING

LONDON (CP)—Excavations uncovered a "pretentious" Roman dwelling on the west side of London's Watling street. Among the stone and tile ruins were fourth century coins and chunks of domestic pottery.

FIVE KILLED IN WESTERN ONT. TORNADO

Stricken Sarnia Awakes to Scene Of Grim Desolation

Officials Say Low Casualty Figures 'Miraculous'

By R. J. ANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

SARNIA (CP) — Stricken Sarnia woke today to a scene of grim desolation.

Block after block of destroyed or damaged houses, torn-out store fronts, and wrecked upper stories of business buildings were the visual evidence of a tornado that ripped the city of 42,000 late Thursday.

But in the light of a new day, with a bright sun in a cloudless sky, Sarnians seemed agreed: it's bad, but it might have been worse.

City officials termed the low casualty figures "miraculous."

One person was injured fatally, 51 others received hospital treatment.

Mrs. Margaret Clarke, 72, of Watford, Ont., died in hospital shortly before 4 a.m. today.

It was believed Mrs. Clarke was visiting relatives in Sarnia when the tornado struck.

Her three-year-old granddaughter, Frances Clarke, suffered chest injuries and was reported in only "fair" condition.

Also in fair condition was Roy Kent, 63, who suffered compound fractures of the arm.

Those were the only severe casualties of the storm that swept a path across the city from the south to the northeast at 5:45 p. m. EDT Thursday.

Area Devastated

A four-block long, two-block-wide section of the business area was devastated. Upper floors of buildings were carried away. Store windows were smashed. Heavy metal signs were sent whistling through streets spiked with hailstones as large as golf balls.

Labor Disputes Leave 121,000 Workers Idle

DETROIT (CP) — Production schedules slumped today as labor disputes left 121,000 auto workers idle in the United States, 17,400 of them in the Detroit area.

Ford Motor Company was affected by a strike in a supply plant at Canton, O., while at the Budd Company's body-stamping plants in Detroit made 8,000 workers idle there and Chrysler to send home 39,000 workers.

Studebaker was faced with the prospect of laying off more than 23,000 workers in the U. S. and Canada because of a parts shortage arising from a strike at the Borg-Warner gear plant at Muncie, Ind., where 4,800 men were off the job.

Studebaker lizsed a closing order effective next Thursday for its plant in Hamilton, Ont. It also planned to halt truck production and cut auto production by half in South Bend, Ind., and Los Angeles.

The strike at Canton left 29,000 workers idle at Ford plants in the Detroit area. However, Ford of Canada said at Windsor it could operate at least until the first week in June despite the Canton strike.

In addition to the 77,400 workers idle in Detroit, 8,500 employees of the Willys Motor Company remained off the job at Toledo, O., 4,500 Nash Kelvinator Corporation workers idle in Kenosha, Wis., and 2,300 were idle at General Motors in Danville, Ill. Kaiser-Frazer, with 800 already idle, said it would have to halt auto production unless it, laying off large numbers, because of parts shortages.

Hail, Electric Storm Causes Heavy Damage

TORONTO (CP)—An electrical and hail storm swept over Toronto for about half an hour Thursday night, disrupting power and water services.

Weather officials said the storm had no connection with the tornado which ripped across southwestern Ontario earlier, but was just a summer squall.

Lightning knocked out a pumping station and homes in some parts of North Toronto were left without water services for about 15 minutes. An auxiliary pumping station was put into operation.

Residents of suburban Etobicoke township reported hail of large numbers—quarters of an inch in diameter.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Cooler weather has invaded Ontario in the wake of the violent storms of Thursday night, and maximum reading in southern sections will be lowered by five to 10 degrees.

A developing centre of low pressure over Kansas is heading toward the province and showers are forecast over much of Ontario tonight. Behind this new storm cool weather will continue across Ontario as the disturbance moves northeastward into Quebec Saturday.

BIG THREE FACE CRITICAL UNITY TEST IN MEETING

Apparent Alliance Beset With Difficulties

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—Big Three leaders meeting next month face a critical test of their ability to stand and talk as an alliance by firm dealing with Russia—in or out of a conference with Soviet Premier Malenkov.

Unless they can close ranks, some observers here doubt that they would dare undertake subsequent Big Four negotiations and give Russia an opportunity to try to exploit their differences.

Presumably they will also have to decide on what terms they might be able to do business with Malenkov—what they could offer and what they could request in the event of a Big Four conference.

That the Western alliance is beset by difficulties and differences became apparent all over again Thursday night.

French Govt. Collapses

Hardly had the announcement been made that President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill and French Premier Mayer would meet in mid-June in Bermuda, when Mayer's government collapsed.

This was the 18th French cabinet to fall since the end of World War II.

Then there was the Trieste situation. Some time, diplomatically speaking, will now be lost while France puts together a new cabinet —time which might have been used in working up an agenda for the conference and carrying on preliminary discussions.

Republic Will Be Announced In Egypt Soon

CAIRO (Reuters)—A republic will be announced in Egypt soon, informed sources said today.

No official statement has been made but a 50-man drafting committee is believed already ready to announce a new constitution for the country.

Premier Naguib said the president of the Egyptian republic will hold the post of prime minister.

The constitution will bring the final end to the monarchy of former King Farouk and establish Under-Secretary Mohammed Naguib a year ago. Naguib has already installed his infant son Fuad technically has remained king.

Naguib declared himself in favor of a republican regime in an interview.

Egypt now is ruled by a "council" of a 12-man revolutionary committee and civilian cabinet ministers, with sovereignty vested in Naguib.

QUEEN HEADS CORPS

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen has accepted the title of head of British civil defence corps, Home Secretary Sir David Maxwell Fyfe announced in the House of Commons today. This is the first time that this corps has had a royal head.

Wind Whips Off Trees Like Celery Stalks, Smashes Barn Like Berry Box

EMBRO, Ont. (CP)—The family of George McBurney went down on their knees in the storm cellar and prayed as the devastating tornado which hit sections of southwestern Ontario approached their farm 10 miles west of London.

"I saw it coming dip down and take up two barns," said Mrs. McBurney. Then it ran to the barn where George, my husband, was milking. Then I dashed back to the house to take care of our children.

We went down into the cellar of the house and prayed."

The tornado, which moved eastward across Oxford County, narrowly missed the McBurney home, snapped off three huge maples in the front yard like celery stalks and smashed the barn like a berry box.

Mr. McBurney stood on the veranda of the farmhouse and saw the barn tumble and trap 30 head of cattle, his horses and poultry. Neighbors helped the McBurneys release the animals still alive and uninjured.

Iron shesting flapped evenly with high winds.

The storm struck area two miles north of Embro about 7:45 p. m. Edward Clark was operating a tractor when it roared over His farm. It said he drove the machine ahead of the raging wind.

"The devil's after me," he said.

Mlice Clark, 72, a nephew, said he looked out of the barn door of his father's farm and saw tin roofs swirling in the storm like newspaper.

The roof and one wall of that barn were torn off and thrown at young Clark's feet seconds after he stepped back inside.

The whole building rumbled and shook and just flew apart," he said.

Dulles Calls on Russians To Show Sincerity of Peace In Korea, Laos and Austria

NEW DELHI (AP)—State Secretary Dulles of the United States called on the Russian today to let show the sincerity of their peace overture on three fronts: Korea, Laos and Austria.

Dulles told the first press conference on his Middle East tour:

"I doubt very important results could come out of any high-level conference including the leaders of Soviet Russia so long as the Soviet bloc of nations is prosecuting the wars in Korea and Laos, and so long as they refuse to respect freedom to . . . Austria."

(The invasion of the French-backed Indo-Chinese kingdom of Laos by the Communist-led Vietminh rebels ended their week when the last major Red units pulled back into central Laos. Thus, in the preceding five weeks the Reds had gained control of about one-third of Laos' 91,500 square miles without a major battle.

(Representatives of Britain, the United States, France and the Soviet Union are due to meet in London May 27 to resume the long-deadlocked Korean negotiations. The meeting has been widely billed in the West as a chance for the Soviet bloc to show the sincerity of their peace talk, presumably by agreeing to Western demands.

(Truce negotiations on Korea are due to resume at Panmunjom on Monday.)

Dulles met with some 100 newspaper reporters as he wound up a busy visit here prior to his departure for Karachi, capital of neighboring Pakistan.

The U. S. secretary also endorsed a suggestion by Indian Vice-president Sarvapalli Radhakrishnan that Moscow should dissolve the cominform "as an indication that they will cease endlessly conspiring against the freedom of independent nations."

Eye-Witness Describes Ruins Left by Tornado at Sarnia

By R. J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff writer

SARNIA, Ont. (CP)—I picked my way along Sarnia's Front Street Thursday night.

In the midnight darkness six hours after a tornado had struck this industrial city, it was an adventure.

In the eerie light of flares and portable floodlights, steel-helmeted workmen were silhouetted as they labored to clear away the worst of the debris.

Occasionally masonry would crash to the pavement as demolition crews tore away a wall or projection that threatened to collapse.

All Was Quiet

It was so quiet. There were no shouts of workmen—just the crash of a cornice or a metal sign being torn away.

At midnight the roadway and pavement were all but cleared. The volunteers had done a quick job of piling the rubble for the trucks to cart away.

Glass crunched underfoot. There was not an unbroken window for three blocks.

Capping shadows of evacuated apartments above wrecked stores spoke mutely of 30 seconds of terrific destruction. No doubt the interiors were ruined — armed soldiers prevented entry to make sure.

I walked down the centre of the street as far as possible from tottering walls on either side. Every hundred feet or so I was required to present credentials to a police officer or soldier who carefully examined them before permitting me to proceed.

Hotel Is Ruins

The Venidome Hotel at Front and Cromwell was a ruin. The roof and the top floor had been torn away. Every window had been smashed, most broken—the frames had been blown completely in by the terrific force.

Streams of water ran from what had been a fine hotel into a huge furniture store. The automatic sprinkler system had gone into operation during the storm. The stock seemed ruined.

So it went for four blocks, perhaps the hardest hit area of the city. Metal street signs had been cut off as though by a sharp knife; so clean was the break. Trafficsign supports were bent. Power had been all but levelled.

Homes in the residential area, just a block or two east of Front, were destroyed or badly damaged. Hundreds of trees that had once lined Sarnia's streets were blown down.

It was a ghastly sight.

Mayor Leo Bureau, the official estimate of perhaps $3,000,000 damage looks much too low.

Find Baby in Home

NORTH BAY (CP)—Eddie Turcotte found a seven-month-old baby in his home when he and his family returned Thursday night from a fishing trip.

Turcotte told police the front and back doors of his house were battered in. He found the baby on a bed in a back room.

Police are searching for the parents.

Ground Crops Suffer Severe Damage in Storm

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Ground crops such as tomatoes and early apricot trees in the Niagara district suffered severe damage from blistering winds and high winds in Thursday night's storm, agricultural officials said today. No estimate of damage was given.

They said fruit trees generally suffered little damage because the storm came midway between bloom and fruit periods. Had it come later, the fruit crop would have suffered heavily.

Man Jailed In Canada Wanted For Burglaries

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—The federal treasury of investigation says it will soon look into custody a man jailed in Canada and wanted in connection with burglaries that have netted $100,000 from several Long Island homes.

John Rocke of the Buffalo FBI office, said Thursday that Clyde Arnold Guhr, 37, is nearing the end of a prison term in Kingston, Ont., for housebreaking and passing bad cheques.

Rocke said Guhr probably would be deported to Canada early in June and would be met at the border by U. S. marshals with a warrant charging him with interstate transportation of a stolen car. Rocke said the two Island burglaries were committed in 1946 and 1947. At the time, the agent said Guhr had been a boy friend of a gift parlor proprietor.

Rocke said Guhr jumped $,000 bail after arraignment on the auto theft charge and turned up a year later in Toronto, where police charged him with housebreaking and passing bad cheques.

Mayors Approve Imposing Poll Tax on Females

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Federation of Mayors and Reeves Thursday approved imposing a poll tax on females between the ages of 21 and 65 who are not entered on assessment rolls by a 56-to-50 vote.

Alderman Ada Pritchard of Hamilton said she would favor the move if and when women are given equal pay and equal rights with men. Steve Dorosby Hague of Swansea opposed the resolution.

Reeve A. G. Briggs of Stamford township said women, earning in many cases as much as men, should be prepared to accept a poll tax.

RAILWAY COOK SOUGHT IN KILLING OF CHILD, THREE

Believe Girl Criminally Assaulted Before Death

NORTH BAY (CP)—A 29-year-old railway gang cook was sought today across Northern Ontario by police who say they want him for criminally assaulting and slaying a three-year-old girl here.

The almost nude body of Susan Hutchins was found lying in undergrowth on the city's outskirts Thursday night, more than 24 hours after she had been left by her mother, Mrs. Frank Hutchins, in the care of Mervyn James (Digger) Hutton of Sudbury.

Mrs. Hutchins said she left Susan with Hutton in a tobacco store to go shopping and when she returned he and the child had disappeared.

Police began a search for him and the girl Wednesday night. The child's body was found in the bands of her children who had set out to look for her.

Dr. I. Joyal, coroner, said there was no doubt the little girl had been criminally assaulted. He said stating that she had suffered severe skull wounds. Joyal said he would await a report on an autopsy before expressing an opinion on the cause of death.

Findings Not Announced

Dr. J. R. Hall, pathologist, performed the autopsy Thursday night but his findings were not immediately announced.

Frank Hutchins, father of the victim, said he had known Hutton for about two years, but that his wife did not like the man only recently.

Hutson, a veteran of the Second World War, has been under treatment by a North Bay doctor. A metal plate is imbedded in his skull.

The victim's body was found 300 yards off Highway 17 by Robert and Ronald Campbell and Lois Jackson, all in their early teens. They saw an arm protruding from a clump of long grass and alders. They ran home and told their parents.

Police said the child was lying on her back when they arrived at the scene. Her blue coat had been drawn over her face. Her head had been smashed in and her back was covered with blood.

Operations Will Suffer if Supply Strikes Prolonged

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Officials of Ford of Canada and Chrysler Corporation of Canada said on Thursday their manufacturing operations will suffer if strikes at two United States supply plants are prolonged.

A Ford spokesman said the plant will revert to a 40-hour work week with no overtime shifts as well as suspend operations of the passenger car assembly line Saturday.

"In the absence of Ford operations in the U.S. as a result of the strike in the Canton, O., supply plant is a matter of serious concern," said Hugh Bridge, vice-president in charge of manufacturing, said.

Chrysler officials said they do not expect a complete shutdown here as a result of a strike at a Detroit plant in Detroit. But they said operations will be affected by the strike.

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP)—No people like show people! Nuts! There are no people like show people! Nuts!

That's the spirit in which one newspaper people when one of th family's in trouble.

Port Huron's wild tornado Thursday not only knocked out all power to the Port Huron Times Herald but also to its radio station WTTH. When it would be back was a question, maybe a few hours, maybe many.

F. Granger Well, executive vice-president of the Times Herald, called a few townsmen wanted to know the full story of what had befallen their neighbors.

A call to Paul W. McKee, publisher of the Mt. Clemens Monitor-Leader brought the word: "Sure we'll help. What can we send?"

Could the Times-Herald use the Monitor-Leader's plant to get out an extra, something it could hit Port Huron streets with at 8 a. m?

"The shop's yours," replied the Monitor Leader publisher.

Managing editor Clarence Burkholder, three printers, an engraver, and a photographer with batches of pictures were off to Mt. Clemens, some 35 miles away, in a matter of minutes.

Sarnia Suffers $3,000,000 In Property Damage

Three Dead Near London, Port Huron Is Badly Hit

(By THE CANADIAN PRESS)

A tornado struck a sledgehammer blow at industrial Sarnia late Thursday and left five dead, scores of injured and millions of dollars in property damage as it twisted across northern Michigan and southwestern Ontario.

The Indiana-born storm suddenly leaped across the international boundary at 5:43 p.m. and smashed into Sarnia. One woman died 36 hour injuries today in that city of 42,000, 51 were injured and estimates of property damage ranged as high as $3,000,000.

Then it wakked its way across southwestern Ontario, leaving injury and destruction wherever it touched, Just outside London an aged woman, a bedridden invalid, and his young daughter died in their shattered homes. The other fatality was in Port Huron, Mich., but across the St. Clair River from Sarnia.

Shattered Buildings

The storm swirled into Lake Ontario four hours after it first made appearance on the Canadian side. In its flight the wake were shattered building, tangled communication and utility lines and treestreen uprooted.

The damage wrought by the storm brought a comment from Harry White, member of parliament for Middlesex, for federal aid. He said he would ask the acting prime minister, Hon. Brooke Claxton asking that Western Ontario be declared a disaster area. He sought allocation of pdit of a $1,500,000 fund held in the hands of a special government committee for aid to stricken areas.

In tornado fashion, the storm's course was erratic. At one point in southwestern Ontario a new car was hurled out of its garage a distance of 200 feet. At another point a three-ton truck was moved 50 feet.

Near Stratford, J. D. Thistle and his hired man were about to start milking their cows when the black cloud appeared. The barn was snatched off its foundations, leaving the cattle unharmed in their stalls. The men also were unhurt.

Home Flies to Field

In London township, Milton Charlton said he saw his 11-room brick home fly into the air, leaving his mother and his sister still sitting uninjured in their kitchen chairs.

The dead in Ontario are:

Simon Hutchinson, farmer of East William Township, about 20 miles west of London, and his three-year-old daughter, Dorothy; and Mrs. Sara MacIntosh, about 80, in Reeve Township, Huron County.

Mrs. Margaret Clarke, 72, of Watford, Ont., died in hospital Thursday.

Sound, he served in the First World War and later took a degree as a chartered accountant. He was on the reserve at the outbreak of the Second World War. In 1945, he was appointed deputy paymaster general in the department of national defence, Ottawa. He retired after seven years to become a partner in a stock brokers' firm.

BATAWA CHILD SUFFERS PAINFUL INJURY TO TONGUE

Five-year-old Paul Duncan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Duncan, Batawa, suffered painful injuries to the tip of his tongue and chin and struck his lower jaw on the edge of a garbage receptacle. The impact caused a near-severance of the boy's tongue.

He was rushed to Belleville General Hospital where eight stitches, four above and four below the tongue, were necessary to close the wound. He was later returned to his home.

Mr. Duncan said that difficulty in retaining the tongue in the boy's tongue is being encountered. Two sets have already been inserted, and another is now necessary.

HEAVY RAIN, WIND HALT TRANSPORTS

Delaying rain, driven by strong winds, left accumulations on the electrical storm that swept over the city and district last night slowed city traffic to a minimum and in some cases halted it entirely.

Transports travelling along Highway No. 3 around 11 p.m. were forced to halt near Marysville as a deluge of rain drove across the valley ahead of them.

The drivers placed flares on the highway and found them practically useless as they were extinguished by the wind as soon as they were lit.

COLORED SLIDES EXHIBITED BY CLUB

The Belleville Camera Club's regular monthly meeting at the Corby Public Library featured an exhibition of colored slides. Keen interest by all members in this exhibit was evidenced by the number of slides entered.

eron Tanner was voted first place, "Sunset Marshland," by Dr. R. E. Stewart, second and an "Autumn Scene" by Doug. Ketcheson, third place.

Prizes for the prize winning slides were very kindly donated to the club by Mr. Carl Elliot of Elliot's Music Centre.

Mr. Geo. Kilarny gave a very interesting and informative outline on the decisions which confront an editor when approving photographs for publication.

A field trip to Napanee, Bath, Picton, etc., will officially close the first half of the club year.

Marsh Area Set Out Year Ago For Sanitary Land Fill Method Of Garbage Disposal Now Filled

Whether there is more garbage in Belleville than in other cities of the same size is a question being pondered by the city engineering department and by members of the public works department.

At any rate a marsh area adjacent to Zwick's Island set off a year ago in which to carry out the sanitary land fill method of garbage disposal is already nearly filled and soon dumping in the larger swamp area will be necessary.

The initial area set off was thought by the engineering department to be sufficient for garbage dumping for two or three years. Instead it has been filled in a year.

In preparation for dumping of garbage in the larger swamp area east about Zwick's island a dyke of ore and earth fill is being extended north from the island to the mainland just east of the Gilbert Baker property. The idea of the dyke is to prevent seepage from garbage out into the bay.

Referring to the fact that the initial area designated for garbage had been filled up more rapidly than anticipated, Alderman Thomas said the area could either be grassed over or be used as a play field with ball diamonds or other playing fields marked out.

C of C Directors Hear Report Of Tourist Com.

Jack Yanover, chairman of the Tourist Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, outlined the observations of his committee before the directors at the weekly luncheon held in the Shrine Club on Thursday.

Included in the chairman's recommendations were the following: A guest book be placed on the information desk of the Chamber of Commerce office and natures during the holiday season. It was felt this would be an aid to publicizing the city and area's facilities as it would supply a mailing list for future distribution.

It was further suggested in the report, a resort section to the chamber be added, to bring this section about it would be necessary to contact all resort owners in and around the city.

Further, it was recommended the American Chamber of Commerce be contacted regarding its policy of declaring a "tourist of the week." It was suggested that an arrangement might be of benefit to this city if it were adopted.

Also noted in the report, was a suggestion that number 5 Colborne be brightly Victoria park.

One guest attended the luncheon. He was Ernest Cowling, land surveyor. Two new members were accepted by the directors for membership in the chamber. They were: Dr. Robert Andrews, physician; and Hugh Murray, of Hugh Murray Ltd.

The President read a letter from the director of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce, which lauded the work and initiative of the Belleville chamber. The letter also praised the quality of the chamber's news letter, published weekly.

Four Starlings Found Alive In Cottage Stove

Farmers who each year worry about crop damage by starlings will need to worry more about laborate traps or other methods of destroying the pests.

All they have to do is to get rid of the starlings is to own a summer cottage with a good-sized stove and close the summer home up tight for the winter.

This was discovered by Mr. and Mrs. Chris Young of Deseronto when they opened their summer home at Oak Lake, 12 miles north of Belleville, recently. They found more than four dozen birds had come down the chimney and become trapped in the stove. Four starlings were still alive, along with 50 dead starlings and a bluebird.

The birds had come down 15 flights of chimney including four pipe elbows and then could not get out. The birds were literally packed in the firebox of the stove.

Chatfield, R.C.N.V.R., of H.M.C.S. Cataraqui of Kingston, will also be on hand for the inspection. The public is cordially invited.

Commanding officer of the Belleville sea cadets, Harry MacKenzie, said that about 50 cadets will be out for the inspection. The cadets have completed their final drill and everything is in "shipshape" for the inspection at 7.30 Monday evening. Following the inspection will be a demonstration by the cadets in signalling, first aid, boat pulling and other arts of cadet training.

One of the highlights of the evening's program will be the official presentation of three sailing craft to the local cadets, the gifts of three Belleville men.

Sidney Twp. Home Destroyed When Struck by Lightning

Struck by lightning in a severe electrical storm which swept through the district about ten o'clock Thursday night, the farm house owned by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Titterson, 6th. concession of Sidney township, was completely destroyed.

Nothing was saved from the dwelling and Mr. and Mrs. Titterson escaped only with the clothes they were wearing. Mr. and Mrs. Titterson were the only persons in the home.

Sleeping on an iron cot in the kitchen, Mr. Titterson suffered shock when the cot was struck by the lightning bolt which set fire to the house. He was taken to hospital and an hour later was allowed to leave.

Belleville firemen went to the scene of the blaze but could do nothing to save the farm dwelling.

Falling limbs caused a few minor interruptions in telephone service, most interruptions being in the Picton area.

For Interruptions

There were a few interruptions of hydro service, but according to O. H. Scott, Public Utilities manager, these were only local and caused for the most part by broken limbs which fell on transformers and wires.

"We were lucky to escape with as few interruptions as we did," Mr. Scott said.

Well over half an inch of rain fell over the district during the electrical storm, which swept through the area. Gutters ran full of water during the heaviest of the storm. Officials at the pump house stated .50 inch of rain fell.

During the afternoon the high wind toppled a tree on the farm of Lorne Hubbs, north of Frankford.

The tree knocked down the hydro wires and smashed a garage. A large tree on Highland Ave. crashed early in the evening.

PICTON

One Cow Killed, Fourteen Stunned By Electric Shock

PICTON — One cow was killed and fourteen others stunned in an unusual occurrence at the farm of Henry Montgomery, Carrying Place, Wednesday night. Being used in the stable was an electric pail heater, which, it was found to be defective. Its current was carried on water pipes and steel stanchions with sufficient force to kill or stun every row of animals suddenly fell down. While one animal was fatally shocked, the others recovered, though several were unable to stand for some time afterwards.

A hydro officials stated that cows are very sensitive to electricity and 90 volts is sufficient to kill one, though it would not harm humans. The same officials stated that the danger of recurrence of such accidents can easily be overcome. At small cost, a section of pipe can be removed and a rubber hose inserted, thus stopping any electrical discharge from travelling further.

New Zoning By-Law Given Tentative Approval by Board

After many months of planning and long series of meetings Belleville's new building and zoning by-law received tentative approval of the Ontario Municipal Board at a special hearing held this morning at the city hall council chambers.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Isaac Armstrong, H. Yeates and W. B. Greenwood said they would give tentative approval to the by-law for one year during which time the by-law would be tested.

One exception to the freezing order would be that apartment houses would not be allowed in the Parkwood Heights district during that period. Under the zoning by-law as it stands at present, apartments would be permitted in two blocks on Parkwood Heights now not built on.

Objects to Apartments

J. C. Robertson, representing the owners of over 30 properties in the Parkwood Heights district, objected to apartments being allowed in this area. He said that at the hearing held by the board in Belleville on the zoning by-law, it had been agreed that all of Parkwood Heights would be Class 'A' area.

"We were very much surprised when we found out that apartments were to be permitted," he said.

Lack of any other general objection to the zoning by-law was given as the reason for the tentative approval being given to the by-law by the municipal board. In freezing the by-law for one year members said this would protect against shacks being built in residential areas in the meantime any objections to the by-law could be dealt with by the municipal board.

Could Approve Amendments

They said that at the expiration of the year the board would be able to approve of any amendments to the by-law without a further hearing.

Less than half a dozen residents put in an appearance at the city hall to objections to the zoning by-law as it now stands. Those included Mr. Robertson, J. T. Ransom, Arthur Coady and E. Shulman. Most objections were of a personal nature.

Mr. Ransom asked that the area fronting Dundas Street, east of the Bell Telephone building be placed in "B" class instead of "A" class as at present. Mr. Ransom said he owned a property in this area which was unrestricted at the time of purchase, and also extended to the city limits, outside of which there were no building restrictions.

Mr. Coady wanted the same area put in "A" class, noting that it was his understanding that this area was to be reserved for strictly residential purposes.

Mr. Shulman asked that two lots on MacDonald north of Victoria owned by himself be changed from "A" to "A-1" class which would permit construction of apartment units.

The reason for his request was that he, the school board was planning construction of a new school adjoining his property. He had purchased the property on the understanding this area was to be strictly residential.

Draws in 1950

The new building and zoning by-law governing land use in the city was drawn in 1950 when ex-Alderman E. G. Porter was the chairman of the council planning committee. City building inspector Dave Barker did much work in drafting the by-law.

Following the new year, public meetings regarding property owners with the provisions of the new by-law were held at the school in the city under the direction of Alderman Arthur Keegan, chairman this year of the city planning committee, with members of Aldermen Smith, Tice and Countryman.

In February the Municipal Board held a public hearing on the by-law, but because of the fact so many amendments had been introduced, board members recommended entire by-law be re-written.

IRON ORE SURVEY

GENEVA (Reuters)—The United Nations economic commission for Europe says deposits of iron ore in Canada total 20,000,000,000 tons compared with about 47,000,000,000 in Russia. Results of a study released today said Minnesota's Mesabi iron range will be nearly exhausted within 20 years. It added, however, there are "practically unlimited quantities" of iron ore in the same region.

Workshop Players Warmly Commended

On Wednesday last the Belleville Theatre Guild Inc., held its final meeting of the spring season with an enthusiastic group in attendance. The newly-elected president, Mr. Reed Simpson, occupied the chair, and in his opening remarks commended the workshop players for their excellent performance on Invitation Night, stressing the growing importance of this phase of activity.

He spoke, also, of the fine efforts of the stage crew in beautiful new curtains recently donated by the Guild to Queen Victoria school. A brief resume was given of tentative plans for the season with conveners named to head up various committees.

It was announced that early in June a meeting would be held of the executive together with those invited in directed, when it was hoped further plans would be formulated for the early fall productions.

Mention was also made of the fact that a committee of Guild members convened by Murray Irwin, had been formed to assist the civic authorities in an advisory capacity in the Coronation Day parade.

Worthwhile Adjudication

Mr. Charles Sloan of the English department of Queen's College, who was introduced by Mrs. W. J. Doyle, gave a most constructive and worthwhile adjudication of the workshop play "Poor Aubrey" stating that because of its farcical tendency it was not at all an easy play to produce.

The actors had, however, frequently captured the spirit of the play and with additional experience in this type should give a first class finished performance.

A hilariously amusing adaptation of the silent movie was then staged with Bob Dickens at the piano and Stuart Robb and Gordon Thompson as the inexperienced help in the old-time movie house. Bob Dick as the actress's mother; Vera Thompson, the timid daughter, and Bill Kellet, as the moustached, swash-buckling villain, gave the audience something to laugh at. It is best, as predicted about 1910. This part of the program was arranged by Elaine Thompson.

Numerous Slides

As a grand finale, Joe Mackay showed numerous slides, excellent reproductions in color, of several scenes from many of the many productions during the past year. Shots of major productions workshop and radio plays were presented by the Belleville Theatre Guild for the season 1952-53.

Four New Cases Hog Cholera Found

OTTAWA (CP)—Four new cases of hog cholera have been uncovered, all within the general quarantine area of Southwestern Ontario, Dr. Thomas Childs, veterinary director-general, reported today.

The diseased animals, were traced back to the community sales barn where the originally infected hogs were purchased, Dr. Childs said.

Some 6,000 hogs passed through that sales barn on the Wellington county and we've got to trace every one of them," he said in an interview.

The new cases were uncovered in the counties of Perth, Lincoln and Wellington. Perth is the only new county involved, bringing the number of counties infected to eight and infected farms to 21.

"One thing still in our advantage is that there have been no farm-to-farm infections so far reported," Dr. Childs said. "there may be some. We expect to expect that but so far we haven't had any."

Not all of the 6,000 hogs which passed through the Wellington county sales barn during a fourweek period have been infected, said Dr. Childs. But the agriculture department is taking no chances. Each must be traced and examined.

Every available government veterinarian is being pressed into the program, Dr. Childs said the government is even hiring private veterinarians to help.

Dr. Childs said the first batch of infected hogs apparently passed through the Wellington sales barn April 16. Before the animal sickness was reported, there had been three other auctions held there, April 23, May 2 and May 8. The infection was reported May 14.

To get more veterinarians for the fight, the animal tuberculosis eradication program was suspended. Teams of veterinarians are scouring the quarantine area, watching for new outbreaks and whitewashing and disinfecting community sales barns.

The quarantine area, imposed Thursday, covers some 20,000 square miles which stretches from Belleville to Windsor and north from Lake Erie to Lake Huron and Georgian Bay.

MEETING IN BERMUDA

It is a reasonable conclusion that President Dwight D. Eisenhower knows enough to ignore Senator Joseph McCarthy even if the rest of us do not.

All the while people were calling people names it appears that the President was on the trans-Atlantic telephone with Sir Winston, and saying it was high time that there should be a get-together among the folk who are responsible for this whirligig of our times.

We know that the Prime Minister would have liked to invite Georgi Malenkov to the party. The President said not yet. And in this case we must go along with the President.

Perhaps out of this Bermuda meeting will come a formula for peace. It is entirely logical that the western powers should talk things over before there is a meeting with Russia. That the USSR must be a party to whatever ultimate arrangements are made is acknowledged by all, but we think President Eisenhower is right when he demands that the Kremlin must let us have the assurance that Russia is as much interested in peace as the western world.

We have not yet had that assurance. The Prime Minister would be, as he says, derelict in his duty, if he were not, at the same time, insisting, that no opportunity should be lost to reach an agreement. It is fitting that Sir Winston is included in this meeting because there can never be any harmony in Europe unless France has been satisfied that she will not be forever under the threat of a militant Germany.

It is not very long ago that the allies of World War II were agreed that Europe would never know peace unless the Germany were de-militarized for all time. Both the French and the Russians wanted this assurance. But in our unhappy falling out since the end of the war we have found it expedient to re-arm Germany and it was only last week that we saw that nation become the first to subscribe to a European army. We might have asked ourselves whether Germany were too eager. Probably there were many in France and in Russia who pondered this question.

We believe we are entitled to be suspicious of Russia. And unless the Kremlin is to do the impossible and renounce Communism wholly and completely we have no alternative. The whole concept of Communism is that capitalism must be the seeds of its own destruction. Anyone who has ever had more than two words with a Red is aware that he believes in the inevitable day of the revolution.

* * *

Recognizing this we can never hope to be wholly reconciled with Russia. But it could be that there can be an agreement reached whereby, in our time, it could be determined that war is not the answer to our irreconcilable views.

* * *

And in Bermuda perhaps Sir Winston could impress upon M. Mayer that while France and Germany are historic enemies it can hardly be said, either, that Britain has forever been on the hands of the Hun. But Britain is prepared to bend over backward in trying to get along with people.

We are rather sure that President Eisenhower is of the same mind, though he might have some difficulty selling that idea to all the American people.

There would seem to be the possibility that in his reference to the Locarno Pact, Prime Minister Churchill struck a responsive chord with President Eisenhower. Sir Winston pointed out that the Locarno treaty was the one sensible step taken after World War I to bridge the gap of enmity between Germany and France. His thesis now is that Russia must have the same sort of assurance against another militarist Germany.

It is all very well to say that this is where we come in, that it has all been tried before and didn't work. We could also say ourselves that we have Canada's extremity. Some things must be preferred to a world bleeding itself white in armaments for defence — against ourselves.

HAPPY DAYS

Summer months are now considered the safest of the year, according to the accident statistics quoted in the N.Y. Journal of Commerce. This is in sharp contrast to the situation that prevailed as recently as two generations ago. At that time, the children's death rate was always most pronounced in August, largely because of intestinal diseases.

SURPRISED

Having finally seen Johnny Ray perform in a movie short we must confess that the only emotion we could manage to evoke was that of laughter. How such writhings and facial contortions could make bobby-soxers squeal with delight is something completely beyond our ken.—Brockville Recorder and Times.)

WAR'S COST

What do we pay for each bomber we send?
Merely one plane, and the settled receipt
Thirty fine schools not one child will attend.
Shows five hundred thousand good bushels of wheat.
One bomber — and this is war's terrible bill—
Two hospitals needed to care for the ill.
For a single destroyer—He's dismal to tell—
We pay with the bones where eight thousand could dwell.
What do we pay for each gun that we mold?
And surely the good Lord must think we are fools
Food for the hungry and warmth for the cold.
So to squander our hospitals, houses and schools.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Vigorous as is the growth and spread of the recent new tourist courts and motels all over the country, as well as the erection of new hotels in city, town and country, there is still room for more. And small one-room hotels that are fifty to seventy-five years of age and smell of stuffed owls and loons.

The hostelries date back to when the country was filled with travelling men. When the railways arrived in the towns and townships the country enormously all through the sixties, seventies, eighties and nineties, burgeoned moved by train, and every town and a great many villages had to have hotels to accommodate the traffic. The travelling men hired buggies in the railroad - served towns and scoured the country villages. Ah, it was a busy world and many a fine hotel stood in villages that boasted only two or three stores. But they were key-point villages in the travelling men's circuit.

The motor car killed hundreds of hotels. Some lingered and decayed. Others were converted into village apartments, with premises in the green-blinded windows. They slept. Then the tourist trade came. And the old hotels began to live again. You will see them now, with big signs of modernistic black or gaudy glossy improvisations around their door. Lively little inns, restaurants and snack bars occupy part of their frontages. Painted up, they glow with new paint and the frisky airs of an elderly lady in slacks. There is nothing wrong at any rate new used furniture, in the lobbies. The old bedrooms have been renovated, and the prices have been bleached staple.

Many of the best of these hotels with their second wind - too many for the sake of the hotelsterrific hangs this odor of antiquity pervading them. I think it is a bangbusy world and many a fine hotel loons that used to fertoon the diningroom sideboard and plate rail. My wife thinks it is old pillows, old mattresses, old hangings that need to be replaced. A new era should smell new.

They Do Not Know Ontario

(Port Arthur News-Chronicle)

What this newspaper has been complaining about over the past several years is that pupils come out of the primary and secondary schools with practically no knowledge of the geography of their own province, what the counties and districts are, or more important, perhaps, the location of principal towns and cities. It is not their fault. They were never taught.

When one educationist was asked about it his reply was that "We teach fishing, not fishes to find out." At that rate they could teach spelling by telling the pupils they could find the words correctly spelled in a dictionary.

Letter to the Editor

Schools Are Not Built for $17

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I have read with considerable interest and concern your editorial "Let's Build a School." My concern is due to the fact that I fear a wrong impression has been left with the public as the figures used are very misleading and in some cases incorrect.

It appears that the entire cost of the school addition is going to be $17 per ratepayer and that the board of the public section in Section 5 is saving its taxpayers $100,000.

The township council has been requested by the S. S. No. 5 board to provide the sum of $46,000 for the four-classroom addition. This includes heating and equipment. The rate of grant paid by the department of education is based on the public section in the 72 per cent which means that the department will be contributing an amount or $46,500 towards the cost of this school. This rate of grant is considerably higher than the average (most other public schools in this township receive a 40 per cent grant) for the reason that the amount of assessment per classroom is lower than the average. The fact that the department has agreed to make this grant available in one year is the only reason that full payment this year could be considered. We might add that in discussion with officials of the department in Toronto it was pointed out that the township's grant is pretty much in the nature of an experiment and that it would be impossible to extend this arrangement to other boards without upsetting completely the whole annual budgetting of their department.

To provide the balance of the cost or the school of $18,200 the board proposes to levy $9,000 plus of $9,000 out of current operating expenses, leaving a debt of the remainder, or $9,200, is to be levied directly in a special rate on the ratepayers in connection with this school section. We might add that the $9,000 included in current account has been achieved by holding the tax rate for the section down to $17 per pupil the past year or two. The effect on the township public school section No. 5 in 1953 will be roughly a mill rate of 18 mills (or $18 per $1,000 assessment) to raise the $9,200, in addition of course to all other taxes levied. It will be seen above exactly what the net cost of the school will be to the ratepayer the rate necessary to raise the surplus which has been an unusually low assessment rate for the past year or two should be added to the amount. The effect would bring the total cost to the ratepayers of approximately 31 mills or $31 per $1,000 assessment.

We note you state "And they are getting a new classroom for $20,000." This, of course, is quite an exaggeration. The $20,000 is the total estimate based on the average cost of other classrooms in the township and varies from $22,000 to $24,000 which would mean a total estimate of $80,000. The department of education, upon approval of the school plans, pays their 72 per cent grant which would leave 28 per cent or an amount of $22,400 to be raised locally. The result would be a direct saving to the ratepayers of S.S. No. 5 of $8,680, instead of $100,000. We might add that the township has also insisted the department would be paying grants on the architects interest charges as well as the principal payment as well as the interest due to the ratepayers in paying cash would be only the portion of the actual cost after the grant.

There are many arguments pro and con as to whether schools are debentures or not for a given purpose. Of course there is no doubt that the purchaser is getting something when dealing with one's own personal stability has to pay for the item in cash. However for public's convenience in this it is quite possible that many who become ratepayers in this section after 1953 may benefit from the construction of this school without contributing to its cost. Also the effect on the older resident may be a bit unfair.

In closing I might state that it is not my wish to detract in any way from the good work done by the members of this school board and their secretary-treasurer. They have devoted a great deal of their own time (in the case of the trustees without remuneration) to this work. They have also set up a grant system unequalled in that the public school population in this section has been increased by roughly a mill. It has been impossible to accommodate children in the new classrooms. Preparing the building proposal they have done a very fine effect every saving possible, including dispensing with the services of an architect and eliminating a basement, and I am sure they are doing their very best to keep the cost of education down in their section. However, it seemed to me that your editorial was hardly fair to the other trustee boards who have built schools in the past few years, as it failed to bring out the very special circumstances that make it possible to carry out this building program and finance it in one year. I felt that in all fairness to the members of these other boards these facts should be brought to the attention of the public.

Earl Dafoe
Clerk-treasurer, Thurlow Twp.

Editor's Note:
Mr. Dafoe has put the position of school trustees aptly. Our slight criticism was not with them, but that we did not use any incorrect figures. We could have been misconstrued.

Shipwrecked Sailor

(Ottawa Journal)

The paucity of apt quotation and the overworking of tired cliches are sorry indications of the deterioration of public speaking to which Canadians have become accustomed. We still recall, in a nostalgic way, the feeble speech made to the Commons four years ago by Mr. MacDougall of Vancouver, who spent all of his after-dinner hour describing Greece and use some words of Demosthenes, but inflection on these are incidental effects of the fundamental process involved: deterioration of public oratory. Slogans, the 'hoss, periosteum, gum tissues, tooth sockets and jaws.

Riggs' 'disease' (Dr. Riggs was an American dentist who first described pyorrhea alveolaris about a century ago), like arteriosclerosis, chronic rheumatic (or "arthritis" if you can pay more) and occidental bet bet, is of such slow, insidious development that no physician or dentist can say with any certainty that a person who didn't have it a month ago has it now.

In my own so-called mind I am convinced that periodontoclasia is physical degeneration due to nutritional deficiencies, inadequate daily intake of essential minerals and vitamins through the years and very distinctly related to, especially calcium, phosphorus, and D deficiencies.

This is not to imply that a daily "dose" of vitamin-mineral concentrate of one type or another will cure pyorrhea. When some of the nerves have degenerated from long deprivation of vitamin B you can't expect to cure the paralysis or paresis by taking high potency vitamin B for a few weeks. When some of the living cells in the joint linings have been replaced with inert fibrous matter or calcareous material you can't hope to reverse the degeneration or regain the approximate normal joint linings. When you have deliberately permitted you are not likely to regain your youth by leading a healthy life and your cells like a good boy or girl.

The time to cure pyorrhea is, say, twenty years before you realize you have got it.

A-Hunting We Will Go

(Edmonton Journal)

The most thoroughly English of all English sports in England in many a long day is surely this week's meeting of a Liverpool suburban newspaper, the Hampstead and Highgate Express, and the Royal Society of Ornithology. The campaign against the grey squirrel — now declared Public Enemy No. 1 by the latter body — has the support of the former, which has offered its a tail — for the moment because the squirrels are mating. Young squirrels are, apparently, still in the nests.

This, of course, is the exact reverse or most extermination campaigns. In other countries, when people go hunting, the pest, if pest, they are particularly anxious, to kill is the mature adult and their young, so that the species may diminish. But this is England, where the unsporting for the British. So the hunting is called off while the young of little grey squirrels are able to fend for themselves.

We wonder if it's permissable to shoot a squirrel on the ground, or must the hunter wait until shoot it on the fly between two trees, or will he be branded a boudier or even a cad?

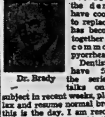
Elementary Freedom

(Toronto Star)

A letter to The Star criticized foreign-origin Canadians for talking their native tongue in public on a street car. It has provoked a couple of letters both for and against; but the majority of the writers, while not defending loud talk on street cars, uphold the right of people to speak whatever language they wish.

It is surprising that there is not unanimity as to the propriety of this. Some of the writers not only criticize the use of language other than English on the street cars, but say—to quote one example—"these people coming from foreign countries should not be allowed to use their native language in public places. If they want to speak their own language, credit that is due must be made to do it between their own four walls." That writer finds all our public places "reeking with foreign language," and says, "it's absolutely useless to go downtown now."

With those sentiments The Star has no sympathy. Foreign language does not "reek." Any language is sickening unless the things said in it are sickening. English, when misused, can be very sickening, too.



The Passing Years

Nothing makes you more conscious of the swift flight of time's winged chariot than passing schoolhouses and realizing that more than half the kids there are younger than the atomic bomb and "Oklahoma!"

Personal Health Talks

LET'S FACE THE TRUTH ABOUT PERIODONTOCLASIA

Dr. Brady

subject in recent weeks, please relax and resume normal breathing. this is the case I am involved in, let all — all the world, that is — the truth about pyorrhea. Incidentally, in the event that any dentist should criticize in good faith, why not ask another dentist or pyorrhea or the teeth, I promise him or her that I will take it in good faith. I'm an avowed quack but I have not yet abandoned the principles of professional courtesy.

Pyorrhéa, periodontoclasia, Riggs' disease (or, whatever your dentist calls it, is degeneration. I'm sorry, but there's no other way to describe it. TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

READJUSTMENTS

I know of many people—and so do you who read this—who do not seem to know how to get on the right road to peaceful adjustment. They are whipped here and there. They are out of step. They do not know how to readjust themselves. They flounder in self-pity. They start blaming others, and life itself, for their condition. This gets them nowhere. I have seen it much. Try to readjust yourself in new ways any one of these people I know. Happiness which you think has never been yours.

Why not start thinking about your own problems, and see if you can't help someone else to solve his? It may help to reveal the key that will unlock the door to your own happiness. Try to give something of hope and pleasure to others, instead of planning for your own isolated way of life.

All of us have far more blessings than we ever acknowledge. They immediately increase the moment that we begin to be grateful for others. And the forgotten ones come vividly to mind. It's all a matter of readjustment. Start to think of others, others will think of us. It's that simple.

The zest of life is an experience, and swift experience because it teaches. The worker who suddenly loses his job is faced with a readjustment that is most wonderful to see. He often has to make a readjustment in his manner of living. He has to select new friends or train a new set of resolves. Nobody ever knows the best unless one with a will and a purpose.

During these days of high prices and high taxes all of us have had to make readjustments—many of them not pleasant good ones. We have learned to go without things. The great little things have taken on new significance. Simpler pleasures have come into their own. We have learned the sweetness of the success of others. It has always been interesting that way people, who are suddenly thrown together because of some great disaster, have a new reward with each other—all barriers down!

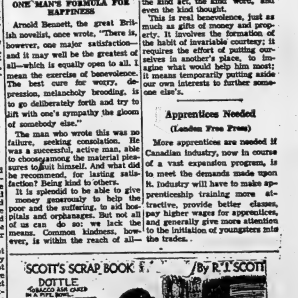
Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

ONE MAN'S FORMULA FOR HAPPINESS

Arnold Bennett, the great British novelist, once said, "There is however, one major satisfaction— and it may well be the greatest of all—which is equally open to all, and that is the exercise of benevolence. The best cure for worry, depression, melancholy and the blues is to deliberately forth and try to lift with one's sympathy the gloom of somebody else."

The man who wrote this was no failure, seeking consolation. He was a successful, active man, able to choose among the material pleasures to hint himself. And what did he choose? To be happy in self-satisfaction? Being kind to others.



It is splendid to be able to give generously to help the poor and the suffering, to aid hospitals and organizations of all kind of us can do so: we lack the means. Even more kindness, however, is within the reach of all— the kind act, the kind word, and even the kind thought.

This is a real benevolence, just as much as gifts of money and property. It involves the reflection of the habit of invariable courtesy; it requires the ability to forget grievances in another's place, to imagine what would help him most; it means temporarily putting aside our own interests to further someone else's.

Apprentices Needed

(London Free Press)

More apprentices are needed if Canadian industry, now in course of a vast expension program, is to meet the demands made upon it. Industry will have to make apprenticeship training more attractive, provide better classes, pay higher wages for apprentices, and generally give more attention to the initiation of youngsters into the trades.

Ballerinas of Breadner School Delight Audience at Picton

The strains of Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" faded away — a reception of audience applause with a warm ovation — and nine lovely ballerinas from the Air Marshal Breadner School ballet classes glided off the Palomar Hall stage in Picton, Thursday night.

The young ballet dancers, the largest group participating in a ballet recital, were sponsored by the Picton Rotary Club.

Helen-Ann Blain, Sandra Russel, Francis MacLean, Catherine Dews, Catherine Stephens, Seumora Matheson, Claudette Roderick, Penny Olsen and Linda Rencheholm moved gracefully and rhythmically across the stage in the first of a two-night performance. The young girls are all students of the Breadner School ballet classes under the supervision of Miss Carol Mitchell, of the Picton School of Ballet. Majority of the dancers are in their first year of training and are between nine and thirteen years of age.

Marilyn Woodcock, daughter of WO 1 and Mrs. G. R. Woodcock, of 352B Lawrence Drive, delighted the audience with her solo interpretation of "Dancing in the Dark." Marilyn, who would like to make ballet her profession, has trained with Miss Mitchell for two years and prior to coming to Trenton, she studied with the Maritime Academy of Dancing in Halifax.

A second solo number by an Air Marshal Breadner School student and first year ballet class member was included on the program. Ten-year-old Betsy-Ann Blair, daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. F. J. Blair, of 47 Rivers Drive, executed her number, Schubert's "Serenade," with the cape and grace of a veteran performer.

Featured in Polka

Rebecca McLeod, Donna MacMurdy, Mary Johnston and Judy Kelley were featured in the "Pizzicato Polka" by Strauss. Gail Dolan, Susan Dever, Gail Greenough and Marilyn Woodcock danced to "Clara de Lune."

The seventeen ballet performers taking part in the Picton festival, will be featured in a third performance on the evening of May 29, at 8:15 p.m. in the Air Marshal Breadner School auditorium. The Breadner School Ballet Festival is being sponsored by the Homes and School Association, under the convenorship of Mrs. F. J. Blair. Thirty-three Breadner School ballet enthusiasts will appear with dancers from Trenton and Picton schools.

Music for the Breadner students participating in the Picton recital was played by pianist Miss Colette O'Keefe, musical director of Breadner School.

Brown has drawn up a slate of officers to be presented to the general meeting in the Air Marshal Breadner School auditorium. Nominations will be received from the floor prior to final balloting.

The 1952-53 executive will meet for the last time Monday May 25 at the home of Mrs. W. Taylor, 2 Sicliffe Boulevard.

PICTON

RECEIVE PRAISE

The RCSA (AA) Cadet Corps received praise from Lt.-Col. T. E. Sisson, Kingston, following inspection, Tuesday night. He was accompanied by Capt. F. Evans, Cadet Training Officer for Eastern Ontario. The corps is composed of boys from the local collegiate, Picton public schools and Picton Heights school. Following military exercises performed with excellent military precision, the cadets demonstrated first-aid technique and Morse code sending and receiving by buzzer.

Lt.-Col. Sisson urged attendance at the Cadet summer camp which provides six weeks attendance at Camp Ipperwash. Cadet training is the first step in training oneself to defend one's country, if necessary, Lt.-Col. Sisson stated. Prosperousness, he said, created less likelihood that this country will be the object of attack.

Following inspection, members of the Cadet Corps served refreshments to the large number of relatives and friends who attended the ceremony.

COUNCILLORS ACCLAIMED

Vacancies in the Bloomfield village council were filled by acclamation when only two of those nominated qualified. Councillor Lee Alison is the new reeve, succeeding Hugh R. MacDonald who has left the county. The vacancy caused by his resignation as councillor is filled by Henry Leavens, a former councillor. Sherman McQuaid was also nominated as reeve and W. A. Arkett and Claude Simmons as councillors but failed to qualify.

SALE OF HOGS HALTED

The local sales arena, also those in Belleville and Kingston districts, are among those affected by a provincial Department of Health ruling halting, for the present, the selling of hogs at community auction sales. The action is due to a reported outbreak of hog cholera at the OAC, Guelph, among hogs which were imported from the United States where the disease is prevalent. Hogs from Guelph are sent to different parts of the province and this action is in an attempt to curtail any general outbreak of the disease which might cause whole herds of swine to be slaughtered.

According to Dr. Harden, district veterinarian for the Health Unit, there are no known cases of the disease in this area.

GOOD RESPONSE

The Red Shield Campaign on behalf of the Salvation Army is meeting with a good response here. More than $1,300 has already been subscribed in Picton. The village of Bloomfield has returned $225. The village of Wellington is struggling a little on Thursday with the Legion Ladies' Auxiliary members acting as canvassers. Rural section of Prince Edward County has also been organized and canvass is under way.

"WHERE PARKING IS NO PROBLEM"

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Has Boy Friend Taken Me Should Have Known

Dear Miss Fairfax.

For two years I have been going steady with a boy. He is 18 and in many ways and yet is mean and inconsiderate a great deal of the time. He often says or does that which he treats everyone like dirt, even his mother.

Whenever we have had arguments I have always been the one to give in, whether they were his fault or mine, and I'd usually end up crying because of his nasty remarks. He once said that all girls should do as their boy friends say and have no opinions or to where they should go or on any other matter in which they are not involved. As it is now, if I want to visit my girl friend or go baby-sitting I have to ask his permission first.

I've always liked this boy as a friend but not that's why I've taken so much from him, but lately I reaped him hoping he would. The trouble is I don't really know my own mind. I don't think I can change him in any way, but I'd like to, because I would like to keep going steady with him. On the other hand, I think I'd probably have more fun and less trouble if I sold a big favor if we did break up. Should I try and make him see that there is a mind of my own this "going steady" relationship, just break off with him and forget the whole thing? I'm 16 and he is 17. — Jill.

Dear J.L.:

I think you have pretty well made up your mind that the most sensible thing to do is to call off that "going steady" relationship. You say yourself you know you've not going to be able to change this boy, and I don't believe you are, either. So what fun can you possibly get out of being with him and letting yourself be ordered around all the time? Never heard anything so ridiculous as a girl saying to add a boy's "permission" if she wants to see a girl friend or go in job of baby-sitting.

The longer you go on taking this kind of nonsense from this boy, the worse he's going to get, so unless you're the kind of girl who enjoys being completely under a male thumb—which I'm sure you're not — the sooner you assert yourself and put a stop to these nonsense, the better.

Has Hair Bleached Too Fussy About His Hair

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going over two years to a very dear person, but there is one thing about him I cannot understand.

Every morning, he combs his hair until one would think his head would get sore, and puts on oil and cologne and powder and stuff until you can smell it a mile off. Then he goes to the mirror and combs back to look at himself from every side.

I feel that all this may cause criticism among the men and women he works with, and since he is otherwise a grand person, and I love him very much, I want others to admire him, too. Can you help me?

L.O.

Many men, of course, like a dash of after-shave lotion in the morning or hair tonic while they visit the barber, but perhaps your husband is over-doing a little. It may be that his hair has begun to thin and, like most men with such a problem, he gives it all this attention and try and stimulate its growth.

If you feel, however, that he uses lotions and tonic to excess, frankly speak out frankly—but gently—and tell him that you are afraid others might criticize him, or make fun of him for being a dandy. I imagine that you have said nothing about it so far, through fear of hurting his feelings, but maybe would be Damascus cookies. Shirley . . . consider this a fan letter. — Rose D.

Answer:

Thank you. I hope you are feeling much better and all cooking pains have gone from your back by the time this is print. I also hope the reader who was asking for Bread Pretzels sees this.

Question:

We have tried your chocolate Ice Cream made with chip milk powder and my family think it is by far the best ice cream they have tasted. It is so wonderfully creamy and has such a nice chocolate flavor. What I would like now is recipe for strawberry or raspberry flavored skim milk ice cream, and vanilla skim milk ice cream, or perhaps you would be able to send me a basic recipe using the skim milk powder and then I could make the other flavors such as the above and those too . . . could you give me the calorie-count-per-cup of this ice cream in relation to the regular ice cream made by dairies. — Ruth D.

Answer:

I bet you saw the column for May 13 which contained recipe for Vanilla Ice cream with skim milk powder. It calls for 1 cup heavy cream, whipped, 1 cup crushed slightly sweetened fresh strawberries or raspberries or crushed pineapple or mashed ripe bananas for the cream to make other varieties of this dessert. If you do not want the cream in the vanilla ice cream, substitute it with an additional ¾ cup skim milk powder and ¾ cup water.

One-quarter of a pint brick of commercial ice cream contains approximately 200 calories. Same quantity of skim milk powder ice cream contains about 175. You see the sugar content is the same in each mercial ice cream - unless a very good grade - seldom contains cream.

Readers' Friday Column

Question:

I would appreciate your help . . . being convenor for our Home and School cooking class I need help in knowing how much to buy. Serving 25 people our menu will be: Baked Ham, cooked potato salad (containing tomatoes, salad dressing and cherry tom), jellied salad, celery, radishes, pickles, olives, rolls and butter, tea ice cream, cookies. How large a ham is needed for 25 people and how much potato and jellied salad and ingredients. . . . — Mrs. D.R.M.

Answer:

Ham:

If you serve a 2-oz. slice to each plate an 8 or 9-lb. boneless and shankless ham is sufficient. To be quite safe and to have a few second helpings buy a 10-lb. boneless and skinless rolled smoked ham.

Potato Salad:

One gallon or 4 Imperial quarts . . . serve 25. This allows a little more than a 6-oz. serving per plate. To make this a little more generous increase it by one well-packed cooked cubed potatoes and 10 or 12 cups of the other ingredients you intend to use, including the dressing. You should include some chili sauce or a few green onion tops in your potato salad, to suit the popular taste.

Jellied Salad:

Three Imperial quarts will allow a little more than a 4-oz. serving per plate.

Relishes:

Are usually counted out, this way: allow 2 of each per serving. So if you have 30 olives, 30 radishes, 30 pickles, 30 pieces of celery there will be plenty.

Rolls:

Three dozen will allow one each plus 1 dozen extra for those who like seconds. Two, Imperial pints cut into 40 or 50 "pats" each.

Tea:

One gallon freshly brewed tea (4 Imperial Quarts) provides about 8 6-oz. cups. Make 1 ½ gallons if you intend to offer second cups. One ounce good tea makes 3 quarts.

Ice Cream:

One gallon will serve 25 generously.

Cookies:

Allow 2 each if medium-size.

Question:

Yours is a most enjoyable column and I heartily endorse all past praises you have received. . . . I wanted to try this out for the reader wanting Bread Pretzels but have been laid up and simply cannot, so here it is, with fingers crossed. Maybe you will do the testing:

Bread Pretzels: 5 cups all-purpose flour, ½ lb. butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons aniseed or caraway seed, 1 yeast. Prepare yeast per directions on package. Cut butter into flour. Add yeast and aniseed, mix enough water to make a stiff dough. Let rise for 2 hours. Roll then cut into sticks or desired shapes about ½-inch thick. (These are not as thin as pretzels.) Bake on an ungreased sheet in a 400 oven until brown. After they have been baked put them all on one pan and put them back in oven which is turned off and leave for several hours or until it cools off. I think this must be the secret of their "brittleness". The nearest translation I can give for them from Syrian to English could bring it up in a joking sort of way that would still be effective. Try it anyhow, and see. At least you will have put the idea in his head that he might be taking his grooming habits too seriously.

GOOD MANNERS

Co-Worker's Invitation To Husband Only

Dear Mrs. Beecheman:

My husband has just received a formal invitation to a church wedding, a rather large one I presume, and to the reception afterward. Am I wrong in assuming that I should have been included in the invitation? Neither my husband nor I have met the bride-to-be, but the groom-to-be has been a coworker of my husband's for several years. I have met him at several business entertainments, and of course one does get the feeling of knowing someone rather well just by hearing about the person quite often. There is an "R.s.v.p." on the invitation, and my husband has asked me "to send the reply. How?

Reader.

Please don't take the narrow attitude that you should have been included in the invitation sent to your husband. Doubtless the number of invitations was limited, and probably the bride's family were able to conveniently assign only a certain number for the groom's co-worker's. Please think of this invitation as more of a friendly and thoughtful business gesture. . . . Accept the 100 percent social gesture that certainly would include you both. You write the acceptance on the first page of double-sheet note-paper. Worded and spaced like this:

Mr. Peter Lane Smith
accepts with pleasure the kind invitation of
Mr. and Mrs. Carter
for 7 ninth of June
Master of Ceremonies at Wedding Reception

Dear Mrs. Beecheman:

My brother is to be married soon. I would like to know who plans the program for the wedding reception and also who asks the ones who are to take part in the program. Is it correct for the Master and Mistress to do both?

E.T.

If the plan is to have a Master of Ceremonies, he is invited by the bride's parents, who are the hosts of the wedding, to preside over the procedure of toasts and other responses-to-the-toasts.

Note 1: Having a Master of Ceremonies is most often the custom in Canada.

Note 2: The Master of Ceremonies is usually an intimate friend of the bride's family.

Note 3: I have never heard of having both a Master of Ceremonies and a Mistress of Ceremonies, but I should think this would be unnecessary, even if the wedding and reception are to be extraordinarily large.

Note 4: The Master of Ceremonies usually makes the first toasts. Note 5: When there is to be a Master of Ceremonies, the procedure of toasts and responses-to-toasts is very carefully planned. However, if no plans have been made, and there may be, and very often are, requests for toasts by anyone who wishes to make them.

Separate Invitations For Couples

Dear Mrs. Beecheman:

Please tell me how I should invite my sister and my brother-in-law to my daughter's wedding. That is, should I send separate invitations or jointly? They have been legally separated for a year and a half, and they live at different addresses.

D.M.

D.M.

Send separate invitations. One addressed to "Mr. John Robinson" at his address where he lives. The other to "Mrs. John Robinson" at her address. The couple are legally separated, not divorced, the wife should continue to be addressed as "Mrs. John Robinson."

BETHEL-ZION SUPPER CLUB

Members of the Supper Club met recently for their first meeting at the home of Mrs. P. Ray with nine present.

The officers were elected and the leader explained the unit "Supper Club". The girls were told to be able to do all the activities one likes, that one must eat the foods that are good for the body not just the ones preferred. The value of carbohydrates, proteins, minerals, calcium, phosphorus, iron, iodine and the different vitamins was then discussed.

The girls were then divided into three groups.

Mrs. P. Ray demonstrated proper measuring methods.

The hostess served refreshments and closed a very helpful meeting.

The second meeting of the Girls' Club was held at the home of Mrs. Clifford Ray with ten present.

At this meeting the girls were taught to make croutons, cream pea soup, buttered crumbs, scalloped dish and cream sauce. Mrs. C. Ray demonstrated these items, then the girls working in groups made all these dishes.

Singapore Will Have Celebration For Coronation

By WILLIAM FARROTT

SINGAPORE (Reuters) — Singapore is preparing for the coronation with dragons and fireworks the Coronation of the Queen.

Loyalty and goodwill will be the serious theme of services in the city's churches, mosques, temples and synagogues. But there will be laughter and fun, too.

For this historic week, Singapore's more than 1,500,000 Chinese, Malays, Indians, Cingalese, Eurasians and Europeans are planning the greatest, and the most cosmopolitan, celebration in the settlement's history.

It is so expensive that voices were raised in alarm at the cost of one item alone—$1,000,000 streets dollars ($632,000) for a street procession of decorated vehicles.

The voices were stilled when it was explained that public funds were not involved but that the cost was being met privately by the hundreds of business participating.

This procession, composed of more than 300 decorated vehicles, will stretch two miles through the gaily-festooned city streets. There will be 24 floats, ranging in size from long, writhing bodies will be borne on the backs of hundreds of coolies.

Out in the sea each night, smashing along the waterfront, will be another dragon, a 400-foot monster in the modern sea-serpent tradition. Its skin will be made from thousands of pairs of coloured lights covered with tiny pieces of metal. Some 8,000 electric bulbs will make its body glow and its fiery head will throw out darting tongues of flame and huge eyes.

Vast Military Parade

Coronation Day there will be a vast military parade of all services on the city's padang—town green—lying between the sea and the municipal buildings. A 21-gun salute will be given to the people.

At night, after the Coronation procession, will be a great waterfront firework display provided by the Indian Chinese community; many of whom in Singapore are money-lenders.

Japanese fireworks will be set off by a Japanese who will also display Japanese flags in the display because, despite a regulation requiring Coronation materials to be of Commonwealth origin, no Japanese works were only available in Japan.

The celebrations will conclude with a feast of color June 6, the Queen's official birthday. Marines in their brilliant national dress will move in a procession through crowded city streets.

Chettiars will hold their traditional sacrificial ceremony. Twenty men will draw the car over a route between and ending at the temple of Soubramanian, son of Siva. Reported in the car will be a solid gold statue of the temple god.

RAWDON

Young Adult Assoc. Elects 1953 Officers

Rawdon — Carmel United Church, on the town line, between Rawdon and Sidney, was a bower of beauty on Sunday evening for the third annual service of the Young Adult Association.

The edifice was decorated with a variety of flowers gathered in the woods: lilies, wild mauve phlox and marsh marigolds, together with baskets of variegated tulips, pansies and potted plants.

Rev. H. E. Lannan, B. Th., minister of Holloway Street United Church, Belleville, was the guest speaker, giving an outstanding message on the theme, "The Man of Wicked Resolutions."

The Batawa United Church choir filled the choir loft and rendered fine appropriate anthems, "O Come Let Us Worship" (Wilson) and "Lead Me, Lord" and the male quartet contributed "Victory In Jesus" (by Bartlett).

Mr. Russell Fryer presided over the service, and graciously welcomed the group who had assembled for this special service. The opening hymn was "Wonderful Love" and Mrs. Ray Hagerman read the various Bible passages. The service closed with "O Word of God Incarnate", with the plea that Carmel church might become a lamp of purest gold.

1953 Officers

The 1953 officers of the Young Adult Association are:

Past president, Mr. Harvey Couch; president, Mrs. Harry Brooks; vice-president, Mrs. Russell Fryer; secretary, Miss Joyce Bailey; treasurer, Mrs. Charles Bailey; pianist, Miss V. Brown.

Special prizes were presented for this auspicious occasion and guests were present from nearby points.

WARM WEATHER

TORONTO (CP)—Weather records going back 135 years show Toronto had less snow last winter than ever before. Only 18.4 inches of snow was recorded. A sports store manager said: "It hasn't been so ski trips to Quebec and Tom Valley, Idaho, we would have had to go out of business."

Canada's Belief In Freer World Trade Expressed

By FORREST RHODE
Canadian Press Business Editor

VIENNA (CP)—Canada's belief in freer world trade for the greatest possible good of all has been brought today to a world-wide audience by D. P. Cruikshank of Ottawa.

Cruikshank, president of the Canadian council of the International Chamber of Commerce, made his appeal in a speech prepared for delegates to the international chamber's 142th congress. It was the Canadian council's principal pronouncement in the weeklong meetings of the international body, which end tomorrow.

Speaking for the Canadian council, Cruikshank asked for "an assault on economic nationalism." He indicated that he believes freer world trade will come about; but said, in effect, that the United States has a key responsibility in making it possible.

He approved the record of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade signed in Geneva in 1947, despite some breaches. He disapproved of government control "of international trade in favor of one chooser to consumer." Speaking particularly of Canada's experience, he's chiding wheat, whose sale by Canada is handled by government authority, he said:

"We feel that the free market is the only true basis to reflect the supply and demand for primary products and that the prices established in such a market are the only reliable prices.

"Government-to-government buying and selling of wheat has cost the Canadian producer millions of dollars already and the farmer has still received a great deal less money for his wheat than he would otherwise have done had he sold in the open market.

R. Douglas Stuart U.S. Ambassador To Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—The trend towards a business man's governs stated in Washington that the United States embassy in Ottawa Thursday with the announcement that big business man R. Douglas Stuart, 54, Chicago, has been worked in Canada, will be President Eisenhower's ambassador here.

The Canadian government has known for some time that the vice-president of Quaker Oats Company and director of a considerable number of firms would be appointed, but the official word has been received.

Mr. Stuart, treasurer of the Republican national committee, operates out of Chicago. He joined Quaker Oats in 1926 and is understood to have worked both in Prince Edward and Saskatoon during his career.

Strike Avoided

MONTREAL (CP)—A mutually satisfactory agreement, avoiding a West coast strike by seamen, was reached Thursday.

A joint statement to this effect was issued by Canadian National Railways, Canadian Pacific Railway, Union Steamship Company and the Seafarers International Union.

It said common ground was reached on terms of settlement of the wage dispute and that the strike deadline, set for Saturday midnight, has been withdrawn and the agreement is subject to ratification by members of the union.

The dispute, involving a wage increase were not announced.

The SIU sought a monthly increase of $30 on a basic rate of about $188. Crews of about 30 vessels, most on passenger ships, were involved.

Dentists Required

TORONTO (CP)—The number of dentists available in Canada is "hopelessly inadequate" to meet the demand for them, Brig. Elgin N. Wansbrough, director general of dental services for the department of national defence, said Wednesday.

"The maximum number of undergraduate students now being accepted in the five dental schools is 288, in spite of the fact that 428 qualified boys applied for admission to dental courses last year," he told members of the Royal Dental Corps Association at a reunion luncheon.

Corps officials included: honorary president, Dr. W. G. Trelford, Toronto; president, Dr. J. L. Roop, Kingston; vice-president, Dr. R. C. McLaughlin, Toronto; secretary-treasurer, Dr. C. Wansbrough, Lindsay; Dr. M. C. Parks, St. Catharines; Dr. J. M. Campbell, Chatham; Dr. J. D. McAuliffe, Woodstock.

Big Three Talks Are Welcomed By Government

OTTAWA (CP)—The big three talks in Bermuda are welcomed here as a step that can hardly help but do good for the slightly-battered cause of western unity.

The only official public comment came from Defence Minister Claxton on the Big Three meeting. He said Canada was informed at once of the Anglo-French conference in London after the Coronation will have left the Canadian viewpoint in key matters fresh in the minds of all by the time the meeting assembles.

These talks started with the Ottawa visit of British Prime Minister Mayer and his foreign and finance ministers at the end of March.

Then there were Prime Minister St. Laurent's talks with Mr. Eisenhower in Washington last month. Mr. St. Laurent now is en route to London.

Reeve Suggests All Property Be Taxed

TORONTO (CP)—Reeve Oliver Crockford of Scarboro township said Thursday all property privately within a municipality be taxed, whether it is a church, a university, a hospital or school or if owned by the provincial and federal governments.

He told the annual convention of the Ontario Reeves' and Deputy Reeves' Association that "we must demand elimination of tax exemption on property used for purely commercial services." He said the services must be paid for and the only equitable way this can be done is by levying normal taxes on the same basis on all property.

He said the federal government has recently announced that it will tax exemption on its property by paying grants under certain circumstances.

The association decided to hold its 1954 convention in Windsor. An invitation was tendered by con-trol-ler Ernie Atkinson of Windsor.

Monument Will Be Erected To Memory of Borden

OTTAWA (CP)—A monument to Sir Robert Borden, former Canadian prime minister, will be erected west of the West Block of the Parliament Buildings, overlooking the Bank street gate to the Parliament Hill grounds, the city town district, hampering clean-up squads.

Eight hours after the storm struck, all of the main streets had been cleared and the debris carted were piled high with rubble swept there by bulldozers.

Generally, Sarnia took the disaster calmly. The fire and police station, CHOK, out of commission, many citizens did not know that the storm had also struck here and caused deaths elsewhere in Ontario and in Michigan.

Citizens, whose homes had escaped the storm opened them to the homeless victims.

The Salvation Army and Red Cross workers joined in the search where clean-up work was going on, offering coffee to the workers.

The storm has formed just short of the offices of the Sarnia Canadian Observer and Sarnia Herald, comparing to get out today's edition, but provided the Observer, however, it, but they planned to publish an edition in the plant of the Chatham News.

Broadcasters at CHOK, whose transmitter station was helpless damaged, set up headquarters at their transmitter outside town and prepared to resume broadcasting as soon power was restored.

Most citizens were too busy to talk but a few told stories of narrow escapes.

Marjorie Abell, employed at a plumbing shop, was preparing to go home when the storm struck her hit. She stepped back into the shop and in a wall fell, crushing the truck's cab.

J. B. Daley of Windsor had just parked his car when the storm blew up. He walked back along Christina street, and found that the vehicle crushed under debris. He saved only his brief case and some personal belongings.

Here are some jottings from this reporter's notebook after a tour of the streets:

Not a pane of glass was left intact on Front street. Some stores were filled with shoppers as the storm hammered the city and the relatively small number of injuries was surprising.

In one furniture store the sprinkler system was turned on by the storm and the stock was ruined.

The top of the Venetian hotel was wrecked and the hotel itself appeared damaged beyond repair.

Names of streets were blown off buildings and posts and it was difficult for at out-of-town reporters to find his way.

Only two girls of a night staff of 20 at the Bell Telephone Company office remained on duty. The others were taken to hospital for treatment of glass cuts. Only emergency calls were being handled by the telephone staff.

The Imperial Bank of Canada on Front street was closed by the floor blown off. A few of the big gilded letters in the bank's sign still remained, and the bank's name was unrecognizable. From the wrecked apartment above the bank a bridge lamp dangled precariously over the street.

City officials gave no figures on either casualties or damage. The latter information was released by the two hospitals, St. Joseph's hospital and the Sarnia General.

This is the list of those detained at St. Joseph's:

Mrs. Alma Beke, back injuries; Mrs. Phyllis Peters, severe leg injuries; Mrs. Frances Bell, injuries to face and hands; Peter Bakanits, face and arm lacerations; Douglas Bell, injuries to face and lacerations; Dennis McKinnon, shock; Mrs. Mary Ann Bell, shock and injuries; Mrs. Margaret Hitman, facial cuts.

In the Sarnia General were:

Mrs. Ethel Bell, possible chest injuries; her grandmother, Mrs. Frank Starke, fractured left arm and shock; Ray Kent, compound fracture of right elbow, cuts and bruises.

Leonard Barret of Windsor was injured when he was struck down an hour when a wall of the Imperial Bank of Canada collapsed. He was treated in hospital for light injuries and released.

Truce Talks Have Canadian Army Looking Both Ways

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Korea's Panmunjon truce talks have the Canadian Army looking in two directions at once—ahead to Korea and back to Canada—with a variety of possibilities.

Brig. J. M. Simmonds, chief of the general staff, recently returned from a visit to the front where he talked with the opinions. He told a reporter he would rather see a continuation of the fighting for a truce but he has his staff working on plans for either peace or more fighting.

Because it takes months to train military forces, Simmonds has to safford to take any chances on a change in the truce talks stage. It is starting to whip together a fourth brigade here in Canada to be ready to go to Korea if the armistice fails.

Simmonds hopes that would arise if fighting continues are fairly simple. Two years and more of it have given the army a good deal of the answers.

But the peace that might come out of Panmunjon would almost inevitably bring up contingencies for which there is no textbook. It could be an uneasy truce with both sides keeping a wary eye on it could be something else.

Whether Canada would be able to start thinning out her 25th brigade quickly is something that will depend largely decided on the basis of circumstances as they exist at the time of any truce.

Total Canadian casualties in Korea now have passed the 1,400 mark and they include 274 killed.

SARNIA SUFFERS

in were crowded with shoppers at the time.

Hard Hit

Sarnia's acting mayor, Clayton A. Saylor, read the Riot Act when hordes of sightseers crowded into the downtown area where two blocks of business buildings were destroyed. Police citizens were ordered to disperse and 200 active service troops and local reservists patrolled the area augmenting Sarnia's city police.

Crews from Sarnia's petroleum and chemical industries were sent in with gas trucks and earth-moving machines to help in the clean-up. Looters, in the light of flares and portable searchlights, clearing rubble from main streets and tearing down tottering walls of buildings.

Ward Hit

Welfare Minister Goodfellow of Ontario called the disaster "one of the worst ever to strike the province."

The death toll, however, was lower than in the last great tornado to strike Canada when 34 died as a twister swept through the Windsor, Ont., area in June of 1946.

In the path of the storm as it swept through Sarnia was radio station CHOK, which was completely badly damaged. Broadcasters prepared to set up their headquarters in the transmitter outside the city and resume broadcasting when power was restored.

Watched Twister Approach

Fred Wheeler, sports editor of the Sarnia Canadian Observer, watched the twister approach. An hour after it hit he telephoned the Canadian Press in Toronto. The telephone girl who put through his call was bleeding from cuts by flying glass.

Only two of the Sarnia's Bell Telephone night staff of 20 were able to remain on duty through the night. The others were taken to hospital for treatment of glass cuts.

Mac McKenzie, CHOK sports editor, watched the storm approach.

"We noticed a storm cloud that had a peculiar rotating motion," he told The Canadian Press. "Then we noticed what looked like birds flying around in the cloud. Suddenly we realized they were not birds but pieces of debris."

The wind blew the top floors off the Paul Hotel Vendome and left only the first-storey front wall of the Imperial bank of Canada building standing. Buildings in Sarnia's downtown area higher than one storey were damaged.

Cars Crashed

Parked cars were crushed by the falling debris and emergency crews bulldozed a path for firemen and city officials.

Business houses and city council members worked throughout the night in city hall under the light of flickering lamps. Outside city hall city engineers set up a map of the city and by the light of flares directed operations.

Many Sarnia people, with their radio station out of action, were unaware that the storm had struck elsewhere in Ontario and across the river in Michigan.

The path of the wind knocked over 15 cars of a 45-car freight train.

Electric power was restored early today in the northern part of the city, but telephones remained. The entire city had been darkened. Sarnia has a population of 30,000.

As the storm moved across southwestern Ontario it was accompanied by torrential rains and followed by hail with stones as big as marbles. In the Sarnia area ground was coated with ice 45 minutes after the storm passed. Millions of tons of rain fell and lightning were generated by the twister.

Sarnia is the largest town in rural districts north and west of London. Only one loss in human life was reported in the area, that of Dorothy, west of London, where a looting of damaged property was reported.

Other areas of southwestern Ontario were affected though damage was not as heavy as in the path of the twister.

Hail was plunged into darkness as heavy rain caused explosions in transformer stations. Telephone and television aerials were flattened, trees were uprooted and power lines were blown down.

The city of Stratford escaped damage but at least a dozen trees were levelled in adjoining rural areas. Crops in the area were also blocked by fallen trees.

The meteorological bureau in Toronto said that after the storm passed through Sarnia it moved to the east-northeast over Lambton and Its curving path took it to a point

BIG THREE FACE

In the announcement about the conference, differing views became more apparent. Mayer said the three would discuss the feasibility of meeting with Malenkov, and Churchill said he hoped the meeting would pave the way to such a session.

But in Washington the White House declined to link the meeting of the three with a possible Big Four get-together. At the state department all emphasis was placed on the chance that the Western chiefs of government will have to develop greater unity among the Western powers.

President Eisenhower took the initiative in suggesting the Big Three talk.

Preliminary considerations have not been disclosed, but it is known Eisenhower administration officials have been increasingly concerned that the Western powers are pulling apart and that such a situation can only benefit Russia.

Recent differences, all of which seem illogical to come up in some quarters, have been the unsuccessful battle between Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep., Wis.) and Britain's Clement Attlee, French and British support for a meeting of Soviet premier conditions had favored here, British advocacy of admission of Red China membership in the United Nations, and some apparent controversy over U. S. conduct of the Korean truce negotiations.

Not Sure of Strength

The diplomats also report friendly foreign governments are not sure that the present strength of the Eisenhower administration's leadership. They had hoped, however, for a strong stand on lowering American tariffs and upping European imports as a result Western Europe's goal of "trade, not aid."

The British government also is reported to have been worried about moves by the U. S. to develop a new, tougher policy in the Far East which might lead to greater American involvement in war there.

Between and the U. S. were unable to agree in past weeks on how diplomatically to deal with the Communist invasion of Laos.

In the past the Kremlin or some Communist satellite nation had under way a threatening project and Western powers had moved to submerge their inter-family disputes in the interest of a common resistance.

With the death of Stalin and the succession of the Kremlin's spring offensive keynoted on peace, this outside threat appeared to recede somewhat and the urgency of maintaining a common front appeared, especially in Europe, to recede with it.

RAWDON

River Valley W.I. Receives Letter

Rawdon — Last Friday the press secretary of River Valley Women's Institute received a letter of interest from an Institute member of Abbott's Leigh, Bristol, England, who said "We have had a change of duties all round this year and it was suggested that someone should write to our link in Canada at River Valley Institute, and I volunteered.

"I am the wife of a small builder and have four children, so I find the W.I. meetings a great help once a month."

This lady, with the help of an assistant, is in charge of "The Trading Stall" at the W.I. meetings. Their duties began in January and they do a brisk business each month. She says:

"At our April meeting we entertained 13 students from the Empire as they were anxious to attend a W.I. meeting in a village. My daughter was busy taking to one young colored girl from the Sudan, and they plan to correspond with each other."

"The Drama Group put on a small play to entertain them and we had a talk on 'Home Decorating.' There were 73 members in attendance. Some of our members are going to London in June to see the decorations.

"Our Institute hopes to send your Institute copies of the Coronation, 'Home and Country.' We are having a concert in May to raise funds for his project and also a fete in September.

Appreciate R.V. Institute

"As a W.I. member at Abbott's Leigh, Bristol, England, for several years, I must tell you how we have appreciated River Valley W.I. in Canada as our link Institute and we have found your parcels most acceptable when goods were so short over here. Food is much more plentiful now and we are to have a small increase in the meat ration, which is a good thing, with the fruit season coming along.

"My daughter is now 17 and is at high school in Bristol. My son, 11, has just passed his scholarship and has to take an entrance examination at Grammar school. Then I have a boy six and a half, and a smaller boy, one and a half year. Our boy, 11, is a Scout, and will be going to camp in August. He would be interested in Scout work in Canada.

"We send all our good wishes to River Valley W.I. members."

STIRLING

Rotary Club Entertains Midget Hockey Team

STIRLING — Members of Stirling MIdget hockey team and the executive were guests of Stirling Rotary Club at a testimonial dinner in Stirling community hall on Tuesday night.

President Harold J. Wells, occupied the chair and Miss Mary Lou Faires presided at the piano. Rotarian R. A. Patterson led the customary sing-song.

The toast to the midget hockey team was ably proposed by Mr. C. A. Wells, a member of the executive, and manager of the team. He eulogized the players for their good sportsmanship and congratulated them on going a long way along the play-off trail.

Roy Parks, team captain, made a suitable reply, voicing the thanks of the players to members of the executive for the time and energy spent on their behalf. He also thanked the Rotarians for their interest and support.

Guest Speaker

Guest speaker of the evening was Albert "Mods" Holway, a former member of the Montreal Maroons in the National Hockey League. He was ably introduced by Rotarian, Dr. R. W. Vanderveort.

Outline Activities

The speaker gave an outline of his activities in hockey from 1917 when he played with the Belleville Juniors until 1925-26 when he was a member of the Montreal Maroon team which won the Stanley Cup. The exploits of the famous "Big 5" line of Hooley Smith, Nelson, "Old Poison" Stewart and "Babe" Siebert, Howie Morenz, The Stratford Streak, Sprague Cleghorn, Eddie Gerard, Frank Nighbor, "Buck" Boucher and many other stars were recalled by Mr. Holway.

In conclusion, he advised the boys to live clean lives and practise faithfully if they want to make hockey their career.

Two films, "Highlights of Big 4 Football" and "The Calgary Stampede" were shown by Bill Holway, and were much appreciated.

Cards Presented

The honor of presenting group championship crests to members of the midget team went to Doug Patterson O.M.H.A. district convener, who paid tribute to the sportsmanship and clean play of the boys. He also spoke of the expansion of the O.M.H.A. which has over 16,000 boys playing under its guidance. The success of the O.M.H.A. was due not only to members of the executive but to the co-operation of coaches, managers and players in all parts of the province.

He congratulated members of the midget team and executive for the past year's success and ventured the opinion that it was only the lack of artificial ice facilities that kept local teams from going through to the provincial championship.

Several times in recent years, local teams have gone a long way along the play-off trail, even to the finals, and semi-finals, and in every instance their conquerors came from towns where artificial ice, with its provisions for a longer season, was available.

Rotarian E. D. Ketcheson voiced the thanks of the club to Messrs "Tools" and Bill Holway for their contribution to the program and presented each of them with a Stirling Rotary Club pencil.

Canadian Army Foresees Series Of Gradual Weapon Changes If Hurdles Can be Cleared

By DOUGLAS ROW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Army is looking ahead to a series of gradual changes in weapons and ammunition if the big hurdle of rifle standardization with the United Kingdom and the United States can be cleared.

The current outlook on that pivotal problem is one of guarded optimism. Defence Minister Claxton put this into words briefly during the recent session of Parliament when he told members that prospects are encouraging.

The army reports that prospects are considerably more encouraging than they were, say, 18 months ago. But rifle standardization continues to be a long, slow process and there is no immediate sign that general agreement is close to the horizon.

In the meantime, the Canadian Army continues to use virtually the same small arms as in the Second World War, to work with the British and Americans in trying to narrow the differences concerning the rifle or, more precisely, rifle ammunition, and to look ahead to a day when the way will be open for changes in the rifle and other weapons.

Period of Time Needed

Given Anglo-American - Canadian agreement on a common round of rifle ammunition, the army would be set to go on a series of changes over a period of time. The first would be a switch from the .303-calibre Lee-Enfield rifle to something that is lighter and which is at least partly automatic.

Along with that there would be a program of revamping the Bren light machinegun—the core of infantry fire power—to handle the new rifle round just as it now handles the same .303 ammunition as the Lee-Enfield.

Then there would be a move to replace the Vickers medium machine gun and eventually there would be a shift from the Bren to another, more modern light machinegun. It is not impossible, the way things are shaping up, that a way will be found to produce a weapon that would merge the talents and the responsibilities of the medium and light machineguns.

Given Big Boost

This would give the basic fighting unit, the infantry section, a big boost in firepower. But there is no certainty now that this hybrid weapon can be produced.

Meanwhile, the great barrier of standardization remains, Canada prodding and the U. S. and Britain gradually whittling away their differences, some of which are rooted in things quite apart from the rifle itself.

One is a differing concept of tactics and the role of the rifle in that context. Another is the fact that Britain's need for a decision is more urgent than that of the U. S. which has enormous stocks of its existing .300 Garand rifle.

Enough has been said to indicate that a common bullet is no longer a pipedream. But it's not a certainty either.

Orange Lodge to Meet In Charlottetown

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Annual meeting of the grand Orange Lodge of British America, the national organization of Canadian Orangemen, will be held in Charlottetown June 24-25, the executive of the Grand Orange Lodge, Ontario West, announced today.

CAUGHT SEEKING SELF

MINNEDOSA, Man. (CP)—A car thief was captured Wednesday searching for himself. Alex Johnson, 22, of Birtle, Man., was sentenced to three months at hard labor after pleading guilty to taking a car without the owner's consent. Police said Johnson took a car, rammed it into a culvert, then joined a crowd watching a ball game. He was later arrested among the volunteers searching for the car thief.

Salvation Army Head Thinks Probation Helps

TORONTO (CP)—Col. Ernest Green, the Salvation Army's national prison secretary, said Thursday he thinks probation would have a particular benefit for teenagers who ruf afoul of the law.

Testifying before the provincial legislature's select committee on reform institutions, Col. Green said he firmly believes probation can rehabilitate a large percentage of first offenders without the necessity of the stigma of a jail sentence. It would give them guidance in their formative years which they had lacked in their homes.

He also said television helps keep the family together.

Col. Green told the committee he believed the broken home was th main cause of juvenile delinquency and that television would bring about a change.

On the basis of studies to date, the committee today decided to set up a sub-committee to study probation, parole and rehabilitation.

CLERICAL MILESTONE

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. (CP)—A former teacher of philosophy at St. Dunstan's College in Charlottetown, Rt. Rev. G. J. MacLellan observed the 50th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. He is a rector of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church here.

PENSIONED STRUCK

REGINA (CP)—Now 22 years old, "Tony the Showman," bakery horse which has hauled bread wagons for 18 years, has been pensioned off. Tony got his nickname from the bakery manager who said wherever there was a crowd or a parade, Tony would prance in real circus style.

Committee Will Propose No More Institutions

TORONTO (CP) — The select committee on reform institutions unanimously accepted Thursday a suggestion to the Ontario government that no further reform institutions be built or land acquired for them until the committee reports on the need for them.

The suggestion was made by two Progressive Conservative members of the committee, W. M. Nickle, of Kingston, and Alastair Johnston, Parry Sound.

Meanwhile, the Globe and Mail quoted reliable sources at Queen's Park as indicating it will be a long time before any start is made on the proposed new maximum security institution at Millbrook, 15 miles southwest of Peterborough.

The Millbrook institution was proposed as a result of two investigations into riots at Guelph reformatory, approximately 15 years apart. It was to be designed especially for the treatment of psychopathic criminals and with specialists trained in criminology.

FORESTRY NEED

VANCOUVER (CP)—Need for more foresters to manage British Columbia forests properly was stressed in a speech here by dean Lowell Besley, head of the forestry department at the University of British Columbia.

Supreme Court Jury Frees Man On Perjury Count

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Cecil Smith, 52, was found innocent of perjury by a Supreme Court jury Thursday.

Smith, central figure of a police commission investigation into his charges that constable Gilbert Robitaille of the V.&Esher police had accepted bribes in liquor cases was acquitted of committing perjury in the police commission hearing.

An 11-man jury, short one member who became ill during the trial, deliberated less than two hours.

Smith was charged specifically with perjuring himself by stating that he paid Robitaille $100 on March 21, 1952, to keep himself clear of a liquor charge.

Robitaille testified, before the police commission and at Smith's trial, that he was in Florida at the time. He produced Florida parking tickets and postcards he had sent to Smith from Florida, and another couple who accompanied him on the trip also testified.

Robitaille, promoted to sergeant after the police commission investigation cleared him, was a principal Crown witness against Smith.

Conacher Nominated

TORONTO (CP) — Lionel Conacher Thursday night was chosen Liberal candidate for Toronto Trinity in the next federal election at a stormy nomination meeting. Mr. Conacher, voted Canada's athlete of the half-century, is the present member of the riding in the Commons.

After 90 minutes of charges at a packed meeting, punctuated by thunder and lightning, Mr. Conacher was nominated over two other candidates.

He received 229 votes against 29 for Hugh Plaxton, who represented the riding from 1925 to 1935, and two for Fred Hamilton, former Toronto controller.

Both Mr. Plaxton and Mr. Hamilton charged that the meeting was packed with supporters for Mr. Conacher and that credentials for delegates had not been handled properly.

Chairman Douglas McNish said the credentials were mailed by a person "above reproach."

AIDS NEWCOMERS

WINNIPEG (CP)—An organization to aid newly-arrived immigrants in Canada has been set by Dr. St. John Magnus, who arrived from England last July with his wife and two children. Magnus said the aim is not to replace existing societies but to see that the newcomer gets help during his first few weeks.

Delnite Mine Shaft Damaged By Heavy Fire

TIMMINS (CP)—Fire, believed to have started when lightning short-circuited an electrical cable, Thursday night burned the No. 1 shaft at Delnite mine, seven miles southeast of here.

It occurred during a severe electrical storm.

Damage to the shaft, used for ventilation and as an escape route, is expected to run into thousands of dollars.

Stench gas, danger signal for miners, warned 80 men working underground and they came to the surface to help Timmins firemen fight the blaze.

Firm Files Suit

UTICA, N.Y. (AP)—A Rochester firm Wednesday filed a $60,000 damage suit against the Canadian government alleging that Canada's Gut dam in the St. Lawrence river had raised the level of Lake Ontario and caused loss of profits at the firm's refreshment stands.

Ontario Refectories Inc. said in a claim filed in federal court here that it had lost business at stands on Ontario Beach and Durand-Eastman Park. It leases both stands from the city of Rochester.

The complaint followed several claims filed against Canada by lakefront property owners in the Rochester area.

AMELIASBURG

Delegation Discusses Hospital Fund

Ameliasburg — During the session of Ameliasburg township council on Saturday evening, a large delegation of residents met to discuss plans for the drive for the Picton Memorial Hospital building fund.

Many suggestions were made and discussed. Mrs. William Nightingale, representing Mt. View W.I., wished that the organization canvassing their neighborhood might be credited as an organization for the money collected together with any additional donations.

Those representing the other organizations felt that this plan should apply to any canvassing organization. Mrs. Arthur Canfield, of the Ameliasburg Guild, and Mrs. John Wannamaker, of the Ameliasburg W.A., felt there would be no difficulty in covering the village and environs.

Desires Printed Information

Miss Annis Johnston, of the Consecon W.I. wished some printed information might be made available. Mr. J. Dempsey said the Legion would work in Gardenville and Carrying Place canvassing the territory adjoining that covered by the Consecon W. I.

A message was received promising the co-operation of the Redmersville W.I.

Plans were made to obtain canvassers for the Rossmore and Massassaga sections. Mr. Wm. Nightingale pointed out that each group must organize for its territory in its own local meeting and he also named Mr. Melvin Pulver as convener for the overall organization.

Mr. Clifford Barber stressed the desire of the hospital committee to obtain all the necessary money by subscription.

After some discussion it was planned to meet at the Council chambers on the evening of June 19 and to have a hospital board representative present when final plans for the 'blitz' in Ameliasburg township will be made.

Local interest in this appropriate memorial do war heroes seems to be growing.

Committee Pays Surprise Visit To Reformatory

GUELPH (CP) — The Ontario legislature's select committee on reform institutions paid a surprise visit Wednesday to the reformatory here in the course of a tour of provincial prisons.

The committee watched the prisoners in the chow line. Later members ate the same food. Macaroni soup, cold sliced ham, baked beans, roast potatoes and gravy, Canadian cheddar cheese, butterscotch pie and coffee made up the menu.

The Guelph reformatory is generally rated as Ontario's best reform institution. Next month, the committee plans to spend most of a week making a thorough inspection and cross-examination of superintendent, guards and inmates.

From general impressions of the members, the reformatory was rated as extremely well run. The main question seemed to be: "What is it doing for reform?" Reaction was that the training program was limited and not likely to equip an inmate too well for civilian life.

Members expressed amazement at the severity of some sentences. Theft of 27 cents worth of copper was said to have brought one youth a year in the reformatory. Another, for theft of a bicycle, was sentenced to two years less a day, part of which was indefinite.

CAMPBELLFORD

New Kinette Club Planned at Recent Kinsmen's Meeting

CAMPBELLFORD — The regular meeting of the Kinsmen Club took an unusual turn this month when Kinsmen's wives and a delegation of eight ladies from the Trenton Kinette Club attended with view to form Kinette club (ladies branch of the Kinsmen Club) in Campbellford. The meeting was held at Kay's dining room to accommodate a larger attendance. The tables were tastefully decorated and a delicious turkey dinner served.

President Ray Hall, of Campbellford, had as his colleague at the head table the president of the Trenton Kinette Club, Beth Deyfield. The latter conducted a meeting of the Trenton Kinettes since this was their regular meeting night at home, and the Campbellford ladies present benefited from this portion which familiarized them with the procedure for future use.

Kinsmen

The meeting of the Campbellford Kinsmen Club followed in charge of Ray Hall. Charles Wickress reported for the carnival committee which is arranging for use of the Public School asphalt surfaced playground as site for their biggest annual money-making project on July 3. Kinsman Forrest Dennis reported an application for membership from C.E. Bull, manager of Dominion stores, locally, and this young man will be welcomed into the club on motion. Reporting for the nominating committee, the suggestion by Forrest Dennis in view of the short terms served owing to unusual local circumstances, the same officers now entrusted with the functioning for the Kinsmen Club carry on another year will likely be followed.

After a brief recess, the Trenton Kinettes and the Campbellford ladies held a question session, in which Beth Dunfield the capable and well-informed Trenton Kinette president, familiarized the prospective Campbellford Kinettes with procedure for future reference.

Introductory steps were taken to form a Kinette Club in Campbellford. Mrs. Ray (Frances) Hall wife of the local Kinsmen Club president, was named to head the new Kinette organization, and Mrs. Jack (Jean) Tinney agreed to serve as secretary-treasurer pro-tem. Other officers will be chosen in the near future, similar to the Kinsmen Club, the Kinettes plan to have two meetings per month, one business, the other social. It was suggested that the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month be the regular meeting dates. In response to a question, it was pointed out that the Kinettes are completely auxiliary of Kinsmen, but not necessarily so.

So huge (600 rooms) it needs 200 servants. (10,000 windows keep a crew of window busy full time!). So unwieldy, George V tried to sell it to a hotel group; so hard to heat, George VI dubbed it the "icebox". So vast, things get lost in it for centuries.

Four Teams Battle In Close Fight For Top Place In National League

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

THE OLE CLUCKER CLUCKED!

"Cluckor" Hans's Northern Electric breed are definitely not cushions for their game Screech with a neat 9-4 victory over the Bobs' Bobcats in a cloud of dust at Alemite Field last night. And we mean that literally. A thirty-mile zephyr swept out of somewhere, whirling dust clouds over and around everybody and doing weird tricks with the ball. On one occasion an easy infield pop was blown literally out of a fielder's glove so he was about to chuck it. Another time a fairly high fowl that ordinarily would have landed atop the screen was whisked neatly backward to plop into the catcher's glove.

Anahoo, the Johnny Jones - Herby Hann crew came through with a fine effort, considering it was their first time out. They blasted out 11 hits, committed but one error and not one of them struck out. They came through with some brilliant fielding especially Harry Wardhaugh and they plonked the pill when hits seemed most needed. Holmes fashioned a fine mound effort, scattering the Bobcats' hits until the eighth and ninth when blows in pairs accounted for all their runs.

Nurse Bob Temple, playing half of the Bobs' Boomers, led his mates with three hits, but the rest of the boys with the exception of Tank McBride, who parted three dust clouds with a towering homer, and Belnap, who smote a mighty triple, couldn't do very much with Holmes' deceptive delivery. In fact the Bobcats had only five blows to their credit going into the eighth.

THIS IS IT!

The most flamboyant and unusual mat personage the wrestling sport has ever seen is the way that fantastic grappling impresario, Gorgeous George is described by those who have witnessed his performance. Tonight in the ring at the Memorial Arena the Gorgeous One will meet Whipper Watson, the British Empire champion and a leading contender for the world title.

Despite his frenzied, fancy robes, mercelled hair and attendant valet, Gorgeous George is a rarred, capable gentleman. Any who have seen him in competition rate him primarily a rough, tough and experienced wrestler. Which seems a pretty good idea, as far the Human Orchid, as he is known, is concerned, for Whipper Watson is one of the best in the sport and no pompadoured packydorm is going to do well against The Whipper unless he has a great deal more up his sleeve than a lace hanky.

Timothy Conahagen, the Irish strong-man with the famous Irish Sweepstakes hold, will oppose bearded, 350-pound Man Mountain Dean, Jr., of Tennessee, in the semi-final. Don Leo Jonathan, spooky, young 235-pound giant, will wrestle Howard Cantonwine, of California, in the first event.

GOLF

Pro Charlie Pickett has the golfing stage all set for the annual President versus Vice-President tournament which usually ushers in the links season at the Bay of Quinte Country Club. The greens are in perfect order and fairways are good and if Zage Fleetin holds off his hotness and allows Old Sol to have the day, the event should be one of the best in years.

The tournament is a mixed four-ball affair and the boys and gals will tee off at 1.30 sharp Sunday afternoon. The committee in charge is anxious to have as many entries as possible and those intending to play are requested to post their names on forms on the club bulletin board.

The tournament will be run in conjunction with "New Golfers' Day" when senior members will escort some of the tyros around the course as an educational jaunt. Post entries for the president's tourney will be accepted.

BASEBALL

The laugh of the week: "Prince Edward Combines defeat the 'highly-touted' Regent juniors of Belleville" . . . That was probably written for customer consumption, but the fact of the matter is the Regents, a gang of plucky youngsters who banded together to help form this Belleville District Baseball League and gain experience for whatever the future holds, are in the majority juvenile players of a year or so ago. They never played together until a few weeks ago and what experience they have was garnered in minor baseball brackets. Even at that they threw a pushwind scare into the Pirates' team, composed mostly of veterans of senior baseball, and one or two from the outside, at their first meeting. The kids don't expect to win many games and they probably won't, but they are going to try awful hard to upset the odd applecart on their trek down the trail.

Napanee has withdrawn from the Belleville District Baseball League, dropping the roster to four teams at the present. League officials stated yesterday the Trenton - Bateau Combines have been given till tomorrow night to enter a club. A meeting has been called for Radio Station CJBQ for Monday night at 8 o'clock.

Elgins Trounce Oshawa 6-4

By The Canadian Press

St. Thomas Elgins ended a three-game losing streak by defeating the winless Oshawa Marchants 6-4 in a Senior Intercounty baseball League game at St. Thomas Thursday night.

The game was delayed several times by rain and wind.

St. Thomas took a 3-1 lead in the third inning on four hits and an error and added a single run in the fourth on a hit and a walk. Oshawa struck back for two runs in the sixth on three walks and two errors.

Fred Thompson of the Marchants hit a homer in the seventh with one aboard to tie the score. In their half St. Thomas tallied two runs on two hits and two fielder's choices.

The winning pitcher was John Pollock who took over in the seventh with the score tied. Chuck Alena was charged with the loss.

Phils in Front by Half-Game Braves, Cards, Dodgers Next; Yanks Threaten to 'Run Away'

By Ren Pelegar
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Giants are ready to start a pennant-stranding move room in the first division in the National League.

They think they belong there, just as the experts said before the season started. But it's a typical NL race with almost everybody trying to get in front. It's so tight even a five-game winning streak and nine successes in their last 12 starts aren't enough to get the Giants higher than fifth.

Philadelphia Phillies are in front at the moment, but the margin is so small that on any cold day you ought to be able to feel the hot breath from the hungry pack all the way down to the Giants.

The Phils, thumped 7-3 by Pittsburgh Thursday night, lead Milwaukee by half a game. St. Louis is a half game back of Milwaukee with Brooklyn, Cincinnati and Chicago another half step behind the Cards.

That brings it down to fifth place and the Giants, who knocked off Brooklyn 7-2, to creep within three games of the top.

Yanks Stretch Lead

Three games from first to fifth! In the American League the New York Yankees are threatening to run away, the margin is more than that from fifth to second.

The Yankees stretched their lead to 3½ games over the idle Chicago White Sox by edging Washington Senators 6-5 on a three-run seventh-inning rally.

Philadelphia Athletics overpowered Boston's Ted Wee Reese's single with a home run and Jackie Robinson added a double.

The Giants slammed out five runs in the first inning against Brooklyn's Joe Black and Ben Wade on a pair of back-to-back triples, a single, double and Bobby Thomson's home run.

The season's largest National League crowd, 46,778 Polo Grounds customers, saw Brooklyn dispose of Giant ace Sal Maglie with one out in the first inning when Duke Snider followed Pee Wee Reese's single with a home run and Jackie Robinson added a double. But Al Dark's Texas Leaguer broke the ice for the Giants in the second inning.

The Giants slammed out five runs in the first inning against Brooklyn's Joe Black and Ben Wade on a pair of back-to-back triples, a single, double and Bobby Thomson's home run.

But Al Dark's Texas Leaguer broke the ice for the Giants in the second inning.

The roof fell in on Karl Drews in Pittsburgh in the sixth inning. The Philadelphia righthander had a 2-0 lead when the Pirates suddenly found the range for seven singles and were aided by two walks and a pair of errors.

The Cardinals collected 15 hits against Cincinnati and nacked them. The Red Legs jumped to a 6-0 lead. The Cards tied it at 6-6 only to find themselves trailing 9-6 after Cincinnati batted in the seventh. The Cards came back with four more in the seventh and a single tally in the eighth. Red Schoendienst led the Card attack with three singles to take over the NL batting lead with an average of .365.

Come From Behind

The Yankees' victory, too, was a come-from-behind effort against the batting flamers. Down 3-1 after four innings, mainly because of the generosity of Whitey Ford and Ray Scarborough who gave up nine walks, the Yankees rallied for three runs in the seventh. Jim Busby opened the scoring for Washington with a home run in the fifth and Lockey's towering triple in the sixth sent Wanamaker, who had strolled, home with another tally.

Dorrubie's single, two wild pitches and an infield out gave the Electrics their eighth run in the eighth. Locke walked, stole second, and went to third on Wardhaugh's infield out. The Cats, thinking three were gone, started for the dugout and Belnap promptly stole home.

Yank McBride blasted a terrific home run over the left centrefield fence in the eighth driving in Burley, who had walked, for the first Cat tallies. Belnap walked, Powers singled and Dorsett walked to fill the sacks. Harry Wardhaugh made a sensational leaping catch of Powers' line drive to end the rally.

Again in the ninth the Cats threatened. Temple singled and Lucas went out. Burley got a life and McBride filed out to right. Belnap drove a three-bagger to the fence driving in both runners. Again Wardhaugh speared Peters' bid for a hit with a jumping catch to end the game.

Bob Temple led his team with three singles. McBride got a homer and single with Belnap getting a triple. Burley, Peters and Powers had singles. Dorrubie proved the winners with a homer and Locke, Lucas and Hann a triple apiece with Halsey and James adding two singles each. Holmes and Pukanic and Miller hit safely once.

McDonald and Tom Gorman pitched hitless ball through the last 5 1-3 innings for New York.

The Athletics' triumph over Boston may have been a costly one since they lost the services of lefty Bobby Shantz for an indefinite period. Shantz, pitching shutout ball, strained a muscle in his arm with two out in the fourth and had to retire.

Carl Scheib took over and combined with Shantz to hold the Sox to three hits.

Shantz and Scheib combined to two hits as the Athletics beat the Red Sox 9-0.

North. Electrics Defeat Bobcats By 9-4 Score

Backing Holmes' fine hurling effort with an outstanding all-round performance, the Northern Electrics swept through to a 9-4 victory over the Bobcats in a district softball league game at the Alemite field last night.

The game was played on a dust-swirled diamond and on one occasion play was halted until a squall subsided. The high wind played tricks with the ball as well as enveloping players and spectators in a pall of dust.

Holmes went the route for the Electrics yielding nine hits, four of which came in the last two innings. He struck out five and issued two many walks. The elector gave him fine support, nipping Bobcat rallies with some fine defensive work.

Young started for the Cats and gave up five runs for four hits before he gave way to Dowsett in the third with none out. He walked three and whiffed once. In fact not one strikeout was recorded by the Cat hurlers. Dowsett tolled the rest of the route and was touched for seven hits good for four runs. He walked two.

Dorrubie's first-inning homer opened the scoring for Northern. They added another in the second off two walks and Holmes' single and put the game on ice in the third with three. Two Cat errors and a walk and James' single accounted for the markers.

Singles by Pukanic and Miller were good for one in the fifth and Locke's towering triple in the sixth sent Wanamaker, who had strolled, home with another tally.

Dorrubie's single, two wild pitches and an infield out gave the Electrics their eighth run in the eighth. Locke walked, stole second, and went to third on Wardhaugh's infield out. The Cats, thinking three were gone, started for the dugout and Belnap promptly stole home.

Yank McBride blasted a terrific home run over the left centrefield fence in the eighth driving in Burley, who had walked, for the first Cat tallies. Belnap walked, Powers singled and Dorsett walked to fill the sacks. Harry Wardhaugh made a sensational leaping catch of Powers' line drive to end the rally.

Again in the ninth the Cats threatened. Temple singled and Lucas went out. Burley got a life and McBride filed out to right. Belnap drove a three-bagger to the fence driving in both runners. Again Wardhaugh speared Peters' bid for a hit with a jumping catch to end the game.

Bob Temple led his team with three singles. McBride got a homer and single with Belnap getting a triple. Burley, Peters and Powers had singles. Dorrubie proved the winners with a homer and Locke, Lucas and Hann a triple apiece with Halsey and James adding two singles each. Holmes and Pukanic and Miller hit safely once.

Rocky and Roly Will Clash? In Next Tiff for Heavy Title

By GAYLE TALBOT

CHICAGO (AP) — Desperately eager to take the so-called minds of boxing fans off something that happened a week ago tonight in Chicago, the International Boxing Club will shortly announce plans for a heavyweight title fight here in September between Rocky Marciano and Roland La Starza.

This will come as bad news to the several managers of Ezzard Charles, former champion, but the IBC really has little choice. It wishes to hold the next big one in a local ball park for a number of reasons, and the men who run the auditorium can't regard Charles as a poor draw in these parts. They have reasonable hope that La Starza, a Bronx boy, can be built hooed into a business-getter in his own right.

Can Lick Both

We believe Al Weill, Marciano's manager, when he declares he has no choice between the two foremost challengers. He is merely believes that Rocky is good enough now to whip both of them the same night.

Actually, if the Marciano forces are to be suspected of fearing either man, the more logical choice would be La Starza. Back three years ago he gave Rocky the closest brush of his unbeaten career.

Where La Starza is young, 25, and at his peak right now, Charles has been putting on the years and there are those who seriously doubt the Cincinnati bull fiddler player would like Marciano's game.

At any rate, what we started out to do was tell you something about La Starza, a boy with a fine record — 35 fights, 33 wins, 24 knockouts — the latter one has gained remarkably little fame and has made but little money up to now.

Both La Starza and his worried-looking manager, Jimmy Dempsey, showed up at Chicago the first last week and for five days spend most of their waking hours sitting around the hotel suite where the fight clan gathered. Boxing writers were there from all over the country, and it was obvious the boys wanted to get acquainted. You might say they were lobbying. They did a good job for themselves.

They aren't building heavyweights like they used to. Standing next to former champion Jimmy Braddock, La Starza looked no bigger than a middle-weight. He's deceptive, though. His 190 pounds are beautifully distributed over his 6-3½, and only his wide shoulders seem front view, give him away.

Thrills and spills will likely be on hand when the stock car drivers of the district vie for honors at the Shannonville Speedway tomorrow afternoon. A good card has been assured with the first heat getting under way at 2.30.

Toronto Said Interested In 1960 Olympics

CHICAGO (AP)—Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said Thursday Toronto is one of 13 cities interested in staging the 1960 Olympic Games.

Brundage said he had not been notified formally of Toronto's bid, but emphasized that under a large IOC rule, the national olympic committee of the countries in which interested cities belong must endorse the invitations.

He said the IOC is drafting a set of requirements for facilities needed to hold the games. Among the facilities required are a large stadium for track, a swimming pool, an arena for boxing, wrestling, basketball and similar indoor sports, sailing, equestrian and rowing courses and a velodrome.

Native Dancer Ruled 3-5 Favorite Over Dark Star, Gem in Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP)—They dropped the names of seven colts into the entry box Thursday for the 77th running of the $100,000-added Preakness Stakes Saturday, then continued the argument whether Native Dancer can gain revenge for his defeat by Dark Star in the Kentucky Derby.

Native Dancer, Alfred Vanderbilt's powerful gray galloper, contributed to the speculation with a sparkling three-quarter mile workout that had rival trainers shaking their heads and wondering what they were doing in the race.

There were no surprise entries.

A fog lay over Pimlico, as the Dancer dashed around the oval, and varying times were reported. Trainer Bill Winfrey of Native Dancer had it 1:11 4-5, while the track clocker made it 1:11 3-5. At any rate, it was a super effort, for the track record is 1:10 1-5 set by the Pincher in 1948.

Dark Star, from the Cin Hoy Stable of Harry F. Guggenheim, is expected to be made the second choice in the 3-16-mile classic although narrowly beaten by Eugene Constain Jr.'s Royal Bay Gem in the Preakness Prep Monday.

The Cain Hoy ace, a 25-to-1 shot who beat the Dancer by a head in the Derby, is quoted in the early odds at 4 to 1. Native Dancer is listed as 3 to 5 for Saturday.

Royal Bay Gem was made third choice at 5 to 1, while Jim Norris' Jamie K., who didn't race in the Derby, was tabbed at 10 to 1.

Other entries are Mrs. Gordon Gotherson's California contender, Correspondent; Ben Whitaker's speedy Tahitian King, and Bruce Campbell's Ram O'War.

Bisons Nudge Syracuse 7-6; Take Over Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons scored five runs in the ninth inning Thursday night to edge first-place Syracuse 7-6 and take over first place in the International Baseball League from the idle Montreal Maple Leafs.

Syracuse starter Art Hartley was given a six-run third inning, in which Johnny Blatnik and Carden Gillenwater homered, and had a 6-3 margin going into the fatal final frame.

Montreal Royals mauled three Springfield pitchers for 13 hits and as many runs to set back the Cubs in their first appearance in Montreal. A two-run triple by Taft Wright gave Ottawa Athletics a 7-5 victory over Baltimore Orioles in a game halted by rain in the eighth inning.

At Syracuse, an infield out in the ninth by Al Restano and singles by pinch hitter Frank Bolling and Ken Chapman tallied one run. Buddy Hicks doubled for two more and Bill Tuttle's single off reliefer Lynn Lovegrath tied the score. Eddie Kazak, who homered in the sixth, singled across the winning run.

At Montreal, a six-run outburst in the opening inning against Gene Long paved the way for an easy win for Bob Alexander, his second in four starts.

At Ottawa, Wright tripled in two runs in the Ottawa half of the first after Russ Kerns gave Baltimore a first-inning three-run homer. Hal Bevan singled home Wright to tie the game and a fly by Jack Littrell brought in the winning run in the second.

Joe Black's Head Is Bending Low Belted Out of Box in Only Starts

NEW YORK (AP)—Joe Black is worried. He is not anywhere near the pitcher he was last years.

The big Negro righthander, whose brilliant relief hurling carried Brooklyn Dodgers to a championship last year, has pitched poorly in all but three of his 10 appearances. He has made two starts and was belted out of the box in both.

Black failed to finish the first inning Thursday night as the Dodgers came from behind to overcome a 3-0 deficit and go on to defeat the Dodgers 7-2.

Before the game he was asked what was wrong.

"I wish I knew," muttered Joe "I feel all right. I think I have the same stuff. I just can't seem to get anybody out. At first I thought I was striding too far. Then I thought I was throwing the ball across my body instead of coming straight down with it. Now, I just don't know.

"I know my control has been off this year, but I don't know why. I've got so many people say I've been pitching enough. That's not so. (Manager Chuck) Dressen has used me plenty but I've not been coming through for him.

"That's what hurts me most. I'm letting him and the boys down. I've come in several times with the score tied or the boys trailing by one run. All I had to do was hold them for a coole of innings and we'd have a chance to win. Instead I get slugged for three runs and we get no chance to catch up."

Black scoffed at a suggestion that he might have fallen victim to the sophomore jinx, a bugaboo that many other second-year men have failed to avoid.

"No," he said. "It's not that. I've got only myself to blame. I've been pressing too much."

Racial Problem Smoothed Over By Resignation

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—The class-C Cotton States Baseball League has apparently smoothed over a racial problem which threatened its existence.

Hot Springs Bathers receptionist Negro pitcher Jim Tugerson to Knoxville, Tenn., of the Mountain States League and were reported to have made a change in club executives.

League president Al Haraway said Thursday night:

"The Hot Springs matter has cleared itself up."

A reliable source said Lewis Goltz, Bather co-owner and president who had led the fight to introduce Negroes to the Arkansas-Mississippi-Louisiana circuit, had resigned and transferred his stock in the club.

Announcement early this spring that Hot Springs had signed Jim Tugerson and his brother, Leander, righthanders, touched off a storm of reaction in the league.

Harraway and others said the league would dissolve if the Negroes were played.

League directors first voted to kick Hot Springs out of the circuit. This action was overruled by George Trautman, minor league czar, who held that a club could use Negroes if it saw fit.

FOR SATURDAY, MAY 23, 1953

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—With some self-sacrifices you can expect success today. Favorable conditions pick up as day progresses.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Many possibilities open to willing hands and minds. Have a cheerful attitude; it's part of the situation that will bring gains, satisfactions.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Not all encouraging for financial or business activities. Zodiacal outlook suggests calm, conservative dealing in all important matters.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Look at Gemini for some suggestions as to how to act today. Especially in money or personal affairs. Be extra careful with lapse, personal income matters.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—No time for chances with business, financial activities. Stress alert, shrewd methods to safeguard investments, real estate, etc.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Today gives opportunity to exploit your ingenuity, keen intuition and other Virgo assets. But it also wards against carelessness. Check!

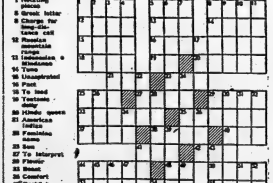
September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Mercurial aspects after 1 p.m. Plan well each matter that carries importance. Pursue and carry through with confidence and vim.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Use fresh methods to get maximum results. Be always grateful for any success you may attain. You are a capable person.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Take nothing for granted today. Have respect for competitors and you'll have less grief, fewer disappointments.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Practical matters, military interests more favored than personal wishes, things of lighter vein. Hold emotions in check. Be cheerful.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Quicken your pace, keep abreast of others' progress, or you will miss things along the way. Indications point to success, but only through hard efforts.



February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—No extra is good news, they say. But don't sit around, waiting for things to come your way! Go out and find them. You will achieve.

YOU ARE BORN TODAY: are usually doing something, mostly constructive. There isn't anything at which you cannot make some sort of success. But you must watch tendency to take on more than reasonable. Birthdate of: James Gleason, able actor.

If You're TIRED ALL THE TIME

Everybody gets a bit run-down now and then. But if you're tired, bored, tired, and maybe bothered by backaches, it may be nothing more serious than a temporary bout of nervous fatigue. Try easier meals, and more sleep. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. They stimulate the kidneys, and so help restore their normal action of filtering waste matter from the blood. Then you feel better, sleep better, work better. Get Dodd's Kidney Pills today. Look for the blue box with the red band at all druggists. You can depend on Dodd's. 22

Sunday School Lesson:

Balancing Rights, Responsibilities

By, ROY L. SMITH

It is always a good thing to get back to first principles. In one of the earliest chapters of Genesis there is a story which settles once and for all, or ought to, some of the most intimate moral problems with which we ever have to deal. The son of Adam who had killed his brother undertakes to defend himself by asking, "Am I my brother's keeper?" and the answer is blunt and plain. "You are."

The duty of guarding a brother's life and conscience is one of the basic Christian principles. All of us have rights, and the Christian faith and theology unite in defending and declaring those rights. But the great body of responsibilities are as insistent as the body of rights. It is time that we emphasize them a bit more.

Pagan Meat

The pagans of the first century had a very interesting practice. Worshippers coming to the shrines seeking favors from the gods, brought with them the finest animals to be offered as sacrifices. Only those without blemish, fat and healthy, were acceptable. It would have been unthinkable that a man seeking a benefit from a god would have offered a second or a cull.

The priests presiding over the shrines took those cuts of meat which happened to please their fancy, and ate them. That was their right, as priests. But they did something more. After presenting the meat at the altar, for the gods, and mumbling through some ceremonials, they offered the sacrificial meat for sale, the proceeds of the sales going to help provide revenue for the support of the priests and the shrines. In view of the large number of worshippers, who came to the shrines offering sacrifices, the amount of such meat available was considerable. Moreover, it was the best meat on the market.

Among the pagans there was a feeling (perhaps it was almost a religious doctrine) that anyone who ate the sacrificial meat was enjoying also a religious benefit. Among the Christians there developed the idea that to eat such meat was to condone idolatry. Some had a conscience on the subject and some had not.

The Corinthian Argument

The Christian church in Corinth was in a peculiar position. In no city in the world was life lived at a lower level. The Christians had heard Paul exhort them again and again to be different. On at least one occasion the Apostle had said to them, "You are the aroma of Christ" (RSV), by which he meant that if there was to be any fragrance of love by living in Corinth, the Christians would have to supply it.

Some of the Christians, thinking that they were being "different," refused to eat any meats which had been offered to idols, and looked with confusion on their fellow Christians who held no such scruples, saying that they were not "spiritual." As a consequence a violent controversy developed among the Christians and the case had been referred to their pastor.

A Common Sense Solution

It is an extremely difficult matter to draw a single line which will draw a distinction between all things right and all things wrong. Paul was quick to see that some men could eat the sacrificial meat and suffer no actual moral damage. Others, on the other hand, could not compromise in the matter in the least.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for May 24: "Problem Of The Christian Conscience," (Temperance) 1 Corinthians 5:8.

For the sake of those with sensitive consciences the preacher said that every man owed his brother a responsibility. He might feel he could eat the meat without hazard. But if by doing so he tempted another man to sin, then he had no right to indulge at the expense of another man's conscience.

There is a very intimate application of this principle in the case of social drinking. No Christian has a right to indulge his appetite for alcohol at the expense of another's risk of alcoholism. At least that is the way the great Apostle would have put it.

Many Homeless at Sarnia

Three-quarters of the city of Sarnia, Ont., was either destroyed or damaged, city officials estimated, by the vicious tornado that crushed sections of Western Ontario. Scores of homes were reported demolished. Damage estimates ran as high as $3,000,000. Shown is a portion of the Sarnia business district, all 12 square blocks of which suffered some damage. — (CP Photo.)

Britons Turn Whitsun Holiday Inside Out for Big Festivities

LONDON (AP) — Coronation-minded Britons scanned champagne in the air today and turned their Whitsun holiday inside out to get a foretaste of the big festivities only 10 days away.

Hundreds of thousands of families, all in holiday mood, switched the usual dash to sea and hill into a concerted surge on London to see the red, blue and gold decorations and join the excitement of this city preparing to crown Queen Elizabeth.

Roads around the big city were black with automobiles, as always when the three-day Whitson holiday begins. But today most of them were provincial visitors travelling towards London. Most Londoners remained here.

Extra police were rushed on duty to deal with the mammoth holiday invasion here. Police and motoring organizations appealed to visitors to leave their cars in the suburbs in order to prevent traffic coming to a complete standstill in jampacked West End where the Coronation procession will pass.

FLOOD-SWOLLEN RIVER EXPECTED TO EXTEND HAVOC

Water in La. Homes Up To Window Level

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP)—A sleepless weatherman warned today the crest-swollen Calcasieu river would keep pouring flood waters another four or five days through this city and eastern outskirts where 15,000 persons fled their homes.

The flood-crippled area, with hundreds of homes in backwater up to window level, counted damage at $10,000,000.

Week-long floods throughout Louisiana have caused a loss estimated at more than $100,000,000 and at least eight drownings. No casualties were reported here, but residents were advised to get typhoid shots.

While the creeping backwaters settled through one-third of the south-west Louisiana city, the water crs spilling into low-lying neighborhoods appeared to be levelling off, but not falling.

A decision was expected on whether to relieve conditions by dynamiting holes in the east-west highway, its road, built on an embankment in swampland, dams the south-bound flood waters.

Hits Jet Terminal

Orange, Tex., an industrial city of 10,000 some 35 miles southwest of here on Highway 90, was threatened by the rising waters of the Sabine river which divides the two states.

Weatherman Paul Cook said, "Lake Charles will just have to sit here four or five more days with this flood at or near its peak."

He said an immense amount of southward flowing water was still piled up in miles of swamplands north of the city.

The waters crested at 9.76 feet—5.76 feet above flood stage—at the Lake Charles docks here. They were moving slowly almost within river banks through the city and pushing out into wild marshlands to the south.

Harrison Ready With Showdown Armistice Plan

Sources Expect No Major Change in U.S. Policies

TOKYO (AP)—Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison is ready to return to the Panmunjom truce table with what high United Nations command sources today called a showdown Korean armistice plan.

The sources said the chief Allied negotiator will issue a "last chance" ultimatum to the Reds when the talks resume Monday after an eight-day break.

Harrison is expected to leave Tokyo again with a revised UN plan to settle the bitter controversy over exchanging prisoners of war.

In Washington, some members of Congress who talked with Walter Bedell Smith, acting secretary of state, about the peace parleys said they expected no major change in U.S. policies.

Very Near Truce

Senator John Sparkman (Dem., Ala.), who attended the Washington session, said negotiators were "very near" a truce—if the Reds really want one.

Sparkman, a member of the Senate foreign relations Far Eastern sub-committee, said he felt that the projected Allied offer is rejected, the UN will break off negotiations immediately.

Harrison has been in Tokyo a week, holding almost daily conferences with Gen. Mark Clark and U. S. Ambassador Robert Murphy, political adviser to the Far East commander.

Won't Drag On

"We do not intend to let these talks merely drag on," a high source at Clark's headquarters said.

The Communist Peiping radio has jumped on the possibility of a rift between the U. S. and Britain, stemming from London criticism over the way the UN is conducting the talks.

The Chinese propaganda radio also is beaming programs to Asian countries accusing the U. S. of sabotaging hopes for an armistice.

Harrison has not sat across the conference table from North Korean Gen. Nam Il since the two sides agreed to a recess last Saturday.

Churchill May Propose 'Big Four' Meet

LONDON (AP)—British sources expect Prime Minister Churchill to propose an early Big Four parley with Russia when he meets with President Eisenhower and France's premier in Bermuda next month.

London newspapers are taking it for granted that this will be one of the principal topics of discussion at the gathering of the three Western leaders.

Churchill already has called for a high-level East-West conference to settle outstanding world issues and has indicated he hopes the Bermuda talks will lead to the way for a meeting with Soviet Premier Malenkov.

Eisenhower has expressed willingness to meet Russia half way in an attempt to settle differences but he would first like to see some evidence of Soviet good intentions.

Kenya Decides To Set Up Combat Units

NAIROBI (AP)—The Kenya government has decided to set up combat units of Asian-origin settlers in this East African British colony to aid in the fight against Mau Mau terrorists, it also is extending compulsory military service to Asians as well as Europeans.

The government said both steps were taken at the request of the Asian community. Asian settlers in Kenya outnumber Europeans by 130,000 employees across the country to $2.05 hourly.

Around 700,000 other UAW members are employed by other auto makers and major suppliers.

Shortly after the GM-UAW agreement was announced, James B. Carey, president of the Electrical Workers (CIO) announced GM had given 40,000 members of his union similar concessions.

Under the contract, General Motors agreed:

To make permanent 19 of the 24 cents hourly that its hourly rated employees have gained through increases in the cost-of-living escalator clause in their contract.

2. To raise 40,000 skilled employees 4 flat 10 cents hourly June 1.

3. To accept a new cost-of-living formula by which wages are pitched to the government's new index of the cost of living.

It was the government's decision to abandon the old cost-of-living index that brought about reopening of the contracts. They specifically were tied to the old index of the bureau of labor statistics until 1955.

The BLS announced months prior that it would switch to the new index, dropping the old, this year. President Eisenhower ordered the old continued until June.

The new contract will make both the new and old indexes inoperative until the cost-of-living is announced in September for the quarter ending July 15.

Boiler Explodes, 2 Crew Members Badly Burned

HOUGHTON, Mich. (AP)—A boiler explosion crippled a Great Lakes ore carrier on Lake Superior early today.

Two crew members were badly burned, the U. S. Coast Guard reported.

Both the injured were removed to another vessel which changed course to speed to the side of the crippled ship.

In turn, the coast guard picked up the men and took them to a hospital at Hancock, Mich.

The boiler explosion occurred aboard the freighter Samuel F. B. Morse of the Pittsburgh Steamship Co., owned by U. S. Steel Corp.

It happened 33 miles northeast of the Portage Lake canal in the Lake Superior area where the freighter Henry Steinbrenner sank in a storm May 16.

Injured in the explosion were Everett McConnell of Boyne City, Mich., fireman, and John Rudolph of Youngstown, O., second assistant engineer.

The ore carrier Dalton of the Interlake Steamship Co. answered the Morse's calls for help.

The Morse, en route to Two Harbors to pick up ore, proceeded on her way at half speed after the explosion.

TWO POSSIBILITIES

PARIS (Reuters) — Two former premiers, Antoine Pinay and Georges Bidault, were reported today to be the leading candidates for President Vincent Auriol continued his search for a new willing and able to form a government.

Today is France's second day without a government following the defeat of Premier Rene Mayer on his demands for financial reforms.

AUTO WORKERS TURN HEAT ON FOR WAGE HIKE

Will Ask Ford, Chrysler To Meet GM Increase

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers (CIO) turned the heat on the remainder of the auto industry's big three today to gain the same wage concessions it got from General Motors Corp. Friday.

Walter P. Reuther, president of the CIO and the UAW, already had said Chrysler and Ford would be asked to alter their five-year wage contracts if General Motors did. GM historically has been the contract pattern-setter.

After GM agreed to alter its contract—which it legally could have refused to do until mid-1955—Reuther remarked: "I hope other companies will catch on to the idea real quick."

The concessions granted by GM raised the average wage of GM's 330,000 employees across the country to $2.05 hourly.

Around 700,000 other UAW members are employed by other auto makers and major suppliers.

Shortly after the GM-UAW agreement was announced, James B. Carey, president of the Electrical Workers (CIO) announced GM had given 40,000 members of his union similar concessions.

REQUEST TURNED DOWN

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)— A request from town council that the Ontario government take over the section of Highway No. 3, extending from the western town limits to the Peace Bridge, has been turned down.

J. B. Millar, deputy minister of highways, advised council Friday that the department cannot assume new highway responsibilities for several years.

New Govt. Icebreaker to Have Weather Test in Atlantic Crossing

By ROMEO MACERA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The sleek, new transport department icebreaker d'Iberville will soon have her first rough-water test—at the Atlantic crossing. She will sail for Britain May 29 for a short run before formation naval review.

Newspaper men and photographers Friday inspected the 5,877-ton ship from stem to stern and were told she is the biggest, most powerful icebreaker in this continent and in the British Commonwealth. The ship will be open to the public Sunday and Monday.

One of the sisters of the ship, built last year at Lauzon, Que., are two bell-type, two-seater helicopters capable in fact to be with-drawn."

A newspaper Al Misri said Cairo sources viewed the British move as "part of an organized campaign to spread evil in Egypt."

The first groups of British civilians are scheduled to leave by air from the Canal Zone, "Operation Package" continued today, and schools prepared for their early closing so that children can leave with parents.

In Port Said, British troops were kept in their barracks after a British soldier was stabbed to death and another wounded in the town's main street. Egyptian police arrested several suspects.

Egyptian Press Joins With Govt. In Assailing Britain's Advice

CAIRO (Reuters)—The Egyptian press today joined with the government in assailing Britain's advice to her civilians to get out of Egypt as part of a "war of nerves".

Meanwhile Britons preparing for an early return home went ahead with their packing, despite an official Egyptian assurance that all foreigners would be fully protected by Premier Mohammed Naguib's government.

The British government gave the advice in leaflets this week after several Egyptian leaders threatened a "bitter battle" to end it, and shooting incidents in the Suez canal zone flared up again.

The newspaper Akhbar El Yom said today: "Churchill is playing with fire. The instructions . . . are intended to create fear . . . to cause foreign capital in Egypt to be with-

Central Relief Agency Set Up To Aid Sarnia

500 Persons Left Homeless By 30-Second Tornado

SARNIA (CP)—Tornado-torn Sarnia struggled back to normal today, helped by establishment of a central organization for relief agencies and of an emergency trust fund.

In 30 whirling seconds Thursday, a tornado that roared in from Michigan caused upwards of $5,000,000 damage and left about 500 persons homeless.

There were no deaths in Sarnia itself but elsewhere in southwestern Ontario the storm killed Mrs. Margaret Clarke, 72, when it sucked her from her bed at Watford, 45 miles northeast of here, and Simon Thompson, 50, and his six-year-old daughter, Dorothy, at Springbank, 25 miles northeast of London. Also killed at Springbank was Sara MacIntosh, about 80. Many persons were injured.

Fort Huron Hard Hit

Port Huron, Mich., across the river from this chemical city of 12,000, was hard hit. Three persons were killed there.

Within 24 hours of the disaster, the federal and provincial governments moved to render all possible assistance. The army sent 400 men and emergency electrical and communications equipment. The Ontario government offered 1,000 heavy trucks to help in the cleanup operation.

Representatives of all Sarnia relief agencies met together after city-wide organization to provide emergency housing, bedding, food and other necessities for the victims of the twister.

Will Take Donations

Contributions to the emergency fund will be received by the Sarnia welfare administrator's office. The money will be used to aid citizens who lost furniture and household effects.

The downtown area was closed to pedestrians and automobiles all day Friday as demolition of sagging walls and wrecked parapets continued.

Senator Critical

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"Ships of foreign nations which we consider allies," says Senator Warren Magnuson (Dem. Wash.), "today seem more eager to trade with our Communist enemies than to trade with us."

He called Britain "the villain in the piece" in Red China trade. If Britain tries to get Red China into the United Nations before the cold war is settled, Magnuson asserted, he and "almost everyone in the Senate would favor the United States withdrawal from the international organization.

Magnuson spoke at a luncheon.

Chinese Reds Have Celebration Of Their Own

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—The Chinese Communists today apparently had their own Victoria Day observances.

They actually hoisted a Canadian flag atop over their own positions and tried to arrange for an exchange of bodies.

Five white placards five feet high, each with one large black letter, spelled out the word "Peace" on a hillside 400 yards in front of the United Nations' positions.

The Canadian ensign billowed briskly above the display.

The enemy begged two loudspeaker transmissions to the United Nations troops. The first said they had taken some corpses into no man's land and would permit unarmed United Nations forces to collect them under a white flag.

The second said: "We are coming out with a white flag — not shoot."

The local commander ordered his troops to withheld their fire. But unfortunately one tank broke the silence.

There was no intention of having any local dealings with the Chinese, but the commander was interested in seeing whether the enemy actually would come out. They did not.

Measles Cut Attendance At Public Schools

Prevalence of measles, a mainly peculiar to children almost everywhere, has served to cut public school attendance this spring, according to the May report of Dr. S. B. Wells, public school superintendent for the Belleville Public School Board.

Despite the measles, however, enrolment at public schools throughout the year has been remarkably stable. Enrolment last September was 5,276 and at the last of April was 2,563. Average attendance at schools for April was 88.6 per cent, stated not to be high but satisfactory for April.

Enrolment at city public schools ranges all the way from 201 at Prince Charles School to 560 at Queen Victoria School. Enrolment at other city public schools are as follows: King George, 375; Queen Alexandra, 477; Queen Elizabeth 467 and Queen Mary 469.

Dr. A. M. Breuls, M.O.H. for the city health department, said that while measles is mainly a school school; children are the simple of the measles. This type is more severe than the German measles but still are not regarded as serious. However, it also been prevalent in other cities such as Toronto and Kingston.

Dr. Breuls said school officials were in a better position to judge the prevalence of measles in the city as in many cases the children stay away from school for days measles and the matter is not reported to the health department.

The "taping" of bicycles is a safety measure offered by the local service club in the main for greater safety on the streets. During the evening and after Bark the Scotchlite reflects the lights of auto lights, making the bicycles stand out in dark.

Jamie Clarke Given Sendoff By Large Crowd

To the strains of "Bonnie Dundee" and cheers of more than 300 persons come to bid him off, Jamie Clarke, last evening at 7.00 boarded the train for Montreal on the first leg of his journey home to Scotland, at the CNR station.

With him went Jim Doig and Norman Mills, two members of the committee in charge of Jamie's trip home, who will accompany him as far as Montreal. His "little Scott", who has been a resident of Bank Light Island, will be in Scotland for five weeks.

Master the traveller had expressed his appreciation to his friends for their kindness in sending him home, he mounted the train amid cheers from the crowd, who finally broke out into "Auld Lang Syne." Then the 9th. and 49th. Light Infantry pipe bank struck up "Bonnie Dundee" as the train began slowly to pull out of the station.

The large crowd at the station were at the train moved slowly away, the last words he had said to them were "I'll be back some you," seemed a fitting benediction of the little Scot's gratitude.

Reds Fire On New French C.O. In Indo-China

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—The new French commander-in-chief in Indo-China, Gen. Henri Navarre, got a hot reception from Vietminh gunners on ah observation flight in the Hoa Binh area Friday.

Anti-aircraft fire of the Communist-led rebels ripped into Navarre's plane as he flew in transport as it flew low over enemy territory in the region of Hoabinh, a French garrison town in the mountains 117 miles west of Hanoi. Machine-gun fire from the plane repeatedly and Navarre was lucky to escape unscathed. Damage from the bullets was not great.

The pilot apparently had been told that the new top general a good look at the enemy troop concentrations in the district, which the Vietminh invaded in strength last fall.

Navarre, 54, former inspector-general of the French Army, is a newcomer to the war. He has just taken over as commander-in-chief here from Gen. Raul Salan, who directed the French military operations for the last 18 months of the war.

Well-Known Cheeseman, J.L. Irwin, Dies in Hospital After Long Illness

One of the better known cheesemen of this district for the past half century, James Linn Irwin passed away at the Belleville General Hospital on Friday following a lengthy illness. He was in his 78th year.

Born in Seymour township, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Irwin, he made his residence in Campbellford and other parts of the district until twenty years ago when he came to Belleville.

Mr. Irwin was attached to the cheese industry at an early age. He studied and practised its manufacture and in 1903 was appointed dairy instructor and inspector for Hastings district, later going to Prince Edward County where he remained for a number of years.

In 1923 he was appointed grader for this district by the Dominion Government Department of Agriculture, a position he held until he became a few years ago.

During his tenure here in that capacity, he conceived the idea of a British Empire Dairy and Cheese Exhibition. He worked on this project and it was through his influence and efforts that the exhibition became one of the outstanding cheese shows in Canada.

Mr. Irwin was also prominent in the activities of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association. He was associated with it for several years and his efforts as secretary were no small factor in the operational success of the organization. For many years he was a judge of cheese at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Mr. Irwin enjoyed the esteem of a large circle of friends in the city and wide-spread fame for which he was known. He was highly respected by men in high agricultural places in both the Ottawa and Ontario governments.

He was a member of the Pethrick's Corners L.O.L. No. 2222.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Frank (Mayde) Adair, Belleville, and Mrs. John (Frances) Hammond, Peterborough; one son, Carl of Montreal; two sisters, Mrs. John Younger and Mrs. Tillie Finch, both of Campbellford and one brother, Robert Irwin of Campbellford.

Was taken from our home on earth
To dwell in heaven above.

SEARS. — In loving memory of a dear brother, Virgil Sears, who passed away four years ago today, May 23rd, 1949.
When children go picking flowers,
They pick wild ones,
That's why God picked my brother,
He wanted his own at once.
They pick lily in the valley,
Rose in the dell,
But when God picked my brother
He was the flower I loved so well
Time may have worn my grief
But God tells, we are like the flowers
On this earth we must fade
Sadly missed by sister Irene, Stewart and family. MJ23

January, 1952, authority was given to mark the observance of the Centennial of the erection of the first church edifice — a Wesleyan Methodist Church in the village of Stirling in the year of Our Lord Eighteen Hundred and Fifty-three by the inauguration of a Centennial Year to mark this historical event commencing at high noon, Sunday the twenty-fourth day of May in the year of Our Lord Nineteen Hundred and Fifty-three and ending at high noon the twenty-fourth day of May in the year of Our Lord Nineteen Hundred and Fifty-four.

All members and adherents of the said St. Paul's Church are called to support with all their gifts both spiritual and financial services and plans of the Centennial Committee, appointed at the aforementioned congregational meeting, designed to mark this historic year by strengthening and increasing the fellowship of all Christians served by this congregation and to engage the interest of the indifferent as well as to provide a spiritual tonic for all visitors.

This Centennial Observance is an acknowledgment of the devotion and sacrifice of those who built the first Christian edifice for the exclusive worship of God in this village of Stirling, then known as Rawdon and to acknowledge the labours of all their successors who have tended the "Holy Fire" upon this altar during the intervening years.

Origin of Several Hastings County Names Closely Associated With British History

By Lavonia Stockelbach

Name of Thurlow

"I pray you speak of me as I am; nothing extenuate nor aught set down in malice." Othello V, 2.

This is the story of Edward Thurlow, one time Chancellor of England.

When a friend took me to Caius College, Cambridge, to show me a portrait of Thurlow he remarked that it was the portrait of an old and tired man. The National Gallery procured for me three photographs of portraits but I could find none made when he was young or middle-aged, when he was in the full tide of his power and arrogance. A spiteful Fox said of him that he looked wiser than any man ever was.

That may be so, but none of the portraits give me that impression.

A photograph seldom even suggests the coloring, but these do show the harsh regular features, the large piercing eyes and hanky eyebrows, familiar with the large frame, that made his appearance so impressive even up to the year of his death at seventy-five. It will be my pleasure now to give a showing of all these photographs of portraits of the men whose names are found in the townships of the County of Hastings.

Thurlow was the eldest son of a clergyman, who was himself the son of a clergyman. His mother was Elizabeth Smith, and there were three sons and a daughter. He had no family connection to assist him; there was, however, enough money to send him to a private school and later to a grammar school at Canterbury. But he was a bold lad boy and very clever, also very independent. At seventeen he was entered at Caius College, Cambridge. He may have had a little money, but he had immense confidence in his own powers.

There was always in his character, it seems to me, a certain contrariness.

At school he effected the character of an idler, yet he would shut himself up for whole mornings, with his outer door barred, in order to study. After spending an evening at the coffee-house, he would return to his room and study intensely. There coffee-houses were open to all who chose to enter and to join in the more or less general conversation, at the risk of cold looks and mortifying rebuffs. They were indeed a testing ground for talk.

Thurlow loved discussion and was happy when surrounded by good listeners. Later in life he was by chance overheard by two Scotch law agents, who were so impressed by his manner of speech and knowledge he had acquired by patient industry, that he was given a celebrated case. He had much to do with his later success.

But his constant insolence and rudeness led eventually to his dismissal at twenty. The actual final cause was the result of punishment for some matter of discipline. He was obliged to translate an article from the "Spectator" into Greek, but instead of leaving the translation with the Dean, who had inflicted the penalty, he left it with the tutor and peritly explained that it was from a correspondence with not to puzzle the Dean. Years later the rather startled Dean was given a good post by the rude student who had now become chancellor.

Foss says of him that "he has been as much praised and as much abused as any man who ever held the Great Seal—and deserved both. To a courageous, partly natural and partly assumed, a rounded disregard for the opinion of mankind, gross lowerness of morals, were added talents, courage under difficulties, love of literature and natural good-nature."

Always there was some humour in his escapades, one of the worst of which was at a time when he was quite out of funds and needed a horse to make a round of the circuit. He went to a horse dealer, chose a horse as if he meant to buy it, but insisted on a trial before completing the purchase. Whereupon he made the whole necessary round, returned the horse to the dealer and claimed it did not altogether suit him!

When he was dismissed from college he decided to become a lawyer for which he was so well fitted that from extreme poverty he was able to earn a large income. He became King's Counsel at thirty. He began to feel the stimulation of ambition and decided to enter politics and became member of Tamworth at thirty-seven. His advance was steady. In two years he was attorney-general.

Was he as convinced as he thought he was, or was there the element of contrariness in his loudly proclaimed hatred of the American Colonists, his attacks on the rights of juries in cases of libel, his support of Warren Hastings, his opposition to interference with the slave trade. He had much to do with the expulsion of Wilkes from Parliament and was accomplishing so much for the liberty of the press. It was a time when the reputation of the House of Commons had dropped to its lowest ebb.

Thurlow's language against the American Colonies was violent and exasperating. They did not want to pay taxes, to pay their share of the expenses of the wars England was fighting in their behalf against the French and the Indians who aided them. Why should the English tax-payer pay all? The New England-ers were rich and should pay for the upkeep of the troops sent who refused were traitors and rebels. The fury his language never lessened but the Colonies won their freedom.

He attacked the rights of juries in cases of newspaper libel holding that the minds of the people would be led by scandalous misrepresentations. Such cases should be tried by a judge and not by a jury.

The attempt to abolish the slave trade he considered dangerous sentimentality." There was no prohibition against slavery in the Christian religion. Though the Spaniards began the slave trade between Africa and America, the English soon took a hand in the profitable, if disagreeable business, the black native chiefs of Africa exchanged their own subjects for Western goods. We are none of us ignorant of the horrors of the trade in human lives but Thurlow argued that the condition of the blacks was much better as slaves in America than in their own Africa.

To us it seems incredible that any Christian - feeling person could condone such an evil way of making money; it is hard to realize that half a century later, in America, similar views were held by so many of Lincoln's countrymen.

In the House of Lords he was a pest and a nuisance treating with indignity, and sarcasm and indignity, to the great annoyance of one, the Duke of Grafton, who could not resist twitting him with his inferior social origin. Thurlow roared, I am amazed at His Grace's speech. The noble duke cannot look me before him, behind him or on either side of him without seeing some noble peer who owes his seat in this House to his successful exertions in the profession in which I belong. Does he not feel it as honorable to owe it to these as to being the accident of an accident? No one venerates the Peerage more than I do, but my Lords, I must say that the Peerage solicited me — not I, the Peerage... I will claim that as a man I am at this time as much respected as the proudest peer I now look down upon."

The effect was prodigious.

A man is to be judged by the morality which prevailed in the age in which he lived. When quite young he had become deeply attached to a lady who refused to marry him so he foreswore matrimony. Instead he lived with a woman in a sort of common law marriage and had by her one son whom he was deeply attached and three daughters, to all of until one daughter eloped with a man Thurlow disliked. He never received him.

There was also the usual duel, and on his way to the field he stopped to eat a generous breakfast at a tavern near Hyde Park Corner. As it happened, neither of the duelists was injured and they forgot the cause of the affair over a bottle of claret.

When he could control his overbearing temper his mind gave evidence of great power and he could also be very entertaining. He, like so many of the great men of his day, had a chance to shine in conversation and met with brilliant success. Dr. Johnson said, "Depend upon it, sir, when you come close to a man in conversation you discover what his real abilities are....Thurlow was a fine talker he follows fairly into his mind to yours....when I am to meet him, I should wish to know the day before in order to prepare my mind." Thurlow's efforts to assist Dr. Johnson financially showed him capable of appreciating real excellence.

When Pitt dismissed him from the chancellorship it must have been a sad day for his haughty spirit. He lived fourteen years after his retirement and never regained his former ascendency and only occasionally appeared in the House of Lords. George III had been fond of him. When Thurlow with the title to go to his brothers.

At sixty, except for the disease of the times — gout — his constitution was undimpaired and he spent happy days with his family and friends. As Chancellor he had been able to place the boys in their, who had become a clergyman, high in the church. The other son was also successful. As a judge (and an incorruptible one) his daughters had been awarded a husband apiece. Not inspiring, but without his official robes he proved to be an ordinary and very pleasant mortal.

He was rough with men, but with women he was the politest in the world. His daughters were well educated, especially in music of which he was very fond. And when they played Handel they played to a discerning if lovering critic. He found reading aloud any definite purpose quite tiresome. His memory was prodigious, his annoyance towards any who misused it was stupendous. "It is a want of attention and not memory that occasions the forgetfulness."

In his youth he had always loved the classics and now he had leisure for translation of Italian into English. His "Battle of the Frogs and Mice" is a delight. When he got tired of the classics he turned to novels. One curious incident is reported of him. One evening after ten o'clock he sent his groom from his house in Dulwich to London, at least three miles, for the conclusion volume of a novel he was reading so that he could know the fate of the heroine before going to bed to sleep.

Another, that showed his independence, was when the King's groom of the Prince accosted him and said, "You must positively change a day or time." Thurlow answered, glaring at the prince's companion, "Sir, whenever he shall be when Your Royal Highness keeps better company."

So, not unjustly, could a man be life from the poverty of a clergyman's home step by step to the Chancellorship of England, won by diligence and hard work. As Lord Chancellor he was indifferent to the opinion which might be formed of him by his contemporaries or by prosperity. He never published a pamphlet nor a speech.

It is touching to recall that this man who loved to roar insults at Parliament, equally loved to read Shakespeare aloud and that his speech of Portia in "The Merchant of Venice," which we all learned as children . . . "The quality of mercy is not strained" . . . could move him to tears.

A sudden attack of illness caused his death in a few days and after an impressive funeral he sleeps at the side of friends and enemies.

Rev. Canon Dixon Special Speaker At Belleville Bible Sunday

REV. CANON DIXON

Canon J. B. Creegan, president of the Belleville Bible Society, has announced that Belleville Bible Sunday will be held tomorrow.

Rev. H. K. Young, district secretary, Upper Canada Bible Society, has co-operated with the local branch officers, in arranging for speakers in Belleville churches.

The society has been instrumental in the translating of the Bible into almost 800 languages out of a world total of more than 90 languages. Raised type for the blind is printed in 40 languages by the society.

World distribution of the Scripture is estimated at more than 21,000,000 copies last year. Dr. Frank Laubach claims that an additional 25,000,000 copies yearly will be required for the next number of years.

The aim of the Bible Society is to provide the Scriptures for every man in his own tongue and to circulate the Scriptures as widely as possible.

Almost all denominations work in collaboration with the society and are dependent upon it for the translations used in their missionary work.

Some of the speakers will be found listed in the church advertisements elsewhere in this issue.

The Rev. Canon L. A. Dixon, O.B.E., M.A., D.D., will be the special speaker at the annual open meeting which will be held at 8.15 Sunday evening in the Bridge Street United Sunday School Chambers, at which a special film China Harvest will be shown.

BIG SHOPPING CENTRE

TORONTO (CP)—A $4,000,000 shopping centre will be built at Cooksville, 10 miles west of here, if Toronto township can provide sewage facilities. Tentative plans call for construction of 40 stores, a drive-in theatre, a recreational area and a five-acre park.

EASIER TRAVEL TO CUBA

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian citizens now may visit Cuba without a passport, the Cuban embassy announced Wednesday. Dr. Americo Cruz, embassy counsellor, said the Canadian government had made last month to permit entry of Canadians without passport requirements. Previously, passport and visa stamps were required before admittance.

WHO SHOULD PAY TAXES?

It is proposed by Reeve Oliver Crockford, of Scarboro, that all property in a municipality should be taxed. Mr. Crockford's view is that "whether it is a church, or a cemetery, a hospital or a school, every one should pay its share of general governments, it should be taxed."

We do not know what Mr. Crockford is in public life, but he is probably an auditor. Auditors and accountants are popular nowadays with the necessity of balancing the books. Obviously the books of a municipal corporation will not balance if the homeowner is the only man taxed. The reeve of Scarboro is simply setting out the case for the homeowner when he says: "We must demand elimination of tax exemption on all properties requiring municipal services."

Ratepayers also know that they have to take care of charges for schools and cemeteries. These are charges also, less reasonable than police and fire protection. As Reeve Crockford mentioned, the federal government has recognized the injustice of exemption on its properties by paying grants under certain circumstances. The reeve did think that the Ontario Government has made the same recognition in the Queenston riding where the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission has property worth hundreds of thousands, but the services there have been paid for by the people of Niagara Falls — the homeowners.

We are quite sure, however, that the Reeve of Scarboro is right: he does not suggest seriously that churches in particular should have added burdens placed upon them. In every community they are important. Furthermore, we know that people are always going to support them.

THE TIME HAS COME

Every President of the United States within the last 50 years has urged American participation in building the St. Lawrence Seaway, comments the Christian Science Monitor. Every Congress—up to now—has turned thumbs down. Such unanimity on the American side of the International Rapids, and New York State to join with the Canadian Province of Ontario in erecting a great hydro electric plant. These two proposals would give the United States a voice in operation of the seaway, allow seagoing vessels to proceed as far west as Toledo (for the present), and make available 2,200,000 horsepower in electric current to a vast area whose demands now far exceed the present supply.

The time has come. Such undertakings take almost as long on the drawing boards as in the building. Early approval by Congress and the Federal Power Commission is in order.

THE WORLD REJECTS ITS CITIZENS

The case of Gary Davis should provide for questing, puzzled, uncertain youth at least one example of how not to go about resolving the perplexities of life. This 19-year-old son of a prosperous U.S. land leader made a bit of a stir a few years ago by renouncing his American citizenship and proclaiming himself a "citizen of the world." Since he has succeeded in getting around from pillar to post, a citizen of a world which has repeatedly shown that it has no place for him.

Lately arrested by the British in such matters, the "world citizen" has just been arrested for failure to comply with an order for him to leave the country by a stipulated time.

Just what makes this young man "tick" is difficult to say. There were those who thought he was moving in the direction of Communism when he first came to public attention a few years ago. If this is true it would appear obvious that even Moscow wants no such citizen. Such stunts as his recent exploit of camping in front of Buckingham Palace are not likely to win sympathy for his visiting permit will not endear him to any country that will accept him.

It is a big world, and there are also in the offing Mars and the Moon, and there still seems to be a lot of time left for these and other planets. But one wonders if Mr. Davis ever thought of settling down to a simple job of work of some sort, or perhaps enlisting in the military service of one of the countries in which he roams and from which he is duly flung. JUST FOLKS

TRUE WEALTH

Wealth is of the spirit more than
Than lack of thought for others.
Is poverty is worse.
Who would be just a rich man,
the purpose only heed
May end his life a millionaire, and still be poor indeed.

The miser gets and hoards them,
but useless here is he,
and useless stays his money until death sets it free.

The poverty of spirit springs from the selfish mind
That finds no cause or reason to others to be kind.

Life offers countless assets for all to seek and gain.
Through good are gold and silver;
alone, they cheap remain.

It gains the wealth of money as wealth is reckoned here,
But counts the cost of friendship and men's esteem too dear.

28 Monarchs Naughty Schoolboy Have Sat on Coronation Chair

By ANNE KRAMER

LONDON (AP) — Twenty-eight monarchs and a naughty schoolboy have sat in the coronation chair on which the Queen will be crowned in Westminster Abbey June 2.

All through the centuries, the Coronation chair has intrigued would-be carvers, most of them pupils at Westminster School adjoining the abbey.

The best craftsmen in the kingdom have had penknives and mallets behind the old oaken relic, but neither they nor the woodworkers before them succeeded in erasing the schoolboys' initials.

The last who left his the chair, Peter Abbott, also slept in it all night. He did it on a dare. Before he left, he took his knife to the chair and dug out the words:

"P. Abbott, Westminster, 15th chair of July, 1800."

That was a certain index to history and probably a sound whacking as well.

One big carved signature—"W. Curzon"—is believed to be that of George Nathaniel Curzon, (1859-1925), foreign secretary and leader of the House of Lords.

Westminster schoolboys today don't practice on the Coronation chair because a Yeoman Warder guard is posted. A police officer checks everyone in and out of the abbey. As a further precaution, an invisible ray is connected by warning signal to Scotland Yard. Anyone who gets too near the chair seemingly touches off the alarm.

Back in 1387, some eager hewers of the ministry of works wanted to make the chair nice and shiny and ordered the woodwork stained and varnished. The country was appalled at the "mutilation." Shortly after the chair was devarnished.

Even the suffragettes had a go at it. Suffragettes and rather, during the early years of the war in 1917, they tried to destroy the chair with a bomb, but damaged it badly in spots.

All the sovereigns of England since Edward I were crowned on the chair with the exception of Mary, wife of William of Orange. It was designed in 1300 by Master Adams, goldsmith to Edward I.

Only twice has the chair left the abbey: when Oliver Cromwell was inaugurated Lord Protector in Westminster Hall in 1657 and during the Second World War when it was taken for safety to Gloucester Hall.

The chair, made of well-seasoned English oak and dating back to 1300, is still in pretty good shape for its 639 years. It has been fitted with vintage cognac. The crypt where it is housed is kept at an even temperature and is protected against dampness. The chair stands on thick layers of soft, warm felt.

Adventurer Looks for Danger

(London Times)

Once more an advertiser in the Agony columns, in making known his availability for employment, has added to the impressive list of his qualifications the rider, "Danger no object." One sees, in broad terms, what he means by it; one cannot help wondering — as he himself does not appear to — how extensive — what type or types of peril were uppermost in his mind when he made choice of these three dissimilar words. It is not necessary, however, to cannot help suspecting, on his reading habits at an inordinate length for it is mainly, also, from fiction that one might derive the impression that the columns of The Times are often on the lookout for a little spice, a little intrepidity. It is inconteatable that the dangers to which authentic Agony life has hitherto attended during the current century to fortune swiftly. Take one brought up on Anthony Hope, for instance, would be likely to form a comparatively mild estimate of the sorts of straits in which he might find himself in consequence of saying that he had no objection to Zenda or Ruritania; slender revolver shot, the odd noose or sword-play on the moonlit battlements might alarm you if you are capable of alarm and you might even be bored even if you were not; but they did not, you perceive, specifically rule out the future which might hold them, make you blood run cold. Under John Buchan and A. E. W. Mason, the going got tougher, but there was a comfortably though their villains were, they generally had a thread of something akin to sportsmanship. With Buchan especially, there was a certain imprecision, an aura of mystification, about the dangers; you feared them more for what they were than for what they actually did. Agnes came nearer to taking the gloves off when he equipped the unfailable Lakington with an acid bath, and Dorothy Sayers, in the case of Mr. Geoffrey Hounsehold's Rogue Male, was positively lavish in foreigners, of course — an extraordinarily unpleasant time.

It is extremely difficult to resist the conclusion that in the choice of words for this piece of romantic enough to put "Danger no object" in an advertisement, a reasonably thinking of what may be termed the more enjoyable aspects of danger. The old sewage and the sacred crocodile, the sinister Thug who, approaching expectantly in the lock, the pistol spitting in the darkness as the Master Criminal gets out of the park gates and headed for the Embankment, the fuse that fizzes, the fences are rather higher, revolutionary and the more frequently employed, torture is often resorted to and Dr. Lakington's methods to the contrary of the mighty God, Said President Hitler: "To insist that we can't make free government in any other terms than religious." He cited that our "Founding Fathers had to refer to the Creator in order to insure their experiment make sense."

The American Republic has as its cornerstone, in its Bill of Rights, Freedom to Worship God. These far-seeing Founders knew what they were about. They put down, in black and white, religious worship as an essential and inalienable right, and they declared as an inheritance to free men. Communism bitterly and scoffingly denies all this.

George Washington believed in the religious armament of men and women. So did Lincoln. And so do Enoch, who "walked with God."

Flocking Back to The Piano

(Wall Street Journal)

Americans are flocking back to the piano in numbers not seen since the early 1930s, a study indicates.

Piano factories are running overtime. Reports of the National Piano Manufacturers' Association show shipments of new pianos in February this year reached the fastest rate since 1930, running more than a quarter-century. They were up nine per cent from the rate of early 1950—a year which saw piano sales hit their highest level since the boom days.

For all 1953, B. F. Duvall, vice-president of Baldwin Piano Co., and W. Kimball Co. in Chicago, forecasts total production of over 190,000 pieces, 5,000 above 1950 output and the highest since 1927. Mr. Duvall's optimism rings are echoed by producers in other parts of the country—though not all are equally joyful.

The piano-making section a good news to a much-harassed industry. Back in the days when the parlor piano was the nucleus of family musical recreation, sales ran every year averaged above 500,000 units annually. But by the late twenties sales began shooting down side (1927 output: 212,168 units) and the depression of the thirties all but wiped out what was left. During World War II piano production was entirely halted. There followed a boom period, with sales of piano makers from over 150 to under 30.

Since the war, the industry gradually began building upward with a substantial jump in the postwar peak of 175,311 instruments in 1950, when a big boost sales in the Korean war scare buying. Now, finally freed of Government restrictions, piano makers say, they can take advantage of the burgeoning demand.

H. F. Pedersen, president of the manufacturer's association lists as the chief reasons for the upturn World War II crop of babies, nearly 4 million more in the 5-to-14 age group, "These youngsters are now reaching the piano age for taking music lessons," Mr. Pedersen says, "and this is only the beginning of a steady increase in the next few years."

Piano makers are keeping in tune with the times by offering it with rewhile trimming and a modern head carved on the music rack.

Dr. Brady

Some years ago this story appeared in Reader's Digest.

A few months ago you sent me instructions for taking your iodin ration. I began taking it and sold another man about it. He began taking it too. Since then a running sore he had had on his leg for many years has healed.....

Somewhere in the archives or files of this column—delving into the dusty copy is like venturing in your wife's clothes closet—without an experienced guide to bring you out alive—there is an article which was written here, passing along to the public the observation of an Edmonton physician, a homeopath, I believe, that a moderate quantity of iodin, approximately as much as nutrition; authorities today estimate every woman or child requires daily to prevent manifestations of iodin deficiency, for long been his favorite remedy for varicose veins and varicose ulcers. Another physician, a conventional dent informed me that his father regularly prescribed very small daily doses, of iodin or iodid in the treatment of varicose veins and ulcer ulcer occurred or not. He cited a contribution to Klinische Wochenschrift No. 19, 1931, by the famous German physician Hans Eppinger who regarded varicose ulcers and associated skin lesions as manifestations of local myxedema.

Myxedema, the subject of a piece to follow, is peculiar thickening and swelling of the soft tissues under the skin, unlike the swelling of dropsy in that dropsical swelling pits on pressure with the finger, but myxedema is not resistant to pressure of the finger. Suffice to say now that the cause of myxedema is functional insufficiency of the thyroid gland affecting, and the function of the thyroid gland depends on the intake of iodin.

Here it may be well to repeat that, in my opinion, every man, woman and child needs a wee, wee bit of iodin in one form or another every day in every year to maintain the best possible degree of health. I warn readers against taking what thy may consider a small "dose" of iodine for I am sure from personal is what I recommend. One should take iodin or iodid, if at all, only under direction of his or her physician.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

RELIGIOUS ARMAMENT

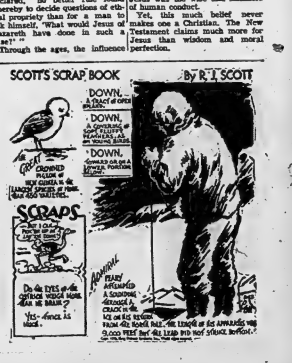
What the free world needs, far more than lavish expenditure for guns, planes, bombs, and ammunition, is to learn that it is religious armament—a total dedication of its people to the will of God. President Eisenhower and Winston Churchill, the mighty mind of World Leadership, are not afraid to exclaim humbly during the last moments of his life: "Lord, I believe. Thou my unbelief." The greatest leaders of the world are those with the most faith.

I understand that there is a "Prayer Room" in the building of the United Nations. But why are we not praying for world peace? Religion is not a sectarian thing. It is a universal inheritance born of the soul. It's a contact with God, the Creator, armed with power, faith, the mass of nation can fail in its destiny.

Prayer to God is a cleansing act. People can't sincerely pray and hate. It's hate that causes all war. There is nothing "old fashioned" about religion. It's always the newest and most startling power act that can touch the human heart. Men are faced with a grave emergency, all men turn to prayer. There must be a reason for such fact. Prayer is God's method.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS



GUIDE OF THE AGES

John Stuart Mill was one of the most intellectual geniuses of his time. Unfortunately, however, his father inculcated in him a spirit of skeptic as regards religious matters.

But he did make one statement about religion which has often been quoted. "There could be," he declared, "no better rule found whereby to decide questions of moral propriety than for a man to ask himself, 'What would Jesus of Nazareth have me do in such a case?'"

Through the ages, the influence of Jesus has become the most remarkable circumstance in human history. He is the ideal of the world today and you will find the name of Jesus among the Arabs of Mohammedan has little use for Christian theology and no use at all for the Christian Church and its leaders, yet even the Mohammedans revere Jesus as a wise man. Gandhi, who remained always an adherent of the Hindu religion, read the New Testament constantly and claimed Jesus was the wise and infallible guide to conduct.

Yet, this much belief never makes one a Christian. The New Testament claims much more for Jesus than wisdom and moral perfection.

Citizens Start to Think About Place to Rest After Terminal Goes

TRENTON (Special) — One of Shakespeare's characters, Prince of Hamlet, said: "To be or not to be that is the question."

This famous quotation has been running through Mr. John Q. Public's mind ever since council decided to knock down the bus terminal before the Centennial celebration starting June 28.

A group of Trenton businessmen stood on the corner of Bridge and Balaam Streets debating the bus station yesterday. One evidently had sentiment in his heart for the old brick building because he complained how the outside appearance could be improved with the expenditure of a few hundred dollars. He claimed in fact, that the terminal building was still of sounder construction than many of the business buildings occupying the block. Maybe the suggested pointing up the bricks and painting them, he recommended tearing down the wooden shack at the back of the premises. This spokesman glanced at the fireball and recalled how he fought against demolition for it when there was another clean-up movement afoot.

"Sure we spent some money on it. But look how may years it has served the town and is still a good looking building," he said, recounting an experience. "I believe in fair play," he added, "but I never was one to stand aside and let quite interfere with people's welfare." He talked about fighting council's ruling every step of the way.

Meanwhile citizens having read the story about the town accepting the $150 for the bus stop, have started to think about the problem of finding a place to rest and sanitation facilities now that the terminal is gone. A worried citizen reminisced it seems that the terminal housed the only two public lavatories in the downtown area.

"The terminal and the land it is sitting on belongs to the town. The town council wants to see the building cleared away. Fine, so long it is an unsightly eyesore, causing a traffic problem to the motorists in town. Council has no intentions of building. That's considered Colonial agent Norman Rickard. He is chairman of the station, to vacate the premises May 31. Mr. Rickard, who maintains the present terminal should be replaced by a modern station, has agreed to terminate his arrangement and move out by the time of this month. Council authorized Percy Hodge to demolish the building. His workmen will get right after the premises is empty.

At the council meeting when council decided to let the contract tolled out questions three councillmen favored leaving the bus station standing until other arrangements were make, while three voiced the appeals of the bus people and a merchant's representative. Mayor R. R. Wilbury was called upon to cast a ballot to break the tie.

The next day the councillors who supported the removal of the old terminal talked about the appearance of the market square being improved by the disappearance of the Bensley house which has been used as a bus station since 1934.

The firemen have had two calls in as many days. At the one Sunday just stood by with a searchlight while the two boys alighted while the searchlight was turned to an awning insulator on the top of a pole in north Trenton. Firemen found the blinking light ever since, but one of the Quinte Hydro linemen making the grid no laughing matter. While the hydro worker was installing a sawy she found a hole in his shirt sleeves a cloudburst of rain gave him a second shower. A flash man dressed in oilskins helping with a searchlight was amused by his friend's plight.

The job was completed successfully with no damage resulting despite the rugged conditions the hydro workers work under.

Across the river yesterday an oil burner acted up, frightening the householder to the point of calling the substance from the firemen. A truck went out and gave the trouble prompt attention.

Council Accept Resignation Of Town Engineer

Picton—Resignation of R. O. Butts as town engineer was accepted at a special meeting of town council, Thursday night.

Mr. Butts has accepted a similar position at Port Hope.

A verbal battle ensued when he matter of a street program was discussed. At one time, Mayor H. McFarland commented it looks like some people are trying to ease me out of the Mayor's chair, but I'm here for the year and I intend to stay."

Two motions offering different plans were presented. One by Councillor C. B. Calnan and Councillor F. J. MacArthur favored calling for tenders for the preparation and paving King Street, links connecting with Main and two blocks on Church Street. This, an amendment to an original motion, was first voting on. In favor were Councillors Calnan and MacArthur, Deputy Reeve C. Scott. The Mayor's right to vote was challenged by Reeve H. S. Colliver, town clerk F. L. Ward Q.C., ruling this permissible.

The vote on the original motion by Councillor W. Blakely and Councillor Sam Gentile, saw Councillors Clapp, Blakely, Gentile, Reeve Colliver in favor and the other four including the Mayor opposed. This motion asked that the town engineer prepare plans for several streets and that tenders be called for surface treatment these streets. The engineer to have made available the necessary equipment for performing the work and that the necessary materials to be secured at the most favorable prices.

The argument, permanent paving versus surface treatment, raged loud and long, and the vote on the amendment and the original motion saw a tie (one councillor being absent) and no decision was arrived at. Council proclaimed June 2nd a public holiday.

LONDON (CP)—Arthur Lewis, labor Member of Parliament for West Ham, expressed a concern about the number of motorists attending Coronation Gasp to their automobiles. He suggested in the House of Commons that warnings be given of the danger if the flags obstruct vision of drivers.

CIVIL DEFENCE
The Sarnia Disaster
By JACK BRETT

In Sarnia today, the purpose, the work and training of the civil defence unit there, is being realized. We may be sure the men and women who have spent months training for emergencies such as this one are busy showing the public the value of their preparedness.

Because of the lack of communication for more than an hour, a valuable link in the entire civil defence organization, the ham radio operator, went to work sending messages, relaying them back and forth.

Here in our city, J. H. Enright, by profession a radio announcer for the Hitchon Radio store, and a radio ham by hobby, on Friday afternoon sat down in his set in an effort to contact Sarnia or any one in the area. He had two messages to send, both beamed to the civil defence emergency headquarters at Sarnia. One was from George Whitman, deputy co-ordinator of Toronto and the area from this paper. Mr. Whitman's message offered assistance from the co-ordinator might require from our local defence unit. The second requested information on activities of "civil defence" in Sarnia so we could let our readers know through this column what is being done in disaster-hit Sarnia by members of the civil defence unit.

Reply Received

Within three hours the messages were flashed back to Mr. Enright. Mr. Whitman's offer was received with thanks, but, the radiogram advised civil defence aid was coming from London, Windsor and Port Huron. To the Ontario Intelligencer, the radiogram advised the civil defence unit was organized by 2.00 p.m. Friday. It listed the effectiveness of amateur radio transmitters in the area and the message was sent over the ham set, the telephone company was unable to promise any longer wait on calls through to Sarnia; the telegraph companies were unable to promise the time any message sent would arrive.

When Mr. Enright sat down before his set yesterday noon, he was not too optimistic. For about 10 minutes he called across the air waves a message which went like this: "Hello CQ, Hello CQ, VE3, Baker Sugar Queen calling anyone in the Sarnia, London or Windsor area with emergency messages."

Finally, above the roar of static came a faint voice from VE3, BSA in St. Catharines. This announced that Mr. Enright his message was being received by himself and another radio station, VE3 AJ at Seaforth in Huron County, not far from Sarnia.

There was only difficulty was, the Seaforth announcer was receiving Mr. Enright's messages, but, the Belleville ham was not receiving transmissions from Seaforth.

Emergency Messages

It was at this point that the value of hams in emergencies began to show. Belleville was requested to transmit the two emergency messages over the air by St. Catharines and what Seaforth was unable to get. St. Catharines would relay through.

Picking up the two radiograms, the local ham proceeded to read them across the air. As a final check, St. Catharines read them back and then contacted Seaforth to make sure the messages had been received at that point. After about 15 minutes, word came through from St. Catharines that Seaforth had received both messages and was prepared to pass them on to Sarnia.

Mr. Enright explained the reason Sarnia could not be contacted was due to the fact, all power in the city had been cut off. He pointed out that these sets that would be transmitting and receiving would be doing so on small emergency power. Apparently these sets operating in Sarnia would receive from sets close by, such as at Seaforth.

People who go around saying, "I told you so," never seem to be invited to many places. They are usually persons who make wild and dramatic predictions, then if some good fortune one of these so-called observations of theirs should come true; how they glory.

At the risk of becoming unpopular, we are going to say, "I told you so."

The Unexpected Occurred

If some columnist had predicted the people of Sarnia or Port Huron would be struck by a tornado, a "twister", and had the same columnist harped for three weeks previous to the disaster about preparing for such an occurrence, even though the possibility of such a thing was remote, they would have laughed long and loud at him and his writings. But now, tears is no laughter in Sarnia, nor is there any laughter in Port Huron. That is because the improbable happened.

It is too early after the disaster as yet to know what part Sarnia's, of Port Huron's civil defence team played, but we would be willing to predict when the whole story is finally revealed, civil defence teams will be mentioned in dispatches.

Civil defence people are trained to handle emergencies of this type. It does not have to be an atomic attack to send civil defence units into action. Right now, they are training, preparing to meet any situation where lives and property are endangered, right here in our own city. Sure, we can all sit back, snug and complacent and read about disasters elsewhere, but it is still comforting to know we have a civil defence unit ready to meet the improbable, if and when it drops suddenly in our laps as it did at Sarnia.

As a point of interest, the last tornado to hit the country, struck at Windsor in 1946. So it can happen.... can't it?

Last week it was promised this column would carry an article, "Personal Protection Under an Atomic Attack." Because of the Sarnia disaster, the civil defence training staff agreed this article was timely.

Next Saturday, the schedule will be announced and a discussion of the topic originally planned for today will appear.

Weddings

BELGUE—REID

White spring flowers, ferns, and palms filled the Woodgreen United Church, Toronto, for the marriage of Marjorie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orrie Reid, Wooler, to Mr. Victor Thomas Belgue, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry John Belgue. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Ray McClarty.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore an Edwardian gown of French Chantilly lace over satin and taffeta, fashioned with a full cathedral train. One strand of pearls, gift of the bridegroom, secured the ruffled heart shaped neckline. Long tiny sleeves, tapered. The full length illusion veil fell from a headdress of orange blossoms and she carried a white sweet pea, lily-of-the-valley stephanotis, ivy, baby's breath and bridal roses.

The choir, of which the bride is a member sang "The Lord is My Shepherd," "The Lord's Prayer," and "O Perfect Love."

The choirmaster Lloyd Kilsworth played the wedding music.

The maid of honor was Miss Mildred Mason and the best man of Mr. Ross Belgue.

Mrs. Margaret Ford, Trenton, Miss Dorothy Belgue, Jean Black, Jean Medweg and Louise Reid. All were gowned alike in heavenly blue ballerina dresses. They wore crowns of lilacs and blue forget-me-nots and carried old fashioned nosegays of yellow, pink, lilac flowers with blue streamers.

For travelling the bride wore Tudor pink gabardine suit with matching accessories, corsage of pink carnations and roses. They left by plane for a honeymoon in Bermuda.

Out-of-town guests were present from Bowmanville, Wyandotte, Michigan; Burlington and Ivanhoe.

LE VERE—HAYES

White snapdragons intermingled with white gladioli and ferns formed a lovely setting in St. Charles Borromeo Church, Rochester, N.Y., on Saturday, April 18, at 10 a.m. when Angela Catherine Hayes, of Rochester, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hayes, became the bride of Donald W. Le Vere, also of Rochester, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Willis Le Vere. The Reverend John P. Norris, officiated.

Mrs. Dorothy Nesim provided the traditional wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Michael Doyle, of Rochester, was radiant in her floor-length dress of white Chantilly lace over satin fashioning yoke, tulle panels and matching lace jacket having long, tapered sleeves, with points over the wrists. Her finger-tip veil of French illusion fell from a tiara of orange blossoms and rhinestones, and she carried a white prayer book crested with a white orchid and lilies-of-the-valley.

Mrs. Douglas J. Roebury, of Belleville, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and attendant, gowned in pastel green nylon tulle over taffeta in floor-length style with matching jacket and headdress. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of spring flowers.

Mr. Andrew Hale, of Rochester, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was groomsman, while Mr. Stewart Hayes, brother of the bride and Mr. Jesse Myers, Rochester, were ushers.

The wedding breakfast, immediately following the ceremony, was held at the Crescent Beach Hotel for the immediate family. In the afternoon a reception was held at the home of Mrs. C. F. Hayes, Burling Road.

For the honeymoon trip to Syracuse and points south, the bride chose a beige coordinate suit of navy and white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Le Vere are residing at 35 Hand Street, Rochester, N.Y.

Out-of-town guests were present from Belleville and Buffalo, N.Y.

1st Belleville Brownie Pack Holds Mother-Daughter Banquet

Thursday evening the 1st Belleville Brownie Pack closed an eventful year's work by a mother and daughter banquet held in the Sunday School assembly room of Bridge Street United Church.

The tables, placed in the form of a large rectangle, were prettily appointed with white damask, crossed from end to end with fluted bands of brown and yellow superimposed, the one upon the other, with Brownie colors. Vases of fragrant lilac blooms and vari-colored tulips were spaced at intervals, adding further attractiveness, while the unique place markers, little, brown, ceramic dogs with yellow collars to which were attached tiny tags bearing the guest's name, highlighted the setting. These were made and donated by Mrs. E. G. Gurnette for this special occasion.

At the head table, which was centred by mauve lilacs, red and white tulips in spray arrangements, was placed a flowering elm in a bowl of ruby crystal, flanked by tall, yellow candles in silver holders, the Brownie officers were seated, these included Mrs. R. Arnett, Divisional Commissioner; Mrs. K. E. Moull (Snow Owl); Mrs. E. Adams, (Tawny Owl) and Mrs. A. G. Tooth, the District Secretary.

A Gracious Welcome

Following the delicious repast, Brown Owl extended a gracious welcome to the assembled mothers and Brownies, stating that she was greatly pleased to see so many present, after which, Brownie Lynn Taylor, proposed the toast to the mothers, to which Mrs. M. E. Lyseckl replied. This was followed by each Brownie, rising, and introducing her mother in turn, humbly.

Short speeches were given by the District Commissioner, and the District Secretary, dealing with the work of the Brownie Pack. Mrs. Arnett complimented the Brownies on their fine Pack, the younger branch of the Girl Guide Movement, and divided into sixes, including Fairies, Goonies, Elves, Kelpies, Pixies and Imps.

Realistic Goal

As the Brownies were at the imaginative period of life, most teaching took the form of play, the ultimate in view was a realistic goal of character forming. This was accomplished by the medium of games and songs, laying the groundwork for the later Guides, and consisted in tests on health, handwork, service and intelligence, all of which had to be passed in order to earn the coveted award of the golden star, proficiency badges and star pins.

Serious Oath

Mrs. Arnott stressed the important part a mother plays in her daughter's life, as the child depends on the mother; that training fosters obedience; that the motto, "Lend a Hand," was a practical motto; that the Pack was not for amusement, but for an objective—the formation of character, and becoming useful citizens; that their oath was a serious one; comprising love to God; loyalty to the Queen, and helpfulness to those at home.

The commissioner ended her talk with a short story to the Brownies "How to Love", which centred around the thought that love was really 'love' when expressed by acts of thoughtfulness for others, as well as by the lips. "Love by lips only, was not really love.

"A Jeb Well Done"

Mrs. Tooth, the district secretary, then told the guests how to see the group keeping together and standing so well behind the leaders, who had made such a grand success of the work, adding her congratulations to Brown Owl and to Tawny Owl for a job well done.

Before a little girl may become a Brownie, she must reach a certain grade, when she does so, she then stands on "Golden Bar." Then to earn the Golden Bar, it requires one year of faithful work. This includes doing dishes, cleaning floors, growing plants, and healthful exercises. The Golden Hand badge must be signed for by a leader other than her own, and includes knitting and learning of semiphore signals which are hard to acquire.

Presentation of Badges

The presentation of badges included the Golden Bar obtained by those who had stood firm for one year, which were: Patricia Bradford, Alice Layton, Carolyn James, Nancy Van Tassel, Wendy Baldwin, Joanne Cherrie, Betty Ellis, Sandra Bonter, Linda Dyble and Mary Jane Lewis, while Patricia Eakins won the Golden Hand.

Proficiency badges were awarded to Judy Dunlop, Taylor for proficiency as a needleworker artist, writer, skater, collector and knitter; Lyn Punchard, as needleworker, writer, artist, skater, collector and swimmer; Patsy Golden, needleworker, writer, artist, skater, collector, thrift, and loymaker, Sharon O'Neil, needleworker, writer, artist, skater, collector, swimmer and toymaker.

Sharon O'Neil, needleworker, writer, artist, skater, collector, swimmer and toymaker; Patricia Adams, needleworker, writer, artist, skater, hostess, collector, thrift and loymaker.

Nice Projects

Projects of the Brownies in tribes, for the consideration Day were several stocking dolls and brown felt dogs, nicely made and dressed, and a full-sized quilt in blocks divided by bands of yellow, each block having the embroidered figure of either a Brownie, Kelpie, Imp, or pixie, the centre block representing a toadstool, the whole being nicely lined by yellow and well quilted.

Among the guests present were three former Brownies: Beverley Simpson, Donna Booth and Gwenly Cathers, who had graduated into the Girl Guides.

Appreciative Thanks

Appreciative thanks were expressed to the mothers for their assistance during the year; to Mrs. Punchard, pianist, to Mrs. Durno for her fine executive ability, by Mrs. Moull; by Mrs. Eda Ho, who also added her thanks to the mothers for unstinted help, while Brown Owl expressed appreciation to Mrs. Adsett and to Mrs. Harold Mott for the delicious repast that had been enjoyed.

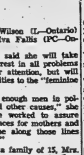
Mrs. Jodoin, French Canada's First Woman in Senate

by CHRISTINE SIROIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer



MONTREAL (CP)—French Canada's first woman representative in the Senate, Mrs. Marie-Anne Beauchamp-Jodoin, is known as a dynamic social and political worker, a tireless defender of the rights of women.

For more than a quarter of a century, the causes of women and of the Liberal party have been championed by the unusually stately woman whose youthful appearance belies her 71 years.

"I am not ashamed to tell my age, because I do not feel my years," she said in an interview after Prime Minister St. Laurent announced her appointment to the Senate prior to his departure for the Coronation.

Although she once had ambitions to become a lawyer, she never considered the possibility of a Senate appointment. Now that she has the appointment, she plans to carry to the Upper Senate her fight for recognition of the rights of women.

There are three other women members in the 102-seat chamber. Senator Muriel McQueen Ferguson (L—New Brunswick), Senator Cairine Wilson (L—Ontario) and Senator Iva Fallis (CC—Ontario).

Mrs. Jodoin said she will take a general interest in all problems coming to her attention, but will limit her activities to the "feminine domain."

"There are enough men in politics to defend other causes," she said. "I have worked to assure family allowances for mothers and I will continue along those lines in the Senate."

Member of a family of 15, Mrs. Jodoin has one son and three daughters. She is particularly proud of her seven grandchildren.

Daughter and wife of a lawyer, Mrs. Jodoin confessed that she once hoped to enter the legal profession. Born in Montreal, she was born too soon. In her day, women were not allowed to attend university.

Her social and political activities date from 1920 when her children were all of school age and she found spare time on her hands.

She is honorary president of the National Federation of Liberal Women of Canada and member of so many organizations she hesitates to name them in case she

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

Now that sunny skies are here it is a pleasure to get out on the highways again and see the glories of Canada. Biggest handicap to motorists in Canada is the lack of good eating places and tea rooms . . . Greasy spoon restaurants are everywhere, but the clean, attractive snack centre is almost non-existent. Which reminds us to tell you about our surprise at finding a pretty little tearoom last week-end.

Located at the junction of the Old Belleville Road and No. 2 Highway, which incidentally, is the turn which saves you several miles on a trip to Montreal, this small snack place is operated by the MacAlpine sisters. It is decorated in green and yellow tones with yellow cornflowers on the wallpaper.

There are only three tables in the place which adds to its charm. Each is covered with a pretty yellow printed tablecloth. The dishes are so clean and polished that they sparkle in the sun.

This is a pleasant place to enjoy a cup of fine tea or a snack. It is one small oasis in a greasy desert.

For Rent

Renting furnished homes these days has its drawbacks. Take the case of the man who met some prospective tenants for his country home the other day. They didn't even get out of their car to look inside the house.

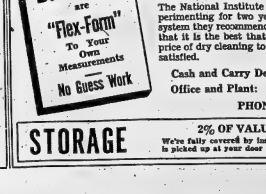
All they said in disgust was, "What! no power mowers, no TV set, what do you think we are, cave men!"

Good Stuff!

Worth repeating many times is the radio version of the life of Sir John A. Macdonald. It has recently been presented in a series of two broadcasts, each one hour long by the CBC and is entitled "The Honorable Member from Kingston."

Canadians can learn more about their political history from such a play than they can pick up from a dozen history text books. This radio play is not only informative, it is most entertaining.

For Dishes



If your dish rags are shot, and you don't like the feel of those manufactured ones, try making up some of your own out of white flannelette. The flannelette wears well, is absorbent and bleaches white at the same time as you are bleaching the sink.

Only thing about flannelette is that you have to make sure you don't pick up the wrong diaper by mistake.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

That Problem To Cure A Wanderer

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

A couple of days ago, we were discussing the case of the woman whose wandering husband came home as a result of a carefully planned program of outside activity on her part.

After reading your original letter, in my column, she sent me a re-ject letter in which she said that the idea of the plan was given her by a man she met while out and to do with adjusting marital crises. She remarks to her, as she quoted them, seemed to me so wise and sensible that I want to pass them on, with the thought that other women in similar circumstances might find them helpful. So here is what he said, in the words of the woman to whom he said it:

"He told me the first thing a wife must do when her husband is unfaithful is to divert her attention from him. He said 'Cultivate your own interests. Do not sit home and brood. Do whatever your time will allow - outside work, join a club, do anything, but really do it. If your husband is unfaithful he is the one your home is dirty, clean it. If it is because you do not comb your hair, comb it. But be the girl he married!

Time For Oneself

"The next on to say that if the trouble were due to so much pressure at home he is my case I had tried every possible way to keep my husband home, then it occurred to him that I was a woman taken for granted.' He told me that, regardless of the real reason why many men start on the 'road to backsliding,' they remain there, even after the reason has been removed, because they are sure they will be forgiven. They have all the conveniences of marriage and, at the same time, the freedom of a single man. But if they were made to feel that they were more than one meant just that, and that the wife could get along without him very nicely and wasn't dependent on him, for her good name, and if he really cared enough, he might come to his senses.

"This man told me not to sit home night after night waiting for my husband to come to me with someone else's lipstick smeared all over him. He said 'Hire a baby-sitter. Don't worry about the money. If he has enough to entertain a woman you should have enough to entertain yourself. If he refuses to give you more money when you are short open up charge accounts. If he refuses to give you any money at all, take him to court.

"If he loves his free life more than he loves his family he'll go, and then good riddance! But if he is worth his salt, he'll reform, and obtain all the more of you for standing on your own two feet."

"Don't tell him you could live without him - show him that you could do so."

(And then the woman herself adds: "When my husband came home that night I told him that I had intended exactly what I said in the past. He laughed, and told me that if he knew I wouldn't know what to do with myself. I said nothing. And so I proceeded with my plan. When everything else fails, it is worth a try to give your husband something to worry about. Above all, don't do anything wrong and don't mention the past to your husband again.

"Finally, if even this fails, it is best to go separate ways. It is better to be lonesome without someone than to be lonesome with someone.

"If what I have told of my experience helps even one wife, I will feel I have accomplished a great deal."

I am sure that more than one wife will be helped by this story, but I repeat the warning given this woman in an earlier column. By all means, let an unfaithful husband see that, if it must be, you are willing and able to lead your own life. All the suggestions that have been given here, both by the woman herself and by the man with whom she discussed her problems, are excellent. But if the plan is carried out in a spirit of anger and resentment and bitterness, and if the wife takes the position, as this one did in her second letter, that she will "never again forgive," the real objective of the plan will be defeated, for there can be no possible happy outcome. The only solution of such a problem that really means anything, is the bringing together again of the marital team, and this can be done only by readiness to wipe out the past in such a way that no rancor remains to poison the future.

...Question: Could you please send me a recipe for Banana Bread. ... I had perfect luck with your Chocolate Chiffon Cake the first 2 times but the last couple of times it has been heavy on the bottom. ...top part was quite light. Would it be too much oil that would cause it to go like that? Would you tell me how to peg it to me as I am wondering if I copied it down right. Have you a recipe for any other chiffon cakes?

Marion S.

...Answer:

Banana Bread

One and three-quarters cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup shortening, two-thirds cup of sugar, 2 well beaten eggs, 1 cup mashed ripe bananas. Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Cream shortening until fluffy then add sugar gradually while creaming the two. Sift in flour mixture alternately with the mashed banana, a small amount of each at a time, beating until smooth each time. Turn into greased loaf pan about 9 x 5 x 3 inches and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 70 minutes, or a little less if loaf shrinks from sides. Good additions to this are ½ cup chopped walnuts or pecans or 1 cup chopped dates.

A film of underbaked batter or heaviness at bottom of chiffon cakes is usually due to insufficient beat coming from bottom of oven or double thickness of metal in tube pan.

Try this slightly changed recipe.

Chocolate Chiffon Cake

First mix together 2-3 cup good quality cocoa and ¾ cup boiling water until smooth and let stand until cool. Now sift together 1 ¾ cups sifted flour 1 ½ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon baking powder and 1 teaspoon salt. Make a deep well in the centre of the dry ingredients and pour into it ½ cup salad oil, 7 unbeaten egg yolks and the cooled cocoa mixture and 2 teaspoon vanilla. Now beat this batter until perfectly smooth. In another bowl beat together until stiff 1 cup egg whites and ½ teaspoon cream of tartar. Now pour the egg yolk batter in a thin stream over the entire surface of the stiffly beaten dressed to the wife but may be addressed to "Mr. and Mrs." So please don't worry—what you did was quite proper.

Dear "Congratulate" The Bride.

Do "Congratulate" The Groom

My sister and I are going to a wedding and reception soon, our cousin's wedding, the first really formal wedding I've ever been to. She tells me that, when I go down the receiving line, I must not "congratulate" the bride, . . that the words "congratulate" and "congratulations" are used only for the groom. Is this true? If it is, what should I say to the bride, my cousin? —Helen S.

Your sister is so right! We should not "congratulate" the bride, or offer "congratulations" to her. . . these words only to the groom. To your cousin, you might say, for example, "My dearest love to you, Barbara, and may you always be as happy and radiant as you are today!

stirring gently folding and cutting it into the whites with a rubber spatula until evenly blended. Pour into ungreased tube pan. Bake in slow pan is best. A 10-in. tube is baked at 325 deg. F. for 35 minutes then heat is increased to 350 deg. For 10 or 12 minutes longer. If you bake this in a 9-inch tube 30 to 35 minutes at 325 deg. is sufficient. Same for loaf pan. Oblong cake and square cake are baked at 350 deg. Fahr. Square cake takes 30 to 35 minutes; oblong cake 45 to 50 minutes. After baking invert cake, let hang until cold, then coax out of pan with finger tips.

Orange Chiffon Cake

Into mixing bowl put sifter after sifting and measuring 2 ¾ cups flour, put into sifter and 1½ cups sugar, 1 tablespoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt and sift into bowl. Make well in centre and in it put ½ tablespoon grated orange rind, ¾ cup orange juice, ½ cup salad oil, 5 unbeaten egg yolks, and then beat this until batter is smooth. In another bowl beat 1 cup egg whites until stiff, sprinkle over ofartar until stiff. Pour egg yolk batter in fine stream over stiffly beaten whites and cut and fold it into them until blended. Bake same as angel cake. Decorate. Times and sizes of pans are exactly the same.

Question: I copied a recipe I saw for Peanut Brittle and tried it but did not like the baking syrup. Please tell me what kind of molasses to use. Is there special kind for candy? — Mrs. J. S

Answer: Use the very best quality of light colored molasses. You can see a golden glow through it. It is not sold dark brown in color.

Peanut Brittle

Three tablespoons butter, 2 cups light molasses, 2-3 cup cup sugar, 4 cups shelled, skinned, halved peanuts which have been sprinkle with salt . . . Melt butter, add molasses and sugar, bring to boiling point and boil until when tried in cold water it is brittle. (275 deg. Fahr.) Remove from heat. Immediately stir in the peanuts and 1 teaspoon soda. This will foam. Pour into buttered pan to very thin layer. Cool thoroughly before breaking up.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Her Bravery Should Be Admired.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My cousin died last week, and the funeral was held in the modern-size church our family and relatives and many of our friends attend. He was a very beloved and popular man, and the church was filled with relatives and friends, many of his co-workers, and quite a few members of organizations to which he belonged. After the service my cousin's widow stood in the vestibule and greeted and thanked all those who came to the funeral. Our family was very proud of her, admired her courage for and her husband loved each other very much and we know it took great spiritual bravery for her to do this. Now we are amazed and hurt to hear that she is being criticized by some people for her undignified behavior. Could their point of view be justified?

B.H

No. It's pathetic, unbelievable, to what great lengths some prissy, narrow-minded persons will go to criticize a good and humanly-right intention of another person. Anyone attending the funeral services for your beloved cousin probably knew the great love he and his wife had for each other, should have realized how extraordinarily brave she was to make this gesture of appreciation and friendliness to those who came to pay tribute to her. Husband's memory. She must be a fine and noble woman, . . and I hope you and your family and all her real friends will find opportunities to express deep devotion to her and your admiration of her spiritual bravery. And I hope this carries to the ears of her mean-minded critics.

Invitations Addressed To "Mrs." Instead Of "Mr. and Mrs. The.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I were both born in England, and lived there until last year when we came here to live. We have made quite a few friends here, and we have most kind neighbors. Recently we planned to give an informal buffet party, to make a return gesture to those "friendly friends." I addressed the notes of invitation in the name of the wife only, but of course included both in the notes. Now I have heard that here the invitations would have been addressed to "Mr. and Mrs." True. Mrs. Beeckman — Betty

Here engraved invitations are addressed to "Mr. and Mrs." while the English custom of addressing engraved invitations to the wife only. And while in England custom of invitation are always addressed to the wife, here they may be ad-

MADOC W.I.

Madoc W. I. met at the home of Mrs. K. T. Nicol for its May meeting. The president, Mrs. Kernohan, presided, and the roll call showed a good attendance of members and visitors.

It was decided to purchase a new flag, to replace the one which the W.I. had placed in the park a few years ago. Mrs. G. C. Moon and Mrs. K. T. Nicol were named to purchase the flag before Coronation Day.

Mrs. W. Stewart gave a report on the fair convention in Toronto, and Mrs. J. McGowan read a report on same, which had been prepared by Mrs. K. Caskey. Both these reports contained good suggestions, which can be used by the committee who revise the fair prize list.

Mrs. A. Empey gave the current events in her usual interesting manner.

Delegates

Delegates to the district annual at Ivanhoe on May 28 are: Mrs. Kernohan, Mrs. K. T. Nicol, Mrs. A. Herrington and Mrs. E. T. Naylor. Mrs. G. C. Moon was named press reporter.

Mrs. Beatty, district president, spoke on "Education" and "Citizenship."

Choices for a course were as follows: What makes a good officer?; aids to effective speech making; how to conduct meetings.

Mrs. K. T. Nicol was in charge of the program which was centred around the theme: "Grandmother." The grandmothers formed a chorus and sang "Silver Threads Among the Gold" and "Old McDonald Had a Farm."

Those who were not yet grandmas were asked to sing "Old McDonald Had a Farm" and "The Grandmothers' Chorus" won the decision.

Two Poems

Mrs. K. Nicol read two poems, "Grandmother's Day" and a parody on "Grandmother Sits in Her Old Armchair," which were much enjoyed.

Mrs. A. Adams, accompanied by Mrs. W. Hulin, sang "Down by the Ash Grove," and "The Meeting of the Waters."

Roll call of members had brought dishes, silverware and snapshot albums, which had belonged to their grandmothers and these were on display.

Mrs. A. Herrington read a lovely little poem, entitled "To My Grandmother" and Mrs. Beatty read "Just For Grandma." Mrs. J. McGowan gave "A Soldier's Monologue."

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants, and a social hour enjoyed.

Coronation Choir Festival Will Feature 1,000 Choristers

Kingston—Intensive preparations are continuing for the greatest choral event in Kingston's history—the Coronation Choir Festival to be held in Kingston Community Memorial Centre on Sunday evening, May 31, at 7.30 p.m.

Hundreds of choristers, men, women and boys, recently established the first of a series of district festivals in Kingston, Belleville, Brockville, Cornwall and southern parts of the diocese of Ontario.

Assisting George N. Mayhew, who is acting as musical director for the festival, are all the organists of the diocese with special help being given by W. Ernest Wheatley of St. Thomas' Church, Belleville; John Withers of Christ Church, Belleville; Mrs. D. Houston and Mrs. K. Hamm of St. Mary Magdalene Church, Napanee; Mrs. Olivia Maley of St. James Church, Kingston; Mrs. William Rawlin of Gananoque; Donald Albury of St. Peter's Church, Brockville and Miss Nunn of St. John's Church, Prescott.

New York Visitors

More than 1,000 choristers from every part of the diocese will participate in this event to celebrate in a festal evensong the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth. They will be joined in the festival by guests from the St. John's Church, Ogdensburg, N.Y., under the direction of Miss Legard with the rector, the Rev. Canon George Palmer in attendance.

Among the music to be sung will be a number of compositions performed at previous Coronations, including "Let My Prayer Come Up", by Purcell, a Restoration organist at Westminster Abbey; "Zadok the Priest", the Queen a Long Life", by an 18th century composer and Dr. William Child and "All Hail the Queen" of a Coronation ode by the contemporary Canadian composer, Dr. Healey Willan.

"The Magnificat" and "Nunc Dimittis" will be sung to a special setting in D, also by Dr. Willan. The great service will conclude with a solemn "Te Deum" by Sir Charles Attwell, written for the Coronation of King Edward VIII.

The congregation, which is expected to number in the thousands, will participate in the well-known hymns and psalms.

All Clergy Present

All the clergy of the diocese will be in attendance with their congregations as the Lord Bishop of Ontario, Rt. Rev. Kenneth C. Evans, has permitted the services in the churches to be withdrawn on that evening.

The address will be given by the Very Rev. Howard Clarke, Dean of Ottawa; the precentor will be the Very Rev. A. T. Brierly Browne, Dean of Ontario; Venerable Arthur Smith, Archdeacon of Ontario, will lead the mass congregation in an act of dedication and the Lord Bishop of Ontario will welcome the people and give the blessing.

The general public throughout the diocese is heartily invited to join in this great festival service and, in an anticipation of an overflow service, it has been arranged to have loudspeakers relay the service to people occupying the 1,800 outdoor seats.

Through the courtesy of the Northern Electric Company a Hammond organ is being installed for the occasion and that, together with a grand piano, will provide the accompaniment for the choristers who will be having their first and only mass rehearsal all together at the Community Centre on the afternoon of the festival.

It is expected that the service will be recorded and that colored motion pictures will be taken of the event.

Links Between Church, Crown Emphasized Anew at Coronation

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Links between church and crown will be emphasized anew at the Coronation June 2 when the Queen is crowned in Westminster Abbey, "royal peculiar" established by William the Conqueror.

Edward the Confessor laid the abbey's course in royal history when he was buried there in 1066, eight days after consecration of the edifice he built.

Since then the smoke-grimed, towered structure has been more prominent in the life-and-death cycle of British royalty than any other church. The Queen will be the 38th monarch crowned there since William the Conqueror's Christmas Day ceremonies in 1066.

Independent of State

The abbey is called a "royal peculiar" to indicate its highly independent position. It hails its head Church of England and as a church of royalty.

No bishop or archbishop presides over its rites and no prelate but the Queen herself comes as a "visitor." Yet the abbey and its fellow "peculiar" St. George's Chapel, St. George's Chapel, are not to be confused with royal residences or worship in royal residences, known as royal chapels.

Nor is the abbey's long past purely a reflection of royalty. . .

Its vaulted roof, its tombs of statesmen, churchmen, warriors, poets and writers, commoners, its stone records in delicate grace ing the craftsmen of medieval England, Westminster Abbey itself is one of the oldest in this old land and its associations, including the names of Orlando Gibbons, Purcell and William Croft, are legion.

Few recognize the official title ordered by the Privy Council, the Collegiate Church of St. Peter, Westminster, was changed to abbey since the Reformation 400 years ago, it is known around the world, nevertheless, as "the abbey."

Preservation Appeal

It is financially independent, drawing no state aid, and is hard up. Its newest appeal seeks £1,000,000 to preserve its vast ecclesiastical wealth and walls, ravaged by time and London's smoke-ridden atmosphere.

Above all, the abbey is a national supersession of a cathedral, belonging to all, conducting services daily and admitting millions yearly to gaze or pray.

Edward the Confessor and Henry III are reputed to have spent £50,000 through the years and that sum in 1000 has been for repair and restorative purposes.

The Confessor received Papal permission to erect a Norman-style abbey, and his workmen, known as the Danes, and he built on a Thamesside site occupied first by an abbey some 500 years earlier.

In 1245, Henry III initiated a vast rebuilding program east of the nave. The work was carried on almost without interruption until completed in 1520. Last major additions were the Wren-designed towers at the west entrance, finished by about 1740 after his death.

Today, located close to the Houses of Parliament and Westminster Palace, whose age rivals its own, the abbey is a cross-shaped structure in early-English Gothic style scrupulously honored by six generations of builders.

Fine Pointed Style

The unrecruited pointed style which spreads from transept to chapels and into the aisled nave, more than 500 feet long and 103 feet high. Before the nave is the choir. At the Queen will make her Coronation oremonies as she did her marriage vows in 1947.

The church is also ready for its part in the 21/4-hour-long Coronation ritual.

The traditional, sacred vestments have been unfolded and the abbey will be lengthened slightly by a temporary annex before the entrance.

There the Queen will descend from her coach at 11 a.m., enter the abbey and be crowned about 90 minutes past noon. Later she will lunch and rest within the abbey precincts before the ceremonial route to Buckingham Palace.

Around the abbey's walls are the tombs and the paraphernalia making this the most widely publicized Coronation so far. Millions of eyes will watch the ceremony.

The abbey's Very Rev. Alan Campbell Don, is officially charged with the duty of instructing Her Majesty for the impressive responses. His task will be a simple one, however, since it's been reported that she is already word perfect.

New Agreement Signed

TORONTO (CP)—A new labor agreement covering some 700 of the 1,500 employees at the Chalk River atomic energy plant has been signed by the Atomic Energy of Canada Limited and a council of AFL unions, it was announced Wednesday.

Stewart Harvey, AFL director of organization in Ontario, said the new agreement supersedes the first official agreement reached between the union and the Crown company in May, 1952.

Harvey said the new two-year agreement replaces the work week of hourly employees from a five- and 45-hour-week to 42½ hours the first year, and 40 hours the second year. He said the contract also provides the hourly employees with a general wage increase of four cents next April.

FLORIDA'S GIFT

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Florida's gift to the Queen will provide 1,000,000 four - ounce "coronation cocktails"—of pure fruit juices—when the British Monarch is crowned next month. Through its citrus industry the state will send 50,000 gallons of grapefruit juice to England by 36.

Princess Anne, Prince Charles Playing Games

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Amid mounting tension at Buckingham Palace, Prince Charles and Princess Anne—oblivious to the grown-up worries are learning a new game called "helping mummy with her Coronation."

Even the Queen holds most of her rehearsals for the big moment at the palace, and she likes to have her high-spirited children along to take to edge off what to a certain extent must be an ordeal. Excited comments from four-year-old Charles and 2½-year-old Anne help to lighten these last-minute preparations.

When the Queen, in state dress, practises entering and leaving the gilded state coach drawn by eight Windsor greys, Charles and Anne stand quietly by until they are allowed to join in their part—the "mummy's golden carriage." Then they ride round the palace courtyard watching delightedly as mother and father bow and smile to empty space, thus anticipating the tributes that will follow the Coronation Day.

Stepped-Up Tempo

Rehearsals now have reached a stepped-up tempo as the Coronation ceremony just 12 days away, the Queen spends long periods each day in the robing room of the palace, getting used to the weight and feel of robes she will wear and memorizing a complicated series of movements.

The two royal children are expected to watch the Queen's progress from the palace gates, most likely from the nursery windows.

Charles will go to the abbey briefly, though details have not been announced. He will be in company her brother but will get her share of attention from the palace crowds.

Briefs From Britain

CHISLEHURST, England (CP)—British schools are closing down for separate compartments, long have held compartments during Coronation week. Now the northwest Kent traffic advisory committee has refused a suggestion for the installation carriages for passengers "tired of walking talk about the weekend washing."

LONDON (CP)—Police had to break up a traffic jam around a house where a Sikh wedding was being held, surrounded by luxuriously robed women and about 300 men in turbans. Gods were roasted in the basement but one guest said: "Spoil the amazement! It's just a wedding."

LONDON (CP)—Passengers on the London subways are finding themselves packed in like sardines as being reduced by replacing old trains with new ones, welded to form extensive lengths of track with no joints.

HILLINGDON, England (CP)—A team representing the parish church of this Middlesex town will play Hillingdon Cricket Club under rules in force during the reign of the first Queen Elizabeth. Players will wear doublets and hose.

No. 21: Edward VI, King of England and Ireland 1547-1553. Lady Jane Grey, Queen briefly 1553.

Edward VI, born 1537, was the son of Henry VIII by his third wife, Jane Seymour, who died of the effects of the birth. Henry wore out in 1547—he was so fat he couldn't stand unaided — and Master Edward VI a sickly king at 9. During his six years as king, Edward was the pawn of "Protectors." One, the Duke of Northumberland, arranged the marriage of his son to Edward's cousin, Lady Jane Grey, and induced the dying Edward to designate Jane as his successor. Tragic Jane, who was 16 when Edward died of TB, was quickly overthrown by partisans of Mary, daughter of Henry VIII by Catherine of Aragon, and executed as Mary consumed as a traitor. One of the most famous vessels ever built sailed the seas in Edward's reign — the Great Harry, the four-master considered the first ship of the English navy.

Come, Holy Spirit, come."

—is a very suitable inscription for this first of a series of worthwhile and spiritual services that will take place during the coming year.

The fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance; against such there is no law." Galatians 5: 22-23.

SPECIAL OPEN AIR SERVICE

In recognition of the Centennial observance of St. Paul's United Church, 1853-1953, a period which includes several years of resident leadership by officers of the Salvation Army, a special open air service will be held at 6.45 p.m. at Stirling War Memorial park, led by the Belleville Corps under the leadership of Bandmaster Green on Sunday evening, May 24th.

The resident ministry of the Salvation Army ended in Stirling in 1892, after a period of nine years' service in which the old Canada Methodist Church (Wesleyan) was used as a citadel. When regular Sunday Army services were withdrawn many of their members joined St. Paul's congregation and gave loyally of their service to promote right and truth. At the present time Stirling is served by Salvation Army officers who reside in Tweed.

Other officers participating in this special service are: Lt.-Col. William C. Ritz, Divisional Commander for Mid-Ontario. In his message he said: "We of the Salvation Army consider it an honor to take part in these gatherings and rejoice over the completion of a century's ministry of St. Paul's United Church." Plant Trees To Commemorate Coronation

Stirling — In commemoration of the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II, four blue spruce trees, the gift of the Stirling Horticultural Society, were planted with fitting ceremony by the local schools last Wednesday afternoon. H. R. Tompkins, a member of the school board, concluded the ceremony with the following prayer: "Our Heavenly Maker and Designer of the growing trees, help us to grow. Make us strong and upright, and of a true, unswerving grandeur. May we measure our height by the sun, and keep reaching up to the sky like the wonderful trees around us. May we cast made everything beautiful in its time, help us to strive for beauty in our lives and with the other."

At the high school, Principal R. L. Good presided and explained the purpose of the gathering and the planting of the trees was carried out by two groups of pupils, Brenda Fairchild, Frank Bailey and Grace Carleton and Bob McGregor, members of Grade Ninth Muuky.

Party Leaders Head Into Last Lap of Campaign

EL. Election bgt

HALIFAX (CP) — Both major parties agree that the 30-year record of the Liberal government will be the chief issue when Nova Scotians vote in the province's general election May 26.

The record was attacked and defended as party leaders headed into the last lap of the campaign. Liberals and Progressive Conservatives will fire their parting shots tonight but the CCF campaign will not wind up until Sunday.

In his final platform speech Friday night at New Glasgow, Premier Macdonald said the election issue boiled down to the government's record on one hand and Progressive Conservative criticism of it on the other.

Opposition attacks, he charged, had "narrowed down to minor and petty criticisms." They did not attempt to criticize the "great highway paving program, rural high school program, rural electrification, free schoolbooks, the Canso causeway, the Halifax-Dartmouth bridge, the trans-Canada highway or the ferry from Yarmouth to New England."

Robert L. Stanfield, Progressive Conservative leader, levelled charges at what he called the government's failure to stimulate industry in a speech at Truro.

Mr. Stanfield said the volume of Nova Scotia Agricultural products is at its lowest ebb since the federal government started to keep records.

He promised that a Progressive Conservative government would "insist that the federal government carry out its promises to the Maritimes to decentralize industry, make cheap power available for Maritime industry, carry out the original intention of the Duncan commission on freight rates, negotiate new treaties to develop new markets for coal, fish, lumber and coal, and make the maximum use of our ports."

Both liberals, who held 27 seats in the 37-member legislature at dissolution, and the Progressive Conservatives, who formed an eight-man Opposition, have entered full slates of candidates. The CCF, which held two seats, has 18 candidates in the field and there is one Independent.

70 Girl Guides Start Four-Day Tour of Scotland

EDINBURGH (CP)—A group of 70 Canadian Girl Guides started a four-day tour of Scotland today as a prelude to their Coronation trip to London.

The group is the second of three Coronation contingents under sponsorship of the Commonwealth Youth Movement. The girls are staying in private homes here and will leave for Chester, Wednesday.

Sunday they will check into Chigwell camp, Surrey, on the outskirts of London, where hundreds of Commonwealth and colonial young persons will live around Coronation time.

The group landed at Greenock Scotland, Friday after a good trip aboard the Empress of Scotland. It includes 15-year-old Anne Rodick Winnipeg orphan whose trip was financed by Morris Duchov, Winnipeg restaurant owner.

The first contingent of the total group of 150 Canadian youngsters to arrive was comprised of the Appleby boys' choir from Oakville, Ont. They appeared back in London today from Winchester, Hampshire, and made their first appearance in Britain last Sunday at St. Paul's Cathedral, the same day they docked at Liverpool.

The third contingent scheduled to disembark next week, will include representatives of various youth organizations.

Taylor Times Changes Story On Stock Market

TAYLOR, Tex. (AP)—The Taylor Times got fed up with humdrum livestock market reports that go like this: "The cattle market was uneven to $1 lower. . . fat calves were in light demand."

So this week's edition reports: "The demand for cattle seems as great as it ever was, the price just doesn't amount to much.

"Fat calves are selling from 18 to 23 cents a pound, but try to get 23 cents. Also, it'll help if you'll try to forget this time last year they were buying fat calves, which may have been too high, but have you bought anything in other lines lately? Everything else is still sky-high.

"Stocker steers this week were bringing from 16 to 18 cents, but it's not taking any more ink to write 16 than 18, and 16 seemed to prevail.

"Cows and calves were bringing from $125 to $175 a pair. The fellow who's paying $175 already has a load and left about 15 minutes ago.

"This, shelly cows, canners and cutters you should have left at home."

'Letter Bomb' Explodes In Belfast Office

BELFAST (AP) — A "letter bomb" exploded with a loud bang immediately began a search of the mails that netted six similar packages.

Police also were investigating an explosion that destroyed a mail box Friday outside the post office at Kilkeel in County Down. The charge apparently was placed by Irish republican sympathizers protesting plans for celebrating the Coronation.

The six northern counties of Ireland are part of the United Kingdom despite Southern Ireland's claims that they should be incorporated into the Irish republic.

The "letter bombs found today were addressed to prominent Belfast residents and city officials. All had been mailed in boxes in the Belfast district.

The bomb which exploded consisted of an ordinary envelope containing a piece of magnesium and a rubber container filled with acid. When the acid ate through the rubber it set the magnesium alight.

Belfast officials expressed fear that the bombs might signal terror campaign similar to that waged many years ago by the Irish Republican Army as a part of the Irish campaign for independence from Britain. At that time, a flood of similar explosive packages plagued post office officials in Britain.

Traders Talking About Summer Rise on Market

By HARRY KINGDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Traders started talking about a "summer advance" on the Toronto stock exchange this week.

For the first time in three weeks, all four exchange indexes scored moderate advances on the week. Western oils led the parade with a gain of about 3½ points—their best rise in two months.

On the average, the indexes gained almost two points.

Students of the New York market said that in the last 35 years the market usually showed an upward trend from early summer to mid-August. Canadian markets normally follow the New York lead.

Long Expected

Traders interested in western oils said the gain in oils has long been expected. They pointed out that the oils failed to follow the lead of industrials in recovering from the March-to-April "peace scare" decline and said the recovery might now be starting.

The constantly-increasing capacity of Canadian pipelines—built, under construction or planned—should permit higher production from Western Canada oil wells, they said. Greater production should result in increased earnings for a number of companies.

Other observers suggested that investors generally have become accustomed to the idea of a larger measure of peace in the world and possible lower defence expenditures.

Toronto opened the week after the Victoria Day holiday with small losses while Montreal prices were mixed. Montreal continued mixed Wednesday while Toronto gained slightly. The Toronto rise continued Thursday but turned mixed Friday. Montreal prices were mixed both days.

New York on Rise

The New York market was open and rising Monday, but slipped back Tuesday. A rise started Wednesday and continued until mixed prices took over Friday.

From Friday to Friday the Toronto exchange indexes showed industrials up 1.78 at 309.48, golds up .50 at 79.27, base metals up 1.45 at 158.63 and western oils up 3.80 at 116.69.

In the Montreal averages, banks were down .22 at 92.86, utilities up .7 at 83.7, industrials down .5 at 183.9, combined down .1 at 153.2, papers up 13.48 at 674.57, and golds up .22 at 60.54.

On the New York market, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up $1.30 at $111.60.

Brigade Commander Wants More Emphasis Put on Sport

By BILL ROSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—The 2nd Canadian Highland battalion's trip to Korea next October will be the largest one-battalion move here in almost three years, The Canadian Press learns.

The battalion will relieve the 3rd battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, in November.

Unlike other units of the 2nd Patricias came in 1950, the Highlanders will come out at full strength, plus replacements estimated sufficient to carry them through their year here. More than 1,100 officers and men will come.

Hitherto new units have arrived just strong enough to relieve men actually eligible for rotation. Those ineligible to come stay on in the new units until due for rotation, when they return individually.

Reason for Policy

A prime reason for the new policy is that the army's hybrid units formed when the 27th brigade was trained, will be moving into the rotation cycle, confronting it with a psychological problem.

Some of the battalions have a company from each of five parent units, plus a composite headquarters company representing all five. There tend to be conflicting loyalties—as between company and battalion—but soldiers already in them have perhaps accustomed themselves to the conflict.

However, it would be difficult next November to take a man who had fought as a 3rd Patricia and overnight make him a 4th Highlander, for instance, with the possibility that a month later he would get another type of job with another company and become a Seaforth Highlander.

Rather than have that develop, the change-over will be complete.

All Patricias with the 3rd battalion when it arrives will be rotated, regardless of their time in the theatre.

Some "Wastage"

To reduce the apparent inequality of the deal, the Patricias will be allowed to "waste" a bit during the latter part of their stay, leaving during that period will not be replaced unless their absence affects the unit's fighting efficiency materially.

Next year it may be that soldiers will be required to stay as long as 15 months. It is learned. The army is said to be working out a new system of rotation staggering battalion change-overs so that one takes place every three or four months.

One individual happy about the latest peace gestures made by Russia to the western world is George Bundock. For five years he was a virtual prisoner inside the British embassy in Moscow. Charged with an offence by a Russian court and sentenced to 18 months in prison, he invoked embassy immunity and stayed inside the building, unable to go outside for fear of arrest. Russia recently gave him permission to return to England. — Central Press Canadian.

Canucks Want Stove to Heat Front-Line Bunkers in Winter

By BILL ROSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer
IN KOREA (CP)—Wanted: A stove.

But it's got to be one with a difference.

Brig. J. V. Allard, new commander of the 25th Canadian infantry brigade, has sent Ottawa specifications for a stove he hopes will be designed, produced and delivered in Korea before next winter.

Its job will be to heat Canadian soldiers' front-line bunkers safely when the cold comes.

During the last three winters bunker heating has been a matter of improvisation. Stoves suitable for tents and other rear-area installations are easily obtained. But neither United States nor British lines of supply carry anything suitable for the men actually fighting the war.

Makeshift Stoves

The men have had to improvise, using lengths of rubber tubing to feed gasoline through home-made taps into stoves made from discarded cartridge cases, make-shift chimneys from other ammunition or cartridge cases have made do when regular stove pipes were not available.

The resulting smoky gave away the complete outline of the occupied front and helped the enemy in his artillery and mortar programs. The stoves also constituted a fire hazard.

Last winter Lt.-Col. Louis Trudeau, officer commanding the now-returned 1st battalion of the Royal 22nd regiment, experimented with the British-produced Valor stove, which uses kerosene.

He concluded that with modifications it would do. His findings were forwarded to Ottawa by Brig. M.P. Bogert, former brigade commander, who recommended they be made the basis for study.

Ottawa is said here to have considered the problem one for the theatre's rear lines of supply—United States or British.

Allard, formerly vice - quartermaster general of the Army, has sent it back to Ottawa.

New Specification

He has asked for a stove weighing no more than 25 pounds, two feet high, capable of not only heating a bunker of 1,000 cubic feet but of cooking its occupants' rations. When fuelled it must be able to burn 48 hours without recharging, be smokeless, odorless and require no chimney.

It fuel must not be gasoline, and preferably not kerosene. Gasoline is more than 3/4 a gallon here and the improvised stoves used a gerry-can (about 6½ gallons) a day, which had to be toted up into the hills. Getting away from gasoline would be a great convenience and trouble, and considerably reduce the hazard in the bunkers, where injury and loss of kit through explosion and fire are frequent.

Allard considers that some form of compressed gas might be experimented with as a fuel. Propane gas, if a suitable container were developed, would be a light, odorless, and possibly long-burning possibility.

Other officers feel Canada might produce a tablet or brick fuel along the lines of the canned heat familiar to Canadian campers. During their first winter here the 2nd battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, used it to heat their rations.

CJBQ Features Special Programs On Coronation

Radio station CJBQ has made extensive plans to bring to Bay of Quinte listeners the full story of Coronation day. Preliminary broadcasts will tell of the significance of the Coronation the personalities involved and their various functions, stories about previous Coronations and other interesting features.

This Sunday at 8.30 p.m. "Coronation Cavalcade" will be heard, a special program from the British Broadcasting Corporation narrated by W. Vaughn Thomas. "Coronation Cavalcade" tells of the Coronation service in the Abbey and paints pictures of the Coronation pageantry by recreating scenes from past Coronations from the archives of the BBC.

On Monday, May 25, the first in a series of ten minute talks will be given by Frank Murray entitled "Coronation Commentary". These talks will cover the following subjects: "Westminster Abbey"; "The Significance of the Coronation"; "Dedication"; "The Crowning"; and "Ministers of Religion and Ministers of State." These broadcasts will be heard nightly at 10.00 p.m.

On Sunday, May 31, a Coronation church service will be held at the RCAF Station, Trenton. CJBQ will record this service for broadcast at 2.00 p.m. The service will be conducted by Squadron Leader the Rev. R. W. Dean, Station Chaplain; the choir will be under the direction of Flight Lieutenant Dr. John Beecroft with Flight-Sergeant Vern Boys, at the chapel organ. At this service dedication of the new colors will be made.

The choir of St. Margaret's Westminster will be presented in another Sunday afternoon feature to be aired at 5.30 p.m. Sunday. This hour-long broadcast is a preview of the Coronation and what it means and will enable listeners to follow the actual broadcast of the ceremonies on Tuesday with greater ease.

Historical Epic

The second Elizabeth, a brilliant historical epic of the times, in words and music, narrated by David Niven, will be broadcast at 10.00 p.m. Sunday night. The Second Elizabeth is the story of our life and times. The voices of President Truman, Sir Winston Churchill and The Queen, will be heard.

On Monday evening, June 1, a feature program will be broadcast at 9.30 p.m. giving the information on the broadcasting and television arrangements that the BBC is making for Coronation day. Over 750 commentators and producers will be used to give the world the most complete coverage in all major languages of any event in history.

At 4.45 a.m. on Tuesday morning, June 2, CJBQ will commence broadcasting. At 5.00 a.m. the station will join the greatest network of radio stations ever arranged in the world. This network program will last for six hours and will provide direct coverage from London of the Coronation and the processions. Scores of top radio commentators will give vivid word pictures of events as they actually occur. This historic broadcast will conclude at 1.45 p.m. CJBQ has made special arrangements to broadcast a shortened version of the Coronation again on Tuesday evening from 8.00 to 10.15 p.m.

At 1.05 p.m. CJBQ will air the Civic Coronation Service but earlier that morning on the Armouries Lawn.

And at 7 p.m. an eye witness account of the civic parade will be broadcast. CJBQ's commentator will be located on the roof of the Bell Telephone building at the corner of Bridge and Church streets in Belleville.

Her Majesty the Queen will be heard at 4.00 p.m. direct from London. This broadcast will follow an hour long program of greetings from the Commonwealth, Canada's Governor General, the Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey will also be heard on Coronation Day. His message to the nation will be relayed from Ottawa at 4.45 p. m.

Other special features arranged include a re-broadcast of the national events in Ottawa to be heard at 8.30 p.m. and a recording of the Coronation Festival arranged by the Anglican Diocese and held in Kingston the previous Sunday. This broadcast will feature massed choirs from the diocese and including the boys' choir from Christ Church in Belleville and choir of St. Thomas' Church.

CJBQ has made special arrangements to carry a series of eye-witness accounts by His Worship Mayor A. Mclean Haig who will be at the Coronation in Westminster. Mayor Haig will broadcast direct from London via telephone relays. His five minute commentaries will be heard next Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Wednesday. The exact time of the Mayor's commentaries will be announced later.

To End Canada-U.S. Stock Swindles

A series of conferences extending over two years is climaxed by the signing of a joint agreement between New York State and Ontario to tighten laws affecting the sale of stocks. Dana Porter, left, attorney general of Ontario and Nathaniel L. Goldstein, attorney general of New York, signed the agreement, calculated to end the peddling of market information in the past ten years is estimated to have cost unwary U.S. investors half a billion dollars.—Central Press Canadian.

Serious Moment in Discussions

President Dwight D. Eisenhower plainly registers his concern as he holds a White House conference with Gen. Matthew Ridgway, retiring commander of NATO forces in Europe, who will take over as army chief of staff within a few weeks.—Central Press Canadian.

New Senator

Mrs. Muriel McQueen Fergusson, 54, of Fredericton was "almost stunned" when told of her appointment to the Senate. She said the appointment was a consequence of her activities for reconstruction in public and professional life. Born at Shediac, N.B., she practised law at Grand Falls, Nfld., from 1935 to 1943. For four years she was enforcement counsel for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. — (CP Photo).

Kisses Bible

She then promises to maintain the Protestant religion in Britain. She kisses the Bible and repeats the oath which is written on vellum.

The Bible is then presented to the Queen by Rt. Rev. George Jeffery, moderator of the general assembly of the Church of Scotland. It is the first time that the Irish Church, which is Presbyterian rod differs in its ritual from the Church of England, has had its place in this ceremony.

The voices of the great choir soar in a psalm: "Behold, O God, our Defender: and look upon the Face of thine Anointed." Then comes the hymn, "Veni, Creator Spiritus" which is the call to the anointing, which consecrates Elizabeth as Queen.

As the mass voices rise in a great "Hallelujah" Elizabeth rises from her knees. The lord chamberlain gently draw from her shoulder the purple robe of state. Under the heavy robe she has worn till now.

The young Queen walks slowly to the 600-year-old coronation chair. Four Knights of the Garter hold over her a canopy of cloth-of gold. They screen her from onlookers while the Archbishop of Canterbury anoints her in the form of a cross with holy oil.

His voice intone as he anoints both the Queen's palms:

"Be thy hands anointed with holy oil."

Then: "Be thy breast anointed with holy oil."

"Be thy head anointed with holy oil as kings, priests, and prophets were anointed."

Now is the moment when the gleaming accoutrements of royalty and religion, the golden swords and the flashing jewels of the regalia which have been borne into the abbey with the Queen, reach their full significance.

Sword of State

The 22-year-old Marquess of Salisbury comes forward with the sword of state. The archbishop of Canterbury presents it to her, saying:

"With this sword do justice, stop the growth of iniquity, protect the holy Church of God."

The Queen rises and walks alone to the altar. There she places the sword as a symbol that she offers it in the service of God.

The glistening orb is brought to the Queen. The archbishop places it in the right hand of the Queen saying:

"Receive this orb set under the cross, and remember that the whole world is subject to the power and empire of Christ our Redeemer."

Then the sceptre with the cross, emblem of regal power and justice, is put into the Queen's right hand.

Then the archbishop takes up St. Edward's crown from the altar, then lays it down again, saying:

"O God the Crown of the Faithful: Bless we beseech Thee this crown, and as sanctify thy servant Elizabeth upon whose head this day Thou dost place it for a sign of royal authority, that she may be filled by thine abundant grace with all princely virtues."

The archbishop takes the crown, breathless silence as he places it on Elizabeth's head.

Then the stillness is shattered by the cry echoing to the high roof of the ancient shrine: God Save the Queen."

Then follows a triumphant fanfare. Hundreds of whitegarbed peers, peeresses in the princes and princesses, peers and peeresses put on their coronets and caps.

Up to this point the Queen has sat in the Coronation chair in the congregation. Now she rises from the Coronation chair and walks to a raised throne in the centre of the theatre. The archbishop of Canterbury leads her lift her into the throne as the archbishop exhorts her:

"Stand firm, and hold fast from henceforth the seat and state of royal and imperial dignity, which is this day delivered unto you. . ."

The archbishop of Canterbury receives the homage of the princes of the blood, the archbishop of Canterbury and the other bishops first kneel round the throne swearing to be faithful and true. Then the Duke of Edinburgh kneels before the woman who is his wife but also his Queen. Placing his hands between those of Elizabeth he declares to "become your liege man of life and limb." Rising from his knees he kisses her cheek then, bending, kisses the Queen's left cheek.

The Duke of Gloucester, the Queen's uncle, and the young Duke of Kent, her cousin, come to the throne, to pledge themselves similarly. Then peers and peeresses to each degree.

The Queen descends from her throne to the steps of the altar where, laying aside her crown, the sceptre and the rod, she kneels for communion.

The communion service marks the end of the Coronation rites. The Queen receives back her crown, leaves her throne and passes through the theatre out of sight to a part of the abbey called the recess.

The grand procession is marshalled again, and the Queen, holding the sceptre in her right hand and the orb in her left, passes from the abbey while the assembly sings the national anthem.

The ceremony is over. It began at 11.15. The time now is 1:45.

Solemn Liturgy Marks Ceremony of Coronation

LONDON (Reuters)—Trumpets in Westminster Abbey and guns fired from the Tower of London will signal the crowning on June 2 of Queen Elizabeth.

When the trumpets sound and the guns fire, those in the abbey and the millions outside listening to the ceremony by radio and seeing it on television will know that the crown of St. Edward has been placed on the Queen's head.

Early on June 2, people will begin to line the route from Buckingham Palace to the abbey to see the Queen ride by in a state coach. At 8:40 a.m. the first cars, carrying some members of the Royal Family, will leave the palace for the abbey.

At 10:20 Queen Elizabeth's own procession will start.

As Big Ben strikes 11 o'clock, the golden coach will halt outside Westminster Abbey.

Queen Elizabeth will step on to a blue carpet, passing from the nave of the abbey to the entrance of specially-built annex..

Goes to Robing Room

From there she will go to a robing room in the vestibule, at 11:15, she will join the procession which has been forming. Six maids of honor arrange themselves, three on each side, to carry the long train of the Queen's robe.

Through the body of the church walks the Queen, and through the choir, were she is acclaimed by the Queen's preacher at Westminster school chanting "Vivat Regina Elizabeth. Vivat! Vivat! Vivat!"

Standing beside the coronation chair she waits while the archbishop of Canterbury, Most Rev. Geoffrey Fisher, faces the rows of peers and asks:

"Sirs, I here present unto you Queen Elizabeth, your undoubted Queen: wherefore all you who are come this day to do your homage and service, are you willing to do the same?"

The Queen, meanwhile, turns to show herself to those on the four sides of the abbey.

The reply comes back from the assembled rows: "God Save Queen Elizabeth."

This part of the ceremony, known as the recognition, is the opportunity for people or groups not agreeing with the choice of a monarch to show their dissent.

The Queen goes to the altar rail, takes the Declaration of Canterbury, standing before her, asks: "Madam, is Your Majesty willing to take the oath?"

"I am willing," answrs the Queen.

Kisses Bible

She then promises to maintain the Protestant religion in Britain. She kisses the Bible and repeats the oath which is written on vellum.

CENTRAL RELIEF

The Riot Act, read Thursday night, remained in effect Friday night. Soldiers and airmen stood guard in the stricken downtown district, which bore the brunt of the twister's fury.

Police indicated there was no unusual lawbreaking, but the guards kept watch for looters.

The scene of destruction is only two miles from Sarnia's famous chemical valley. Plants in the heavily-industrialized area were unscathed.

Could Have Been Worse

More than 1,000 persons work on the afternoon shift in chemical valley among highly volatile gases, tanks of gasoline and burning gas. Residents said that, if the tornado had ripped into the industrial section, casualties probably would have been heavy.

Insurance adjusters said it may take weeks to determine the extent of the damage. One of them, K. A. Newman of Toronto, compared the destruction in Sarnia with the damage caused by the Winnipeg flood of 1950.

"In some ways I think this will be worse than Winnipeg," he said. "There, the water came up slowly and the damage was largely due to the soaking. Here, whole tops of buildings have been blown away."

The entire business district of 12 blocks was damaged.

Ontario hydro commission crews quickly restored lines in the Sarnia area and elsewhere along the tornado's path of destruction. Three 110,000-volt steel towers were down between London and St. Marys and one between Stratford and St. Marys. Near London eight sheets of galvanized iron roofing were blown into a section of two high-tension lines linking hydro transformer stations at Barrie and London.

Other municipalities in southwestern Ontario prepared to help Sarnia. Middlesex county and London city councils will discuss special relief measures, as will Hamilton city council at its next meeting.

Lt-Gov. Col. Gordon C. Conant, Williams and Michigan premiers ready to help with every source at its disposal.

Private firms and individuals in Ontario launched special funds. The Ontario Mayors and Reeves association, in convention in Scarboro township near Toronto, also promised assistance.

MAESTRO MARATHONER

HAMBURG, Germany (AP) — Heinz Arntz, 32-year-old musician, Wednesday claimed a world record for 1957 hours in marathon piano playing. He left his swivel chair in a restaurant after more than 10 days with only a daily one-hour pause. At Le Havre four weeks ago Arntz lost his title to Henri Sergil of France who stayed at the keyboard 266 hours.

One of Seven Desperadoes Back Behind Bars

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP)—One of seven desperadoes who fled Michigan's maximum-security prison here was back behind bars today, less than 24 hours after he broke out.

Lloyd Burghurf, 61-year-old lifetermer, was captured by a civilian who thrust his hands in his pockets as if he had a gun. It didn't.

Jack Messenger, 48, a school bus driver, spotted Burghurf near Marquette's city dump Friday morning.

Messenger stopped his car. His dog jumped out barking. Messenger thrust his hands in his pockets as if reaching for a gun. Burghurf came forward, hands raised.

Authorities didn't anticipate the other six would cow as quickly or easily. Killers and robbers serve lengthy prison terms here, and Warden Emeryy Jacques warned "all are dangerous and armed."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

GOTTA MAN!

The great one sat in a corner of the dressing room, clad in a checked sport shirt and brown slacks. His hair was bound down with a headband slick to his head, and he gave one the impression of an Roman emperor. In his background hovered a tall, tanned-looking young man clad in morning habiliments. All he needed was a silk hat and he would have looked like an Easter bloke ready for the FIFTH Ave. parade.

So this was Gerrgeous George, the "Human Orchid," and the "Toast of the Coast."

He has a friendly smile and speaks in a well-modulated voice. He smiled a welcome and stretched out a hand as newspaper men entered his boudoir—garden—dressing room. Gad, man, this fellow was a good Joe and apart from all his ring elegance he can wrestle, too.

"What's all this about you having so many scraps?" somebody asked.

Gorgeous smiled. And it is a warm, friendly smile he gives you.

"I have 127 to be exact," he said, "and I don't wear the same one twice to succession, only on rare occasions."

"Jeffries," he said to the young man. "Show the gentlemen my new gown.

That is the one he wore in the ring last night against Whipper Billy Watson.

Close up the robe is a magnificent affair. George got the idea during a tour of South Africa. It is a richly embroidered garment with a complete circle at the bottom. Its handsome embroidery and stitching are figures of Mau-Mau chiefs, witch doctors, medicine men, tufts of hair from wild animals, trinkets, beads, etc. A golden cascade of ribbon falls from either shoulder. The robe is lined with beautiful white silk.

It took seamstresses at three dollars an hour, and one hundred hours to make the robe.

"How much was the total cost?"

Gorgeous wrinkled his brow. "I haven't heard from my business administrator lately, so I cannot tell you," he smiled.

He has had or is having his 128th robe made. This one will be the "Coronation Robe" and will be made of red velvet, gold and a dash of ermine here and there. He intends to wear it during Coronation Week, no matter where he appears.

He lives in California, and has a turkey ranch in Beaumont, in the sunny state. Here he raises 18,000 gobblers a year, and supplies the city markets the year round. He expects to increase production this year.

His latest venture into business is the raising of parakeets, a small member of the parrot family. At his home he has 7,000 of the birds being taken care of by a lady.

"I expect to open a shop in Hollywood some of these days," he said. "There is a fine market for parakeets there. It will be a grand opening, too. I expect to have a couple of movie stars there, a band or two and plenty of celebrities. Of course I shall put in an appearance.

Asked how he came to adopt his ring grandeur and appearance, George's face took on a serious look.

"I am perhaps the only man who has the guts to carry on the tradition of man. In the old days they wore their hair long, used perfume, powder and lace."

George boasts of the fact that he introduced the use of long robes to the wrestling profession. He started the idea and it caught on.

Speaking again of his robes, George said when the time comes to retire he will auction off the robes at his various appearances and turn over the proceeds to a local charity.

He drives an orchid-colored Cadillac sedan.

"Just a small job I use for travelling around the country. We carry a lot of baggage and this car suits my needs," he said.

George is usually ushered into the ring to the tune of the march "Pomp and Circumstance." It was played last night but was almost drowned out by the roar of the crowd.

The Gorgeous One may have his ideas of color, drama, and stage effect which may not appeal to some. But for $100,000 a year (that is what is reported he earned last year, although he did not say it last night) who wouldn't put on the dog.

CORRECTION

In the note yesterday regarding the Shannonville Speedway races we inadvertently stated they were being held this afternoon. This is not the case. The meet is being held under the lights tonight starting at 8.30. So sorly.

SOFTBALL

The CNR Diesels will be questing for their second straight victory in the District Softball League tonight when they clash with the Bobcats at the Alemite Field. The Diesels took a close one from the Wooler crew in their seasonal debut while the Cats lost their first start to Northern Electric. Game at 8.30.

That "deep-dyed" villain, Howard Castenwire, who brawled with Leo Jonathan in the wrestling profits last night, is a son of the famous "Tarzan" of the same name.

"The old man," he grinned at newsmen in the dressing room, "wrestled here years ago, I believe. In fact we come from a wrestling family. My father and grandfather are wrestling in a team-match somewhere in Texas tonight."

There wasn't a sign of a smile on Canty's face.

Porterfield, Yankee Castoff Handcuffs Former Mates 12-4; Giants Register Sixth in Row

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

After five lean years Bob Porterfield of Washington Senators is suddenly discovering why they call it the "mercy" month of May.

For four seasons he was plagued by all kinds of injuries, from a broken finger to burns from an exploding match book.

This season started just like the others—bad. Suddenly, the week that May began, he won a game. His pitched four times since then and he's won four more games. Friday's victory was a pip. Particularly sweet one for Porterfield since it came against the Yankees who had given up on him in 1948 to such an extent that in mid-July traded the pitcher with his ills and tossed in $50,000 cash to get Bob Kuzava.

Until they ran into Porterfield the Yanks had won four in a row. The loss cost them a full game of their American League lead, which now stands at 3½ games since Boston Red Sox won a doubleheader from Philadelphia and took over second place.

Wed. 11 Innings

The Red Sox won the first game 3-2 with a pair of runs in the eighth and ninth in the second game by the same score although they had to go 13 innings to get it. Art Houtteman allowed only two hits as Detroit Tigers handed Chicago White Sox their fourth defeat 5-0. St. Louis at Cleveland was rained out.

In the National League rain cut the schedule in half. New York won its sixth in a row and its second straight over Brooklyn 5-1. St. Louis Cardinals opened within half a game of the league-leading Phillies by trimming Cincinnati 4-0. Philadelphia was rained out at Pittsburgh. So was second-place Milwaukee at Chicago.

The Senator-Yankee game produced the season's first triple play. With one out on first and second in the ninth Irv Noren of the Yanks drove a liner straight at Porterfield. He caught it, fired to first for the second out and the relay to second caught Andy Carey for the third out.

Mel Parnell scored his sixth consecutive triumph in the first game of the Boston doubleheader. He hasn't been beaten. In the nightcap the Sox tied it up in the ninth and won in the 13th when Sammy White doubled home the deciding run with one out.

Hearn Wins for Giants

Houtteman's victory over the White Sox was his second consplete game and second success after three early losses. Tom Wright and Nellie Fox got to him for hits. Walt Dropo led the eight-hit Detroit attack with a three-run home run in the second inning off Saul Rogovin, who lost his fifth game.

The Giants continued to roll at Brooklyn's expense with Jim Hearn pitching a complete game the first time since Sept. 17 last year. Hearn drove in two of the New York runs with a double in the fourth and never was in serious trouble. Jackie Jensen, who performed at first base and in left field Thursday night, played third for the Dodgers Friday.

The Cardinals continued their sensational hitting, getting 11 safeties against the Redlegs for a total of 46 in their last three games. Friday night's blows included a home run and a single by Stan Musial which drove in two runs and four other extra base hits.

Jim Greengrass of Cincinnati got a single, double and triple to boost his season's average to .365, best in the National League.

New Records Set At Catholic Track, Field Meet

TORONTO (CP)—Two Canadians interscholastic records were broken Friday at the Ontario Catholic Athletic Conference third annual track and field meet.

Jerry Fortman of Toronto St. Michael's, who won the two senior sprints in record time and captured the broad jump event, flashed over the 220 yards of cinders in 22.5 seconds, compared with the previous Canadian scholastic mark of 22.6, held jointly by Jack Hladun of Windsor Assumption and Joe Duffy of Hamilton Cathedral High.

Gerry Retty, after adding six feet eight inches to the meet's senior shot put record with a 46 foot-nine-inch heave, hurled the discus 126 feet 4½ inches, shattering the meet's mark and putting two feet five inches on top of the Canadian record set by Cecille Wally Brown in 1936.

Toronto St. Mikes won 34 of the 22 events to run up a total of 115¾ points. Kitchener St. Jerome's finished second with 38. St. Peter's of Peterborough was third with 30½ points.

MELBOURNE (AP)—Leslie Coleman, member of the Melbourne Cricket Club sport administration in the Victoria state government, will succeed Arthur Coles as chairman of the Olympic Games control committee.

Coles resigned last week because of a disagreement over the location of the swimming pool for the 1956 games.

Deputy premier W. Galvin, who attended today's meeting of the organizing committee, said afterwards:

"Brother, everything went lovely. We made a lot of decisions and there were no squabbles."

Preakness Can Make Champ or Chump Out of Favored Native Dancer Today

BALTIMORE (AP)—It's only a matter of hours now until it is settled in the $100,000 added Preakness whether Native Dancer could go on to join the exclusive club of great race horses or the crowd of merely gifted thoroughbreds.

If one of the six other three-year-old colts hangs a second defeat on Alfred G. Vanderbilt's gray charger this afternoon it will just about stop all the talk of immortality.

But an impressive triumph, on the other hand, will make his only defeat in the Kentucky Derby three weeks ago excusable as bad racing luck.

By the same token, Dark Star could zoom into the forefront at least in the three-year-old championship race by duplicating his Derby triumph. The Harry Guggenheim colt then would have two legs on the cherished triple crown with the Belmont Stakes June 18 remaining.

A Preakness victory by any one of the five other entries, Mrs. Gordon Gulbernon's Correspondent, Jim Norris' Jamie K., Bruce Campbell's Rem O'Wer, Eugene Constantin Jr.'s Royal Bay Gem and Ben Whitaker's Tahitian King will really mess up the year's picture.

All of them except Tahitian King and Jamie K. already were beaten by Dark Star in the Derby although Royal Bay Gem came back Monday to turn the tables in the Preakness Prep.

Tahitian King and Jamie K. were among those beaten in some of the 12 other races won by Native Dan-Derby setback. The handicappers cor. In fact, Tahitian King chased figure he will be made less than the gray four times across the finish line.

All of the Preakness entries will carry 126 pounds with $65,200 awalting the winner.

The anticipated crowd of 35,000 at Pimlico is expected to go along with the belief that Native Dancer will more than get even for his about 5:45 p.m. EDT.

Wild Melee Ensues as Referee Calls Main Bout 'No Contest'

By GEORGE CARVER
Sports Editor

The glittering magnificence of Gorgeous Georgy, glamor boy of wrestledom, was almost tossed in to the discard here last night when the main bout between the Human Orchid (The Toast of the Coast) and Whipper Billy Watson ended in the wild melee that smelees ever seen in Memorial Arena.

A record crowd of 2,431 fans stared in utter amusement, some booed and some cheered, as the strutting bleach-haired peacock of pachyderm-like stature finally into the ring clad in a brilliant gown of flaming orange, green, violet, fuchsia, presumably had thoroughly disinfected the ring and ropes with a perfumed insecticide which he sprayed on the mat while the "master" was to stand. Clad in immaculate mourning apparel, Jeffries adjusted a curl here and there in the Gorgeous one's career, carefully marcelled blood tresses. He unbuttoned the elaborate gown and started it carefully in attic. The Orchid stared, almost scorned at the handsome Whipper when instructions were being issued by Referee Sam Godder. Previously he loaned gold "George" pins to the audience.

Alphonse-Godder

But all this magnificence and grandeur was forgotten forty minutes later when Referee Godder announced "No Contest". Georgy and the Whip had been playfully engaging in a leg-pulling contest after a brief close-up contact in the position outside the ring and almost in the laps of the front row ringside newsfans. First one would clamber back only to be pulled out again. Then the other. Manifire Godder was counting on his fingers and when he came to the last he waved the signal "No Soap."

That was when the bugles sounded the "charge". The Whip, incensed at the verdict, lowered his head and ripped into Gorgeous. Down the aisle galloped or sembled the 300-pound Man Mountain Dean.

He smote the Whip a terrific clout abaft the ears sending the Pride of East York crashing to the canvas. Reinforcements arrived

Watson in the form of Don Jonathan. He grabbed the Man Mountain and held him while Whip bounced a terrific right off the big fella's starboard whiskers. Gorgeous got back into the fray and the back-to-back fightfest started. Whipp tossed Referee Godder out of the circle and Jeffries did a right smart-parabola as a Jonathan right caught him on the law and a Whipper foot connected just south of the coat-tails.

Then there was peace. Gorgeous extended the hand of friendship to the Whipper. He took it. Suddenly the Whip was in action and the battle joined in its second phase. Spectators crowded around the ringside. In the "stands" the mainline blood on its feet roaring and cheering. A spectator climbed on the apron and dealt Man Mountain a poke in the bearded kisser.

Then it was all over. But as the crowd surged about the path to the dressing room, another spectator threw a slug at Man Mountain. He got that one back and the law intervened.

Gorgeous George won the first fall in thirteen minutes. The golden glow certainly known the ropes for he tangled the Whip in them several times before he thumped out the nod.

Enter Jeffries with a silver tray of refreshments for the "Marster." This was too much for the Whip. He snorted his disgust and chased the lunch-bearing gentleman's gentleman. Now Jeffries is a man of discretion. When he saw the savage Whipper roaring at him, he did the track around the ring three times in three seconds. That's par for the course. Then he scrambled through the ropes and with coat-tails flying, dashed for the safety of the dressing room.

But the Whipper took the second fall in nine minutes. He picked Jeffries, twisted and pretzelled the Gorgeous one's right arm out of its socket before planing him with the famous Irish Whip.

The Jeffries again. This time with smelling salts which he waved gently under the Roman proboscis of the Master . Again the Whip charged and this time he nailed poor Jeffries. He spun him end over and out of the ring, with the nails in the tail, and this time Jeff broke all track records in the dressing room. It was a "flang-out."

Popular Timmy Geohagen was given a great ovation and came up with a standout performance against the bewhiskered Dean. Tex Dean, Jr who tips the scales at 260 pounds, built back in their thirty minute limit but Referee Godder gave the decision to Geohagen.

Don Leo Jonathan, a handsome youngster and a newcomer here, caught the fancy of the crowd with his aggressive style and won a popular decision over Howard Cantorwine after 18 minutes of fast action.

Jimmy McHale Favorite In British Amateur

HOYLAKE, England (UP) — Jimmy McHale of Philadelphia shot a two-under-par 70 in a practice round today to establish himself as favorite in the British Amateur golf championships which start Monday.

McHale had his hard-hitting from the first tee was just the recipe for this 7,000 yards course, and his round with English amateur champion Gerald Micklem and Walker Cup player John Langley saw him out in 32 and home in 38. However, McHale took a six at the 399-yard ninth.

Harvie Ward, the defending champion from Atlanta, was out during the afternoon in four-ball competition. He was inclined to smother his early tee shots a trifle. His wife, Suzanne, was a spectator.

Frank Strafaci, from Garden City, N. Y., who is making his first appearance at Hoylake, had a practice round of 72 after being 34 at the turn. He said the Hoylake is "one of the finest courses I have ever played on."

"It's in wonderful condition and favors big hitters," Strafaci said, "but I find that if I like a course, then that's half the battle."

Alex Kyle of Scotland, 1939 winner of the title, returned one of the best practice cards with a round of 69.

Glen Roy Jrs. Whip Frankford By 12-7 Score

Backing Doug Radner's fine pitching with a good all round showing, the Glen Roy juniors defeated Frankford 12-7 in their second outing of the Belleville and District Baseball League. The game was played under the lights in Frankford.

The game developed into a pitcher's duel between Doug Radner and Don Boyle right from the very start, with both pitchers having no-hitters going into the fourth. In the top of this inning Claud Carr beat out a drag bunt but died on second.

In the bottom of the fourth "Wedge" Adams hit a wrong field double and scored on a wild throw by "Junior" Day at third. This put Frankford ahead 1-0.

In the top of the fifth, Pete Green led off with a solid single to left field. Day then lined out to the pitcher and Jesse followed with a pop-up to the second baseman. Keilett and Radner then drew walks to fill the bases. Carr then scored on a wild pitch. This set the stage for Don Barclay's Texas leaguer, which was good for two runs. Carr then stroked out to end the inning.

In Frankford's half of the fifth Dafoe led off with a Texas league double and Gilmour followed with a bunt single. Boyle then drew a base on balls to fill the bases. All hands were safe when Goyer bobbled a ground ball. Radner claimed Calkin on strikes. Rankin then lined one by the pitcher but with Batchelor converted what looked like a sure base hit into a force out. This left the game tied at two all at the end of the fifth.

In the sixth John Batchelor put the Glens ahead on a line drive triple and took home on a wild throw by the right fielder. Batchelor scored on a fly ball to their half of the sixth on a single by Cosgrove, a walk, passed ball and wild pitch.

In the top of the eighth Pete Green got the unusual blaze over the left fielder's head for a home run. Glens pushed seven more runs across in their half of the ninth through singles by Carr, Batchelor and Boyle, three walks and two errors. The visitors fought back in their thirty minute limit but Referee Godder gave the decision to a base-loaded double by Calkin.

The winning pitcher, Radner, claimed 10 on strikes, walked 8 and gave up 9 hits. The losing pitcher, Boyle, claimed nine on strikes and gave up eight hits and eight walks.

Pete Green was the top batter for the Glens with a home run and single. John Batchelor contributed a triple and single while Goyer, Barclay, Carr and Day hit singles.

The five Frankford hitters were Adams, Calkin and Dafoe, with doubles, while Cosgrove and Gilmour hit singles.

'Lil Mo' Breezes Through French Tennis Debut

PARIS (UP) — Maureen Connolly, the U. S. wonder girl of tennis, breezed through her debut in France today with a 45-minute 6-1, 6-3 victory over Christiane Mercelis, Belgium's No. 1 player, in the second round of the French hard court championships.

Some 4,000 fans crowded the stadium court for Match No. 2 to watch the sturdy San Diego, Cal., U. S. and Wimbledon champion live up to her advance billing. She brought back memories of Helen Wills and Suzanne Lenglen with her classic style of play.

Bernard Bartzen of San Angelo, Tex., beat Staffan Stockenberg of Sweden, 6-2, 3-6, 6-2, 6-0, in a two-hour men's third-round match.

Spring Fishing in Florida Keys

For the past five years, what remains of the Knight family here at headquarters—to wit, Mrs. Knight and yours truly—has been taking its vacation in the Florida Keys. Spring, Summer and Fall Ernie all we could desire in climate here in the Pennsylvania hills but Winter is dreary beyond words.

Blasting days are at an end during the Winter and the only fishing to be had is the through-the-ice variety, so we pack our gear in February and head for the sunny south.

Trout season opens here on April 15th and I like to be on hand for that event, so we usually figure on being back home around April 1st. That gives me a chance to dig my way through accumulated work and get my desk reasonably clear prior to April 15th.

You would think that four or five weeks of fishing in the Keys would give me enough of that particular brand of fishing to keep me happy for a year, but such is not the case, Never do I leave the Keys in late March without a definite sense of regret.

March, as you know is a windy month. A breeze does not harm fishing to any extent but strong winds and gale-blowing are rarely found together. Thus, all too many days in March are spent sitting around camp, hoping vainly that the wind will cut itself down to lower velocities.

Good Fishing The Rule

With April just around the corner, the winds do abate in the Keys and good fishing days seem to be the rule rather than the exception. Sparkling, clear waters over the sand flats, with little or no wind to complicate casting, combine to make April before the north an unpleasant tact.

Along with pleasant weather, the fishing itself improves in the Keys with the coming of Spring. While there is always a static supply of resident fish, each April day sees new migrants showing up in the flats, passes, lagoons, and on the bonefish flats.

Take tarpon, for example. Where these fish spend the winters I'm sure I do not know. What I do know with regrettable certainty is where they do not spend them. Evidently the comparatively low temperatures of the shallow waters of the Keys are not fancied by the tarpon during the winter months.

Of course, there are always a few resident tarpon here and there, but these are mere samples of the real stock in trade. With the coming of April new schools of tarpon arrive daily.

The fresh-run fish are easy to distinguish from their resident relatives. These latter are quite dark on their backs, giving the impression of being almost black, while the fresh-run fish have a definite greenish hue.

Moreover, the newcomers take more readily than do the resident fish. The "black tarpon" have the annoying habit of following a fly or a lure almost up to the boat, refusing to take at the last minute. The newcomers take readily. Once one of our baits has been fastened themselves than the resident fish. What is doubtful that the bonefish could be classed as a migratory fish. The fact remains, however, that pleasant April weather certainly shows a marked increase in the numbers and supply on the sand flats of the Keys.

Warry and Hard to Catch

Like the tarpon, the resident bonefish are very difficult to catch but the newcomers are active feeders and they take a fly without much hesitation.

The fishing guides must of necessity know where their fish are if they expect to give their customers their money's worth. Last March I spent some time with Capt. Bill Smith of Islamorada, Plantation Key.

After spending some dissatisfactory hours fishing for resident fish, I tried to persuade Bill to take me out to the outer flats, beyond the Keys in the open Gulf. He refused, stating that he had not seen a bonefish on those flats all winter.

The last day, however, he did consent to try the outside flats and, to our pleasurable surprise, we found some new arrivals there which gave us a day's fishing that I will always remember.

But the bonefish and the tarpon do not make up the entire picture by any means. All of the game fish in those waters are warm-water species. Thus, with the arrival of warm, settled weather, the waters around the Keys acquire new populations of all varieties.

Sea trout move in over the grass beds of Dickerson Bay and Florida Pan Basin; large snook are more evident in the channels and passes; redfish are cruising the sand flats and bathing in the potholes. And the schools of big jack crevalle are roasting about in the shallows, making life miserable for the mullet which for a few months at least, had been having a fairly easy time of it.

Last but by no means least, "the season" is on for the "off-season" rates" come into effect. This means that prices for fishing are a decided drop as does, to a certain extent, the price of food. The winter rates of sun bathers have gone and those who linger usually do likewise.

If your budget happens to be limited—and who's budget isn't these days?—a dollar will stretch much farther during April, May and June than it will during the winter months. That, combined with increasingly better fishing, makes for an ideal vacation.

Timbermen Lose First Home Game In Three Years

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough Timbermen, last year's Mann Cup winners, have let their home rooters down for the first time in three years. They lost their first Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association home game in that period Friday night when set back 16-11 by Toronto West Toms.

In Friday night's other game, Fergus Thistles beat St. Catharines Athletics 15-10 in a hard-fought contest at Fergus.

The Peterborough - West Yorks clash was a tough battle. George Master of West Yorks suffered a broken nose in the second period when checked by Nip O'Hern. The visitors drew eight penalties to seven for Peterborough.

Jim McNulty and George Masters led for the victors with four goals each. Tony D'Amico and Joe McNulty got two each and Kenny Croft and Leo Teatro one each.

Bob Thorpe counted three for the losers. Ron Hildebrand and Reg Smith got a brace apiece and singles went to Lou Nickle, Don Ashbee, Buzz Carter and Cliff Mason.

In the first period of the Fergus-St. Catharines game Harry Kazarian of Fergus and Jim McMahon of the enemy served five minutes for fighting. Less than 10 minutes later Don Gear of Fergus and Max Wolley of St. Catharines were banned for 10 minutes for scrapping.

Fergus led 2-1 at the end of the first period and 7-3 after the second. Fergus added the third with a 12-10 margin.

Leading marksmen for Fergus were Ron Landoni with four goals and Don Campbell, Marlowe Woods and Elmer Harris with two each. Max Wolley was the St. Catharines ace with two goals.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A knock on the head will be fat. I mean the next player who says honor tricks to me. Particularly the one who says there are only eight and a half honor tricks in a pack.

In Horse Sense we count one trick for each high card (ace or king or queen) and one for each short card (each card short of three). This tells us how many tricks our hands can take.

But I got into a den of honor trick players. And it is as much as your life is worth to indicate their method is wrong. Not only is it futile. They actually resent learning anything better.

While with them I got this hand:

♠A K 9 7 5
♥A 3
♦K J
♣A K

You might wail years and years to get a hand like that. It may not be the best. But it sure is strong looking. As this is being written, I am still hot under the collar about it.

According to the cumbersome systems, my hand contains eight plus honor tricks. Slam should be easy, they claim. Always have I denied it. There can be ten honor tricks, I don't know it.

But what did I do? Just when I should have stuck to what I teach and believe, my mind shifted to the honor tricks are enough. I figured. So, I bid six no-trump with this cold hopper.

My partner had four clubs to the queen and nothing but rags in the other three suits. One opponent had four spades and some diamonds with the queen or I might have taken only eight tricks.

No chance was there to get into the hand of my partner. But one of the small spades developed and my diamond Jack made. Even so, we still went down two. Sure, we got 150 for honors, but we went down.

I know the cumbersome honor trick count is not accurate. But as millions of players keep repeating its virtues, it makes an impression. Just goes to show you what propaganda will do.

$2 BIG JEWELRY THEFT

NEW YORK (AP)—Jeweller John Rubel was lured to a hotel suite to show his wares Wednesday and was robbed of $26,500 in gems, police said. The size of the haul ranked it among the major jewelry thefts that have plagued midtown Manhattan for the last 17 months. The victim said he received a telephone call summoning him to a suite at the Hotel Gotham to display his merchandise for sale. A gunman showed up when he got there.

Coronation Chair

This is the historic Coronation chair in which Queen Elizabeth will be crowned June 2 in Westminster Abbey. It will be moved from its usual position in the Abbey (shown here) to a position in front of the high altar for the ceremonies. Beneath the seat is the Stone of Scone, taken from Scotland in 1297 to be added to the Abbey's royal trappings in volved in the crowning ritual. The Stone was stolen Christmas Day, 1950, but was recovered. — (CP Photo.)

Garden Notes

Tuberous Begonias Demand Shade

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

"Just nothing seems to grow in the shade of that porte-cochere." That was the annual complaint of my friend Vera, until one year she put in tuberous rooted begonias. That year the old trouble spot place was turned into a show place of beauty. Some begonias looked like camellias, others like carnations (fimbriata). There were the rosebud types, plenoflora, marmorata (speckled) and the pendulas. And the color range ran from deep crimson through scarlet, orange lemon and sulphur yellows, coralsalmon, cream and white.

Another friend has built up a collar of stone around a weeping willow tree, and filled it with earth. There in the shade she grows the most handsome oversize begonias I have ever seen. Although the summer they supply flowers for table arrangements and are a constant source of pleasure in the garden until frost. Prices of tubers vary greatly. You can buy the Belgium types from 25 cents each. (These include the frilled, fringed, double and single types) Both specialists stock English and American strains which run from one dollar a bulb to 15, or 20 each. These are from Blackmore and Langdon, Bath who have long been famous for their delphinium plants, and the Pacific Giants from the California grow ers.

If you bought your bulbs, pardon me, bikers early, or saved them from last year you will have them started by now. If not, you are still get a good show by starting them in a warm place, without covering and when the little pink sprouts show, lay them on a flat half full of well-moistened peat moss, and lock more of the same in between and all around them but do not cover them. Set the flat in a sunny window, or hot bed and keep them warm. The end of May, or the first week of June set the begonias out in the bed. Have not more than half an inch covering and plant a foot apart. You can buy plants when your florist has already started for you. Some gardeners buy their tubers and have them started by their local greenhouse.

If you have a few special favorites you can increase the plants by cutting the tubers in two. But make sure there is a healthy sprout at each end. Dip the cut surfaces in sulphur to discourage disease spores. Later as the plants develop you can take cuttings. Dip the cuttings in rootone and set in vermiculite, or damp peat moss. Most begonias root readily. They can be rooted in water. The best should be prepared by mixing half peat moss with the soil. Add a good handful of bonemeal for each plant as you set it out. They are heavy feeders, and demand plenty of moisture. Every two weeks give them liquid manure until the end of the blooming season, which is the first frost.

Like the birds, male begonias are by far the showiest. There are usually three blossoms to a stem. The center bloom is the male. The two female, at the sides are much smaller, but absorb more nutrition. So, if you want bigger blooms, nip off the side buds and give the male a chance to carry the whole show. It will be the better for it.

Epsom Derby Could Have Truly Sentimental Climax

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The odds against it are astronomical, but this year's Epsom Derby could have a truly sentimental climax—a head and head between the Queen's horse and that of Her Majesty's first minister, Sir Winston Churchill.

As the Derby is run June 6—four days after the Coronation—such a pipe-dream finish would produce scenes of jubilation unrivalled in the 175-year history of the race.

In case this sounds like a tip, let us hasten to add the intention is merely to draw attention to a possibility. The Queen is to run a fancied thoroughbred named Aureole, and Sir Winston is likely to be represented by Prince Arthur, a 66-1 shot.

Just a Thought

The trouble about the dream finish is that things seldom happen that way on the turf, except in the movies, and that few experts rate either Aureole or Prince Arthur among the top contenders for the Epsom classic. Some enough bookmakers won't lay you more than 10-1 against Aureole, but many horsemen feel that's a false price, induced by sentimental wagers.

The one the wise money favors is Nearula, a Yorkshire-trained colt by Nasrullah which won the Two Thousand Guineas April 29 in a head battle with the Aga Khan's Shikampur, Prince Charles and King of the Tudors. But it's still an open race, with a possibility of more than 30 runners.

Hired by Hyperion

Aureole is a good-looking horse by the Derby winner Hyperion out of Angeiola, a thorough stayer which ran second in the Oaks in 1948. He has shown good finishing speed, having been close behind the placed horses in the Two Thousand Guineas, run over a mile at Newmarket. The Derby is a 1½-mile event, which may suit the Queen's colt better.

One drawback is that Hyperion now is 23 years old, an age at which sires seldom produce classic winners.

Prince Arthur, which will carry Sir Winston's chocolate - colored silks, recently won a distance event against second-class company. Shamiza seems his long suit but he may lack the necessary class. On the other hand, Sir Winston seems to be a lucky owner. He went into the game over 50 years ago and has only a small string, but has already had a consistent performer in his good handicapper, Colonist II.

COSTELLO HIT AGAIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The internal revenue bureau has lodged tax claims of $585,534 against gambler Frank Costello and his wife. This was disclosed Thursday in a check of tax court files. Costello, onetime New York gambling bigwig, is serving an 18-month prison term for contempt of Congress.

CARDIFF, Wales (CP) — Machines known as dragline excavators are being imported from the United States, to speed open-cast coal mining in South Wales.

Briefs From Britain

OXFORD, England (CP)—The Oxford Union at this historic university debated a motion that "Oxford is too far behind the times." The motion was defeated by 167 votes to 163.

WOKING, England (CP)—A horn blared loud times in the early morning hours in this Surrey town. Residents flung up their windows, to shout abuse, and saw a cat sitting on the horn of a motorcycle.

ST. DONATS, Wales (CP)—The 11th-century St. Donats Castle, bought for £300,000 by the late American publisher William Randolph Hearst, was modernized at an additional cost of £250,000. Now it is being turned by the Hearst interests into a luxury domestic science school for girls, who will pay minimum annual fees of £300.
